INTRODUCTORY LETTER TO REPORT OF THE
DEPARTMENT OF SOLDIERS' CIVIL RE-ESTABLISHMENT

The Hon. J. H. KING, M.D., M.P., Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment,
Ottawa.

SIR,—In accordance with your instructions, I have the honour to submit the attached report of the work of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment for the fiscal year 1926-27.

Certain features of this report merit special mention, accordingly your attention is directed to the following. The volume of the department's work has shown a reduction owing to the opening in Ottawa of a branch office of the British Ministry of Pensions which has taken over the payment of pensions and the awarding of medical treatment in respect of ex-members of the Imperial forces resident in Canada and the United States. A large proportion of the staff engaged in this particular work under the department has been transferred to the Ministry of Pensions. The most cordial relations exist between the department and the Canadian office of the ministry.

The medical service continues to operate the institutions under the control of the department and deals with the treatment of all ex-members of the forces suffering from service disabilities. The department provides for the treatment also of ex-members of the Imperial forces by arrangement with the Ministry of Pensions. At the commencement of the fiscal year there were 3,097 patients on the strength. At the end of the year there were 2,839 or a reduction of 258. The admissions during the year have numbered 7,243, or about 20 per day, which is slightly less than the number for the previous year. Of the number remaining in hospital at the end of the fiscal year 1,502 were receiving treatment in departmental institutions and the balance in other institutions in Canada and elsewhere. They represented 1,242 medical and surgical cases, 519 tuberculosis cases and 1,078 mental cases. The reduction in the number of those who have died while undergoing treatment has been maintained, there being 28 less than during the previous year. In addition to the regular hospital treatment 120,141 clinical treatments were given, or 2,310 per week. The number of pension medical examinations showed a further reduction owing to the longer period allowed by the Board of Pension Commissioners between examinations and the increased number of pensioners whose awards have been made permanent. The total examinations for the year numbered 31,475.

Excellent progress has been made in the manufacture of metal artificial limbs. The employees of the department engaged in the Orthopædic and Surgical Appliances Branch are becoming expert in the fabrication of the new material and it is gratifying to note the favour with which these new limbs have been received by those who have suffered amputation. While the cost is considerably higher for artificial legs than for those previously manufactured by the department, their lightness and durability are such that they are of great benefit to the wearers and it is considered that the future cost of renewals and repairs will be so much less as to fully compensate for the additional first cost. It will be noted that the average cost of all other appliances has been reduced.

The department continues to co-operate with the Dominion Provincial Employment Service in the placement of disabled ex-service men. It also maintains an employment branch at Head office from which advice and assistance are rendered to those desiring to secure employment in the Civil Service and elsewhere. The Rehabilitation Committees in Toronto, Montreal, Edmonton and Vancouver have continued to render excellent service.

With regard to sheltered employment, the Winnipeg Workshop previously operated by the Red Cross Society was taken over by the department in April, 1926. The Red Cross continues to operate those at Montreal, Vancouver and Victoria. The business done by the department has been uniformly good and notwithstanding competition from factories where able-bodied men are employed the sale of the products wholesale has been maintained and increased. It may be remarked that the demand for poppies in connection with the Armistice Day celebration is an important factor of the work.

The department has continued to issue relief to pensioners out of employment who would otherwise have become a public charge. While the actual amount expended, $333,222.02, is a fraction less than that expended during the previous year, the number of persons to whom relief was issued has shown a marked increase from 3,121 in 1925-26 to 4,079 in 1926-27.

There has been a slight increase in the mortality rate among ex-members of the forces insured under the Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act, the rate for 1926-27 being 9.33 per thousand as against 8.21 per thousand the previous year. There has however been a slight decrease in the number of policies surrendered for cash and a very considerable decrease in the net lapses.

The Order in Council under which the department might pay compensation in respect of pensioners of 20 per cent and upwards who suffered disability as a result of accident incurred in industrial pursuits, expired on March 31, 1927. A new Order in Council was passed re-enacting these provisions with slight modifications, the principal ones being that the pensionable limit is raised to 25 per cent and no repayment is made to employers of assessments paid to Workmen's Compensation Boards. The value of this legislation in placing disabled men in industrial plants has been emphasized during the year.

There has been a further reduction in the staff of the department, the decrease being 183, about half of which was due to the transfer as previously mentioned to the Canadian office of the British Ministry of Pensions. Of the male staff, 96.1 per cent are ex-members of the forces.

In the last annual report an increase in the pension expenditure was noted of $1,458,985.87. There has been a further increase during the fiscal year under review of $742,131.51.

The following is an epitomized statement of the manner in which the funds furnished by Parliament are dealt with by the department.

Direct payments to men and dependents in cash, consisting of pensions, pay and allowances, relief, etc.....	$41,275,351 83
Payments for Services to men and dependents, including Hospital treatment, orthopaedic appliances, transportation of patients and pensioners, funeral expenses, and Sheltered Employment under the control of the department; also employers' liability compensation.....	3,968,623 27
Payments to outside organizations not under the direct control of the department, such as Last Post Fund and Canadian Red Cross Society for Sheltered Employment.....	247,276 82
Capital expenditures and treatment stores.....	277,746 39
Recoverable expenditures.....	558,246 22
Total payments apart from administration.....	$46,327,244 53

Administration including salaries, telephones, telegrams, transportation and travelling expenses, stationery, rent, light, heat, automobile expense, freight, etc.....	1,447,127 39
Total expenditure	$47,774,371 92
Insurance premiums collected.....	1,460,986 96
	$49,235,358 88

The above figure is divided into the cost of administration as shown, plus the expenditure of the Board of Pension Commissioners in respect of the statutory salaries of the members of the Board and the immediate staff, and expenses of the Board at Head Office, as follows:—

Administration	$ 1,447,127 39
Board of Pension Commissioners.....	99,764 25
	1,546,891 64

The resultant figure is a net administration cost of 2.939 per cent for the department, and 3.142 per cent inclusive of the expenses of the Board of Pension Commissioners.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

N. F. PARKINSON,

Deputy Minister.

OTTAWA, December 1, 1927.

REPORT OF THE TREATMENT BRANCH MEDICAL DIVISION

At March 31, 1927, there were eight institutions under the control of the department. Treatment was also being given to ex-soldier patients in a large number of civilian and provincial hospitals, also in Government and other institutions in the United States and Great Britain.

The total number of in-patients and out-patients was 2,881, of whom 2,839 were direct departmental charges, receiving treatment. In addition there were 5 civilian patients, 32 indigent pensioners for whom the department provided maintenance under the authority of Order in Council P.C. 1653 and 5 transients furnished with quarters and maintenance while undergoing examination. The following tables show the general distribution and classification:—

TUBERCULOSIS

The work of the department in connection with the treatment of tuberculosis in hospitals, sanatoria, or as out-patients during the year ending March 31, 1927, is summarized in the following tables:—

The total number under treatment on March 31, 1927, was 519, a decrease of 155 from the corresponding date last year. The distribution is as follows: Departmental hospitals 118, sanatoria 315, general hospitals 30. There is a corresponding decrease in the total admissions from 1,135 to 989, and in the average monthly number under treatment from 666 to 511.

Of the total admissions to hospitals or sanatoria during the year, 233 or 23.5 per cent of the total were new cases who had not previously received treatment for tuberculosis. It will thus be seen that the decrease in admissions and in the number of men requiring treatment for tuberculosis which has been reported annually since 1922 has continued and no doubt a similar, though smaller decrease, may be anticipated for the future. There are however 9,530 ex-members of the forces still living who have been diagnosed and treated as tuberculous and who may therefore be considered eligible for treatment should a breakdown with that disease occur, a contingency which sooner or later is almost inevitable for a very large percentage of this number. Some provision for the case of relapses among these men will be necessary for many years.

There are certain phases of the work of the department relating to tuberculosis concerning which the tables fail to convey any information. Particular mention may be made of the provision for medical supervision, re-examination, and the after-care of ex-soldiers who have completed their institutional treatment and returned to their homes. In addition to the large number of re-examinations for pension purposes which of themselves furnish a most thorough and complete follow-up of all discharged patients, clinics are provided in each province or unit where special examiners are available and may be consulted on request or complaint at any time. These clinics are in a position to recall any patient for whom examination and check up may be considered necessary and attached to each clinic there is at least one visiting nurse whose duty it is to visit the men at their homes or employment and to assist them in every way to avoid relapses or to recognize its occurrence and to resume sanatorium treatment with the least possible delay.

The department also supplies free of charge gauze for handkerchiefs, paper sputum cups, pocket sputum flasks and similar requirements, thus encouraging the ex-soldier to observe at home the precautions which were learned while under treatment for the protection of those with whom they come in contact. Some data on this phase of the work has been incorporated as table 6 of this report.

NEUROPSYCHIATRIC SERVICE

There has been a noticeable increase of activity in the non-mental group during the past year as shown by the greater number of admissions and discharges (table No. 6). This is probably accounted for by the number of new applications for treatment or observation received during the year, as well as a tendency lately to avoid, if possible, long, continued hospitalization in the treatment of psychoneurotic states. It has been found practicable to substitute shorter periods of hospital treatment more frequently repeated.

The number of mental cases treated during the year does not show much variation from the figures reported in the annual report for last year and the number of mental cases remaining on strength, 1,078, represents practically no change from the previous year.

DENTAL SERVICES

The number of dental clinics in operation on March 31, 1927, underwent no change during the fiscal year 1926-27, and remains at 12. The staff employed by the Dental Division was further reduced from 23 to 19, of whom 7 are employed on a part-time basis.

REPORT OF MEDICAL STORES SECTION

As heretofore, the Medical Stores Section at Head office, under the control of the Director of Medical Services, superintends the purchase, requisition, distribution and specification of medical, surgical, and X-ray supplies and technical equipment.

The department has continued the policy of centralized purchasing of medical and surgical supplies, operating one Central Depot at Toronto, on which institutions requisition all supplies of a consumable and expendable nature.

The following is a summarized statement of operations of medical stores for the year ending March 31, 1927:—

ADMINISTRATION BRANCH

The British Ministry of Pensions took over the responsibility for the care of the Imperial pensioners in Canada and the United States as from the 1st of April, 1926. Sixty-three of the staff engaged in this work with the department were transferred to the office of the Ministry Representative, which accounts for approximately fifty per cent of the staff reductions in this branch.

The increase of staff in the Orthopædic and Surgical Appliance Division was occasioned by the change in the type of limb issued. The metal limb now being manufactured requires a larger number of employees than was necessary with the wooden limb. The added comfort to the wearer on account of it being lighter and less bulky justifies the change from wood to metal.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Training has been given to a limited number during the fiscal year, chiefly because of increase in war disability which prevented the applicants from carrying on in either their pre-war occupations or the occupations for which they had been previously trained by the department.

There were 55 trainees on departmental strength at the close of the last fiscal year; 75 were accepted during the year, and 98 either completed training or had their courses discontinued, leaving a total training strength of 32 at the close of the year. The following statements outline the disposition of the cases.

During the year two applications were approved entailing an expenditure of $882.75. Additional loans, amounting in all to $367.39, were issued to men to whom loans had previously been made, making the amount loaned during the year $1,250.14. Of the total amount loaned to the end of the fiscal year less than ten per cent is now outstanding.

BLINDED SOLDIERS

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind has continued the after-care of blinded former members of the forces under arrangements made with the department.

During the week commencing September 8, 1926, the second general reunion of blinded former members from all parts of Canada was held in Toronto. Seventy-seven blinded soldiers, accompanied in most cases by their families or escorts, were in attendance and thoroughly enjoyed the program provided.

This reunion established a record attendance for a blinded soldiers' gathering in Canada and was very beneficial. The annual meeting held at this time indicated a great desire on the part of blinded soldiers to assist in developing helpful services for the civil blind.

During the fiscal year the death of one blinded soldier was reported.

Of the 152 Canadian blinded soldiers, 116 are residing in Canada, 33 in the British Isles, 1 in Belgium and 2 in the United States of America.

It might be mentioned that in addition to the above the Canadian National Institute for the Blind also provided the necessary after-care for five blinded former members of the Imperial forces resident in Canada.

EMPLOYMENT

No change has been made in the arrangements with the Department of Labour whereby the Employment Service of Canada undertook to carry on the work formerly done by the department in finding employment for disabled ex-service men.

The following statement reflects a slight improvement in the employment situation throughout Canada:—

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF APPLICATIONS AND PLACEMENTS OF DISABLED EX-SERVICE MEN DURING THE FISCAL YEARS ENDING MARCH 31, 1926, AND MARCH 31, 1927.

	Applicants	Placements	Cancellations	Pending placement
March 31, 1926.....	17,973	9,902	5,795	2,276
March 31, 1927.....	17,826	10,425	5,421	1,980

Applications for assistance in obtaining employment decreased 147.

The number of men for whom employment was found increased 523.

The number of men who were shown as unemployed decreased 296.

The number of disability pensioners in Canada March 31, 1927, was 39,916. Of this number 1,980, or 4.9 per cent, were registered as unemployed.

EMPLOYMENT IN FEDERAL CIVIL SERVICE

The department has continued to maintain close liaison with the Civil Service Commission and other federal departments for the purpose of assisting disabled former members of the forces to obtain employment in the federal Civil Service of Canada.

REHABILITATION COMMITTEES

In addition to the work of the Employment Service special committees have been operating in Toronto, Montreal and Edmonton to assist in obtaining employment for disabled ex-service men.

EXTRACT FROM THE REPORT OF THE REHABILITATION COMMITTEE OF TORONTO

During the past three years 1,784 partly disabled ex-service men, who have been out of employment and have found it impossible to locate permanent work have applied to the Committee for assistance to become rehabilitated. An analysis of these registrations, however, shows that 996 out of 1,000 cases have been employed on at least one job, exclusive of temporary work and a few have been employed at least fifteen times—prior to registering with us—but have failed to hold their jobs. It was quite apparent, therefore, that there were forces or factors which militated against these men "holding the job". Consequently this committee deemed it necessary to make a careful study of these conditions with a view to determining in a scientific manner, the relation of disabilities of various types to industrial and commercial working conditions. The results of this research have been set out in reports, which have been forwarded to the Department of the Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, under separate cover.

There are at the present time 935 men registered with us who are not employed, and as a result of careful research we believe that:

None are physically fit to successfully compete on the common labour market, where it is necessary to do heavy work similar to handling freight, shovelling coal, grading, pick and shovel work, lifting or carrying bags of cement, salt, etc.;

Twenty-six per cent, or 242 men, are physically capable of doing a great variety of light to medium heavy work, and we believe that if suitable occupation is found for them there is a fair probability that they will "stick on the job";

Seventy-four per cent, or 693 men, are serious problem cases and are practically unemployable from our standpoint.

This group of unemployables consists of 231 who are physically incapable of giving commercial or industrial service, and 471 whose present mental conception of the effect which various forms of work and working conditions will have upon their disabilities, whose conception of fair compensation for services rendered, or whose negative mental traits prevent them from obtaining employment or from continuing in employment, should such be obtainable.

Expenditure.—In the following statement of expenditure we have shown a comparison of the expenditures of the year ending March 31, 1925, with the years ending March 31, 1926, and March 31, 1927.

Placements.—During the past three years the Committee has made 685 placements of which 563 were on permanent work and 122 were on work of a temporary nature and among these placements were 306 Problem Cases. Successful rehabilitation requires permanent employment, consequently the Committee has made no effort to place men in casual or temporary work. In cases where we believed temporary work would lead to permanent employment, or where we desired to check a man's ability or inclination to work, however, we made exceptions to this policy.

The fact that 48 per cent of the men placed in 1925, 51 per cent of men placed in 1926 and 65 per cent of men placed in 1927 or 55 per cent of all placed in permanent positions are still working indicates that these men will respond to scientific methods of placement.

Summary of Results (to March 31, 1927).—The gross expenditure for the past three years' operation including the cost of organization, administration and bonus, was $86,067.13, making the cost per gross placement $125.

The total bonus paid amounts to $524.02, or $24.95 per man receiving bonus, or 76 cents per man placed. It is rather remarkable that only 21 men required a special breaking-in allowance—or bonus—to fit them to the job.

Some conception of the economic value represented by the 685 placements made during the past 34 months may be obtained from the following facts:—

These men had 1,558 dependents and had been unemployed for an aggregate of 5,612 months during the two years prior to registering with this Committee. They had been obliged to obtain financial relief to the extent of $92,114.83, and had further contracted debts amounting to $13,132.20. In other words, the Government, community organizations and business men had to support these men to the extent of $105,247.03 during the above-mentioned period.

The betterment in the condition of these ex-service men by reason of the efforts of this committee is indicated by the approximate earnings of the 685 men since their placement, which totals approximately $404,100. It is impossible to estimate the value of the mental and physical improvement both for the men themselves and for their dependents through the betterment in their economic condition.

REHABILITATION COMMITTEE, MONTREAL

The committee of prominent professional and business men under the chairmanship of General Sir Arthur W. Currie, G.C.M.G., K.C.B., has continued its excellent work, and the accompanying statement reflects a considerable increase in the number of monthly placements in comparison with corresponding months of the previous year.

NOTE.—The above figures are included in the statement of placements made under employment.

CITIZENS' COMMITTEE, EDMONTON

This committee has only found it necessary to function during the winter and early spring months in the city of Edmonton, and they report as follows:—

For the season commencing November 15, 1926, to the end of the fiscal year March 31, 1927:—

Positions obtained, married men.....	87
Positions obtained, single men.....	2
Listed as unemployed at 31-3-27.....	59
Listed as unemployed at commencement of operations.....	148

As in previous years it is expected that all the men registered will be placed in employment by the end of May.

The only expense borne by the Department in connection with the operation of this committee was the salary of the secretary.

SHELTERED EMPLOYMENT

The department continues to operate Sheltered Employment Workshops wherein Canadian pensioners who are unfit for employment in the general labour market are admitted subject to certain conditions.

The only change during the year was with regard to the operation of the Winnipeg Workshop which was taken over by the department from the Canadian Red Cross Society on April 15, 1926.

The workshops operated by the department are located at Toronto, Hamilton, Halifax, St. John, and Winnipeg. The Canadian Red Cross Society have been very successful in the operation of their workshops at Montreal, Victoria, and Vancouver, and at the latter a new workshop has been erected by the society, supported by the interest of the Lions' Club of that city.

The Toronto, Hamilton, Winnipeg, and Halifax shops are operated along the same lines, and a permanent business is being developed in the sale of standard Vetreft articles. The principal ones are porcelain top and plain kitchen tables, washboards, wooden kitchenware, juvenile furniture, children's blackboards, and a very complete line of wooden toys and playthings. The sales show a very good increase in spite of the competition which we meet from the leading manufacturers of similar products.

The St. John workshop endeavoured to develop the British market for box-shooks, but although a number of orders were received it was found to be impossible to compete with the prices now paid. The Canadian shook business gives promise of increase and the attention of the St. John officers is being directed to obtain this.

In the Red Cross Workshops the work done is more of the special order and repair class, for which there always seems to be a demand.

The poppies and wreaths which are distributed on Armistice Day are manufactured in the Workshops and a special effort is being made towards an increase in sales for next year.

The number of men employed in the workshops at March 31, 1927, was 248, made up as follows:—

RELIEF

The number of men to whom relief was granted during the winter season of 1926-27 was 4,079. These individuals were granted relief 32,999 times, or an average of 8.09 times per man.

The actual expenditure on relief during the fiscal year was $333,222.02, which is a decrease of more than eight thousand dollars over that of the previous year.

Relief is not granted in cash, but by the issue of orders to grocers, coal dealers, landlords, etc., whose accounts are duly paid when submitted.

RETURNED SOLDIERS' INSURANCE DIVISION

The work of the division consists principally in the collection of premiums, the adjustment of policies and death claims.

The number of death claims admitted is slightly higher than the previous year—251 as against 221. The rate per 1,000 is slightly higher—being 9.33 for 1926-27 as against 8.21 in 1925-26. There has been a slight decrease in the number of policies surrendered for cash and a very considerable decrease in the net lapses.

The income from premiums and interest has been more than sufficient to cover the expenditures and the balance of the fund as at March 31, 1927, has increased by an amount of $878,834.40, the total amount to the credit of the fund being $5,090,041.62.

ORTHOPAEDIC AND SURGICAL APPLIANCES DIVISION

In reviewing the work of this division for the year it may be said that two important tasks have been accomplished, viz., the manufacture of all-metal artificial legs and the personal examination and fitting of all artificial eye cases throughout the Dominion.

During the month of March, 1926, the department entered into a contract with the J. E. Hanger Company, Limited, of London, England, whereby they agreed to supply the component parts necessary for the manufacture of all-metal legs, to supervise the installation of the necessary machinery and to instruct the department's operatives in the manufacture. The managing director of this firm, Mr. A. J. Swain, brought with him to Canada one of their leading mechanics and personally supervised the erection of the new plant, after which, under their guidance, the department commenced to manufacture the appliance. Remarkably good progress was made and the regular mechanics, in addition to those specially engaged, quickly adapted themselves to the use of the new metal, Duralumin. The department still retains the services of the special mechanic.

As soon as the new Metal Limb Shop at Toronto was organized and satisfactory appliances were being produced, the department arranged to bring in to Toronto for instruction in the measuring and fitting of these special limbs the leading limb fitter from each of the other Units. The purpose of this was to enable the issue of these appliances to be made throughout the Dominion at the very earliest date through the local Orthopaedic Depots. The present production has reached twenty per month, and it is hoped to increase this to twenty-five and possibly thirty, in the very near future.

The invention of Duralumin, which is an alloy of aluminum, copper and magnesium and possesses the matchless properties of exceptional strength, great lightness and ability to resist corrosion, started the experiments in England which have led to the success of this type of appliance.

The department has produced and issued from the Toronto Factory ninety-seven all metal legs up to and including March 31, 1927, and these have been remarkable not only for the exceptionally good fitting, but also for the great saving in weight over the former appliances.

The department's optometrist has now visited each Unit Office and with few exceptions personally examined and fitted each individual beneficiary, who suffers from the loss of one, or both eyes. The policy of the Department is to have an exact duplicate of the artificial eye at the local office for immediate replacement and two at Toronto, one to replace when necessary the eye issued in the local office and the second to serve as a model from which to replace the one sent out.

During the year the department has issued a further number of Anderson arms and all units have been given the opportunity of having these fitted to selected cases.

The activities of the Orthopaedic Boot Shops have remained much the same as previous years, but with improved methods of manufacture and organization the average cost of orthopaedic boots and repairs has shown a considerable decrease. The department has extended the service given to foot disability cases by making provision for the supply of special rubbers and overshoes to those orthopaedic cases whose special footwear prohibits them obtaining the regular pattern article. The beneficiary is called upon to pay the cost of the standard article and the department assumes the additional expense of the special article and that of the lasts.

The demand for such articles as elastic goods, splints, eye-glasses, special gloves, stump socks, etc., remains constant owing to the regular need of renewal.

The department still maintains and operates the main Orthopaedic Factory at Toronto, with eight other Branch Depots and three Sub-Depots. The operations throughout the year have been very satisfactory and the results of the excellent co-operation and assistance of the employees is reflected in the comparative cost statement below, showing the results of the past six years' operations. A record of the work accomplished to date is also given.

PAY AND PERSONAL SERVICES

The general functions of this division have been set forth in previous annual reports.

CHAPLAINS

There are at present 17 chaplains employed at an annual salary of $10,500. To the comfort and welfare of the convalescing patients, the praiseworthy efforts of the Red Cross, Rotarians, Kiwanians, Y.M.C.A., and kindred organizations in arranging entertainments, recreations and outings, having contributed no small amount.

WAR SERVICE GRATUITY

At the close of the fiscal year, War Service Gratuity held in trust by the department amounted to $175,087.14, representing principal and accrued interest on the accounts of 432 ex-soldiers, wards of the department. A summary of the transactions during the year is as follows:—

INVESTIGATION SECTION

It is the duty of this section to investigate matters concerning dependent pensioners and prospective pensioners and gather data required by the Board of Pension Commissioners to determine whether pension shall be awarded, continued, increased, decreased, administered or cancelled.

All investigations are made at the request of the Board of Pension Commissioners and are carried out by the unit officers on instructions from this division. The completed claim forms, reports, certificates and submitted evidence are checked before being referred to the board for consideration.

As a result of investigations conducted and reports submitted, there are at present approximately 1,600 cases where pension awarded to widows and children, orphan children, parents and disability pensioners, is being administered either by the department, legal guardians, service organizations, etc. In the case of the orphan children a report is submitted annually by the unit offices. This is also applicable to the case of the disability pensioners where administration is deemed necessary by reason of some mental or other disorder. The following table illustrates the approximate number of each type and the method of administration:—

FOREIGN RELATIONS SECTION

As activities of this section are most varied, covering the administration of benefits to patients and pensioners of "U" Unit or those ex-Canadian soldiers resident in the United States, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and other countries outside of Europe and the British Isles. The greater part of the work involves beneficiaries resident in the United States, where at the end of the fiscal year there were 119 patients receiving treatment in various hospitals, under the jurisdiction of the United States Veterans' Bureau. Throughout the year there were 449 admissions. Hospital pay and allowances to these patients and their dependents issued direct by Head Office and during the fiscal year necessitated an expenditure of $107,600.37. At the request of the department the United States Veterans' Bureau conducts routine and special pension examinations in the United States. Services in the nature of transportation and subsistence are furnished by the bureau which is later reimbursed by the department. During the year 3,892 examinations were conducted, involving an expenditure on the part of the bureau of $5,798.92 for transportation and $1,117.06 for travelling expenses.

In Australia and New Zealand allowances and benefits are extended to ex-Canadian soldiers by the respective governments and the amount involved is later refunded by the department. To the Australian Government the amount of £356.7.1., and to the New Zealand Government £101.7.9., was paid.

This section is also concerned with the authorization of allowances to ex-members of the allied forces resident in Canada, with the exception of ex-Imperials.

A detailed statement of compensation issued and benefits extended to Canadians in the United States and allied ex-soldiers in Canada and the United States shows the following:—

There has been no change in the rates of pay and allowances throughout the year, nor any other changes in the regulations which have materially affected the work of this division in general. With the opening of the office of the British Ministry of Pensions in Ottawa and the transfer on April 1, 1926, of all clerical work concerning ex-Imperials to that office, which was formerly executed by this division, it was possible to make a slight reduction in the staff. The personnel employed has been reduced to ten (10).

THE DISABLEMENT BOARD

Eighteen meetings of the board were held throughout the year, at which approval was given for sheltered employment to 135 cases.

OVERSEAS OFFICE

The London, England, office of the department is responsible for the provision of the various services to former members of the C.E.F. and their dependents residing in Great Britain, Ireland and other European countries.

It is of interest to note in this connection that 2,958 disability pensioners are residing in the British Isles, this figure representing 6.16 per cent of the total number; while 4,292 dependent pensioners are residing in this area, or 21.46 per cent of the total.

The total staff employed in this office is 11.

ENGINEERING DIVISION

The Engineering Division is responsible for the maintenance and repairs of hospitals, clinics and administration offices. Also for rentals, taxes and water rates, power plants, insurance (mechanical transport and boiler), fuel supply, fire protection and prevention, mechanical transport, laundries and farm and garden operations.

MAINTENANCE AND REPAIRS

The Department of Public Works upon request carries out major repairs on all hospitals and institutions. For this purpose an appropriation of $75,000 was made by Parliament. General repairs are handled by the Engineering Division of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. The expenditure under this head during the fiscal year under review was $26,372.67.

FARM AND GARDEN OPERATIONS

The beautification of the grounds of the various hospitals is being continued each year and will be until plans which have been made are completed. At the Psychopathic Hospitals of Ste. Anne's and Westminster the farm operations have been extended and a greater acreage has been put into crop.

RECORDS AND CENTRAL REGISTRY

There has been a considerable reduction in the volume of work passing through this division due to the fact that on April 1, 1926, the British Ministry of Pensions opened an office in Ottawa, to which was transferred all the files of former members of the Imperial forces previously handled by the department.

There has been no appreciable reduction in the volume of work passing through this division so far as it relates to the care of the former members of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces.

ACCOUNTS DIVISION

The organization of the division has remained unchanged during the fiscal year under review; minor changes have been made in the department's accounting procedure to simplify and improve the results obtained.

The volume of work has shown a tendency to rise over that reported in the two previous years, but as the percentage of increase amounted to approximately 2 per cent only, the various details of the work done by the division as previously reported have not been repeated.

Cost accounts are still maintained to control the activities of the various departmental hospitals, pension examination centres, clinics, O. and S.A. depots and Vetreft factories operated by the department.

All subsidiary ledgers and books of original entry maintained at Head Office and the various outside Units of the department are in balance with the relative control accounts kept in the general ledger at Head Office.

The items reported in the income and expenditure statement are in agreement with the books of the Finance department and Auditor General.

Complete details of the financial operations will be found in the statements which follow. These statements are shown in the same form as in the preceding three years; a short description of each is given:—

1. Income and Expenditure, Fiscal Year 1926-27.—On the left side is shown the appropriations granted by Parliament; revenue received from all sources, together with the balances of trust funds as at the first of the year. On the right side is shown the gross disbursements made, divided into direct payments to men and their dependents, both on account of pensions and re-establishment, payments for services rendered such men, and payments made to outside organizations which render service to returned men, unexpended portions of the appropriations voted by Parliament for the fiscal year and the balances of trust funds at the close of the year.

The various authorities under which expenditures were made are quoted following the items to which they apply. Where no authority is given, the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Act applies. The various items of income and expenditure are in agreement with the amounts shown in the Public Accounts and Auditor General's reports. The summary statement covers the main divisions of the department's income and expenditure condensed for reference purposes.

2. Net Disbursement on Pensions Account for the period April 1, 1916, to March 31, 1927, by fiscal years.

3. Net Disbursements of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment on Re-establishment Account for the period July, 1915, to March 31, 1927, by fiscal years.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION IN RESPECT OF PENSIONERS

Since September 1, 1921, the Department, under the authority of Order in Council P.C. 4432, 1921, as amended, has paid compensation through Workmen's Compensation Boards and to employers direct in respect of accidents to pensioners of twenty per cent and upwards. It has also, in certain cases when application therefor has been made, repaid to employers premiums paid to Workmen's Compensation Boards in respect of such pensioners. As from the commencement of the fiscal year 1927-28, the limit has been raised from twenty per cent to twenty-five per cent and no repayment is now made to employers for premiums.

The full conditions under which this legislation is operated is set forth in appendix II of this report, being Order in Council P.C. 558, dated March 29, 1927. The following tables set forth the number of claims and amounts paid and the amount reimbursed to employers:—

Treatment,

Clause 2. (1) The department may give treatment to, or may admit to hospital for the purpose of observation, any former member of the forces who, in the opinion of medical authority, is suffering from a disability attributable to service, if treatment or observation is required for such disability, provided that application for treatment or for pension in respect of the said disability has been made on or before the 31st day of August, 1924, or within nine years after the date upon which the applicant was retired or discharged from the forces, whichever is the later, or that there is an entry in the service or medical documents of the said former member of the forces or in the files of the department showing the existence of an injury or disease which has contributed to the disability in respect of which treatment is claimed, in which case such entry shall be considered an application as at the date thereof for treatment or for pension in respect of such disability.

(2) If in the opinion of medical authority a former member of the forces claiming treatment requires treatment or observation for a disability accepted as attributable to service or if a ruling that his disability was attributable to service has been made by the Board of Pension Commissioners or the Federal Appeal Board, the department may issue or authorize during the period of treatment

- (a) in respect of any disability other than a mental disability, the allowances set forth in Clause 4 hereof;
- (b) in respect of a mental disability, the allowances provided for in Clause 9 hereof.

(3) Except as provided in the succeeding paragraphs of this Clause, the department shall not, under the authority of this Order in council, give treatment with the allowances set forth in Clause 4 hereof, to any former member of the forces for a disability in respect of which the Board of Pension Commissioners or the Federal Appeal Board has ruled that it was not attributable to service, unless the former member of the forces is undergoing treatment for his pensionable disability and it is considered by medical authority that a further disability from which he is suffering is of such a nature as directly and adversely to affect the nature of the treatment provided for the pensionable disability or to retard recovery from the same, in which case he may, at the discretion of the department, be granted treatment with or without the allowances set forth in Clause 4 hereof.

Observation
in respect of Pensionable
Disability.

(4) If in the opinion of medical authority a period of observation in hospital is necessary in connection with a disability for which pension has been awarded, and for which routine examination is being conducted, the pensioner shall be admitted to hospital for such observation and shall be paid the allowances set forth in Clause 4 hereof.

Observation
after ruling
by Federal Appeal Board.

(5) If a ruling is made by the Federal Appeal Board that the disability from which an appellant claims to be suffering is attributable to service and the Board of Pension Commissioners requires a period of observation in order to determine the proper degree of assessment, the allowances set forth in Clause 4 hereof shall be paid during such period of observation.

(6) If an examination is conducted as a result of a complaint that the assessment for the disability in respect of which pension has been awarded is too low, a period of observation in hospital may be authorized by medical authority in order to determine the proper degree of assessment, but the allowances set forth in Clause 4 hereof shall only be paid if such period of observation results in an increased pension or indicates that hospital treatment is required for a disability attributable to service, provided that pension may be continued during the period of observation unless it is in excess of the allowances set forth in Clause 4 hereof, when the said allowances shall be substituted for pension as from the date of admission to hospital; provided also that if the pensioner has dependents and the amount of his pension is less than the special dependents' allowances set forth in Clause 4a hereof the pension may at the expiry of fourteen days be augmented to the amount of the special dependents' allowances.

(7) If a final decision has not been reached by the department or the Board of Pension Commissioners respecting the attributability to service of a disability from which a former member of the forces claims to be or is suffering and a period of observation in hospital is required, the former member of the forces may be admitted to hospital, provided

Observation for diagnosis or emergency pending final decision.

- (a) the diagnosis is uncertain and it is considered necessary to clear up diagnosis because there is reasonable evidence to believe that the condition may be attributable to service; or
- (b) the diagnosis is established, but emergent hospitalization is required, and from the history of the case and evidence submitted there is in the opinion of medical authority a reasonable probability that a period of observation may establish service relationship.

(8) Cases admitted under paragraph (7) of this clause will be dealt with as follows:—

- (a) If the former member of the forces is a pensioner in respect of another disability and his pension is in excess of the allowances set forth in Clause 4 hereof, such allowances shall be substituted for pension as from the date of admission to hospital; or
- (b) if the former member of the forces is a pensioner in respect of another disability and has dependents and the amount of pension is less than the special dependents' allowances set forth in Clause 4a hereof the pension may, after the expiry of fourteen days be augmented to the amount of the said special dependents' allowances; or
- (c) if the former member of the forces is not a pensioner and there are dependents, the special dependents' allowances set forth in Clause 4a hereof may be paid after the expiry of fourteen days;

provided that if it is subsequently conceded by the department or by the Board of Pension Commissioners that the disability in respect of which the former member of the forces was admitted to hospital is attributable to service, the allowances set forth in Clause 4 hereof shall be payable as from the date of admission to hospital, there being deducted therefrom any payment of pension and any payments made in respect of special dependents' allowances.

Reporting for examination without being called in.

(9) A pensioner, or a former member of the forces who is not a pensioner, who reports for examination in respect of pension without having been called in as set forth in Clause 20 hereof, shall not be entitled to an examination unless in the case of a pensioner medical evidence is submitted that there is an increase in his disability, or in the case of a former member of the forces who is not a pensioner reasonable evidence is submitted that his disability is attributable to service.

Reporting for treatment without being called in.

(10) A former member of the forces whether a pensioner or non-pensioner, who reports for treatment, without having been called in as set forth in Clause 20 hereof, shall not be entitled to any of the allowances set forth in Clauses 4, 4a or 20 hereof, unless it is found on examination that the disability from which he is suffering is attributable to service and that hospitalization for the same is required, or that observation for diagnosis is required, in which case payment shall be made only at the discretion of the department.

Called in but found to require treatment for non-service disability.

(11) If a former member of the forces who is called in as set forth in Clause 20 hereof is found to require treatment for a disability not attributable to service he shall not be entitled to treatment by the department, nor shall he be entitled to any of the allowances set forth in Clauses 4, 4a or 20 hereof beyond the date of decision, except transportation and the subsistence allowances set forth in Clause 20 hereof.

Treatment without Pay and Allowances.

(12) Where in the opinion of the department or the Board of Pension Commissioners the disability for which application for treatment is made was not attributable to service, but where in the opinion of the department there is nevertheless a real possibility that it might be considered attributable to service, though reasonable proof is not obtainable, in order that full justice may be accorded to the applicant the department may grant treatment only, provided:—

- (a) That if at a later date evidence is produced to justify the department in its action, the allowances set forth in Clause 4 hereof may be paid as from the date treatment at the hands of the department was commenced up to the conclusion of treatment.
- (b) That treatment shall be given only after direct authorization by the deputy minister.
- (c) That in the case of a pensioner, partial subsistence may, subject to the approval of the Board of Pension Commissioners, be deducted from pension in accordance with the following scale:—
 - (i) Pensioner without dependents $1 per day or the entire pension, whichever is the lesser.
 - (ii) Pensioner with dependents, a similar deduction from the pension payable to the man himself, it being definitely understood that any pension payable in respect of his dependents shall in no wise be interfered with in this connection and that the Board of Pension Commissioners may transfer and pay to the dependents a portion or the whole of the pension payable in respect of the pensioner himself.

(13) In any case in which the Board of Pension Commissioners has awarded a pension in respect of venereal disease contracted prior to enlistment and aggravated during service the department may provide in-patient treatment, when necessary, for a sequelae of such disease subject to the following regulations:—

Venereal Disease contracted prior
is paid.

- (a) The said pension when referred to in this paragraph shall include pension paid in respect of dependents and shall mean any pension awarded under the provisions of Section 12 of the Pension Act, plus any pension awarded in respect of a disability attributable to service, but shall not mean any allowance granted under subsections (3) and (4) of section 27 of the Pension Act.
- (b) If treatment is granted for a former member of the forces without dependents partial cost of his maintenance in hospital up to forty dollars ($40) per month may, at the discretion of the Board of Pension Commissioners and the department, be paid to the department from the said pension. Of the sum so paid to the department three dollars ($3) per month shall be repaid or allowed to him in order to provide comforts, etc., and seven dollars ($7) per month, or such lesser amount as may be necessary, shall be credited to him on the books of the department for the provision of such clothing as he may require.
- (c) With Dependents—Non-Mental Cases.—Former members of the forces who are married or who have a dependent or dependents may be divided into the following classes:—
- (i) Those in respect of whom the said pension is less than the special dependents' allowances set forth in Clause 4a hereof.
 - (ii) Those in respect of whom the said pension is equal to or greater than the special dependents' allowances set forth in Clause 4a hereof, but less than the allowances set forth in Clause 4 hereof.
 - (iii) Those in respect of whom the said pension is equal to or greater than the allowances set forth in Clause 4 hereof.

If treatment is granted to a former member of the forces with a dependent or dependents the following procedure shall be adopted, based upon the foregoing divisions:—

- (i) There may be paid to the wife or dependent, or dependents, in case of actual need, the full amount of the said pension, or at the discretion of the department, the full amount of the said pension plus the difference between it and the special dependents' allowances set forth in Clause 4a hereof and there shall be paid or allowed to the said former member of the forces himself the sum of three dollars ($3) per month in order to provide comforts, etc., and any clothing he may require shall be provided by the Department up to a value not exceeding seven dollars ($7) per month.
- (ii) There may be paid to the wife or dependent or dependents, in case of actual need, the full amount of the said pension, or at the discretion of the department and the Board of Pension Commissioners the amount of the special dependents' allowances set forth in Clause 4a hereof, when the difference between the special dependents' allowances and the amounts of the said pension shall be applied towards any clothing or comforts issued or any amount in respect thereof paid or allowed to the said former member of the forces by the department, and the amount so applied shall, if insufficient, be augmented by the department so that there may be paid or allowed to the said former member of the forces himself the sum of three dollars ($3) per month in order to provide comforts, etc., and that any clothing he may require may be provided by the department up to a value not exceeding seven dollars ($7) per month.

- (iii) There may be paid to the wife or dependent or dependents in case of actual need the full amount of the allowances set forth in Clause 4 hereof, or at the discretion of the Department and the Board of Pension Commissioners such lesser amount, as may be deemed necessary when the difference between the amount paid to the dependent or dependents and the amount of the said pension shall be applied towards any clothing or comforts issued or any amount in respect thereof paid or allowed to the said former member of the forces by the department, and the amount so applied shall, if insufficient be augmented by the department so that there may be paid or allowed to the said former member of the forces himself the sum of three dollars ($3) per month in order to provide comforts, etc., and that any clothing he may require may be provided by the department up to a value not exceeding seven dollars ($7) per month.

- (d) With Wife or Dependents—Mental Cases.—The provisions of sub-paragraph (c) of this paragraph shall apply except that there shall be substituted for the words and figure “the allowances set forth in Clause 4 hereof” the words and figure “the allowances provided for in Clause 9 hereof.”

(14) In any case in which a former member of the forces requires in-patient treatment for a sequelae of venereal disease contracted prior to enlistment and aggravated during service in respect of which no pension is payable by reason of the fact that he did not see service in a theatre of actual war or in any case in which a former member of the forces requires in-patient treatment for a sequelae of venereal disease contracted during service, the department may provide such in-patient treatment as may be necessary and may provide such clothing as is required but no allowances shall be payable; provided that if such former member of the forces is in receipt of a pension in respect of another disability the pension shall at the discretion of the department and the Board of Pension Commissioners be applied in the following manner:—

- (i) Man without dependents—Three dollars ($3) per month shall be allowed for the provision of comforts, etc., any balance in excess of three dollars ($3) per month shall be applied against the provision of clothing and maintenance up

APPENDIX II

Order in Council P.C. 558, dated the 29th March, 1927. Authority under which the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment may pay compensation in respect of industrial accidents sustained by pensioners of 25 per cent and upwards.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a Report, dated 25th March, 1927, from the Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, submitting that by Order in Council P.C. 4432, dated the 29th December, 1921, as amended by Order in Council P.C. 2247 dated the 27th October, 1922, provision was made for the reimbursement by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment of the amount of assessments paid to a Workmen's Compensation Board by employers of pensioners in receipt of a disability pension of not less than 20 per cent, also the reimbursement to a Workmen's Compensation Board or an employer of the full cost of compensation with respect to all accidents to such pensioners;

That it was originally intended that the provisions of the said Order in Council as amended should be operative until the 31st August, 1924, but extensions have been granted to the 31st March, 1927; and

That the employment situation in Canada insofar as disability pensioners are concerned has materially improved since the passing of the said Order in Council and it is considered that certain modifications may now be made;

The minister, therefore, recommends that the said Order in Council be allowed to lapse and that as from the 1st April, 1927, the Government of Canada assume the liability imposed by provincial Workmen's Compensation Acts or by Common Law in respect of industrial accidents, upon employers of disabled former members of the forces to whom a pension of 25 per cent or over is payable by or through the Government of Canada or the British Ministry of Pensions in respect of disabilities received in or attributable to the Great War subject to the following regulations:—

P.R. 5693.

1. (a) "Pensioner" shall mean a former member of the forces resident in Canada, who is in receipt of a pension payable by or through the Board of Pension Commissioners for Canada, or the Canadian office of the British Ministry of Pensions, in respect of disabilities incurred during or attributable to service in the Great War, of not less than 25 per cent in the case of an accident occurring after the 31st March, 1927, or of not less than 20 per cent in the case of an accident occurring prior to the 31st March, 1927.
- (b) "Department" shall mean the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment.
- (c) "Compensation" shall mean and include all amounts to which a pensioner is, or, in the case of his death, his dependents are, entitled under or by virtue of any Workmen's Compensation Act in force in any province of Canada.
- (d) "Full cost of compensation" shall include compensation, burial expenses, the cost of furnishing medical aid, and all other amounts payable under or by virtue of a Workmen's Compensation Act in force in any province of Canada by reason of a pensioner's meeting with an accident or by his contracting an industrial disease, compensable under any of said acts, and shall include the capitalized sum or present value of the amount required, as determined by the Workmen's Compensation Board having jurisdiction with respect thereto, to provide for future payments of compensation to the pensioner or his dependents.

(e) "Accident" shall include an industrial disease compensable under a Workmen's Compensation Act in force in the province where such disease is contracted.

2. The department shall pay to the Workmen's Compensation Board the full cost of compensation with respect to all accidents to pensioners in the province; such payment or payments to be made upon receiving a certificate from the board of the full cost of compensation, which certificate may be accepted by the department without other proof.

3. Where the employer of a pensioner entitled to compensation is individually liable for the payment thereof under a Workmen's Compensation Act, or under what is known in the Ontario Act as Schedule 2, the department shall refund to the employer the full cost of compensation upon the employer submitting to the department a certificate of the Workmen's Compensation Board, showing the amount thereof.

4. In the event of a claim for damages being made against the employer by a pensioner who is injured, or by the dependents of a pensioner who dies, by reason of an accident to such pensioner while employed in an industry not within the jurisdiction of a Workmen's Compensation Board, and in the event of liability therefor and the amount of the damages sustained by the pensioner thereby being admitted by the employer with the consent and approval of the department, or if damages be awarded against such employer by any court or authority other than a Workmen's Compensation Board, the department shall submit all the evidence available and a statement of the facts as found by the court or other authority, if the damages shall have been adjudged by any such court or authority, to the Workmen's Compensation Board for the province in which the accident occurred, or if the accident did not occur in a province in which there is a Workmen's Compensation Board, the same shall be submitted to the Workmen's Compensation Board of any adjoining province or if there be no adjoining province having a board, or if the accident happens outside of a province, the same shall, in the discretion of the department, be submitted to any Workmen's Compensation Board for the purposes of ascertaining what amount or amounts such board would allow if the accident were one for which compensation would be payable under the Workmen's Compensation Act of the province for which such board was appointed if the industry were within the jurisdiction of the board, and the department shall pay to the employer the amount as agreed upon as aforesaid or awarded by the court or other authority, as the case may be, against the employer if the same be less than the amount as determined by such board, and if it be greater the department shall pay to the employer the amount as determined by such board.

5. Where the accident happens outside of a province the employer shall not be entitled to any benefits under these provisions unless the pensioner's employment with such employer commenced in the province and his employment was continuous to the time of the accident and the accident happens within six months from the last time the pensioner was in the province.

6. The department shall repay to each employer of a pensioner the amount of assessment, if any, paid by such employer to a Workmen's Compensation Board with respect to the wages paid to such pensioner during the period 1st

January, 1926, to 31st March, 1927, provided that said employer shall furnish to the department a statement giving the following information in respect of such pensioner:—

- (i) Name, address, ex-regimental number or pension number;
- (ii) Date employment commenced;
- (iii) Date employment ceased if pensioner is not employed at the time of making the statement;
- (iv) Total amount of wages paid or other allowances made during the period for which reimbursement is claimed;
- (v) Rate of assessment levied by the Workmen's Compensation Board upon the wages paid to such pensioner; and shall furnish a certificate from the Workmen's Compensation Board that the assessment has been duly paid to the board; provided also that a claim for such repayment shall be made to the department on or before the 30th April, 1927, in respect of assessment on wages paid during 1926 and on or before the 31st March, 1928, in respect of assessment on wages paid from the 1st January, 1927, to the 31st March, 1927.

7. No payment shall be made by the department in respect of an accident which occurred before the 1st October, 1926, unless notice of such accident is received by the department on or before the 30th April, 1927, and except as herein provided no payment shall be made by the department in respect of any accident unless notice of such accident is received by the department within six months of its occurrence.

8. This Order in Council shall remain in force until the 31st March, 1928.

The committee concur in the foregoing recommendation and submit the same for approval.

(Sgd.) E. J. LEMAIRE,

Clerk of the Privy Council.

APPENDIX III

Order in Council P.C. 1315 dated the 30th June, 1927. Revised authority under which the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment may provide care and maintenance for indigent pensioners.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a report, dated 29th June, 1927, from the Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, stating that by Order in Council of the 18th September, 1924 (P.C. 1653) authority was granted to the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment to provide quarters and maintenance for indigent ex-members of the forces in receipt of a disability pension of not less than twenty per cent under certain conditions therein laid down.

The limitation of this benefit to pensioners who are in receipt of not less than twenty per cent pension was intended as a temporary measure and it is now considered that it should be extended to all disability pensioners who may be in need of the same.

The minister, therefore, recommends that the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment be authorized to put into effect the following regulations:

1. The term "pensioner" as used herein means a former member of the Canadian forces who is at present in receipt of, or is entitled to, a disability pension payable by or through the Board of Pension Commissioners for Canada or the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, or is in receipt of, or is entitled to, allowances payable by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, or who has accepted a final payment in lieu of continuation of pension, for a disability between four and fourteen per cent, under the provisions applicable thereto contained in the Pension Act as Amended.
2. The department may, at its discretion, provide quarters and maintenance, and when necessary medical treatment in a departmental institution for any indigent pensioner whose pensionable disability though not requiring active hospitalization, or whose non-service disability added to his pensionable disability prevents him permanently from obtaining or continuing remunerative work and thereby earning sufficient to maintain himself and who as a result of these conditions has or will become a public charge.
3. On the admission of a pensioner to a departmental institution, partial cost of his maintenance up to forty dollars ($40) per month may, at the discretion of the Board of Pension Commissioners and the Department be paid to the department from pension or any other moneys to which the said pensioner may be entitled, provided that such payment to the department shall not be made from pension or other payments payable to or in respect of his dependents. Of the sum so paid to the department, three dollars ($3) per month shall be repaid to the said pensioner in order to provide comforts, etc., and seven dollars ($7) per month shall be credited to him on the books of the Department for the provision of such clothing as he may require.

The committee concur in the foregoing recommendations and submit the same for approval.

(Sgd.) E. J. LEMAIRE,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

The Honourable,
The Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment,

APPENDIX IV

Order in Council P.C. 1169, dated the 17th June, 1927. Authority under which the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment may provide special assistance to the Last Post Fund.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a report, dated 14th June, 1927, from the Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, submitting that for some years past the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment has made a grant of $10,000 per annum to the Last Post Fund of Canada for the burial of former members of the forces who may die in indigent circumstances and who have no claim upon the Government for the payment of burial expenses.

Representations have been made from time to time that this grant is inadequate and that the additional amount received from public subscriptions, provincial grants and municipal contributions is insufficient to meet the actual expenses incurred by the various branches of the Last Post Fund.

The Minister recommends that the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment be authorized, in addition to the grant of $10,000, referred to herein, to pay such further expenses as the Last Post Fund may incur subject to the following conditions:—

- (1) Should any Provincial Branch of the Last Post Fund find that the amount received by it from all sources is or has been insufficient to pay the legitimate costs of burial of ex-service men who die in indigent circumstances, whose cases under the present regulations of the Fund are or were eligible for assistance, and the necessary costs of administration, representation in this regard shall be made by the Provincial Branch to the Dominion Council of the Fund in Montreal.
- (2) "Legitimate costs of burial" shall include the purchase of a grave and the erection of a marker.
- (3) Should the Dominion Council consider after scrutinizing all sources of income and all expenditures of any Provincial Branch that assistance beyond its share of the said grant should be granted to any such branch, it shall certify the correctness of the expenditure made by that branch and submit a proper account to the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment and the Department shall thereupon pay such account through the Dominion Headquarters of the Fund if it is in order.
- (4) Except the amount allowed from the said grant for the salary of the Dominion Secretary and the expenses of the Dominion Headquarters of the Fund, no portion of the said grant or of any additional payment made under the authority of this Order in Council shall be applied towards administration expenses.
- (5) Where there is a Last Post Fund in any country outside of Canada the regulations of which conform to those of the Last Post Fund of Canada the department may make such grant or render such financial assistance towards the expenses of burial of former members of the Canadian forces who die in such country in indigent circumstances as may be hereafter determined.

The committee concur in the foregoing recommendation and submit the same for approval.

(Sgd.) E. J. LEMAIRE,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

The Honourable
The Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment.

APPENDIX V

CANTEEN FUND

Under the provisions of chapter 34 of the Statutes of Canada, 1925, the Canteen Fund has been distributed to provincial boards of trustees and a certain sum granted to the American Red Cross and the United Services Fund (Great Britain) for the benefit of ex-members of the Canadian forces in the United States and the United Kingdom, respectively. The total amount available for distribution was $2,402,586.08 and the distribution was as follows:—

In view of the fact that the Ontario trustees were only appointed in December, 1926, the Ontario share was held for approximately one year longer than that of the other provinces, hence the amount set down as having been paid to Ontario should be increased by the sum of $28,154.41, interest to December 31, 1926. The money was paid over in January and February, 1927.

The following information is taken from the reports submitted by the Canteen Fund trustees.

The fund is not yet operating, pending the appointment of a secretary by the province:—

NOVA SCOTIA

Trustees:

Capt. the Rev. Clarence MacKinnon, D.D., Halifax, Chairman.
Major Edgar J. Vickery, Yarmouth, Secretary.
Mr. John Vincent McNeil, Sydney.

Immediately on the creation of the Nova Scotia Board in February, 1926, circular letters were issued to ascertain the wishes of returned men in the province. Not more than five per cent of the letters were answered. It was therefore resolved to use the fund to give immediate assistance to those in distress, using the interest and part of the principal, so that the fund might be expended at the end of a period of possibly ten years.

Grants have been made to meet medical expenses, including medical treatment and hospital operations, especially, to those suffering from tuberculosis, who cannot secure help from other sources without having to be declared paupers. During the winter months, due to the unemployment situation being so severe, the board has given what might be termed doles and in this way many families have been kept from absolute starvation. This has been the largest expenditure, but has been deemed necessary.

It was considered by the board that one of the best possible means of assisting the ex-soldier was by heartily supporting the Nova Scotia Branch of the Canadian Legion. Hence the board has advanced to the Legion the sum of $5,000 to enable it to function properly.

The New Brunswick trustees have not received a sufficiently solid opinion or any concrete suggestions to enable a final decision to be reached as to what should be done with the principal. The experience of the board, however, has shown a definite need for relief amongst ex-service men and their families, particularly widows not entitled to pension, and an expenditure of upwards of $10,000 has been made along these lines, part of which may subsequently be repaid.

In May, 1926, there was held at Vancouver a representative convention, attended by ninety-three accredited delegates from fifty-six different branches of ex-service organizations, including the Canadian Legion, Army and Navy Veterans, Tubercular Veterans, Grand Army of United Veterans, Amputations Association, and others. At this convention the Canteen Fund was discussed and a resolution approved to the effect that in view of the diversity of opinion on the subject it was considered advisable to give the branches ample time for consideration, but that in the meantime the trustees be asked to use a limited amount not exceeding the interest accrued for the relief of cases of distress resulting from sickness, accident or death. The trustees have kept within the limits of this resolution.

With regard to administration, the Government of British Columbia, through the Returned Soldiers' Aid Commission, pays all necessary expenses, such as office rent, salaries, stationery, postage, travelling expenses, etc. The Secretary of the Board of Trustees is also Chairman of the Returned Soldiers' Aid Commission.

 Capt. Donald F. Tierney, Souris and Charlottetown.

No definite plans have been adopted covering the disposal of the fund as a whole. Consideration is being given to the recommendations of the Ralston Commission that assistance might be rendered to exceptionally meritorious cases where ex-members of the forces or their dependents are in genuine distress and that the provision for scholarships in schools and colleges for especially promising children of ex-service men might be entertained. No money, however, during the financial year was allotted for scholarships, but a certain amount was expended on relief.

Trustees:

Lieut.-Colonel W. G. MacFarlane, Edmonton, Chairman.
 Dr. G. H. Wade,
 Mr. G. W. Waistell, Edmonton.

At the first meeting of the board, in April, 1926, it was decided that as a general interim policy the principal fund of the board should be maintained intact and disbursements during the first year confined to the amount of interest earned. This policy has been followed as closely as possible, the securities held at cost representing the principal fund, less $125.75.

The board has made representations to the Government of Alberta, to the Corporation of Edmonton and to the various municipalities for the purpose of delineating the respective responsibilities of the Board and of the Government or other authority. The attitude assumed by the board has been that these authorities should not be permitted to relieve themselves of their responsibilities for the maintenance of ex-soldiers who are residents of the province and who may require medical and hospital treatment, or to provision of the necessaries of life which they would be entitled to receive if there were no Canteen Fund available. The board desires to express its appreciation of the assistance which the various Government and other authorities have extended.

The policy of the Board has been to grant assistance in the form of loans, to be repaid by the recipient as soon as possible from salary or wages. It realizes that many loans will not be repaid, owing to conditions of living, illness, etc. No scheme for the disposition of the principal amount of the Fund has been decided upon, though various proposals have been considered. It is felt that the principal should be maintained intact for a period of not less than five years, possibly longer.

The board has received 225 applications for assistance of which 94 have been refused for various reasons, such as inability of the applicant to prove that he is worthy of assistance, or that the board is of the opinion that the responsibility falls directly upon the Provincial Government or the municipality in which the applicant resides.

The following is a statement of receipts and expenditures, extracted from the information supplied by the board:—

 Lieut. Colonel James McAra, Regina.

The trustees have created advisory committees in various parts of the province, under the chairmanship of the District Court Judges. The merit, or otherwise, of each application for assistance is referred to these committees. Four applications were received to assist in furthering the education of soldiers' children, all of which were approved. A portion of the Fund has been used for the burial of ex-service men. No concrete suggestion has been brought forward by any of the veterans' organizations in the province as to the disposal of the principal sum. Until a definite policy is decided upon, the trustees feel that many cases of distress can be alleviated through furnishing temporary relief, either in the form of grants or loans, such relief being supplied only from the interest earned.

FOOD AND DRUGS DIVISION

Throughout the year inspection and laboratory service were maintained for the administration of the Food and Drugs Act, the Honey Act and the Maple Products Act. Twenty-six inspectors of food and drugs were on duty in districts with headquarters in the larger centres of population and the more important ports of entry.

In addition to the laboratories in Ottawa, branch laboratories were operated in Halifax, Montreal, Winnipeg, and Vancouver. The work done was mainly in connection with samples submitted by inspectors of food and drugs for the purposes of the Food and Drugs Act, but analyses were made also for other divisions or branches, especially for the administration of the Acts dealing with narcotic drugs, and patent medicines. Co-operation with other departments of Government has been observed to the fullest possible extent. Samples totalling 1,964 were examined for the following departments: Agriculture, Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, National Defence, National Revenue, Marine and Fisheries, Mines, Post Office, and Immigration. Samples other than narcotic drugs, totalling 344, were submitted by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Grand total, 9,606

The following outline of the work makes brief mention of some of the more important features:—

Alimentary Pastes (Noodles, Macaroni, Spaghetti)

A total of forty-seven samples examined during the year represents inspection of importations and domestic manufacture. Alimentary pastes of the highest quality contain egg and are yellow in colour. The appearance may be simulated by the use of coal tar colours, even if the egg is not an ingredient. This practice of adding artificial colouring is a contravention of section 5 of the Food and Drugs Act. A number of Canadian manufacturers are making the best grades of macaroni and noodles without adding colour and it is expected that there will be no great difficulty in securing compliance with a request that dyes be no longer used in making these foods.

Apples (Arsenical Spray Contamination)

Further examinations were made for arsenical spray contaminations. The analysis of twenty-one samples of the Halifax laboratories confirmed the findings of the previous year, in effect, that Nova Scotia apples are not dangerously contaminated.

Baking Powder

Fifty-five samples were examined and found free from arsenic and heavy metals. A few samples were found below standard in available carbon dioxide content. Upon investigation these samples were found to be from old deteriorated stock which the vendors, upon advice, afterwards destroyed or returned to the manufacturers.

Beverages

In the analysis of so-called soft drinks or temperance beverages (287 samples) special attention was paid to the detection of saccharin, the indiscriminate use of which is prohibited by the regulations. In several instances it was found necessary to institute legal action where the manufacturer wilfully neglected to readjust working formula whereby the use of saccharin might be abandoned. A special effort was made to correct labelling. Considerable progress has been made, although there is no satisfactory method of dealing with the labelling of beverages from bulk at refreshment booths and exhibition stalls.

It was found necessary to enter prosecution to stop the fraudulent sale of an orange drink made from orange juice, water, sugar, and colouring matter. In spite of repeated warnings the manufacturer and vendor persisted in advertising and offering this for sale as Orange Juice. A conviction fortunately followed by prominent publicity in the daily press has had a wholesome effect upon the entire situation.

Butter

Six hundred and nineteen samples were submitted by the inspectors of food and drugs and the inspectors appointed under the Dairy Industries Act. One shipment of Australian butter and one shipment of New Zealand butter containing boric acid and not marked in accordance with requirements of regulations made under the Food and Drugs Act, were admitted after correction of labelling. The adulteration with vegetable fats and oils appeared much less frequently than in the previous year.

Candies

Twenty-two samples of caramels were found free from paraffin. The remaining samples, chiefly jelly beans and cheaper confections were examined from the standpoint of colouring matter. As a result of the work it is believed that the majority of candy manufacturers have discontinued the use of non-permitted dyes. Others appear to be more evasive as inspection of premises shows no non-permitted dyes in stock, and yet such colours appear in their finished goods in retail stores. In these circumstances it may be found necessary to enter prosecution against the vendor, who can then invoke section 17 of the Food and Drugs Act.

Cocoa Products (Beans, Powder, and Butter)

In all, thirty-eight samples were analyzed during the year. Several complaints from private individuals suggested the possibility of defects in the quality of these products as sold. Investigation led to the conclusion that the beans were reasonably free from mould; the powders did not contain excess of fibre and the cocoa butter was not adulterated, although one import shipment contained artificial colour. Entry was allowed to this shipment after labelling was corrected.

Coffee

Of eighty-eight samples of coffee examined, only two were found to be adulterated, in both cases by the addition of about 15 per cent of chicory which was put in when the beans were ground. All other samples were found to be genuine.

Diabetic Foods (including Diabetic Flour)

Twenty complete analyses were made. These examinations were conducted because it was suspected that a number of breads sold under labels indicating that they had special merit for the use of diabetics seemed to resemble ordinary brown bread. Results of analyses showed that the suspicion was well founded, as a number of samples contained very large proportions of glycogenic carbo-hydrates. Faulty labelling was immediately corrected and misleading claims were discontinued.

Dyes (Food Colours)

General improvement was noted in food colours imported and offered for sale. In a total of 139 samples analyzed, those manufactured in Canada were found without exception to be of highest quality, labelled and marked in compliance with the requirements of the regulations. It is expected that minor changes in Regulations will effect further improvement in the entire situation.

Fish (Canned Fish, and Fish Pastes)

In all sixty-eight samples were examined. Upon investigating complaints that certain stocks of sardines were badly contaminated with metal from the containers, it was found that the tin content was negligible. Certain brands of imported fish paste coloured with iron oxide or aniline dyes were refused entry. It is held that colouring matter in these products is quite unnecessary and has the effect of making the articles appear of better value than they really are.

Examination of thirteen samples of anchovies resulted in refusal of entry to one shipment because of advanced decomposition.

Egg Products (Egg Albumen, Egg Liquid, Egg Powder, Egg Yolk Powder)

Sixteen samples examined were found to be of satisfactory quality. Apparently the contamination of powdered egg with metallic zinc is no longer a menace to health as the factory processes have been greatly improved in recent years. The examination of five samples of egg substitute resulted in the correction of labelling in two instances. Such products cannot be regarded as unwholesome but should be sold for what they really are.

Flavouring Extracts

One hundred and eighty-one samples examined represent the trade in pure flavourings or mixtures. No attempt has been made to make any specific standards for artificial flavourings. Great improvement was noted in the quality of lemon extracts, but there is still evidence of misbranding in the vanilla flavourings and vanilla mixtures. "Vanilla Mixture" should contain at least 51 per cent of vanilla extract.

Fruits (Dried Fruits; Apples, Apricots, Peaches, Pears, Prunes and Raisins)

A rigid inspection of imported dried fruit, resulted in the collection of 1,070 samples which were analyzed in the laboratories. Three shipments (105 cases) of apricots were refused entry at Halifax, because of excess sulphite. The Winnipeg station reports refusal of entry to 400 cases of dried peaches. The treatment of raisins with mineral oil has apparently been abandoned.

Fruits and Fruit Pulp

Six hundred and three samples were examined during the year. The quality of oranges inspected at ports of entry was found to be much better than that noted in previous years. A shipment of orange pulp coming from Spain was found to be in bad condition, in active fermentation, and consequently was refused.

Gelatin and Jelly Powders

One hundred and forty-seven samples were analyzed. While no defects were noted in the quality of the gelatin there was evident need for correction of packaging and labelling. Slack filled packages were very frequently encountered in this line of goods. It was also found necessary to insist upon alterations in certain advertisements for the reason that the flavourings used are very seldom obtained from the fruits pictured on the labels but are mixtures of synthetic organic compounds.

Honey

Twenty-two samples were found to be free from adulteration although it was suspected that immature honey with high water content was being offered for sale. It was found necessary to take steps to correct misbranding advertisements which proclaimed that honey possessed special merit as a food in diabetes and anaemia because it contained a so-called natural sugar and also iron. These exaggerated statements had their origin in excessive enthusiasm based on misconceptions.

Jams, Jellies and Marmalades

Judging from the 105 samples examined, there is no great improvement to be noted in the quality of jams as sold. Many stocks may meet standards and be within the law although the quality may be greatly inferior to that of the best which can be made.

Maple Products (Maple Butter, Maple Sugar, Maple Syrup)

Twenty-two prosecutions were instituted as the result of analyses of 583 samples, complaint in each and every case arising from adulteration by the addition of other sugar. In addition to the penalties imposed by the courts many offenders were further penalized by confiscation of stocks, which were disposed of by donation to charitable institutions.

In the enforcement of the special clauses in the Maple Products Act which prohibit the sale of imitation maple products and limit the use of the word "Maple," considerable advance was made in stopping the manufacture of brown sugar cakes resembling maple sugar in appearance. One brand of so-called "pancake syrup" put up by a maple products company was put off the market. Arrangements have been made for special field inspectors to operate during the coming maple season. Work of the laboratories is also being planned to make provision for the analyses of samples and continuation of research work on this subject.

Meat and Meat Products (Sausages, Weiners and Hamburg Steak)

It was found necessary to institute prosecution in forty cases arising from the sale of adulterated meat products of which 393 samples were examined. The adulteration consisted chiefly in the addition of prohibited preservatives and colouring matter. The general survey of the market revealed such an undesirable condition that it is planned to extend this work during the coming year.

Nuts (Almonds, Brazil, Chestnut, Filberts, Pecans, Peanuts, Pignolias and Walnuts)

The majority of the 263 samples examined were from import shipments and taken at ports of entry. While it was found necessary to refuse entry to a few shipments, the general quality of these goods coming to Canada was greatly superior to that shown in previous years.

Oils (Edible Oils; Cottonseed, Corn, Olive; Peanut, Salad)

One hundred and eighty samples were examined. There is still some improper labelling owing to the confusion of the standards of measurement resulting in failure to distinguish between the American quart and the Imperial quart. Adulteration of Olive Oil with other oils is rarely encountered. Two shipments of salad oils containing undeclared cottonseed oil were permitted entry after proper marking.

Spices

Allspice: The twenty samples received were of fair quality.

Mustard: One hundred and fifty samples of mustard, compound mustard and prepared mustard were examined. While the quality of mustard and mustard compounds seemed fair, the labelling of prepared mustards presents a special problem still unsolved. An effort will be made to secure labelling such that the purchaser of these complex products shall have at least an opportunity of obtaining the information to which he is entitled when making a purchase.

Cassia and Cinnamon: Eleven samples were found free from adulteration.

Cloves: Eighty-three samples were collected and analyzed. Several samples of ground cloves were found to be adulterated with Allspice.

Ginger: Eighty-four samples were found to be of average quality, although insect infestation was observed in several importations of ginger root. Such shipments were refused entry.

Mace: Fifteen samples were examined and no adulteration noted.

Nutmegs: One hundred samples were examined. The nutmegs imported for grinding purposes were much better than those of previous years. This is the result of persistent inspection at ports of entry. Entry was refused to several shipments because of insect infestation and moulds.

Pepper: (Black, Cayenne and White). Considerable adulteration was found in black and white pepper. Undoubtedly the heavy importations of pepper shells are responsible for a great deal of this. Eight prosecutions were instituted with a view to preventing this objectionable practice. It is intended that this work shall be followed up next year.

Sugar (Granulated Sugar; Icing Sugar)

Fifty-nine samples were examined. Several importations of granulated sugar were held in customs until labelling was corrected with respect to statement of net content and declaration of colour. Icing sugar was found to contain less than the five per cent of starch allowed by the regulations.

Tea

There were no complaints as to the quality of tea as offered for sale. The twenty-nine samples examined represented import shipments of which one was damaged to some extent and held for proper grading and labelling.

Table Syrups and Molasses

Fifty-two samples were collected and analyzed. According to regulations, syrup sold as table syrup must be a sucrose product and glucose if present, must be declared on the label. The Maple Product Act requires that no maple flavour or flavour resembling maple may be present and the word "Maple" must not appear upon the label. One prosecution was necessary to secure compliance with these requirements.

Ice Cream

Three hundred and twenty-two samples were examined. Only eight samples had a fat content of less than 10 per cent. There was no evidence of the presence of fat other than milk fat.

Vinegar

Six prosecutions instituted during the year as the result of examining twenty-eight samples, were based on charges of adulteration and misbranding. One manufacturer persisted in the use of acetic acid. Misrepresentation of blended vinegars was also observed and corrected.

Drugs

Acetyl Salicylic Acid (Aspirin, Headache Powders, etc.): Thirty-two samples were obtained from the retail trade, and submitted for analysis. The acetyl salicylic acid found in the 5 grain tablets ranged between 4.84 grains and 5.03 grains. Free salicylic acid amounted to from 0.87 per cent to 1.2 per cent. Special investigation conducted in the Montreal laboratories proves conclusively that even in dry acetyl salicylic acid there is a slowly progressive decomposition with liberation of free salicylic acid.

Aconite (Tincture and Liniment): Fifty-eight samples of tincture of aconite and forty-seven of liniment of aconite examined in the Ottawa Laboratories will be made the subject of a special report. Although this drug is not so extensively used as it was a number of years ago, it is still stocked by druggists and should be of proper quality. Methods of assay are somewhat involved, partly because some authorities advocate biological methods of testing.

Chloroform Liniment: Of ten samples of chloroform liniment, three were found to be substandard.

Cinchona (Fluid Extract and Tincture): In a preliminary survey of the market in Cinchona preparations, the examination of twenty-eight samples showed 18 to be sub-standard. Warnings have been issued and the matter will be more completely investigated.

Camphor, Camphorated Oil, Camphorated Vaseline and Spirits of Camphor

Forty-two samples of these preparations were examined. There was one prosecution in connection with adulteration of spirits of camphor, because of the wilful use of methylated alcohol and deficiency of camphor.

Headache Remedies

Although many people know that the treatment of headache may be, in reality trifling with one symptom of a much more serious ailment, the hazard involved is not generally appreciated and it is still a common experience for a retail druggist to be asked to supply so-called "headache powders". A collection of these preparations purchased over retail counters in all inspection districts shows that acetyl salicylic acid is very commonly sold for this purpose. Next in order of frequency is acetanilide; phenacetine, caffeine and phenolphthalein are also used in these preparations. Immediate correction was ordered in certain preparations to which numbers had been assigned under the Proprietary and Patent Medicine Act. On some of these there was no label indication of acetanilide; in others the dose was greater than that specified by the Advisory Board. It is intended that this work be continued.

Hydrastis (Liquid Extract and Tincture)

Forty-three samples in all were examined and specially reported.

Hydrogen Peroxide

Thirty-nine samples were examined and with exceptions of two samples slightly low in available oxygen, were found to meet the requirements of either the British Pharmacopoeia or the United States Pharmacopoeia.

Nux Vomica (Fluid Extract, Tincture)

Forty-eight samples of fluid Extract and eighty-one samples of Tincture Nux Vomica were examined and have been made the subject of a special report.

Spirits of Nitrous Ether

Of twelve samples examined, the majority were found to be below standard. Very little progress seems to have been made by the trade towards improving the methods of storage of this unstable preparation.

Proprietary or Patent Medicines and Other Preparations Sold Under Distinctive Names

Twenty-seven samples of patent or proprietary medicines were examined, the advisability of such action being suggested by complaints or suspicion of the non-observance of requirements specified for use of schedule drugs or alcohol. No flagrant violations were found, although there was evidence of carelessness in the use of acetanilid as an ingredient of complex preparations.

Narcotic Drugs

Three hundred and twenty-eight samples of narcotic drugs were examined and in the majority of cases certificates were issued for prosecution. Although the actual findings of the analysts were not controverted by the defence, great inconvenience was caused by disputes over minor technicalities such as the identity of the analyst. It is hoped that an amendment to the Food and Drugs Act, now being planned, will remove this difficulty.

Food and Drug Inspection

The twenty-six inspectors of food and drugs report a total of 108 prosecutions instituted during the year from the adulteration of the following articles of food: flavouring extracts, fruit juice, ice cream, maple sugar and syrup, meat and meat products, milk, pepper, soft drinks, table syrups and vinegar. There was but one prosecution of adulteration of drugs. There were twenty-six settlements by acceptance of voluntary payment of penalty for first offences as provided by section 19, of the Food and Drugs Act. Court convictions were registered in forty-eight cases, although but one of these received any more than casual notice in the newspapers. Eleven cases are still unfinished.

Penalties collected including fines, costs and analyses, amounted to $5,665.51.

As the Food and Drugs Act does not make provision for making a really effective seizure, an amendment is proposed to give the Inspectors more authority to deal with such matters. There is also need for alteration of section 17, as there have been many misunderstandings of the procedure defined for bringing in the second or third parties where a retailer claims that he is not responsible for adulteration in defective goods sold in the same condition as they were when received by him.

Inspection of import shipments at ports of entry yields very satisfactory results in preventing the dumping and sale of defective foods such as: dried peaches with excess sulphurous acid; wormy and mouldy nutmegs; mouldy and wormy nuts; wormy ginger; coloured macaroni, meat and fish pastes; prohibited food colours; imitation butter flavouring; misbranded salad oils; fruit and vegetable products either partly decomposed or contaminated with spray residues.

Summing up the work of the Division in its entirety, the year has been one of advancement, and policies have been developed to ensure future progress.

NARCOTIC DIVISION

During the fiscal year just ended, there has continued to be a marked improvement in the narcotic drug situation. The licensing of all chemical manufacturers in Europe, the restriction of exports by foreign countries until a license has been received from the importing country, and the aggressive policy continued by the police authorities throughout the Dominion have all tended towards the improvement in our domestic condition which my department is satisfied has been attained. There is, however, a regrettable lack in most provinces of provincial legislation for the compulsory treatment of drug addicts and the maintenance of institutions for such treatment, which are an essential requisite in handling cases of that nature. The provision of such treatment is altogether a Provincial matter, similar to the care of insane, tubercular or V.D. patients, and it is felt that the filling of this lack is one of the important essentials before we can claim to be making headway in connection with our addicts other than by restricting their channels of supply. It has been amply demonstrated by those familiar with the cure of drug addiction that for the purpose of cure, absolute control of the addict is essential.

The volume of narcotics being smuggled into Canada through the underground channels has continued to be reduced in so far as the Atlantic seaboard is concerned, but there is still much to be done in coping with the smuggling from the Orient, which is so prevalent on the Pacific coast.

It will be noted that 743 persons, of whom 495 were Chinese, were convicted in the past year of offences under the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act, while 100 persons were deported under its provisions, of whom 89 were Chinamen. In all some 468 persons have been deported under this Act since that policy was inaugurated in 1922.

Among the 745 cases dealt with, the following give some idea as to the nature of the traffic it is our endeavour to control, although it is not in the public interest to disclose full particulars in every instance:

A. B. of Vancouver, B.C., was charged with illegal possession of narcotics, he having sent a trunk to a certain address, and later proceeded to that address, which trunk had just arrived off the Empress of Canada, and was found to contain tins and bricks of opium. The accused was found guilty, and sentenced to three years and a fine of $500. An appeal was taken to the high court, and later an application for Habeas Corpus was made to the Supreme Court, but without success.

C. D. of Vancouver was charged with distributing narcotics, he, after lengthy investigations, having sold opium, morphine and cocaine to our officers, and the money paid therefor was found on his person. He was sentenced to two years, and to a fine of $200.

E. F. of Vancouver, with five previous narcotic connections, was charged with possession of narcotics, and was sentenced to five years and a fine of $200.

G. H. of Vancouver was seen entering an apartment house, and on being approached, threw away a parcel containing nine packages of morphine and seven of cocaine. He was sentenced to two years and a fine of $300.

I. J., well known as a big man in connection with the smuggling of narcotics on the Pacific coast, had his premises raided, when a cache of fifty tins of opium was located. The man himself, however, had disappeared and was not located for over a year, when he was found guilty at the assizes, and sentenced to five years' imprisonment, and a fine of $200. A tin of opium is worth $50 to $135, dependent upon the scarcity or otherwise in illicit circles.

Proceedings were instituted against a number of druggists who persisted in selling, without a doctor's prescription, a preparation called "Paveral", which contains one grain of morphine per fluid ounce, is prepared for the treatment of whooping cough, and is intended to be administered only under the direct supervision of a physician. This action was not taken until a circular had been sent to every retail druggist in the province concerned, advising them that it was against the law to sell Paveral without a doctor's prescription, and in addition the manufacturers were compelled to print a warning to that effect on all labels on bottles containing this preparation. The cases were dismissed on the ground that the sales had been made by the employees in the various drug stores without the knowledge of the proprietors, and as this ruling would have vitiated the working of the Act, an appeal was taken to the high court, where it was definitely decided that the druggist is criminally responsible for the acts of his employees, and some of the cases were referred back to the lower court to be tried on their merits. The department, however, having established its point, withdrew the charges when they came up in the lower court, and since then no trouble has been experienced.

The activities of the Narcotic Division were during the last six months of the fiscal year very largely concentrated on an effort, in conjunction with the United States authorities, to break up a ring which for some years had, with headquarters in Montreal, been heavily engaged in illicit traffic both to Canadian and United States points. No expense was spared in this investigation, and a large number of operatives were employed in watching, over a lengthy period, the activities of a considerable number of people. It was finally established that there was a steady and persistent traffic to Detroit by means of sleeping car porters, and arrangements were made to establish their modus operandi, and particularly to get the "higher ups". As a result operatives succeeded in having both morphine and cocaine delivered to them in Detroit by a sleeping car porter, at a cost of over $1,000, the deals being consummated under conditions which rendered the evidence sufficiently conclusive for subsequent use in court. A connection was then made with the "higher up" in Montreal, who, after two deals had been made through porters, agreed to a personal interview, after having received $500 by telegram from our operative. In due course the interview took place in a room in a leading hotel in Montreal, with operatives listening and watching in adjoining rooms and across the hall. Our operative was subjected to a close questioning for over two hours before his bona fides were accepted, and finally a deal was arranged. After a thousand dollars had changed hands, our operative was, some time later, supplied by means of an intermediary in the employ of the "higher up", with two keys, one of which was for a locker in the Bonaventure Station in Montreal. Upon the locker being opened a suit case was found, which was unlocked by means of the second key, and found to contain the narcotics previously paid for.

A second interview was subsequently arranged in another hotel, under precisely the same conditions, and the bag in the locker, in this case also, was full of morphine, heroin, cocaine and bricks of opium previously paid for.

During the whole of this period, a large amount of shadowing of various people was being carried on, and as soon as the case was felt to be complete, simultaneous arrests were made, and in due course the "higher up" received a sentence of five years, and the intermediaries sentences of four and two years, and twelve months respectively. At the time of arrest, a considerable quantity of narcotics was seized, and shortly afterwards an office downtown was searched, when some 1,400 ounces and a large quantity of documents were seized, together with weighing scales, boxes, labels, etc.

The extent of their activities may be gauged from the fact that they had purchased over 51,000 ounce boxes to contain their supplies, and had recently ordered another 500, which indicated that the previous orders had been absorbed in their business. Immediately after the arrest of this gang, the price of cocaine in Detroit rose from $22 to $65 per ounce.

PROPRIETARY OR PATENT MEDICINE DIVISION

Medicinal preparations to the number of 774 were presented for registration under the Proprietary or Patent Medicine Act during the fiscal year ended March 31, 1927; 602 were assigned registration numbers and 172 rejected for various valid reasons.

Special attention was directed to advertisements in newspapers and circulars used for registered medicines with a view to having eliminated such claims and representations as are, in the light of medical science, manifestly grossly exaggerated and incapable of fulfilment. Section 7 (f) of the Act referred to, prohibits the sale of any medicine fraudulently advertised or recommended and, as the Food and Drugs Act was amended at the last session of Parliament so as to approximate this provision, it is hoped that, in future, a greater change will be noticeable in advertisements for all non-pharmacopoeial medicinal preparations placed on the Canadian market intended for use by the public.

Remedies designed for the treatment of diabetes, pneumonia and appendicitis have been placed in the class of non-registerable medicines, inasmuch as competent medical authorities hold that the sale of proprietary medicines for these purposes and directed for administration by the laity without skilled supervision is misleading in that the use of such articles may cause patients to delay specific treatment until serious conditions have developed.

Analyses show that registered medicines are generally manufactured according to the conditions and claims upon which registration was granted. The exception is where alcohol is present in considerable volume and the omission of some denaturing ingredient will permit of the preparation being used for beverage purposes. However this practice is very little in evidence as it has been the policy of the Department to promptly penalize manufacturers who alter the formula of their medicines without authority.

The majority of proprietaries sold in Canada containing potent drugs named in the schedule of the Act have been found, on examination, to be correctly labelled with the proper proportions of such drugs per maximum dose, approved directions and other information necessary to meet the requirements of the Act. Medicinal preparations which do not bear the name of any potent drug on the labels and wrappers and carry a registration number and the words "The proprietary or Patent Medicine Act" are regarded as being incapable of causing any grave harm when manufactured in accordance with the terms of registration and taken as directed.

The Act was intended to provide the layman with medicines which he might take with safety according to directions given. The department endeavours to see that this principle is carried out, but as to the therapeutic value of a medicine to the consumer, no guarantee can be given as there are numerous uncontrollable circumstances which may effect the choice and use of medicines. Ordinarily, preparations represented as liniments, tonics and ointments, when found on the market, are properly classified as such. Registered remedies recommended for particular ailments, if manufactured correctly, should be found to contain ingredients generally recognized in standard works on drugs to be used in the treatment of the affection for which they are recommended, but the value of such preparations is what the consumer finds them worth.

As a consequence of not meeting the requirements of the Act, the goods of twenty-two manufacturers were seized during the period under review.

POLLUTION OF THE INLAND WATERS OF CANADA

The problem under discussion is of great importance to Canada and the United States. The peoples of both countries possess, in the splendid immensity of the series of waterways, a heritage of inestimable value. Millions of persons dwell in their watersheds. Along the banks of the Great Lakes and communicating rivers communities which a few years since were but villages are now in population, in social and industrial development, among the most important on the continent. The world possesses no other water thoroughfare comparable with the highway leading from the gulf of St. Lawrence to the head of lake Superior. Some idea of the magnitude of commerce on these waters may be gleaned from the vessel passages through the Sault Ste. Marie canals, the Detroit river and the St. Lawrence canal system.

The hundreds of summer resorts along the St. Lawrence river and the Great Lakes, and their connecting waterways, as well as in that splendid chain of boundary waters still farther west, afford unexcelled opportunities for rest, recreation, and pleasure, which are taken advantage of by a very large floating population during the summer months.

The directness of the water route from the Atlantic Ocean to the head of lake Superior, the adaptation to water carriage of the freight borne by the lake vessels, and the low cost at which this freight can be transported by them, the completion of the Welland and other canals along the boundary rivers permitting the passage of vessels of 28 or 29 feet depth from the ocean to the heart of the continent, the intensive settlement of the great wheat belt of Canada, of which only the fringe has yet been touched, render the conclusion inevitable that the shipping and commerce on these waters and the wealth, the industries, and the population along their banks must in the near future reach dimensions far exceeding their present attainment, and may ultimately far surpass any area of similar extent in the world. In working out the enormous possibilities of this vast section of the continent the proper observance of international sanitary requirements will be a most essential factor.

Pollution of the inland waters of Canada is from two sources: first, the so-called shore pollution or washings of the land surface during and after heavy rainstorms; and, second, from the sewage discharged from the municipalities bordering on the lakes and from the great numbers of vessels that traverse the inland waters. It is estimated that the Great Lakes system receives the sewage of a population of upwards of 10,000,000 people—i.e., those that live in the various communities on the near side of the height of land that surrounds the Great Lakes area. The discharge of sewage from vessels seriously pollutes the waters in the lanes of vessel travel. Especially does vessel pollution menace the water supplies of the municipalities situated along the St. Marys river, St. Clair and Detroit rivers, and the Welland and St. Lawrence canals.

Lake Erie and its tributaries provide water for domestic and industrial uses and for fire protection to at least twenty-five cities in the United States and a dozen communities in Canada. The total population thus provided is estimated at about 4,000,000. Less than twenty years ago, water was used by the population on the shores of the lake in its natural state for many purposes. Now, as a result of the growth of population, of industry and commerce and shipping, it is treated by artificial process by many cities and towns. Lake Erie is stated to be the natural drainage body for 25,000 square miles of territory. With its tributaries, it serves as the natural receptacle for the domestic sewage and trade wastes of a population in excess of four million. For many years this dual use of the lake by advancing civilization presented no serious problem. To-day the resulting problems are numerous. Rapidly advancing pollution now affects

- (1) the lake as a source of public water supply;
- (2) the sanitary condition of public and private bathing beaches;
- (3) the fishing industry;
- (4) property values of lands adjoining the lake shores.

Less attention has been given to prevention of pollution by trade wastes and domestic sewage and to its control than to purification of the water after pollution. Practically nothing, taking the territory as a whole, is being done by way of sewage purification on lake Erie and not much more in the matter of sewage treatment. The extension of water works instakes farther and farther out from shore corresponds with the encroachment of sewage pollution upon the water supply. The report of the International Joint Commission on the pollution of the boundary waters was very definite in its statement of the conditions found to exist. Since then there has been an increase of population on the waters and tributaries of lake Erie but the prevention and control of sewage pollution has not been developed to any great extent.

Under the provisions of the "Navigable Waters Protection Act" (R.S.C., chap. 115) when any municipality proposes to build a sewer having its discharge into the navigable waters of Canada an official application with a description of the site and plan must be filed with the Department of Public Works at Ottawa, for approval of the said site and plans, and for permission to construct the outlet sewer.

An examination of the map of the world discloses the fact that the Great Lakes system of North America, including the St. Lawrence river, constitutes an outstanding and unique geographical feature, such that many persons have drawn attention to phenomenal characteristics appertaining to these waters.

The Great Lakes constitute the most important bodies of fresh water in the world, considered both from the standpoint of their area and the extent of their commerce. With their connecting channels they afford access to a region notable for the magnitude of its mineral, agricultural, and industrial resources. They have permitted the grain of the Western States and Canadian provinces to reach eastern mills and ports of export at substantial savings as compared with all-rail routes. The total area included within the watershed of the Great Lakes system to the foot of lake Ontario is, in round numbers, about 300,000 square miles.

The Great Lakes are owned by the two countries equally, except lake Michigan. The St. Lawrence for one hundred miles is an international stream, under equal ownership.

The Great Lakes system forms one of the world's greatest highways for water-borne transportation, the greater part of this commerce being carried in a special type of vessel known as the bulk freighter which has been developed to meet the conditions of the lake trade. These vessels are from 250 to 625 feet in length and have a carrying capacity of from 3,000 to 15,000 short tons. They are the most economical carriers in the world. The history of the development of the Great Lakes carriers is relatively short. Beginning with the bateau of the voyageur, and followed by the sailing vessels of a few tons, the size has steadily increased to its present dimensions.

The Great Lakes along the boundary between Canada and the United States, from Minnesota to New York, carry an enormous traffic equivalent to over twenty-three per cent of the ton-mileage of all of the railroads of the United States. The total traffic on all Canadian canals during 1926 amounted to 13,477,663 tons.

The magnitude of water borne traffic on the Great Lakes is shown in statements prepared by the bureau of research, United States shipping board, indicating that more than 210,300,000 cargo tons of freight were handled through Great Lakes ports in 1925, an increase of 31,000,000 tons, or 11.8 per cent over the total of the previous year.

Statistics of the Canadian and American vessels trading on rivers and lakes between Canada and the United States exclusive of ferriage show for the season of navigation of 1924 a grand total of 101,069 vessel arrivals and departures in this traffic. The total number of persons engaged as crews for these vessel passages amounted to 1,192,294.

Although the Inland Waters of Canada are defined by the Dominion Statutes as "All the rivers, lakes and other navigable waters within Canada, except saltwater bays and gulfs on the seacoast, and includes the river St. Lawrence as far seaward as a line drawn from Father Point, on the south shore, to Point Orient, on the north shore," and the "Minor waters of Canada" are similarly defined as "All inland waters of Canada other than lakes Ontario, Erie, Huron including Georgian bay, and lakes Superior and Winnipeg, and includes all bays, inlets and harbours of or on the said lakes and bay", and the Order in Council (P.C. 1091) entitled "Regulations concerning water for drinking and culinary purposes on vessels navigating on the Great Lakes and Inland Waters" was approved the 19th of June, 1923, up to date it has been only possible to attempt to enforce these regulations in that portion of the St. Lawrence river and Great Lakes system that lies between Montreal on the east and Fort William to the west, although there is a very considerable number of passenger steamships operated in traffic on those portions of the inland waters that lie to the east of Montreal, including the international waters of the Richileau-lake Champlain district as well as on the inland waters in the other provinces, viz. Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia. Thus no serious attention has been given to the large number of passenger steamships that sail between Montreal and the gulf of St. Lawrence, although many of these vessels are of large size. Of these the ss. Northland has accomodation for 204 passengers on long trips that usually take several days. That in the near future much more attention should be paid to the quality of the drinking and culinary water available aboard vessels engaged in this traffic is indicated in a report giving analyses finding on samples of water that were collected from the drinking and culinary water systems of certain passenger steamships that plied these waters during the season of navigation of 1926. The period of observation was from July 2 to October 21. The annexed table gives some idea of the contamination of the drinking water available for the use of the passengers and crews aboard the passenger vessels.

It has not been possible, as yet, to extend the application of the regulations concerning water for drinking and culinary purposes to vessels plying on lake Winnipeg, one of the largest of the lakes of this continent and one of the Great Lakes so defined by Dominion statute. The largest passenger steamship, the Keenora that plies lake Winnipeg waters is of steel construction and has accommodation for one hundred cabin passengers on a round trip 700 miles in extent. Other steamships, viz., the Wolverine, Grand Rapids, etc., are engaged in mixed passenger and freight carrying trade.

There are also a number of fair-sized passenger steamships on certain other important inland waters of the Prairie Provinces and British Columbia on which it has not been possible to give the attention to the quality of the drinking and culinary water that appears to be desirable.

Work on this problem was carried on throughout January and February, 1927, through the medium of a series of lectures that were given at the Schools of Navigation and Marine Engineering at various ports on the Great Lakes system. In this manner it was possible to get into contact with the coming generation of ships' masters and engineers under the best circumstances and at a time when questions could be asked and answered. The actual field work commenced in March, 1926, and was carried on until the close of November. The data for the report submitted has been gathered throughout this period.

During the season of 1926, 1,273 routine visits to Great Lakes' vessels were made by health officials, this total including certain examinations of steamship water supply systems which were carried out in response to special requests by steamship operators.

Throughout the season very considerable progress has been made by certain of the steamship companies in bringing the water supply systems of the various vessels operated by these organizations into line with the requirements of the regulations.

In addition to the physical examination of water supply systems installed on various steamships, information and advice of a technical nature and copies of reports showing the quality of water supplies were supplied to navigation companies. Plans of proposed water supply systems for new steamships in course of construction, on being submitted for the approval of this office were checked.

Correspondence and interviews with health and navigation officials and other persons concerned were carried on regarding the certification of water supplies available at various ports. In this connection visits have been made to nearly all of the Canadian ports on the Great Lakes system to study in detail the facilities available for the supply of drinking and culinary water from certified shore sources.

Owen Sound may now be added to the list of ports at which water supplies of approved quality may be obtained by vessels that trade into that harbour.

Considerable co-operative work was carried on with the representatives of the United States Public Health Service who are engaged in similar work.

During the season the provincial laboratory at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., analysed 783 water samples from United States steamships.

In the seasonal report of Inspector Whimster of the United States Public Health Service, he makes the following statement: "The Canadian Department of Health deserves commendation on the extent of its co-operation during 1926. Through the facilities extended in the use of the branch laboratory of the Ontario Department of Health, located at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., a very valuable phase of the work at this port has been increased. Dr. Nelson Graham deserves much credit for the interest he has taken in the collection and analysis of water samples from American and Canadian vessels. It is hoped that during the coming season a more reasonable balance of co-operation may be effected."

Throughout the season steamship companies operating vessels in Great Lakes' traffic have been supplied, regularly with copies of water analyses reports and wherever it seemed advisable, attention of the management of these organizations was drawn to flagrant carelessness or violation of the regulations.

Traffic on the Great Lakes has not been limited entirely to traffic between Canada and the United States ports, or port to port traffic in the United States and in Canada. Before and since the war tramp vessels entered the St. Lawrence river carrying heavy cargoes as far as Montreal, where a portion was unloaded, and then went on to upper lake ports via the various canals, whose depths were not more than 14 feet. Tramp vessels have carried merchandise from the lake ports and have taken on the remainder of their cargo at Montreal so that the entire cargo space of the vessel might be used during the remainder of the voyage. During the season of navigation of 1926 a total of 147 vessels entered the Great Lakes from outside seaports. Of this number 85 were purchased by Henry Ford from the United States Shipping Board. Several Norwegian vessels entered more than once.

The magnitude of the commerce through the ship channels of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence river may be gauged by comparing it with other great commercial routes. At Sault Ste. Marie, from 70,000,000 to 90,000,000 tons a year; through Detroit river, 80,000,000 to 100,000,000 tons; through the St. Lawrence canals, 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 tons. The Suez canal has carried 20,000,000 tons, while the Panama canal last year carried 25,000,000 tons.

Total traffic to the end of November, 1926, through the Canadian and United States locks at Sault Ste. Marie aggregated 84,294,866 tons, an increase of 4,259,957 tons over the similar period of 1925.

The number of passengers carried for the period mentioned was 52,757.

A statement of traffic via the Welland canal for the season of 1926 shows a total of 5,640,298 tons carried in 5,866 vessel passages, being an increase of 505 vessel passages and 364,238 tons of freight.

Returns for the port of Toronto shows that a total of 4,690 steamships, propellers, tugs and sail and tow vessels were listed as arrivals and departures at this lake harbour for 1925 season of navigation.

The increase of traffic in the lower lakes and the St. Lawrence river is indicated by the statistics of grain carriers in the period 1923 to 1925. In 1923, grain was carried to Montreal in 1,147 lake vessels; in 1924, grain was carried to Montreal in 1,606 vessels. While by 1925 the number of vessel passages by grain carriers to this port from points on the Great Lakes system reached the total of 1,637. During the season of 1926 the number of vessel passages through the St. Lawrence canals was 13,528.

Certain vessels engaged in passenger traffic to lake and river ports handled 122,201 passengers via Victoria pier wharves in the season of 1925, but in addition to these steamships there is a considerable fleet of smaller vessels plying in and out of Montreal for which no information is available at the present time.

The total shipping using the port of Montreal during 1926 set up a new record. The total number of ships entering was 7618 of which 6,197 were from inland waters. An increase of 240 more from the inland waters than the previous high record of the year 1925. There was an increase of 148, however, in the recorded figures representing the number of ships trading from Montreal to lower ports in the St. Lawrence river.

An official report for the harbour of Three Rivers, P.Q., 1925, shows 1,612 steamboats, barges and tugs engaged in inland traffic having passed through this port in addition to 159 canal boats and barges engaged in traffic to points in the United States as well as 81 other vessels of various nationalities engaged in Ocean traffic.

The record of arrivals and departures of vessels at the port of Quebec for 1926 shows a total of 231 coasting vessels as having arrived from Montreal and the Great Lakes, in addition to 299 coasting vessels that arrived at Quebec from lower St. Lawrence points and seawards.

Although programs of extensive shipbuilding in lake yards have been carried out since the peak of 1917, none parallels the completed program of 1925. During 1925 eleven steamships were built in England for the Canadian grain trade.

To keep within reasonable pace of constantly diminishing water levels which have cut deeply into the carrying capacity of the fleet of ore, coal, grain and stone carriers, it has been necessary for both Canadian and American ship-owners to materially add to their vessel property. Enormous as the shipbuilding program of 1925 proved to be lake and foreign yards made very considerable additions to the Great Lakes fleet in 1926. Six steamships of Welland canal size were constructed in England for the Eastern Steamship Company of Canada. Two motor ships were added to the fleet of the United States Steel Products Company to be operated in specialized lake trade, and three notable additions to the Canadian fleet were launched at the Midland shipyard.

During the last five years sixty-one steamships have been added by the Canada Steamships Line to the fleet operated by this organization on the Great Lakes and inland waters of Canada. So that this fleet now consists of one hundred and fifteen steamships, of which ninety-two are freight and twenty-three are passenger steamships. During the year 1926 this company completed and put into service two new package freighters and authorized the construction of four additional steamships of the same class, of which two are partially constructed and will be placed in commission about May 1, 1927, to be followed by the other two about July 15, 1927. In the same year this company lost one passenger steamship by fire and authorized the construction of three large modern-type passenger steamships, of which one is partially constructed.

Rapid progress in the building up of a fleet of vessels has been made by the Eastern Steamship Company of Port Colborne, which now operates twenty-one steamships. While the Paterson Steamships Limited of Fort William has grown from an organization that operated four steamships to one of fifteen freight carriers.

A new feature is the operation, by the Frank Lane Line of New York, of a number of steamships between such ports on the Great Lakes as Detroit, Cleveland, Hamilton and Toronto, and European points. This service is not entirely an experiment as experimental voyages were made last year by vessels that delivered steel rails to the Ford motor works at Detroit. It is stated that the Lane Company expect to have fifty vessels in this service within five years.

Additions have also been made to the fleets owned by such vessel operators as the Superior Paper Company, John Tackaberry of Lion's Head and the Carnegies of Kingston, etc. The Clarke Steamship Company have increased their fleet serving the north and south shores of the St. Lawrence river and started a service to Newfoundland.

At the present time one British shipbuilding firm has a contract to construct no less than ten grain carriers for operation on the Great Lakes.

A complication of the problem arises with the change of ownership and change of name of Great Lakes steamships. Of the seventy-nine freight carriers that were sold during 1926, fifty-nine were Canadian transactions. Altogether ninety-four lake steamships changed ownership in 1926 and forty-four underwent change of name.

During the season of 1926 an attempt to handle as large a number as possible of the vessels that pass through the canal at Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, during the hours from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. received the attention of two and frequently three persons. The only attention given to vessels passing through the Canadian canal was the presence of a busy official of the Department of Health of Ontario for a few hours each week, all the time that he could spare, so that only a minor check could be kept on the water supplies of Canadian passenger steamships.

To be able to give the constant attention desirable to ensure that vessel water supplies will be maintained at the standard of the Regulations additional assistance and funds will be required.

While there has been a decided improvement in the quality of the water supplied for drinking and culinary purposes aboard a considerable number of the Canadian vessels on the Great Lakes, the constant attention of the persons responsible will be necessary in order that water supplies of standard quality may be always available.

Throughout past seasons a large number of analyses of drinking water from passenger vessels that attempt to treat lake water aboard ship have shown polluted water. Subsequent inspections have disclosed unsatisfactory treatment, either through carelessness or inexperience on the part of the vessel engineers. In view of the satisfaction obtained when the drinking water was taken from approved shore supplies and the fact that this method is simpler and more economical in the long run than water treatment aboard vessels, it is proposed in future to more strongly advocate the use of water from certified shore sources for drinking and culinary purposes aboard ship.

As a result of the slackness exhibited by the agent in Montreal for the Norwegian steamships that ply throughout the season of navigation into ports in both the United States and Canada on the Great Lakes system, a visit was made in company with the representative of the United States Public Health Service to the office of the Norwegian agent so that that organization could definitely understand the penalties that would be imposed by the United States authorities in the event of vessels of foreign nationality entering ports in the United States without the proper sanitary arrangements required by the Interstate quarantine regulations.

The congestion of shipping that takes place at times in the Great Lakes ports is illustrated by the accompanying photographs. The water in the harbours is not only contaminated by the discharge of sewage from the adjacent municipalities, but it is also subjected to the additional contamination caused by the discharge of sewage, etc., from the assembled steamships.

Thus upwards of fifty steamships spent the winter at Fort William. Sixty-five or more sheltered in the waters adjacent to Midland and Port McNicoll. Forty-eight steamships were tied up at Port Colborne during the winter of 1925-26. Twenty-five were counted in Toronto harbour and forty-one at the port of Kingston. In the harbour of Montreal as many as fifty-four lake vessels were in port at one time last season while for the last six weeks prior to the end of November there were hardly ever less than thirty-five waiting at one time.

The opportunities for contaminating the drinking water aboard lake carriers are as follows:—

1. Contamination of sea cock or suction pipe while vessels are lying in polluted water, due to faulty seating of valves, failure to close valves, or the use of the general service pump.

2. Since in most of the vessels the engine room and sea-cocks are aft of amid-ship and since there is usually more or less sewage discharged from toilets in the forward portion of the ship, it is possible that some of the fecal matter discharged from these toilets is sucked in through the sea cock.

3. Accidental or intentional taking of water supplies near shore or in unsafe waters. This situation is aggravated by the fact that the engine room personnel cannot tell at all times exactly the ship's position; also by the fact that many ship captains and engineers are not familiar with all of the areas where it is unsafe to take water. There is also the possibility that engine room employees may forget to close the seacock as the vessel approaches a polluted harbour.

4. There is also more or less possibility of picking up sewage in the wake of other vessels, as for example where one vessel is towing another. That this method of contamination is a real one has been brought out by testimony before the International Joint Commission. And even if the duty of collecting drinking water is performed with vigilance, such care can be nullified by leaky valves.

The greatest opportunity for the contamination of the drinking water supply occurs when the tanks are filled by the general service pump. It is a common practice to use the general service pump in port for washing down decks, and upon leaving port for "shooting" ashes, after which the drinking water tanks are filled, the idea being that during the time taken for "shooting" ashes the sea cock, suction pipe, and manifold are thoroughly cleansed by the force of this flushing. Owing to the large size of the suction pipe, its length and number of bends, it is obvious that there is a considerable opportunity for polluting matter to remain in this pipe, even after running the pump in clean water for some time.

With any of the approved methods of water purification it is imperative that the equipment be of sufficient size to meet the maximum load that may be put upon it.

While the provision and maintenance of a pure and adequate public water supply is nowadays recognized as a necessity in any modern community, the fact is less widely appreciated that, if a public water supply is contaminated or open to contamination, it may constitute a grave menace to the health and well-being of the persons supplied.

At the close of navigation in the latter part of the year, and in preparation for the spring reopening of navigation there are two periods, varying from two weeks to a month or so, when the ships' engines and fittings, etc., are being checked over, during which the services of a considerable number of men are retained around Great Lakes vessels. During these periods conditions relative to the collection and handling of the drinking and culinary water supplies should be scrutinized as the vessels are usually in polluted harbour waters and not infrequently the vessel water purification apparatus is shut down. Under such circumstances water for drinking and culinary purposes should be obtained only from certified shore sources.

Experience indicates that provision should be made for ten gallons of water per day for each passenger on a passenger vessel, particularly when running water is provided in staterooms and also where bathing facilities are provided.

The national and international interest of the citizens of the Dominion of Canada and the United States in the question of water supplies of standard quality aboard vessels plying the inland waters of Canada is well illustrated in the outbreak of typhoid fever among the crew of the ss. Lake Gaither. This steamship although of United States register was manned by a crew in which Canadian citizens composed about one-third of the number.

In the latter part of October there was an outbreak of diarrhoea and typhoid fever among the crew of the steamship Lake Gaither so severe that in making the trip from Detroit to Montreal it was necessary to remove three typhoid patients from the ship on her arrival at Toronto and five others were treated for typhoid fever after this steamship arrived at Montreal, one died subsequently. All other members of the crew were required to report at the Montreal General Hospital for anti-typhoid inoculation and it became necessary to investigate the matter in co-operation with the representatives of the United States Public Health Service at Montreal and Chicago. This epidemic is but another illustration of the necessity for a continued check on vessel water supplies.

Because typhoid fever is spread principally by contamination—by sewage that gets into the water, it is an ever present danger.

A low rate of typhoid fever cases or deaths is probably the best index of efficient community sanitation.

Typhoid fever has been termed a disease of defective civilization. Many years ago it was recognized that every case of typhoid fever was the result of somebody's ignorance or neglect. The control of typhoid has always been primarily an objective of sanitation, which is itself a product of civilization. In modern communities recovered patients are not permitted to engage in any occupation involving food handling until medical examinations have shown such persons to be free from typhoid infection.

Just how typhoid fever can be controlled on board ship is well illustrated in the British Navy. During the ten-year period 1900-1909, the average yearly incidence of the enterica group was 2 per 1,000; in 1922 the incidence was 0.33 per 1,000. These figures indicate the value of the preventive measures employed in the navy. In lectures the nature of enteric fever is explained and measures required for its prevention indicated. The men are warned of the risks which they run in drinking polluted waters either natural or bottled (aerated), or eating raw vegetables such as those commonly used in salads. They are told also how oysters and other shellfish may cause the disease. The role of flies in the spread of the disease, and the importance of protecting food against contamination by these insects, are explained.

Every care is taken to ensure that no suspicious or polluted waters are received into ship's storage tanks, and, as an additional precaution against any accidental pollution which may arise during transport, all water for drinking and cooking purposes taken on board from the shore is chlorinated by the addition of thirty grains stabilized mixture of bleaching powder to every 100 gallons of water.

All fresh milk which is used in H.M. ships and establishments, unless the source is well known, under supervision, and above suspicion, is sterilized, and tested as required in order to see that this procedure is carried out.

Many outbreaks of enteric have been caused by vegetables such as lettuce and other greenstuffs eaten in the raw state in the form of salads. Owing to the great difficulty of ensuring thorough cleansing of these articles of food, special precautions are taken regarding their use on board ship, their use being prohibited whenever the slightest doubt exists as to their freedom from infection. Tomatoes and other ground vegetables and fruits which are eaten unskinned and in a raw state are carefully supervised especially when obtained at ports where enteric is prevalent or sanitary conditions unsatisfactory.

All food is protected as far as possible against flies and other insects.

Strict regulations are in force regarding the medical inspection of all ratings that handle food and drink and of men engaged in cleaning drinking water tanks. Similar regulations are enforced by the United States Public Health Service regarding food handlers and other persons employed on vessels engaged in navigation on the Great Lakes and interstate traffic. The medical history of men engaged in domestic service or handling food, cleaning drinking water tanks, making mineral waters, or serving in the canteen is carefully inquired into.

Measures are taken to isolate and eliminate typhoid carriers.

Other regulations in force require that "all officers appointed to and all men detailed for service in the Mediterranean, East Indies or China stations are to be inoculated against typhoid and paratyphoid before leaving England."

The season of navigation of 1926 was marked by peculiar ice conditions. At the opening ice was serious, and in lake Erie occasioned much difficulty and delay. The Welland canal was not opened until the first of May. At the close of the season an unprecedented blockage took place in the St. Mary river, and an immense fleet of vessels bound in both directions was frozen in. Only the most strenuous efforts with all available ice-breaking craft succeeded in opening channels and releasing the imprisoned ships. The last vessel passage of the season on the Welland canal was made on December 16.

A concrete example of the value of a supply of pure water is given by the improvement of conditions at the Government elevator at Port Colborne. Here it was quite a usual matter for many of the workmen to lose considerable time each year due to the annual outbreaks of so-called summer sickness, during the hot weather. As there was no water supply system it had been the usual custom to fill the drinking water pails by dipping out of the harbour which is subjected to severe contamination.

For the past three seasons however the drinking water has been carried in covered containers from the filtered and chlorinated supply of the municipality of Port Colborne with the result that there has been no more summer sickness or lost time for the employees of the Government elevator.

The responsibility of transportation companies that carry passengers for the safety and welfare of the passengers and crew is clearly defined. In his manual of Public Health Law, Tobey, thus states the matter: "A private corporation is an individual entity and is liable for its wrongs, civil and criminal, just as is an individual. . . . Railroads, being common carriers are required to take every reasonable precaution to insure the safety of their passengers, including their freedom from the possibility of catching disease. . . . Industrial concerns must provide their employees with safe and healthful surroundings in which to work. If they do not do so and a workman's health is impaired, the employer is liable. . . . Workmen's compensation acts provide for compensation for accidents arising out of the course of employment—Typhoid fever, due to drinking polluted water supplied by an employer has been held in the courts of several states to be an accident within the meaning of the law—Whether workmen's compensation acts apply or not, the common law rule does and that is to the effect that the employer is liable if disease results from causes over which he has control."

That, since the regulations concerning water for drinking and culinary purposes on vessels navigating on the Great Lakes and inland waters of Canada became effective, there has been a decided reduction in the number of typhoid patients put ashore from such vessels is very clearly indicated by comparing the typhoid tables for the years from 1923 to 1926.

This report is in reality a summary of the results of the co-operation of various health officials at Great Lakes ports and the definite efforts of seventeen of these persons to secure the maintenance of supplies of water for drinking and culinary purposes of the standard of the regulations. As during the seasons of navigation of 1923, 1924 and 1925, vessels have been boarded by Canadian Health officials at the ports of Montreal, Toronto, Chatham, Windsor, Owen Sound, Midland, Port McNicoll, Sault Ste. Marie, Port Arthur and Fort William. The findings of the subsequent analyses of water samples thus obtained have emphasized the necessity for general compliance with the Regulations and have been also a powerful aid in accomplishing the improvements made to the water systems of various vessels.

Subsection (b) of section 7 of the regulations requires that "Ice used for cooling table water shall be a clear and sanitary ice and shall be stored in a clean place and before the ice is placed in the water or water receptacle it shall be carefully washed and handled in a sanitary manner."

In this regard careful observation has shown that the methods of handling ice between the time it is taken from the ice-chest and ultimately reaches the passenger in the dining saloon are far from satisfactory.

In particular it has been noticed that some of the waiters are rather careless about transferring ice from the chopper to the dining saloon, in a sanitary manner.

The ice chopping machine should be kept clean. Scalding water poured down the upper hopper each time the machine was used would improve matters. On certain passenger vessels it was found to be in such a position that persons entering or leaving the galley had to step over the ice. It is recommended that a covering be attached to the lower hopper and the chute also covered. Some more permanent utensil other than the saucers commonly found in the hopper, should be provided for removing ice. Some utensil should be used for handling ice and not the operator's bare hands.

It was possible to obtain during 1926 additional information regarding the sources from which water for drinking purposes is obtained for passenger trains operated in the province of Quebec. In this connection it is of interest to note that the total number of passengers carried by all the steam railroads of Canada during the year ended December 31, 1925, was 41,458,084 persons.

The results of an investigation of the milk supplies available in dining cars of trains and dining rooms of vessels carried on by the representatives of the United States Public Health Service during 1926 showed:—

(1) That railroads and vessel companies are using pasteurized milk, certified milk, and raw milk for drinking and food purposes in dining cars and dining rooms of vessels. Some of the milk was obtained from cows not tuberculin tested.

(2) Some of the common carriers did not know definitely what kind of milk was supplied at all points. This was shown by the fact that in at least four instances where pasteurized milk was listed by the carrier, the health officials having supervision over the dairies concerned stated that the milk, in question, was not pasteurized.

(3) The interval that elapsed between the time of purchase of the milk and its use in food or for drinking purposes varied in different instances from one hour to four days.

The total number of cases of typhoid fever reported as originating aboard Canadian vessels navigating on Lakes Superior, Huron, Erie and Ontario during 1925 was 13, as indicated in the attached schedule. There were no deaths reported. As compared with the fifty typhoid cases reported for this district for 1923 this is a most decided reduction in this form of sickness.

During the same period reports of the United States Public Health Service state that ten cases of typhoid fever originating from vessels of United States ownership were treated in United States Marine Hospitals located in the corresponding district south of the international boundary.

MARINE HOSPITALS SERVICE

The Marine Hospitals Service is operated in conformity with the provisions of chapter 38, Canada Shipping Act (Sick and Distressed Mariners).

During the year the department operated two marine hospitals, namely at Sydney and Lunenburg in the province of Nova Scotia. At the larger ports contracts were made with the local hospitals for the treatment of sick sailors at fixed per diem rates. At ports of lesser importance the department operated emergency hospitals, and at smaller outports satisfactory arrangements were made for their care and treatment through the agency of the collectors of national revenue. The following is a list of the hospitals which were under contract with this department during the year 1926-27:—

Although there was no outbreak of major or minor contagious diseases during the year, there was a marked increase in the shipping activities on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts; and, as a consequence, the number of sick and injured mariners was increased proportionately.

The total number of sick, distressed and injured sailors treated during the year 1926-27 was 5,173, as compared with 3,782 in the previous year.

The number of days of hospital treatment during the year 1926-27 was 52,048, as compared with 36,292 in the previous year.

The total expenditure for the year 1926-27 was $189,923.92; and the total revenue from the collection of Sick Mariners' Dues was $195,080.28. Detailed information as concerns the expenditure will be found in the financial statement.

A tabular statement of diseases and injuries treated during the year 1926-27 is appended.

QUARANTINE SERVICE

The following organized quarantine stations were maintained during the fiscal year:—

Province of Quebec.—Grosse Isle in the river St. Lawrence (with Father Point as the inspecting base); with Quebec and Montreal Harbours as substations.

Province of Nova Scotia.—(a) Halifax, the Harbour and Lawlor's Island; (b) Sydney, North Sydney, the Harbour and Point Edward.

Province of New Brunswick.—St. John, the Harbour and Partridge Island.

Province of British Columbia.—Victoria, the Harbour and William Head; with Vancouver and the Harbour as a substation.

Each organized quarantine station and substation is in charge of a medical officer.

A substation is a port of final destination where vessels, when empty, can, with greater facility, be fumigated or disinfested, and where other functions may, when required, be performed, as directed by the minister. This is the reason for having fumigating officers at Montreal and Vancouver.

The following table shows the number of vessels and personnel inspected at the several stations:—

Station	Vessels inspected	Passengers			Crews	Cattle-men	Stow-aways	Dis-tressed seamen, etc.	Total persons in-spected
		First class	Cabin class	Third class

Persons to the number of 151 were detained at quarantine stations. Of these, 44 were sick with quarantinable, suspected quarantinable, or minor infectious disease; the remaining 107 were either detained for medical observation as contacts of the respective diseases or were members of families accompanying the sick, from whom they could not well be separated.

In considering these figures it should be noted that, in line with the practice obtaining in other countries of the world, it is the policy of the department, as soon as adequate facilities can be afforded, to land all minor infectious cases, such as measles, chickenpox, scarlet fever, etc., direct at the port of arrival, for treatment in immigration or city hospitals, reserving the quarantine hospitals for the treatment of the major diseases—smallpox, plague, yellow fever, etc. Accordingly, all minor infectious cases found on vessels coming up the St. Lawrence river are now landed at Quebec and treated at the Savard Park immigration hospital. Also, at the port of Halifax, minor infectious cases hitherto detained at the Lawlor's Island quarantine station, are now treated in the Immigration Hospital at Rockhead. This practice will be continued during the winter season each year, when the number of vessels disembarking passengers at Halifax is at a maximum and ice conditions in the harbour at times render Lawlor's Island difficult of access. During the summer months, however, when the main flow of immigration is diverted to the St. Lawrence ports, it is felt that the comparatively small number of minor infectious cases likely to be landed at Halifax would not be sufficient to justify keeping the Rockhead hospital in operation. Such cases will, therefore, from May to November, continue as heretofore to be treated at the Lawlor's Island quarantine hospital.

The minor infectious cases treated at Savard Park and Rockhead are reported under the Immigration Medical Service Division.

The only major quarantinable cases which occurred during the year were two cases of smallpox, one, a member of the crew of a ship steaming up the St. Lawrence, who was landed at Grosse Isle; the other, a wireless officer from a ship which called at Halifax. These are referred to in the respective reports of the quarantine officers concerned.

It is not now necessary, under amended section 28 of the Quarantine Regulations, for unvaccinated third class ocean passengers arriving at ports of Canada from British and foreign countries, to submit to compulsory vaccination, unless the said passengers have come from a district where smallpox prevails in epidemic form, or there is smallpox on board, to which disease, in the judgment of the quarantine officer, they have been exposed.

COMPULSORY FUMIGATION OF SHIPS

Under section 37 of the Quarantine Regulations, all vessels (other than coastwise) arriving at quarantine stations in Canada must produce a certificate showing date of last fumigation. Where more than six months have elapsed since last fumigation (in the case of certain modern types of vessels this period has now been extended to twelve months) the vessel is ordered to be fumigated at the Canadian port of destination before being permitted to put to sea again.

Facilities for fumigating ships, either by the cyanide or sulphur method, are now available at the ports of Halifax, North Sydney, St. John, Quebec, Montreal, Vancouver, Victoria, and Prince Rupert. In every case this work is carried out under the supervision of a duly qualified medical officer of the department.

The following statement shows the number of vessels fumigated at the ports named:—

Halifax	31
North Sydney	4
St. John	11
Quebec	4
Montreal	60
Vancouver	166
Victoria	4
Prince Rupert	7
Total	287

The following extracts are from reports received from the respective quarantine officers:—

Grosse Isle, Quebec (Medical Superintendent, Dr. G. E. Martineau)

“There were 812 steamers inspected, being 237 fewer than last year. Of these, 160 were passenger steamers, being 20 per cent of the total, and 10 less than the previous season.

“This does not mean that there was less work for your medical officers, but that owing to the coal strike in Great Britain, many vessels called at Sydney for bunkers and therefore did not require to obtain pratique at Father Point, although your officers had to go alongside each of them just the same. The Jalobert went alongside 2,976 steamers (1,615 inward and 1,361 outward), and as your officers had to be on board and on deck for everyone this means that they really did the work that clearing 2,976 would mean although it does not show in the records.

“All vessels that required it were given pratique at Father Point except seven: 1 on May 12, 1 on July 4, 4 on October 27, and 1 on November 2. One of these vessels having smallpox on board was cleared at Grosse Isle and the six others were passed on to Quebec for clearance owing to its being too rough for your officers to go on board without danger to themselves or to the vessels to be boarded and to the pilots' tender.

“A marked increase over last year's figures may be noticed in the third-class passengers who number 78,948 this year as compared with 51,530 last year. This increase in immigration is no doubt the result of greater transportation facilities, etc., accorded by the Government to that class of passengers.

“Infectious or contagious disease was reported or discovered on 71 occasions on 21 passenger boats. These included all the minor infectious diseases, and on one occasion smallpox was diagnosed on the ss. Athenia, one of the crew. This vessel was taken to Grosse Isle where she arrived on July 4 at 9 a.m. The patient was immediately removed to the quarantine hospital and 45 other members of the crew who had been directly exposed to infection were landed there for quarantine and observation. Everybody on board the vessel that required vaccination, 796 in all, having been vaccinated, and the ship's hospital and compartments occupied by the contacts thoroughly disinfected, the steamer was released at 3 p.m. the same day. The contacts detained in quarantine were released as soon as they showed immunity or positive reaction. The patient having fully recovered was discharged from hospital on July 19.

“Deaths during the voyage were reported on six occasions on the following vessels and from the following causes: ss. Antonia, acute uraemia (1), heart failure (1); ss. Montroyal, scarlet fever (1); ss. Montrose, cause unknown (1); ss. Metagama, marasmus (1); ss. Canadolite, accident (1).

“Births during the voyage were reported on six occasions as follows: ss. Montclare (1); ss. Empress of Scotland (4); ss. Metagama (1).

"Passengers requiring vaccination under the Regulations were vaccinated on three occasions on the ss. Empress of France; Letitia and Montcalm.

"The following steamers were fumigated at Quebec: ss. Rygsa; Innerton; Philip T. Dodge and Terneusen.

Lawlor's Island, Halifax, N.S. (Quarantine Officer, Dr. J. V. Graham).

"During the year 467 vessels were inspected. These vessels carried 65,504 crew, 4,420 first class passengers, 27,015 cabin class passengers, 72,461 third class passengers, 148 stowaways, 48 cattlemen, and 17 distressed seamen. The vessels reported 8 deaths and 1 birth at sea. The deaths were classified as follows: Beri-Beri 1, organic heart disease 3, pneumonia 3, and suicide by drowning 1.

"The following cases of disease and relatives accompanying were taken to the Station Hospital, Lawlor's Island: Influenza, 10 cases with 9 accompanying; scarlet fever, 2 with 1 accompanying; acute laryngitis with broncho-pneumonia, 1 (this case was accompanying the scarlet fever family and died on the day of admission from broncho-pneumonia); streptococcol tonsillitis, 1 with 2 accompanying; chickenpox, 1 with 1 accompanying; German measles, 1 with 2 accompanying (one of those accompanying the German measles developed nephritis five days after admission); observation, 1 (diagnosed later as erythema), with 1 accompanying; and smallpox, 1 case. There was no case of cross infection or secondary infection.

"Instructions having been received to transfer to the Rockhead Immigration Hospital cases of minor infectious diseases requiring hospitalization, as soon as we were advised the hospital was ready to receive them we handed over to the medical officer in charge of immigration, the following cases and relatives accompanying, the first case on December 19, 1927: Measles, 3 with 9 accompanying; mumps 1; influenza, 7 with 3 accompanying; chickenpox, 2 with 3 accompanying; scarlet fever, 1 with 2 accompanying; erysipelas 1. The 5 contacts of the smallpox were also detained at the Immigration Hospital until they showed a positive vaccinal reaction.

"Only one case of quarantinable disease was reported during the year, the ss. Alaunia reporting by radio on January 20, that the ship's surgeon had a suspected case of smallpox on board. On arrival of the ship on January 23, I saw the case and concurred in the ship's surgeon's diagnosis of smallpox. The patient proved to be a wireless officer and the only passenger contacts of the case were the cabin passengers, the wireless officers being accustomed to taking their meals in the cabin dining room. The ship's surgeon, however, had taken every precaution by isolating the case and vaccinating every person on board, as soon as his suspicions of smallpox were aroused. After securing the services of nurse Lindsay and engaging a temporary cook, the patient was removed to the Lawlor's Island Hospital. Careful examination of the vaccinations of the cabin passengers revealed, of those to be landed at Halifax, 18 in number, but 5 without a positive reaction. These 5 were re-vaccinated by me and disinfected on board and transferred to the Rockhead Hospital and detained in Quarantine until a positive reaction showed. The cabin passengers allowed to proceed were all disinfected on board before landing.

Thirty-one vessels were fumigated at this station during the year, 24 steamers, 6 schooners, and 1 motor ship. Eleven dead rats were recovered after fumigation on 2 of these vessels, and 1 vessel, which had evidence of rat infestation before fumigation, sailed before a proper search for dead rats could be made.

"Other than the routine vaccination of the quarantine staff, which took place in January, there were but 5 vaccinations performed at this station during the year, those being the contacts of smallpox ex the ss. Alaunia.

William Head, B.C. (Quarantine Officer, Dr. C. P. Brown)

"Comparing total traffic with that of last year, the number of vessels inspected has decreased from 819 to 755. This is largely a decrease in coast-wise traffic inspection, as there have been no infected ports in North America during the year. On the other hand the total number of people inspected has increased from 83,709 to 110,561.

"General health conditions of traffic have been good, as evidenced by the fact that there have been no quarantines throughout the year. The proportion of vessels bringing bills of health showing quarantinable disease has decreased from 61 per cent last year to 44 per cent this year.

"The quarantinable diseases have been present as follows:—

"Plague at Hohokaa, one of the Hawaiian islands, remote from Honolulu; at Callao during April; at Buenos Aires during April; at Yokohama during July; at the Azores during December; at Colombo and Singapore at various times.

"Cholera at Manila from April to October; at Shanghai during August, September and October; at Dairen during October.

"Smallpox in epidemic form at San Pedro during May (the last of last year's epidemic); at Yokohama during April and May.

"Typhus noted once, a case at Shanghai in September.

"Yellow fever none.

"The cyanide method of fumigation has been introduced at the port of Vancouver during the year. It is insisted on as the method of choice with all freighters. So far it has not been used on the passenger vessels that run here regularly and fumigate their holds every trip. Dr. H. P. Cox is acting as a full-time medical officer in charge of fumigation at Vancouver. His report is attached. He has also from time to time submitted valuable reports on the structure of the vessels he has fumigated and the amount of ratproofing that has been attempted. A beginning has been made in the examination of rats found dead on these vessels after fumigation.

"Notes have been kept on many of the vessels inspected at this station regarding their deratization. Apparently there is very little special ratproofing done. The modern motor vessel, and also the modern oil fuel steam vessel, offer little harborage for rats, as the fuel oil is carried in tanks replacing the open bilges. With modern vessels it is a question of cargo. If this is grain or other cargo that is readily available as food, rats are frequently found on the vessel, otherwise a few only may be found in stores and crews' quarters. Some captains prefer trapping, but it is my impression that mostly they prefer regular fumigations, and with cyanide, as it can be used in quarters without damage, and gets rid of roaches.

"Buildings and equipment on this station have been kept ready for work. Routine repairs and upkeep have been carried out by our own staff with materials purchased by the Department of Public Works.

"Our quarantine vessels, the Madge and the Evelyn, were repaired under the supervision of the officers at H.M.C. dockyard, Esquimalt. In addition to the two semi-annual overhauls of the Madge, there were three visits to the dockyard for emergency repairs. At her next visit it will be necessary to take into serious consideration the repair or replacement of her hull. The Evelyn also had special repairs done on two occasions. I would like to express my appreciation of the kindness and the efficient help we have had in this from the naval officers.

"At the Bentinck Island leper station, three cottages for patients and one for a caretaker are just now being completed by the Department of Public Works. This will give us quarters available for eight more patients."

Vancouver, Substation, B.C. (Fumigating Officer, Dr. H. P. Cox)

"A full-time fumigation officer commenced duty at this port on May 1, 1926. Owing to various causes, mainly the delay in the arrival of the requisite material, cyanide fumigation was not begun till the first day of September.

"During the period of eleven months the total number of ships fumigated was 166. Of this number 76 were remanded, and 90 were fumigated by request.

"The bulk of the shipping entering this port comes from Oriental ports, and during the time of the presence of plague at Yokohama nearly all vessels which had touched at that port were remanded for fumigation on arrival at Vancouver.

"Of vessels fumigated the number arriving from Orient was 109; from United States, 18; from Atlantic coast, 8; from other ports, 31.

"From May till September there were fumigated with sulphur, 59 ships; from September till March 31 there were fumigated with sulphur, 53 ships; from September till March 31 there were fumigated with cyanide, 54 ships.

"The number of ships on which rats were picked up was 56. Of this number 26 were remanded and 30 done by request.

"The total number of rats collected was 650. The total number of rats collected from ships remanded was 269 and from ships done by request 382.

"The total number of rats collected after cyanide fumigation, 360; after sulphur fumigation, 291.

"Inspection of wharves and piers showed that rat-guarding regulations were being properly observed."

LEPER STATIONS

Under the Leprosy Act (chapter 136, Revised Statutes 1906), the Department of Health administers two leper stations in Canada, one at Tracadie, N.B., the other at Bentinck Island, B.C.

Tracadie, N.B.—This lazaretto is in charge of Dr. J. A. Langis, medical superintendent. At the end of the fiscal year, March 31, 1927, there were eleven inmates being cared for as compared with ten in the previous year. Six of these are arrested cases. No deaths occurred during the period covered. There was one new admission, in November, 1926, a Russian woman from Blaine Lake, Sask. The following table furnishes particulars of the respective patients:—

Patient	Age	Sex	Admitted	Nationality	Where from
J.G.....	62	M.	April, 1897.....	Icelander.....	Winnipeg, Man.
J.S.....	58	F.	March, 1906.....	French Acadian.....	Tracadie, N.B.
P.D.....	40	M.	May, 1909.....	French Acadian.....	Lameque, N.B.
O.L.....	81	M.	October, 1910.....	French Acadian.....	Neguac, N.B.
B.T.....	74	F.	October, 1914.....	French Acadian.....	Portage River, N.B.
A.D.....	28	F.	July, 1918.....	French Acadian.....	Lameque, N.B.
J.D.....	66	M.	April, 1919.....	French Acadian.....	Lameque, N.B.

K.S.L.....	45	M.	October, 1922.....	Chinese.....	Montreal, P.Q.
W.S.....	36	M.	September, 1925.....	Chinese.....	Montreal, P.Q.
J.P.....	32	F.	November, 1926.....	Russian.....	Blaine Lake, Sask.

It will be seen that six of the inmates are French-Acadians. These are natives of Gloucester county, N.B., where leprosy first made its appearance in Canada. It is interesting to note that the last leper case which occurred in this district was admitted to the lazaretto eight years ago. Thus it may be assumed that leprosy having its origin among native-born Canadians is to-day virtually extinct.

The principal medicinal treatment of the active cases consists of the intramuscular injection of the ethyl esters of chaulmoogra oil, which oil is obtained from the seed of an East Indian tree. Dr. Langis reports as satisfactory progress as can be expected, and pays tribute to the devoted service to the inmates rendered by the nursing sisters of the Order of St. Joseph.

Bentinck Island, B.C.—This leper station is in charge of Dr. C. P. Brown, medical superintendent of the quarantine station at William Head, B.C., to which Bentinck Island is adjacent. At the close of the fiscal year there were ten male patients being cared for, the number being unchanged from the previous year. These are classified as follows:—

Patient	Age	Sex	Admitted	Nationality	Where from
F.H.....	41	M.	August 28, 1916....	Chinese.....	Vancouver, B.C.
C.K.W.....	42	M.	October 4, 1918....	Chinese.....	Vancouver, B.C.
L.A.....	30	M.	November 28, 1918	Chinese.....	Victoria, B.C.
L.B.....	36	M.	December 23, 1920	Chinese.....	Vancouver, B.C.
A.B.....	50	M.	November 18, 1921	Russian Jew.....	Winnipeg, Man.
C.K.....	47	M.	March 31, 1922....	Chinese.....	Victoria, B.C.
J.L.....	31	M.	August 5, 1923....	Chinese.....	Vancouver, B.C.
E.D.....	33	M.	January 31, 1924..	Doukhobor.....	Veregin, Sask.
M.J.....	30	M.	May 21, 1924....	Chinese.....	Vancouver, B.C.
W.K.D.....	42	M.	October 28, 1925..	Chinese.....	Nanaimo, B.C.

The condition of these patients may be summarized as follows:—

Four have clinical signs of present active disease.

Two have discharging sinus on feet, the result of damage done by the disease.

Three have no clinical signs of present active disease, but are bacteriologically positive.

One has no signs of present clinical active disease, and is bacteriologically negative.

Medicinal treatment consists of chaulmoogra oil capsules, with "moogrol" injected intramuscularly.

The lepers are housed in cottages, each with his own room and outfit, and look after themselves as far as practicable. Two male caretakers and a trained female nurse are in immediate charge of the leper colony, under the supervision of the quarantine medical officer, who visits the island at weekly intervals, or oftener if needed.

IMMIGRATION MEDICAL SERVICE

Ocean passengers, immigrants and non-immigrants (tourists, etc.), to the number of 133,494 were medically inspected at ports of Canada on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts during the fiscal year. In addition, 2,429 persons en route to Canada by way of the ports of New York and Boston were medically inspected by officers of the United States Public Health Service.

The following tables show (a) the monthly arrivals by ports, and (b) a comparison with the figures of the previous fiscal year.

IMMIGRATION MEDICAL SERVICE OVERSEAS

Of the 30,186 prospective emigrants to Canada who submitted medical certificates from roster doctors for review by the Canadian Immigration medical officers in London, or were examined personally by the latter officers, 2,289 were found to come within the "prohibited classes" set out in section 3 of the Immigration Act, due to physical or mental defects. Decision as to their acceptance or rejection as emigrants to Canada rests with the Department of Immigration, the officers of the Department of Health merely acting as medical advisers, as at Canadian ports of landing.

LABORATORY OF HYGIENE

The laboratory was called upon during the year to carry out a sanitary survey of the chief clam bed areas in the province of New Brunswick, centering around Shediac and Cocagne. With this survey were associated bacteriological examinations of clams taken from representative beds. This survey, like that of previous ones on oyster beds, was undertaken to meet the requirements of the export trade to the United States, where very strict sanitary regulations are imposed by that country upon the importation of shell fish in the raw state.

In collaboration with the Food and Drugs laboratory and that of Customs and Excise, numerous examinations throughout the year have been made in respect to canned goods, dairy products, biological products and raw foods.

In co-operation with the sanitary engineer, the laboratory has carried out numerous bacteriological examinations of drinking-water samples obtained from vessels of various sorts engaged in trade and passenger traffic between Canadian and United States ports.

Critical inspections have been carried out in reference to the equipment and general upkeep of bacteriological laboratories in connection with the quarantine service. Apparatus and equipment in general have been carefully overhauled, shortages made good and everything made ready for operation on the shortest possible notice, where bacteriological investigation may be deemed necessary in reference to outbreaks of communicable disease among immigrants landing on our shores.

Standardization tests have been carried on on a considerable number of samples of coal-tar disinfectants, this largely on behalf of Government departments seeking guidance in the choice of reliable disinfectants.

A second report was made upon the potency of tinctures of digitalis and strophanthus as found upon the Canadian market. As before, a considerable variation in the strength of these samples was observed.

Publication has been made of an article dealing with the hydrogen-ion standardization of bacteriological media. Further work along these lines is being prosecuted.

DIVISION OF VENEREAL DISEASE CONTROL

During the fiscal year 1926-27 the sum of $119,132.44 was distributed among the provinces for the work of venereal disease control, the amount allocated to the provinces, $125,000, being the same as for the preceding year. The amount was allocated and distributed as follows:—

There are fifty-six clinics in operation throughout the provinces. In addition, there are a number of hospitals and institutions to which drugs are supplied for the free treatment of venereal disease. These hospitals and institutions make monthly returns to the provincial authorities. Patients at outlying points are treated by arrangement with the nearest physician. The free clinics, coupled with the treatment of inmates of penal institutions, have proved to be the most effective means so far instituted for the limitation of the spread of the disease. Treatment is being adequately carried out.

Law enforcement, so far as it relates to women who are sentenced to penal institutions, is satisfactory and is proving effective.

Following up of the patient to ensure treatment until cured and the examination of contacts is being conducted with some degree of success in the larger centres of population, but not so effectively in the smaller places.

Educational work is now somewhat negligible. This year there were issued 90,805 pieces of literature by this department. Just what effect educational efforts have met with in preventing immoral relationships is difficult to say. Their effect is not apparent as yet.

The Canadian Social Hygiene Council, which has been carrying on a campaign against the venereal diseases for some years, is expanding into a general public health council. General health topics will be publicly discussed and social hygiene given a position proportionate to its merits.

DIVISION OF CHILD WELFARE

Opportunities for co-operation with other departments of the Dominion Government, especially with the Department of Immigration and Colonization, the Department of the Interior, the Department of Trade and Commerce and with all the Provincial Authorities in Health, Child Welfare and Vital Statistics have increased during the year. The preparation of the Hospital Map of Canada and the securing and compiling of material for the Maternal Mortality Enquiry has increased the opportunities for co-operation.

Correspondence with England and Wales, Scotland, the Irish Free State, Newfoundland and with distant parts of the British Empire, as well as with other countries, has occupied a good deal of time and attention.

The most important undertaking during the year has been the preparation of a large amount of material obtained by co-operation with the provincial authorities and the medical profession in regard to maternal deaths in Canada. The co-operation received and the interest taken in this Enquiry, not only by those directly concerned but by the general public, has been beyond all expectation. A preliminary report of the whole Enquiry was presented to the Second Conference on Medical Services in Canada which was held in the House of Commons under the patronage of the minister on March 30, 1927. Every effort is being made to complete the final report at an early date.

MATERNAL MORTALITY ENQUIRY REPORT

A request was made at the Second Conference on Medical Services in Canada that the final report should be completed and made available to all members of the profession as soon as possible, and it was also requested that, if possible, a report in a somewhat different form should be made available to the general public. This last request was supported by a resolution passed by the National Council of Women of Canada at a meeting of their Executive Committee at Ottawa on March 31, 1927.

HOSPITAL MAP OF CANADA

A List of the Hospitals of Canada was prepared from information supplied by the provincial authorities. The map was compiled from information supplied in the same way. The final proof was received from the King's Printer on April 23, 1926, and proofs were sent to all persons who had contributed information. The final proof was received, revised, approved by the deputy minister and returned for printing and publication on July 24, 1926; 10,000 copies of the map were received September 17, 1926.

Request-cards for this publication were sent to all legally-qualified medical practitioners in Canada, about 8,000 in number. The total number of request-cards returned up to September 30, 1926, was 2,883. A few have been received since that date bringing the total number up to about 3,000.

Although proofs were sent to all provincial authorities and although the superintendent of each hospital was personally written to, it was found that seven hospitals had been omitted from the list.

YOUNG PERSONS IN PENITENTIARIES

This matter has been brought forward on several occasions but progress has been slow. A conference suggested by Judge Coatsworth took place on May 27, 1926. Those present included Judge Coatsworth, Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General of Ontario, Judge Mott, and Dr. Lavell. The Attorney-General of Ontario undertook to write to the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, upon the subject of providing better care and training for juvenile adults in penitentiaries.

IMMIGRANT CHILD WELFARE

The care of children not in their own homes has received attention during the year and it is now intended to issue a publication comprising the "Memorandum on the Care of Children Not in Their Own Homes", with special reference to children coming from overseas, as approved by the provincial superintendents for child welfare work, and also a directory of all government officials in the Dominion and provincial Governments who have charge of this work and work relating to it, and a similar directory of all voluntary societies engaged in the same work.

Correspondence on this matter has been regular and continuous but has been at the same time much delayed and it has for some reason been difficult to get the necessary information. However, it is hoped that the publication will be issued at an early date.

DISABLED CHILDREN

Orthopedic Classes or Auxiliary Classes for Disabled Children with transportation for the pupils have been established in Ottawa and in Toronto during the year.

ESKIMO INFANTS AND CHILDREN

At the request of Dr. Duncan Campbell Scott, Deputy Superintendent General of Indian Affairs, a memorandum in regard to the care and feeding of Eskimo infants and young children was prepared. The deputy superintendent general stated that a copy of this memorandum along with a copy of "The Canadian Mother's Book" and "Supplement" would be placed at all the far northern posts.

Conferences on this subject have taken place with officials of the different departments concerned and others during every month of the present year and the subject received a great impetus from the visit of Knud Rasmussen to Ottawa on December 6.

OUTPOST HOMES

The work of the Education Department of Ontario with regard to school cars intended to provide for the education of children in outpost homes in northern Ontario has been a matter of importance during the year. Two school cars were placed in operation on September 18, 1926. Each car contains a school room with fourteen seats, also residential accommodation for the teacher. The railways supply fuel, heat and refrigeration at the expense of the Government. The Canadian National Railways has provided a "School Siding" at eight points on the line and the Canadian Pacific Railway has provided nine "School Sidings." The total number of pupils served by the Canadian Pacific Railway car, which is on the Cartier-Chapleau Division, is 71, and the total number served by the Canadian National Railways, on the Capreol-Foleyet Division, is 72. Seven Indian children are included in the above. Co-operation with the teachers for the school cars has been established during the year.

The system of Correspondence Classes established by the same department in Ontario has offered another opportunity for co-operation of which we immediately availed ourselves.

PUBLICATIONS

The Hospital Map of Canada was published, 10,000 copies were received and these were distributed chiefly by means of request-cards which were forwarded to the medical profession and others. The publication was well received and was out of print on or about March 31, 1927. A number of copies were utilized by the Department of Immigration and Colonization, who had made a special request for the immediate printing of this publication as it was felt that it was too important to be delayed until the final Report of the Maternal Mortality Enquiry should be ready.

In January, 1927, the manuscript for a new edition of "The Canadian Mother's Book," to be known as the Confederation Diamond Jubilee Edition, was sent to the Government Printing Bureau. For various reasons it was not found possible to publish this new edition before March 31.

The revision was begun on July 15, 1926, and the first galley proof was received February 8, 1927.

One of the State Staff Nurses of Pennsylvania who has some Canadians in her district wrote to ask for a supply of "Little Blue Books" for distribution. Fifty request-cards were sent in the usual way with a letter of thanks for this courtesy.

Requests were also received from the Federated Malay States and from Manjirenji, P.O. Zaka, Fort Victoria, Southern Rhodesia.

IMPERIAL BABY WEEK TROPHY

At the request of the National League for Health, Maternity and Child Welfare, London, England, assistance was given as in previous years to make known their Imperial Competition for Baby Week. The Competition this year was for the municipality which had done the most effective child welfare work.

HOSPITALIZATION AND SANITATION

HOSPITALIZATION

The activities of the division, advising on planning of hospitals in various parts of the Dominion are increasing considerably as evidenced in the advice sought by the provincial governments as also various hospital boards. The Hamilton Memorial Hospital, North Sydney, C.B., trustees were advised on their problems, tentative plans and schemes being furnished.

The scheme for hospital and doctor's residence at Ile-a-la Crosse, Sask., was further developed and the division co-operated to the extent of furnishing plans, specifications and data of a type unique in hospital planning, thus enabling the project to be consummated.

The Marine Hospital, Sydney, N.S., having become somewhat out-dated from the viewpoint of modern hospital planning was taken under advisement and plans prepared for alterations and additions both covering ward accommodation, sanitation, and heating facilities with a view of conforming to the latest practices covering such institutions.

Point Edward Quarantine Station having been abolished, provision was made for an infectious diseases unit to be built in conjunction with the Marine Hospital, Sydney. Therefore, the division prepared plans and specifications accordingly for this work. One very interesting feature in connection with this unit is that the construction represents the latest note in insulating properties inasmuch as the floors, walls, and roofs are filled with a gypsum compound thereby conserving heat and resisting low temperatures so prejudicial to the therapeutic value of hospitals of this description. The windows in this building have been so arranged that they will ventilate the various wards, effectively screen from flies, and permit storm sashes all in one frame, this type of ventilation, fly control, and double window method, being the pioneer of such design in the Dominion.

Many enquiries have been received in furtherance of the data furnished covering the institutional care of mental defectives, and it is the intention at some time to publish a brochure covering this phase of hospitalization.

The demand for the publication covering "Planning of Small Community Hospitals" is daily increasing in view of the insistent demands made for hospitalization by modern methods in the rural districts.

Intensive work on the various buildings and physical features was accomplished at the quarantine stations in conjunction with the Division of Quarantine, with the result that greater efficiency has been attained.

The division planned new food and drug laboratories in Toronto, which laboratories embody equipment, refrigeration, etc., comparable to the requirements of the service.

The Laboratory of Hygiene, owing to its increasing activities, called for an incubator room and, in view of the latest scientific methods of construction, research work was carried out, having in mind the fundamental essential of maintaining an equable temperature. This was accomplished to a remarkable degree and has interested many professors from the various universities both throughout the Dominion and the United States.

Fire protection for buildings, more particularly hospitals and institutions in the outlying regions in the northern part of the Dominion, is receiving the very careful study of the division, and it is hoped that, before long, fire-resisting paints and stains will be on the market thereby insuring a greater measure of protection from the ravages of fire which have proved so costly and disastrous in the past.

SANITATION

The interest shown by the people in sewage disposal and water supplies where municipal systems do not obtain has been outstanding. Enquiries have been received from every province emphasizing the need for such publications as those issued by the department, and, in all cases as in a vast number of parallel problems, the Division has furnished information and data which enabled the enquirers to overcome satisfactorily their difficulties and to enjoy the results of modern methods now practised in phases of such sanitation. The following excerpts from correspondence received indicate the diversity of information sought from time to time by the public, i.e.—

“SASKATCHEWAN.

“I am enclosing a diagram of the layout of my well, house and sewage system to be installed. The water level is seventy feet from the top of the ground. If I should dig a hole three feet wide down to the gravel (which is 35 feet of hard pan or dirt, and there is 35 feet of gravel before getting to the water level), and fill in about 15 feet of stone or rocks and curbed the rest of the way up and covered, would the drainage from the house effect the water in the well 200 feet away? How large would the sewage pipe have to be to carry same from the house 60 feet away, and what slope would the drainage pipe have to be?”

“ALBERTA.

“Could you please send me a safe answer to the following problem. How could I establish a pumping system (frost proof) in the following circumstances? I live in a place where potable water is not available before 60 or 70 feet and even then it is full of rust, it cannot keep good very long, and moreover I have no system of drilling. There is a good lake at 400 feet from my house and stables, and the only way of solving the problem is to take water from that lake.”

“ONTARIO.

“We are contemplating installing septic tanks at our mill at Kapuskasing, Ont., where we will be employing from 500 to 700 persons, and would be very glad to receive any published pamphlets and other information you would be kind enough to let us have, regarding tanks of the required capacity. Kindly let us have this in duplicate in order that we may supply our Engineer with a copy.”

“Two years ago we put in a septic tank at our cheese factory to try to remedy the evil of running all waste into a watercourse which runs past and is spoiling the water used by some farmers for stock purposes. I might state that we manufacture from ninety to one hundred tons of cheese, and also separate our whey. No whey is allowed to run into the tank, but all the washings do. We have a three compartment tank, each five feet every way, the outlet running direct to the creek. The ground around is clay, and rather flat, thereby not leaving much chance for side drainage. I would like to know if there is any way in which we could have it fixed to give better results as the neighbours are beginning to complain.”

“NOVA SCOTIA.

“I would esteem it a favour if you could supply me with literature dealing with the construction of septic tank or other method of sewage disposal for individual houses and institutions. Where I am intending to build is in a rural place where sewers and running water are not provided by the community. So individual efforts are necessary.”

“NEW BRUNSWICK.

“I should be much obliged for literature, if you publish such, concerning drainage of country houses. We are about to put in sewage connections from the manse, and are ignorant about procedure. I am advised to write your department and I do so hopefully.”

“BRITISH COLUMBIA.

“I have been advised that you will give me information as how to best make a septic tank for five people occupying a seven roomed house. I intend to build a good brick house in Salmon Arm City this coming fall; while the city has excellent water, it has no sewerage system that I know of, so I'll have to arrange a septic tank of my own, and I want to be prepared as to how wide, how deep and how to line it with concrete or wood or brick. How to arrange inlet and outlet. I'd be thankful for the advice if it lies in your power to give it to me.”

“MONTANA, U.S.A.

“I live on White Mud river, and we use the water from the river for cooking, and put up ice for drinking. In August, 1926, my two children and myself had typhoid fever. Do you think we got it from using river water?”

“I saw in your Publication No. 18 on Sanitation Water Supplies, to use chloride of lime. Do you think this would make the water fit to use and free of typhoid germs? I would appreciate having you write to me and give me some more information on this. I am giving an address in United States as we cannot cross the river to a Canadian Post Office.”

Municipalities still desire to be advised both on their sewage and water problems and en passant Swift Current municipality, Sask., was furnished with information, by request, covering purification, filtration, and sedimentation for water supplies.

The Canadian Tuberculosis Association consulted the division upon the compilation of a brochure covering ventilation which they desired to publish and distribute throughout the Dominion.

The provincial medical officers of health had become impressed by the insistent urge made by the public as to the necessity and value of pasteurizing milk. The Canadian Council of Child Welfare were also forcibly insistent that such information should be distributed at as early a date as possible. The division therefore compiled a brochure under the caption of "Pasteurization of Milk for small communities" covering the questions incidental thereto in a comprehensive manner, i.e.:—

"The history of pasteurization, how it can be applied to the home, undesirable conditions under which milk is produced, dangers of mishandling by the producers and carriers, hygienic milk pails, milk houses, chemical changes produced by pasteurization, the direct relationship of unpasteurized milk to infant mortality, modern pasteurizing outfits, hygienic bottle washing, standard ordinances, and illustrations of hygienic barns, etc."

This publication is being used by the various colleges throughout the Dominion, the United States, and by the city and municipal authorities as a text book. Appreciation shown by these authorities may be gathered by one or two excerpts as follows:—

"GUELPH, ONT., ONTARIO AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

"I could distribute two dozen more copies amongst dairy students and others interested in dairy sanitation, as there is quite a demand for sound information on this subject and your publication cannot be bettered for this purpose."

"PETERBOROUGH, ONT.

"Mr. — is considering the installation of a small pasteurizing plant and your bulletin is really the finest piece of literature that is published covering this work for small plants."

"UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO.

"If available for distribution, would you please be kind enough to let us have 215 copies of publication No. 36, 'Pasteurization of Milk for Small Communities.' We desire to place a copy of this valuable little pamphlet in the hands of all of our students."

The development of housing throughout the Dominion would appear to still be holding the attention of the public, inasmuch as day after day inquiries are received for advice and standard plans covering small houses in outlying districts.

Of those remaining at midnight on March 31, 1927, 281 were under 20 years of age, 1,036 were between the ages of 20 and 30, while 45 were over 60 years of age.

There were no escapes from penitentiaries during the year.

Two inmates of Saskatchewan Penitentiary, serving long sentences, were removed, under court order, and tried for an additional offence. While being returned to the penitentiary, they escaped from provincial Government officers and have not been recaptured.

Inmate Bryans, No. H. 367, the last one of the inmates who escaped on September 10, 1923, after setting fire to the stable at Kingston Penitentiary, was recaptured on March 7, 1927, and has since been returned to the penitentiary. All of the five inmates who escaped at that time have been recaptured and are again incarcerated, other than inmate Sullivan who, while resisting arrest, was killed by the police of Minneapolis, Minn.

It is with regret that I report the deaths of two very highly respected, efficient and valuable officers of the Penitentiary Branch, which occurred during the past year. Guard J. Williams was accidentally killed by a delayed blast while excavating for the foundation of the sewage disposal plant at Manitoba Penitentiary, while Guard M. E. Jenkin was murdered while in the discharge of his duty by a Russian inmate of the Kingston Penitentiary.

The schools of the various penitentiaries have been doing excellent work; not only are the illiterate and uneducated being improved but those possessing a moderate education are being materially assisted. One inmate, entirely illiterate when he came to the institution, has passed the entrance and matriculation examinations with credit. He has also taken up first year university studies and passed a fair number of the examinations set for that year. The schoolmaster has been assisted by professors from a nearby university in his instruction, who have furnished, on loan, a great many of the necessary text books.

Considerable yearly additions are made to the libraries. Books to replace worn out editions are purchased and new ones added each year. The library boards, consisting of the warden, the two chaplains and the schoolmaster, have rendered great assistance in the upbuilding of the libraries and in securing proper books; also in deleting from the magazines and periodicals supplied objectionable articles which are not considered fit reading for even the inmates of the penitentiaries.

The hospitals of the institutions are worthy of special mention. They have been improved in almost every detail and the surgeons, in many cases, are rendering valuable aid to diseased and defective inmates suffering from physical and mental troubles.

Dental clinics are operated at all of the penitentiaries and the inmates prevented from suffering through treatment of diseased or aching teeth.

Wasserman blood tests are made of all inmates and monthly reports as to venereal disease patients submitted to the Dominion Health Board. The success of the various surgeons in the treatment of venereal disease, and those addicted to drug habits, has been very satisfactory.

The food given to inmates, although not costing more than formerly, is well cooked and wholesome and a very considerable variety is furnished.

A number of American committees and penal institutional officers have visited the penitentiaries during the past year. In every case, they remarked that the serving of food in the Canadian penitentiaries was better, and the food served, excelled that given inmates in American institutions.

The Salvation Army have rendered wonderful assistance throughout the year. They visit the institutions and hold services in the Protestant churches. They assist all inmates, on discharge, if necessary, and also help the wardens to secure employment for men leaving the penitentiaries who have no employment in view. They also relieve many cases of distress in the homes of those sentenced to penitentiary. The superintendent has personal knowledge of many such cases. Their efforts are entirely worthy and in their dealings they recognize neither creed nor colour. Were it not for the Salvation Army, a very great deal of suffering, both on the part of those who are discharged and of the relatives and families of those sentenced to prison, would result.

At Kingston Penitentiary, work has been prosecuted throughout the year on the new prison for women and the duct leading from main boiler-house thereto.

The old boiler-house and shop overhead, formerly occupied by binder twine plant, have been entirely remodelled. The blacksmith and machine shops will be located in the lower story and the carpenter shop above.

These shops are wonderfully well lighted, heated, and up-to-date methods installed for the operating of the necessary machinery in connection with these industries.

Warden's residence suffered material damage through bursting of old iron water pipes which it was found necessary to remove, they having served their purpose for many years. They were replaced with brass piping and the entire building has been done over and put in a presentable shape.

The dome of the main building, built by English engineers between 1820 and 1830, has been given an entire overhauling and some improvement made in the lighting of same. This work required a great deal of scaffolding, as it is 125 feet from the apex of the dome to the floor below.

A start has been made on the remodelling of the old asylum building with a view to turning same into much needed shop room.

The revenue from the canvas working department at Kingston Penitentiary amounted to $62,665.27; that of the shoe department, $14,243.91; that of the tailor department, $2,607.77; while the broom department produced a revenue of $1,206.56. Female prison also produced a revenue of $1,927.19.

A very considerable improvement has been made in connection with the fencing of the farm property. Very artistic corner posts have been erected and cement posts used to replace the old wooden ones which, in many cases, were showing signs of decay.

Improvement of the enclosure at Kingston Penitentiary is worthy of special notice. For the past thirty-four years the old buildings erected between 1820 and 1830 were being rebuilt, remodelled and brought into an up-to-date condition. This work, in so far as the northern block of buildings, consisting of the cell blocks, kitchen, hospital, churches, prison for women, etc., is concerned, was completed some years ago. The remodelling of the shop buildings is still under way. Where at all possible, and where no debris from building operations exists, the yard has been laid off in roadways and pathways with concrete curbs, and every available spot turned into beautiful grassy lawn with flower beds plentifully scattered about. This not only adds materially to the beauty of the place, but has almost entirely done away with the objection previously experienced through drifting sand and fine gravel when high winds prevailed.

The management of the hospital at Kingston is also worthy of high praise. For several years past this hospital has been outstanding in its results for good. Many most difficult major operations have been performed, and the sufferings of hundreds of the unfortunates admitted to that penitentiary have been relieved. Surgeon Anglin has brought to the penitentiary hospital a feeling of confidence and a regime of efficiency.

The St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary has, for the past two years, been under control of an acting warden. For three years the position of deputy warden has been filled by an acting officer. For three years the position of office assistant to warden has been filled by an acting officer and for two years the duties of steward have been performed by an acting officer.

A great deal of very excellent work has been done however.

The new piggery has been begun.

Garage, destroyed by fire, is being rebuilt.

Concrete duct, containing, heating, water and sewage pipes, as well as electric cables and wires, has been constructed from the penitentiary to the pump house and warden's residence.

Duct to new piggery has been begun.

Quarry at this institution has continued to provide all the beautiful stone necessary for building construction. It is considered one of the best operated quarries in the district.

Purchase of a small block of land from the Roman Catholic church has been made. This will enable the institution to construct its southern wall in a straight line and materially enlarge the prison enclosure. This was a very much needed improvement.

Colonel P. A. Piuze has been appointed to assume control of the St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary as warden on April 1, 1927. This will release Inspector and Auditor H. C. Fatt, who has been acting warden of the penitentiary, and permit him to assume his customary duties. The audit of the institutional accounts has, on account of his absence, been delayed and is now very considerably in arrears.

At Dorchester, a very excellent new kitchen, bakery, and officers' mess, with large basement for storage of supplies, and an up-to-date cooling room therein, has been erected.

A splendid new church has also been built.

A great deal of minor construction work has been carried on as well as the filling in and terracing of the grounds around the warden's and deputy warden's residences.

Work on the rear wall has been begun.

The new hospital, with its adequate sun-rooms, has proven a great boon to the inmates. It is pronounced by outside prison authorities, who have inspected it, as the equal, if not better, than anything they have previously seen.

The new school room is also a wonderful addition to this institution. Six classes may be carried on in the building without materially interfering with one another and the entire prison population may be comfortably seated at moving picture concerts, etc.

The herd of thoroughbred Shorthorn cattle, owned by the penitentiary, is fast becoming recognized as one of the best in the eastern provinces. Animals exhibited have carried off a number of prizes. The institution also boasts of an excellent herd of thoroughbred Yorkshire pigs, one of which is said to have carried off the gold medal at Chicago exhibition.

Warden and farm instructor have been asking for some years for a new and enlarged cattle stable and piggery. These buildings should be erected as soon as the facilities for housing the inmates in the institution and the administrative staff of same have been completed.

There is no wall to the west of the penitentiary buildings. The erection of this is a necessity as no penitentiary is worthy of the name whose buildings are not enclosed by a wall. It is as essential to-day to have a wall for protection from outside interference as it is to maintain long term and refractory inmates in custody.

The esprit de corps in this institution is very marked and is a decided improvement on what prevailed in the past.

At Manitoba Penitentiary a great deal of very excellent work has been done during the past year, all making for the general improvement of the institution.

The new sewage disposal plant has been about completed, also duct leading from prison to same, also a similar duct leading from prison to warden's residence with all water, heating and sewage pipes, together with electric cables and wires contained therein.

Work on foundation for new granary has been begun.

Water pipe has been laid through solid rock from overhead tank to a central location amongst the tenement houses. This for the supply of pure water and also for fire protection.

Excavation for new kitchen basement has been prosecuted with vigour.

The entire heating, water, lighting and power systems of the penitentiary have been remodelled. Ex-Engineer Charles Baylie, who for thirty-five years was employed in the various penitentiaries, was recalled to supervise the reconstruction of this department. A wonderful improvement has resulted and the terms of the amended contract for power and light are so favourable that the cost of current at this institution has been materially reduced.

The resignation and subsequent death of Dr. J. J. McFadden, who for some years occupied the position of surgeon, are regretted by the entire penitentiary organization. He was an officer of high type, an alienist of repute, a good disciplinarian and, upon all occasions, a thorough gentleman. His going leaves a vacancy it will be very hard to fill. He brought to the medical department of the penitentiary a spirit of loyalty and an air of respectability, essentials in a really first-class penitentiary officer.

Warden Meighen has, in the few years he has been in charge of this institution, begun the creation of a herd of thoroughbred Shorthorn cattle. Some very excellent and pedigreed animals are now owned by the penitentiary.

The new horse stable contains many fine animals, several of them pedigreed Clydesdales.

A very good herd of thoroughbred Yorkshire hogs is also owned at this institution.

The barn, piggery and other old outbuildings at this institution are in a somewhat dilapidated condition. New barn and piggery should be built. Warden and farm instructor are continually pressing for these improvements, but same will have to stand until the more important work in connection with the rebuilding of the old penitentiary, so that the inmates may be safely housed and cared for, has been completed.

At British Columbia Penitentiary considerable activity has resulted in connection with the reconstruction problem during the past year.

Four hundred and fifty feet of the new wall built to entirely enclose the buildings has been constructed.

The construction of the new kitchen and church has progressed fairly well.

Great improvement has been made in the old, poorly lighted shops, most of which have now been made fire-proof.

Residence of deputy warden is nearing completion.

A very considerable amount of work has been done on the new driveway, and a large quantity of the ravine bank pulled into the bottom, thus levelling a very considerable portion of same.

Erection of the ornamental fence from warden's residence to the prison row, with beautiful ornamental posts at main driveway, has been completed and is a most creditable piece of work.

Eight hundred and thirty-two and a half cords of wood were salvaged from the Fraser river, thus materially reducing the heating bill of that institution.

It is worthy of note that, of the inmates received during the year, over 25 per cent are reported as being unfitted to perform ordinary labour and requiring immediate medical attention.

The Saskatchewan Penitentiary has, since 1913, a great working record, not only in connection with building problem, but also in connection with road construction, farming operations, drainage, etc.

The new brick wall, enclosing over 25 acres, was finished in October, 1926.

New store and entrance gateway has been completed. Prior to the erection of this stores building, the storekeeper had goods under his control housed in thirty-two different places throughout the buildings.

New double gateway in south wall has also been erected.

New cooling room plant has been installed in basement of kitchen.

Hospital conditions have been improved. The new hospital building, with its very large and commodious wards, is wonderfully well lighted and has been considerably improved in appearance during the past year.

Work has been carried on in all of the departments with vigour.

Some very artistic, and in every way satisfactory, iron gates have been made for use on the entrance to the penitentiary driveway and on entrances to penitentiary farm, workmanship of which would be difficult to improve upon.

Four hundred and seventy-five thousand bricks were made during the year.

The farm, notwithstanding an unsatisfactory season in so far as weather is concerned, has produced wonderful results, full statement of which is given in warden's report.

Work on the foundation of the new piggery has been begun.

Three hundred and thirty-six cords of wood were cut on the McBeth lot.

As an experiment, ten head of young steers were bought in the fall of 1925 and fed throughout the winter on the wild hay, extra roots and coarse grains. A close accounting of all expenditure in connection with this venture was kept. The steers were sold in the spring, showing a net profit of $173.69, or $17.40 per animal.

This institution is in a class by itself. It is, of course, all new. Every portion of the work of erection, other than the supervision of the erection of the overhead water tank and the supervision of the erection of the small steel structure in cell dome, has been performed by the inmates under the supervision of the officers. Such construction will compare most favourably with that seen at any of the provincial institutions, universities, or such like.

The Engineer's department is yet to be built. At present he is occupying a temporary boiler-house, under rather adverse conditions. Warden is urging the early erection of a new boiler-house and a new and very large barn.

The establishing of a training school for officers in which they would be properly instructed, before permitting them to assume control of inmates, is more and more considered an essential.

The reclaiming by training, educating and reforming of the hundreds of young men who yearly are admitted to the Canadian penitentiaries is surely a most worthy object. It is needless to attempt this, however, unless officers of a high type and specially trained in the knowledge of handling human beings be provided.

Example is the best teacher. There is nothing to take the place of the proper object lesson.

No real progress is possible in the reformation and treatment of the criminal until the difference between one inmate and another is realized and taken into account. This cannot be done by untrained and uneducated officers.

The dormitory system is not in use in any of the Canadian penitentiaries. The corruption that usually exists in institutions where that system is in use is, therefore, avoided. When the inmates are under the strict supervision of a trained officer they seldom do or say harmful things.

The rigid application of rules to enforce silence has been relaxed and a reasonable association of prisoners at work is permitted.

Schools, with qualified, certificated teachers in control, have proven a great boon to the penitentiaries. Many pupils have, during the past eight years, passed both the entrance and matriculation examinations; in some cases, standing high in the list of successful students in the provinces in which they wrote.

The schoolmaster is also in charge of the library and his advice and instruction regarding what the inmates should read have been of great benefit.

Punishments in penitentiaries have been materially reduced. Many inmates are now discharged who have not had any report for infraction of rules and regulations recorded against them during the term of their incarceration.

The more punishment awarded in a penitentiary, the stronger the probability the place is badly managed.

The inmates' behaviour towards the officers will largely be determined by the officers' treatment of the inmates. This is no new discovery. More considerate treatment of the inmates usually results in improved conduct. No progress can result in the treatment or reformation of inmates until the differences between one inmate and another are recognized and taken into account.

In most of the areas where penitentiaries are situate, the surgeons of the institutions have been assisted by the advice of provincial alienists. These sane and efficient officers have rendered wonderful service in many instances and on occasions have stood between the penitentiary surgeon and extremists, who consider the majority of people mentally deficient.

There is no greater menace to the public than the uncontrolled specialist. This applies, with great force, to the mental specialist. It is all very well for these gentlemen to have their own estimate or opinions about the mental and physical make-up of others, but when they proceed to compile such ideas into a science and endeavour to force them on the public as a standard, it is high time to object.

The opening of a mental disease hospital for inmates who become mentally deranged after reception at the penitentiaries is considered an urgent necessity. At the present time there are insane inmates confined in some of the penitentiaries whom the provincial authorities refuse to admit to the mental disease hospitals in their provinces and the wardens are, therefore, forced to keep such unfortunates incarcerated in the penitentiaries, where they cannot be given, in full, the kind of treatment they should have, and where they daily and nightly disturb the peace of the entire institution.

All prisoners received at the penitentiaries are accompanied by a commitment commanding the warden to receive them, maintain them in custody for the period mentioned, and keep them at hard labour. The halt, the lame, the blind, and often the imbecile, are sentenced to the penitentiaries at hard labour. It, therefore, behoves the Government to provide sufficient labour at which those sentenced may be employed. Inmates need the upbuilding influence of wholesome, constructive work. If this be not provided they speedily deteriorate, morally, mentally and physically, and at the end of their term they are again liberated, unimproved, unreformed, and the community usually suffers in consequence.

The penitentiaries have excellent shops, large and well lighted and ventilated, the necessary machinery, the power to operate same, the workmen and qualified instructors in every department; in fact, a complete organization, sufficient to make the penitentiaries self-sustaining if given the Government work they are capable of doing.

Why not permit the inmates of Canadian penitentiaries to support themselves and relieve the taxpayer to that extent?

The imprisonment for indefinite terms in separate institutions and the reclamation of the habitual offender is one of the subjects that should now be dealt with promptly and forcibly.

The habitual offender, who returns to prison time after time, should be permanently incarcerated and isolated from first offenders or those considered amenable to reformation.

Many of the prisoners now received at the penitentiaries have long criminal records, while the majority of them have served terms in jails, reformatories, prisons, etc., before "graduating" to the penitentiary.

Crimes committed are sometimes so terribly repulsive and shocking that we find it difficult to believe they are done by sane people. There is, however, no more justification for considering that one who does a mad-like act is mad than that one who does a sensible thing is wise. One's criminal acts are only to be judged in relation to their general conduct, if a proper estimate of their mental condition is to be determined.

Help and sympathy should be extended to the "first offender," excepting when the crime has been of a filthy or brutal nature. They should not be confined with case-hardened criminals and recidivists.

Sympathetic supervision after discharge should be provided. A man's conduct may be improved while in prison, but how he will behave when liberated is quite another matter. He should be guided and assisted to overcome former weaknesses and desires and helped rehabilitate himself in society. When a man has gone wrong, it may be usually assumed that there is some weakness in him that has made him unable to resist certain classes of temptation. He, therefore, for a time should be guided and assisted after his discharge.

Recommendations previously made in this connection for a supervising officer in each penitentiary area are again advanced.

The control and management of penitentiaries should be placed in the hands of those trained in the service.

The Penitentiary Act and Regulations should be drafted by these officers. During the past eight years the revision of the Penitentiary Act and Regulations has been given a great deal of study and attention and has been discussed, at length, item by item, at all of the conventions which penitentiary officers held. Thirteen wardens, twelve deputy wardens, the superintendent, three inspectors, two penitentiary engineers and the parole officer, have agreed on what, in their estimation, should be done in this connection. The first-hand knowledge gained by all these officers through long years of experience in actual contact with the inmates and institutions has eminently fitted them for this work. The average years of experience of the above-mentioned officers is over twenty years. It would appear that recommendations from such a body would be well worth considering.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. The providing of institutions for the segregation and classification of all inmates is again strongly recommended.
2. The reopening of the Criminal Mental Disease Hospital.
3. The segregation of habitual criminals.
4. The furnishing of more work for the inmates by the Government.
5. Payment of wages to well-behaved inmates for work well performed.
6. The securing of situations for inmates prior to discharge.
7. The training of officers before being permitted to take charge of inmates.
8. The empowering of those in charge of penitentiary administration with authority to administer and discipline on similar basis to that of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.
9. Change in the method of purchasing supplies. This is essential in order to attain success in the manufacture of goods in the penitentiaries.

Respectfully submitted,

W. S. HUGHES,
Superintendent.

APPENDIX A

DOMINION PAROLE OFFICER'S REPORT, 1927

R. B. Creighton, Dominion Parole Officer, reports:—

I submit herewith the customary tabulated statement giving the usual information as to the number of inmates liberated from the penitentiaries and the various provincial institutions during the year, the number whose licenses were either revoked or forfeited for cause, and the percentage they represent of the total liberations.

TABULATED STATEMENT FOR YEAR ENDED MARCH 31, 1927

Prisoners released on parole	Revocations per cent		Forfeitures per cent		Total loss per cent
Dorchester.....	74	11 or 14.86	2	or 2.70	13 or 17.56
St. Vincent de Paul.....	97	11 or 11.34	6	or 6.18	17 or 17.52
Kingston.....	85	12 or 14.11	3	or 3.52	15 or 17.64
Manitoba.....	27	4 or 14.81	4 or 14.81
Saskatchewan.....	58	3 or 5.17	2	or 3.44	5 or 8.62
British Columbia.....	38	1 or 2.63	2	or 5.26	3 or 7.89
Total, penitentiaries.....	379	42 or 11.08	15	or 3.95	57 or 15.03
Jails, reformatories, industrial farms, etc.....	442	7 or 1.58	10	or 2.26	17 or 3.84
Grand total.....	821	49 or 5.96	25	or 3.04	74 or 9.01

A reference to the table shows the total loss to be 9.01 per cent, this being 0.96 greater than for the previous year. There were liberated from the penitentiaries 379, an increase of 77 as compared with the preceding year and from various provincial institutions 442, an increase of 36. The discrepancy between the number of revocations and forfeitures in the penitentiaries as compared with the other institutions is accounted for by the fact that those liberated from the latter have a much shorter period during which they are compelled to report.

The supervision of men on parole continues under the direction of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and to that body is assigned the duty of seeing that the conditions of parole are complied with. The following statement prepared by them indicates the movement of the system from 1899 until March 31, 1927:—

Released on parole from penitentiaries.....	8,930
Released on parole from prisons, jails and reformatories.....	10,295
	<hr/>	19,225
Licenses revoked.....	670
Licenses forfeited.....	491
Sentences completed on parole.....	17,432
Sentences not yet completed.....	632

A reference to the table shows the total number of releases from penitentiaries to be 8,930 and from the other institutions 10,295, making a total of 19,225. Of this number 17,432 have satisfied the conditions of parole. Paroles forfeited and revoked number 1,161, or practically six per cent. On March 31 last there were 632 still reporting.

I have again to thank the Salvation Army for the practical interest they take in the parole work. They have shown the same disposition during the past year to assist in every way possible that has always been characteristic of them. The police and sheriffs also have continued to willingly and promptly furnish us with any information at their disposal bearing on the previous record of applicants for parole.

I have made my usual visits to the penitentiaries during the year and interviewed such of the inmates as expressed a desire to see me. Notes were taken of the salient points which they wished to bring out in their cases. During my visits the same courteous treatment was extended to me by the wardens and other officers as I have always experienced in my dealings with them.

APPENDIX B—WARDENS' REPORTS

KINGSTON

J. C. Ponsford, Warden, reports:—

	Male	Female	Total
Inmates remaining at midnight, March 31, 1926.....	668	34	702
Inmates remaining at midnight, March 31, 1927.....	681	39	720

From this, it will be seen that there was an increase of 13 in the male and increase of 5 in the female population, making a net gain of 18.

The admissions during the year were:—

Male.....	305
Female.....	17
Total.....	322

Inmates released during the year were as follows:—

	Male	Female	Total
Expiration of sentence.....	181	4	185
Parole.....	78	6	84
Deportation.....	22	1	23
Escape from hospital while on temporary ticket-of-leave..	1	-	1
Death whilst on temporary ticket-of-leave.....	1	-	1
Returned to provincial authorities under section 53 of the Penitentiary Act.....	1	-	1
Pardon.....	5	1	6
Order of the court.....	2	-	2
Transfer.....	1	-	1
	292	12	304
Net increase.....			18

There are at present eleven insane inmates confined in the Psychiatric Ward of the Ontario Reformatory, nine of whom were sentenced to life imprisonment.

Inmate Thomas Bryans, H-367, was returned here on March 11, 1927, after having been recaptured in Chicago, Ill. Bryans' recapture was the last of the five who escaped from this institution on September 10, 1923, and his return accounts for them all.

Of the 720 inmates, 554 are under the age of 40 years and 116 between 40 and 50 years.

The hospital has taken care of all cases that came to hand and the health of the inmates in general has been exceptionally good.

It is with the deepest regret that I have to report the murder of one of my most faithful officers, Guard M. E. Jenkin, who was brutally murdered on the penitentiary reserve by inmate Thomas McCoskey, K-994. Mr. Jenkin only lived a few minutes after he was attacked by McCoskey with a crowbar from behind. McCoskey was tried and convicted of "murder," being sentenced to be hanged. He was granted a new trial, at which the verdict of the first trial was confirmed, and he was again sentenced to the punishment which his heinous crime warranted. He was hanged on April 21, 1927.

The Engineer's Department has been well and profitably employed throughout the year. A new steam line was placed from the boiler-room to the cell dome. A new heating system was installed in the old boiler-house. A new hydrant was installed near the kitchen.

All old piping in warden's residence was replaced with brass piping. New bath-room was also installed.

Considerable plumbing has been done at the new female prison in preparation for the time when work can be proceeded with under cover.

The reconstruction of the new blacksmith and carpenter shops is practically completed and they will be occupied this fall. These two new shops will contain the most modern and up-to-date machinery required in such departments, with plenty of light and ventilation. They are about the last word in efficiency in workshop construction.

The dome for the main building of wing and cells has been vastly improved by putting all new glass in roof and renewing supports. The whole interior of the dome has been repainted, and by the installation of the glass a great improvement has been made in the light. This work entailed a tremendous amount of scaffolding being erected from the floor to a height of 125 feet.

The new duct from new female prison to boiler-house, a distance of 2,280 feet, will be well on the way to completion this year, if not fully completed. This duct is built of concrete and is 6 feet 6 inches by 5 feet inside measurements, and over two-thirds of the way, it will be necessary to blast through 14 to 16 feet of hard limestone rock, which has made rapid progress difficult.

Good progress is being made on the new female prison mason work. It is expected the roof will be on at the closing of the building season for 1928.

The cells are being removed from the old asylum building, which when remodelled will add materially to our shop accommodation, which is badly needed.

The tin and paint, also printing departments, have been kept busy with institutional work, as well as printing for other institutions.

The stone quarry during the present and past years has been able to quarry quite sufficient stone to keep the stonecutting department busy. There are now 71 inmates cutting stone for the new female ward and other institutional purposes.

The literary aspect of the institution has not been overlooked in any way, as 156,000 issues of books have been made to the inmates during the year just closed. Nine inmates were successful in obtaining their entrance certificates and six their partial matriculation examinations. The work of the school-teacher and librarian has been outstanding.

Canvas working department has been very busy and shows a revenue of $62,665.27.

The tailor shop produced a revenue of $2,607.77.

The shoe department did exceptionally well with $14,243.91, and the broom department shows $1,206.56.

The change room and laundry has been a hive of activity looking after the welfare of all the inmates.

The female department has, as usual, maintained its high standard of efficiency, and it is in no small measure due to the tact and careful handling by the matron and her assistants of the inmates. The discipline and cleanliness of this department are of the highest order and it is the admiration of all who have visited it during the year. This department has produced a revenue of $1,927.19. I am of the opinion this department could increase its revenue to a large extent if suitable work was obtained from other Government departments.

The spiritual welfare of the inmates has been well and carefully looked after by the two chaplains, who have been very attentive in the discharge of their duties.

The farm has produced a total of 3,490 bushels of grain, as well as a large amount of hay and vegetables.

In conclusion, I wish to express my highest appreciation for the splendid manner in which I was supported by my officers during the year just closed. I also desire to tender my sincere thanks to the superintendent and members of the Penitentiary Branch for their co-operation and assistance.

8. Engineer.
9. Chief Trade Instructor.

On March 31, 1927, the population of the penitentiary was 275 inmates, a decrease in strength over previous year, of 17.

We received during the year 125 inmates, and discharged 142, as follows:—

By expiry of sentence.....	60
“ parole.....	73
“ deportation.....	4
“ transfer to other penitentiary.....	3
“ death.....	2
Total.....	142

Work done in the various departments during the year is as follows:—

Blacksmith.—Suspended ceiling iron work was erected in new church, and steel barriers made for windows of new kitchen and basement; also for new ducts.

Three sets of double long sleds were ironed.

All necessary repairs to farm implements were cared for and considerable horseshoeing done.

Making and repairing, chisels, drills, etc., for mason and stonecutting departments; also general repairs in prison shops, as well as steel and iron work on custom orders.

Carpenter.—Inside finishing was completed on the house occupied by the chief trade instructor, and also in connection with warden's new house and the two garages for warden and deputy.

Sashes, doors, casings (door and window) for the new church and kitchen have been made and erected; also inside finishing made and placed for new kitchen; strapping of all walls of east wing for plastering. Manufacture of doors, casings, windows, etc., has been going on for the proposed new officers' houses.

New flooring has been placed in horse barn, and general repairs carried out here and at stock barn. The latter was completely painted on the outside. This had not been done for many years and the renovation is a decided improvement. Cow barn also received extensive repairs—reshingling, etc.

Change room has been repainted and all bath equipment enamelled.

Engine and boiler rooms repainted, and general painting throughout the prison.

Several horse sleds were made for the farm; also considerable repairs done to carts, etc., belonging to that department.

Posts have been turned and painted for farm fencing.

Officers' tenements were kept in repair, and necessary repairs were carried out in connection with the prison generally.

Custom work, chiefly for officers, has been carried on, such as making of furniture and repairing of same.

Chapel (Roman Catholic).—Services have been held regularly during the year, and religious instructions given at each mass. Sacrament of confirmation was administered to nineteen inmates on September 18 last by His Lordship Bishop LeBlanc, following special instructions.

A ten days' mission was held September 16-26. Sermons were given by four different preachers, and at the close of the mission nearly all Roman Catholic inmates received the sacrament.

Our chaplain, Rev. F. A. Bourgeois, is much in favour of annual missions, and in addition one or two short missions. I would refer you to the suggestions contained in his report for consideration.

Discipline has been good.

Chapel (Protestant).—Interest in the church services continues strong, and the inmates have been well behaved during the year.

A seven days' mission was held in September last, and the main addresses were given by the Rev. J. S. Bonnell, B.A., B.D., of St. John, N.B., on the "Life of Jesus", and other ministers assisting.

Reverend Tom Sykes, of Yorkshire, England, who is well known for his work among the miners and labouring classes in England, gave the inmates a special service at the noon hour on August 25, 1926, which was much appreciated by them; also was the solo singing of Mr. H. E. Greenlaw, baritone.

Confirmation class was formed, consisting of nine inmates, who were adherents of the Anglican church, and who are now being prepared for confirmation. Six Anglican inmates were baptized, Reverend H. E. S. Keeley administering the rites of baptism.

Bible class was held each week with good attendance.

Our chaplain, Rev. C. K. Hudson, is strongly in favour of annual missions, and makes special reference in his report to this matter.

The Salvation Army officers visited the institution each month during the year. Their presence and strong addresses and singing were much appreciated by the men.

Engineering.—Plumbing and heating of warden's new house, and new garages for warden and deputy have been completed; also electric wiring therein and fixtures installed.

New vacuum system was erected in boiler-room. Installed high and low pressure steam, and hot and cold water return pipes through boiler-room to new kitchen, old kitchen, south wing and hospital. Also made and installed new sink and steam table in new kitchen. Completed all radiation in new kitchen, basement and chapel floor, chancel excepted.

New vertical engine was erected in change room, and rebuilt and installed a finishing machine in shoe shop.

Necessary repairs to plumbing in prison were carried out. This has also been done on reserve.

All main sewers have been flushed and sewage tanks and filter beds have been cleaned out and regravelled.

The tinsmiths have been kept busy in looking after the repairs and making of utensils for prison use, which included flush tanks, flue pipes, large ventilators (for east wing roof), etc.

Iron work has been manufactured consisting of one large steam table, one steam bread table, one large 1,900-gallon iron tank, etc.

Also considerable acetylene welding and cutting has been done.

Electric plant and pumping station was operated efficiently throughout the year.

The fire brigade which was organized last year was called upon on two occasions during the year and proved very efficient.

Farm.—Seeding was delayed on account of the heavy snow fall which remained until nearly the end of May.

Hay and grain crops were average. Potatoes and other vegetables except turnips were below average. Potatoes, however, were the biggest failure, principally owing to the failure of the seed to germinate, and the "British Queen" variety (a great success previously) was a complete failure. About the 9th of July, "Irish Cobblers" were replanted, and while we had a fair crop, unfortunately a quantity did not seem to be matured, and consequently could not be considered a first-class table potato.

Our piggery was successful. Litters averaged well and there was a brisk demand for young pigs. If the demand continues each year we will require an extension to our present piggery.

Our herd of dual purpose Shorthorns is in splendid condition. Have been very successful in breeding, and the young cattle are doing well. Sold nine young bulls to different agricultural societies in the Maritimes, and I feel sure all purchasers were well satisfied.

An up-to-date cow barn is badly needed, and should be considered at the first opportunity, as present accommodation is hardly in keeping with the quality of our herd.

Horses are in good condition, but some are getting old and will have to be replaced shortly.

Hospital.—I regret to report that two deaths occurred during the year; one from pulmonary tuberculosis and the other from chronic heart disease.

The general health of the inmates has been good, and only one serious accident occurred, namely, a compound fracture of tibia of left leg. There were no serious surgical operations.

Owing to insanity two inmates were transferred to Mental Disease hospitals.

Surgeon reports general sanitation of prison and workshops as good.

Water supply has been tested from time to time.

Wasserman blood tests have been made of all inmates received and show 9 per cent to have been infected with syphilis.

Library.—Inmates take a great deal of interest in so far as reading fiction is concerned, and we are doing our best to gratify their desires in this respect, at the same time endeavouring to educate them to the study of books tending to have an elevating influence. This is particularly so with the young inmates, but so far our efforts in this direction have not been very successful. Technical books are much in demand, and assist particularly the inmates employed in Trade Shops. Magazines and periodicals are also extensively used.

Mason.—Remodelling of the East Wing cell block has been carried on, and all terrazzo floors have been laid and polished, and plastering completed on ground floor (new kitchen and basement). Plastering is well advanced in new church. New bake oven was built and window openings on ground floor were all enlarged.

All stonework, etc., in connection with the warden's new house, warden's and deputy warden's garages was completed.

Cement tile was manufactured for use on the farm.

We installed and operated recently one brick-making machine, which is working very efficiently, and the bricks will be used for the officers' new houses.

Stone crusher was kept busy during the year keeping the concrete work going with broken stone.

Considerable repairs have been done to boiler-room.

New isolation cells were built in the North Wing to replace those demolished in the remodelling of the prison dome, which has been prosecuted vigorously, with the result that all new ducts are about completed, and work on the new dome floor will be started soon.

During the year we have constructed many new concrete ducts, which have entailed considerable time and labour.

Motor.—The three Chevrolet trucks, with light dumping bodies, have done excellent work, and they are a decided acquisition to the institution. They have been kept busy hauling coal, sand, etc., from the prison siding; gravel from the quarry, and also a large quantity of earth for grading purposes.

School.—Teacher reports that everything possible has been done to promote the welfare of the inmates attending school.

Of those liberated during the year, ninety-one attended school, and a large percentage went out apparently well satisfied with the progress made in school, and expressed their appreciation of the opportunity to acquire knowledge that would be advantageous to them hereafter. It is noted that nearly all those who are unfortunate enough to come back for a second term ask to be taken in school.

During the year we had an average monthly enrollment of 87.1, and all who attended school did so willingly.

The discipline in school has been excellent.

Shoe Shop.—Considerable work has been done in this department, chiefly in the making of uniform shoes, prison shoes, inmates' discharge shoes, slippers and moccasins.

New work and repairs for the different shops, and general custom work have been carried on.

Would again ask that some small Government contracts be given this department, which I feel sure would be satisfactorily completed.

Tailor Shop.—Over 12,000 mail bags were repaired during the year. In addition to this, the work chiefly done is in connection with the manufacture of clothing, etc., for prison use, such as uniforms for officers and prisoners, and discharge clothing for the latter. This work is nearly all done by the juvenile inmates, who are kept in the tailoring department so as to keep them separated from the older criminal. As many of these young boys are sent here as incorrigibles, segregation of this kind is necessary. Am pleased to say, however, that many of them on discharge have made good and their employers report them as good tailors.

General Remarks.—Would suggest that permission be given for all illiterate inmates to attend school at least three times a week during the winter afternoons, in addition to the usual school hour. We have many of this type attending school, and in my opinion the one hour a day is not sufficient to get an inmate out of this rut if he is undergoing a short term. This would not interfere with the general work routine, which is somewhat quiet during the winter.

Am also of the opinion that a week's mission for both Protestant and Roman Catholic inmates should be held each year. Our last missions, as far as I can ascertain, were successful, and even though we secure the reformation of only a small percentage it is fully worth while.

I believe that the influence of both missions held this year will follow many of the inmates through life, and feel sure that the good work of our chaplains will bear fruit hereafter.

I appreciate very much the kindness of the Rev. Father Cloran of St. John, N.B., and others who also assisted him. Also the Protestant missionary, Reverend J. S. Bonnell, B.A., B.D., of St. John, and other ministers who so kindly gave their services.

My librarian in his report has suggested a Central Censor Board, to select literature for penitentiary libraries. This might be worth considering, but the difficulty is to educate these men to participate in the study of better books. We already have much high class reading material in our Library, but so far there is little demand for same.

Our school results have been satisfactory, and practically all the inmates who attend school have made excellent progress. Many of them were illiterate when received and were over thirty years of age.

Moving picture entertainments and concerts have been given on each statutory holiday. Same have brought sunshine and cheer to many a poor prisoner. These entertainments are much appreciated by the men, and in my opinion are helpful to discipline and are often the means of killing a "grouch."

Our good friends the Salvation Army, chiefly through Staff-Captain Ursaki, St. John, and George H. Cochrane, Moncton, N.B., have been very kind in helping me to find employment for inmates on discharge, and, in spite of the dull times, we have experienced great success in locating work for nearly all men released on parole or expiration of sentence.

It is essential that every man should have employment awaiting him on discharge, otherwise the opportunity of making good is remote.

I wish to thank the officers of my staff, who have loyally supported me during the year, and also the Superintendent of Penitentiaries and his staff for their kind assistance and treatment given me at all times.

MANITOBA

W. Meighen, Warden, reports:—

I have the honour to submit herewith, my annual report of Manitoba Penitentiary, for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1927, together with the following reports:—

1. Statistical reports.
2. Surgeon's report.
3. Farm report.
4. Chief Trade Instructor's report.
5. School-teacher's report and Librarian's report.
6. Roman Catholic Chaplain's report.
7. Protestant Chaplain's report.

The number of inmates in custody at the close of the fiscal year was 316; the average daily population was 309.89, 3 of these being detained in asylums at our expense. Of this number 189 were of British descent and 127 of foreign extraction. One hundred and fifty were serving sentences running from 2 to 5 years; 152 from 5 to 25 years, and 14 serving life sentences. Seventy-one were abstainers, 135 temperate and 110 intemperate. Two hundred and seventy-eight could read and write; 33 could neither read nor write; 3 could read only, and 2 write only. No female prisoners were received during the year.

One man tried to escape, but was observed by an officer and he was recaptured almost immediately.

There was one death during the year, due to phthisis.

Farm Operations, for the year were fairly successful. We had 567 acres under cultivation. Wheat, oats, barley and potatoes yielded well, but the hay crop was poor. The small garden vegetables did well. We had all our wheat milled at a near-by grist mill for our own use. During the early fall of 1926 we had rainy weather set in, which made it difficult to get all our crops off in good condition, and more difficult to get all our fall ploughing done. Winter set in early, which was long and severe, making it hard to winter cattle through in good condition. We purchased six pure-bred shorthorn heifers and one shorthorn bull, as a foundation for a herd of pure-bred shorthorn cattle. These were specially selected and are excellent animals. Three of the heifers have freshened and one is due to freshen in a few weeks. In the course of two or three years we should have one of the best herds of pure-bred shorthorn cattle in Manitoba.

We have a stock of good horses at present, amongst which are seven good registered Clydesdale mares, and as good quality horses are steadily rising in value and are very difficult to purchase at any price, I would recommend that we be permitted to breed three or four of these mares, breeding to a good sire. I feel confident it would pay us well.

Our hogs did very well during the summer months, but we need a new piggery very badly. The old shed which we have to use is cold and damp, and I believe insanitary; as a result quite a number of young pigs, during the winter months, died or got crippled with rheumatism. A new modern sanitary piggery is urgently required for this institution, as well as a new cattle barn.

Reconstruction Work.—Our main effort during the year was directed to the erection of the new sewage disposal plant, the foundation for which had to be blasted out of solid rock to a depth of nearly 30 feet. The trench through which the sewage will be passed to the plant from the institution had to be blasted out in places as well, but we succeeded in getting the plant up, pipe laid, cover put over the plant, and in a very short time, the plant will be ready to use.

We also completed the duct leading to the residence occupied by the warden, and the steam pipe laid therein from the boiler-room, as well as the water pipe, which provides fire protection within a short distance, also domestic water supply.

Some excavating was done for the foundation of the new granary, which will be completed this year.

We also excavated through rock, for a 4-inch water pipe leading from the high water tower to the middle of the reserve to provide both fire protection and domestic water supply for the tenements on the Reserve.

During the winter we crushed a large quantity of stone which we excavated in the yard of the prison, where the new kitchen and extension to the North Wing is to be built; and we hauled hundreds of loads of stone and debris, building up the road-way leading from the Canadian Pacific Railway station to the institution.

We have also made a large number of concrete posts and 18-inch tiles, the latter to be used for the outflow from the sewage plant, and the posts will be used in erecting a boundary fence around the farm. When this is done, I am sure it will add greatly to the appearance of the reserve.

We hope to make a start on the new kitchen this year, as the excavating is practically completed, and when the foundation plans are received, we will be able to go ahead.

As the electric system that has been in use here up to the present is of the single-phase system, we were in the uncertain position of not knowing what date the Electric Company from whom we purchase our electricity would order us to change to a more modern system, and as our whole plant required remodelling, I asked for the services of a special engineer, and, on his advice, it was decided to change from single-phase to three-phase system. At some additional cost this year, it will mean economy in the long run. As there has been some delay in the shipment of part of the equipment the change has not actually taken place yet, but will within a month or six weeks.

The usual amount of necessary repairs had to be done to the tenements occupied by our officers, and it is hoped it will not be long before a start can be made on the erection of more suitable tenements where water and bath room accommodation can be installed.

I regret to have to report that during the month of June, 1926, a very splendid officer, Guard J. Williams, was accidentally killed whilst in the performance of his duties by the unexpected explosion of a charge of powder while excavating at the new sewage disposal plant. All the officers, and I believe all the inmates liked Mr. Williams very much, as he attended to his work faithfully, and always was good-natured with his brother officers.

I also regret very much that our surgeon, Dr. J. J. McFadden, found it necessary to resign owing to serious illness, his resignation taking effect March 31, 1927. Dr. McFadden was an excellent type of officer. He knew his work thoroughly, knew his duty and he did it. I hope whoever his successor will be, that he will be as painstaking in the discharge of his duties and as loyal and faithful to the institution as was Dr. McFadden.

Both chaplains held services regularly and both have been very faithful in the discharge of their duties. The Salvation Army of Winnipeg have rendered excellent services in looking after discharged inmates; in many cases they have secured work for men going out and during the summer months a small party frequently visited the institution during the week and provided music and singing for the enjoyment of the inmates.

The officers generally have done their duties to the best of their ability and mostly very efficiently.

In closing I wish to thank you and your staff in Ottawa for the many courtesies extended to me and the officers working under me during the past year.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

H. W. Cooper, Warden, reports:—

I have the honour to tender the annual report of the British Columbia Penitentiary for the year ended March 31, 1927.

The population showed a decrease of 14 during the year.

It is interesting to note that, of the 97 newcomers received during the year, 25 were, at the time of reception, unfitted to perform ordinary labour or required medical attention.

I am happy to be again able to report that there have been no escapes during the past year.

Considerable progress has been made with the rebuilding of the institution. Approximately 450 feet of wall was completed and the excavation for the temporary brick wall between the northwest tower and the new wall is in hand.

The concrete work of the new kitchen and chapel has been completed, the roof erected, and the plastering of the walls has made considerable progress. Refrigerating machinery has been installed and is in operation.

The new house of the deputy warden has been brought to such a stage that the roof has been placed.

From the cut of the new driveway approximately 6,000 yards of earth have been removed and disposed of.

A retaining wall has been built on the south side of the side entrance of the accountant's house and a cut-stone wall on Columbia street in front of this residence has been erected. The ornamental iron fence is now being put into place.

During the year considerable repairs and renewals have been made on the roofs of the North and East Wings and the Central Hall.

Fuel to the extent of 832½ cords has been salvaged from the river.

The work has been handicapped by the difficulty of retaining good tradesmen in the service as instructors owing to the scale of pay.

It is difficult to over-emphasize the value of the education, both spiritual and secular, afforded the inmates. It frequently happens that a keen student in the school is also a member of the Bible Class. The results of this work are not apparent until the man has returned to civil life, but are most encouraging. The most outstanding case during the year has been that of a man who entered the institution at the age of 43, and whose previous criminal record extended over thirteen years, for the larger portion of which time he had been a drug addict. A single man, he was without the family and social moorings which are usually of value in rehabilitation. After the narcotics were worked out of his system he joined the school, and also the Bible Class. Upon his release, Instructor Raeburn, a valuable officer of high moral standing, secured employment for this man. I am informed that the ex-inmate continues to hold this position, is living in a respectable manner, and has given no indication of reverting to drug addiction.

The past year has again emphasized the desirability of the appointment of a parole officer, to undertake the supervision of those inmates who need a period of guidance before assuming in full the responsibilities of ordinary life.

I would again stress the need of legislation to enable us to deal more effectively with recidivists and habitual criminals. The task of bringing back to normal standards youths, or men who have slipped through weakness, is greatly aggravated by the presence of those inmates who have deliberately adopted lives of crime, and who repeatedly decline to avail themselves of the facilities afforded for self-betterment. This type is usually composed of "floaters" who have cut themselves adrift from the ties of normal living. With a dry, warm place to sleep, and sufficient food, they are content. Upon the expiration of their sentence the penitentiary warden must release them, knowing full well it will only be a short time before they are again incarcerated for preying upon their fellow citizens. Misfortune may bring a man into the penitentiary once; unusual circumstances may perhaps cause him to return again, but surely, upon the individual who enters for a third term must rest the onus of proving his fitness before he is returned to ordinary life. To deal with this class of man, I would reiterate my recommendation for a central institution where these men may receive the special treatment necessary, and so permit the ordinary penitentiary to intensify its efforts for the rebuilding of character.

The Salvation Army continues to be the friend of the prisoner. Special recognition is due to the Rev. A. H. Sovereign, of St. Mark's Church, Vancouver, for his helpful co-operation. The Vancouver Kiwanis and Gyros have maintained their interest with beneficial results, and the A.O.T.S. Club of the United Church of Canada has demonstrated its willingness to help the ex-prisoner upon release.

SASKATCHEWAN

W. J. Macleod, Warden, reports:—

I beg to enclose all reports for fiscal year ended March 31, 1927.

Construction Work.—We started outside work on new wall on April 23 and completed brick work on October 25. This means that during the past four building seasons we built 4,226 feet of wall, four towers and two gates, also new store 100 feet long by 40 feet wide at east gate. During the winter months good progress was made with interior work at store. The two large oak-panelled gates, in angle iron frame, were made and hung at east gate. The duct from store to East Wing was built. The two large lift gates with operating machinery are in place at south gate and are working satisfactorily. Angle irons have been put on cell gate jambs on "B" side of East Wing and also on the third and fourth galleries on "D" side. Two cold storage rooms have been built in basement of kitchen and cooling room plant installed.

Carpenter Shop.—The carpenters' department has been kept very busy making forms for concrete work and also windows and doors for new store. We also made a number of grub boxes and pump carrier crates and also crates for carrying gasoline cans for the Interior Department.

Blacksmith Shop.—The blacksmith has been busy making window and door barriers for new store and east gate and is now making the large cage barrier for yard side of east gate. Large iron gates were made and hung on concrete posts for entrance to different parts of the farm. This department turned out some excellent iron work during the past year.

Brick Yard.—We made 475,000 bricks during the summer.

Tailor and Shoe Shops.—The tailor and shoe shops were kept very busy with the usual work. Sets and parts of harness were made in the shoe shop for the penitentiaries at Stony Mountain and Kingston and for the National Parks Branch.

All work under our chief trade instructor, Mr. Darby, has been well looked after.

Engineer's Department.—The main service wires for new store and all wiring on ground floor have been installed. Temporary power lines were connected up for electric hoist, concrete mixer, threshing machine and wood-sawing machine. A nine-inch sewer was laid connecting east gate and store with main sewer line. A water line and steam pipes were carried from East Wing through new duct to store and East Gate. Permanent radiators for heating purposes have been put up in new store and also in southwest and southeast towers. Railings on all towers have been completed. Elevator in new store has been put in place and is working satisfactorily. Suction pipes leading from pump house to wells Nos. 1 and 2, have been taken up and cleaned and painted.

Our engineer, Mr. Malcolmson, has carefully looked after all the work in his department during the past year.

Farm Department.—Notwithstanding bad weather and a dry season, our farmers, Mr. Anderson and Mr. Rogers, show a profit of $5,034.48. We had 632½ acres under crop and 74 acres under summer-fallow and broke 15 acres. The following was grown on farm this year:—

Wheat (Marquis).....	2,716 bush.	Wheat (Garnet).....	66 bush.
Oats.....	1,632 "	Barley.....	1,431 "
Flax.....	50 "	Potatoes.....	5,038 "

Carrots (White).....	145 "	Carrots (Red).....	290 "
Turnips.....	514 "	Beets.....	336 "
Onions (Red).....	40 "	Onions (White).....	48 "
Parsnips.....	234 "	Cabbage.....	15,145 lbs.
Corn.....	2,005 lbs.	Cauliflower.....	2,070 "
Rhubarb.....	820 "	Radish.....	300 "
Lettuce.....	390 "	Beans.....	885 "
Cucumbers.....	35 "	Wild hay.....	107 loads
Cultivated hay.....	143 loads	Green feed.....	6 tons

During the Winter months gravel was hauled from our pits across the river for the mason's department and also for building up roads. Two hundred and thirty-six cords of wood were cut, and sawed. Ten head of steers were purchased last fall and were fattened and sold at a profit of $173.69.

Garage.—Splendid work was done during the year by our trucks and this department shows a profit of $1,274.93. Mr. Rowley, our motor mechanic, kept all cars and trucks in first-class condition. They were kept busy hauling gravel, coal and other material, also hauling cement to mason and numerous other jobs around the institution.

Hospital.—The surgeon reports that the general health of the inmates has been good, with the exception of a mild epidemic of influenza, when about sixty cases were treated in the hospital. We had two deaths during the year, one a case of suicide, a full report of which was sent you. Wasserman tests were taken of all newcomers and all those found to be suffering from syphilis were placed under treatment. Repeated blood tests show that those undergoing treatment are making good progress.

Chapels.—The chaplains report good progress in their work among our inmates. Both chaplains are very attentive to their duties and I consider that they are using every effort to have the inmates under their charge lead better lives.

School.—The school-teacher still continues to do excellent work. During the year 24 inmates who could not read or write were started in the Primary Class. One of these is now in grade 4; seven are in grade 3; six are in grade 2; eight are in grade 1 and two have been released. Three men wrote on grade 8 examination last year and two passed, one with honours. The third inmate failed by only four points.

Library.—Two hundred and fifty-three new books were added to our library during the year. Mechanical books are in great demand. Our library is well patronized.

General.—We are badly in want of a new boiler-house and I hope we will be able to start work on this building next year.

I wish to thank officers of the staff who have supported me in the administration of affairs of this institution during the past year and I wish to thank you and your staff of inspectors for your assistance and courteous treatment given me at all times.

HEADQUARTERS,
OTTAWA, ONT., 1927.

The Honourable the Minister in Control of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Ottawa.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit herewith the Annual Report of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police for the year ended September 30, 1927.

During the period under review the two features most worthy of notice have been the continued increase in the personnel employed in Arctic and sub-Arctic regions, accompanied by an increase in the complexity of the duties to be discharged there, and the steady and all-round increase in the work performed in the settled portions of the country.

STRENGTH AND DISTRIBUTION OF THE FORCE

On September 30 the strength of the force was 52 officers, 855 non-commissioned officers and constables, and 97 special constables, or 1,004 all ranks; omitting the special constables—persons temporarily employed for particular duties, such as interpreters, dog-drivers, canoemen, stokers, etc.—the strength of the force proper was 907. On the corresponding date in 1926 the strength was 53 officers, 823 non-commissioned officers and constables, and 87 special constables, or 963 all ranks; or, omitting special constables, 876. The total increase thus has been 41, and that of the force proper, 31. The increase amounts to 3½ per cent.

Excluding special constables, the accessions to the strength in the twelve-month period numbered 126; of these four were former members of the force who re-engaged, leaving the number of recruits 122. The number of applicants was 2,165.

The following shows the distribution in the several provinces and territories on September 30, 1927:—

	Commissioner	Asst. Commissioners	Superintendents	Inspectors	Surgeon	Veterinary Surgeon	Staff-Sergeants	Sergeants	Corporals	Constables	Special Constables	Total	Saddle Horses	Team	Total	Dogs

ROYAL CANADIAN MOUNTED POLICE

It will be observed that the decrease in strength, to which I have drawn attention in former reports, has been arrested, and that there has been a slight increase. Since the reorganization of the force in 1920 the strength in successive years has been:—

Year	Officers	N.C.O. and Constables and Special Constables	Total Personnel	Personnel Excluding Special Constables	Horses
1920.....	73	1,598	1,671	1,532	942
1921.....	70	1,610	1,680	1,555	795
1922.....	64	1,163	1,227	1,145	656
1923.....	58	1,090	1,148	1,068	543
1924.....	58	962	1,020	941	433
1925.....	53	924	977	895	360
1926.....	53	910	963	876	314
1927.....	52	952	1,004	907	248

The distribution into posts and detachments on September 30, 1927, was:—

	Divisional Posts	Detachments
Maritime Provinces.....	1	1
Quebec.....	1	4
Ontario.....	2	12
Manitoba.....	1	12
Saskatchewan.....	(1 depot) 2	20
Alberta.....	2	22
British Columbia.....	1	11
Yukon Territory.....	1	10
Northwest Territories.....		16
Baffin Island.....		3
Ellesmere Island.....		1

Here again there has been a turn, the detachments showing a tendency to increase. In 1922 these numbered 122, but they then were rapidly reduced, to 106 in 1925; in 1926 they went up to 112, this year there is one more, and, while detachments here and there may occasionally be closed, the prospects are for a steady increase in the North.

The alterations of strength in personnel in the several districts have been:—

	1920	1921	1922	1923	1924	1925	1926	1927
Maritime Provinces.....	25	32	33	32	31	30	30	36
Quebec.....	8	23	31	27	24	23	31	30
Eastern Ontario.....	395	442	325	343	339	341	334	349

The foregoing are territorial subdivisions arranged for convenience of administration. Southern Alberta includes the eastern Kootenay district, Manitoba a part of western Ontario, and eastern Ontario a part of western Ontario; while the western Arctic region is administered by northern Alberta, part of Hudson Bay by northern Saskatchewan, and the eastern Arctic by Headquarters, which are situated in eastern Ontario.

The increase in numbers is satisfactory, but the volume of work has increased with it—indeed, a little faster, for while the total strength increased by 3½ per cent the work performed increased by 4 per cent, and stands within a very few of 30,000 cases, or 33 cases per man of our net strength—a slight increase over last year; and more than double the proportion in 1923. Moreover, the deductions from my disposable strength also have increased, and the number of men available for the typical work of the force actually is smaller than in 1926. Of our 907 net strength, 261 are immobilized by permanent guards and protection to public buildings, as against 225 last year, while our northern service accounts for 77, as against 70 last year, so that I can call upon 569, as against 580 last year, to cope with the work which is steadily growing. And it must further be observed that from this 569 must be deducted recruits and the necessary training establishment, while there also is the need for supervisory and clerical work. A special characteristic of this force is the general control exercised, alike by the officers commanding districts over their detachments and by headquarters over the districts, and this is impossible without numerous reports and returns and the accompanying checking and direction; the volume of correspondence centering in Ottawa is about one thousand letters a day, and a large proportion of these are not formal matters of routine, but communications which require individual consideration and action; so that the need for a deduction for staff and clerical work is clear.

After allowing for the foregoing, there is also to consider the need for a reserve of strength, upon which I have laid stress before. To some extent our work fluctuates, special duties, such as the escorting of harvesters' trains and the supervision of race-tracks, presenting themselves in one season and disappearing in another, and this makes elasticity not only desirable but necessary. Discipline, again, becomes increasingly difficult when the numbers are low; for changes of work and situation become complicated problems, and if a man in a particular post is unsatisfactory the officer commanding may be faced with the dilemma of either dismissing a man who with judicious handling may improve, or keeping him on and seeing him deteriorate. And finally, there always is the possibility of a serious emergency making an unforeseen call upon us.

Another and very serious consideration is the block in promotion which is a consequence of our reduced numbers. This is not a condition favourable to contentment; and I have in earlier reports remarked that the exceptional pressure of work, with its frequent trepass upon proper hours of rest, let alone of leisure, calls for a high level of good-will and cheerful devotion to duty. I should add that in respect of these qualities the members of the force have merited high praise during the year. I may remark further that it is desirable, owing to the diversity of duties and the increase in our northern work, to have a proportion of young, well-educated, unmarried commissioned officers.

VOLUME OF WORK

The total number of cases handled by the force in the period under review is 29,955, falling into the following categories:—

Federal Statutes.....	4,242
Criminal Code.....	721
Provincial Statutes and Dominion Parks Regulations.....	494
Investigations, etc. for other departments.....	24,498

Full particulars are given in appendix B. In 1926 the number was 28,806, so that the increase is 1,149. This was achieved in the field described generally and somewhat comprehensively as investigations for other departments, the figures standing at 23,280 in 1926 and 24,498 in 1927.

During the twelve-month period certain changes have been made in our methods of computation of what are termed "cases" which work in the direction of strictness. In reality our work has increased rather more than 4 per cent, and the foregoing statement does not take into account a certain number of acts which can hardly be described as individual "cases", and which yet in the aggregate at the very least demand time and attention. For example, in the period under review some eight or nine thousand tourists entered the Yukon, each one being scrutinized by our men in their capacity as assisting the immigration service; I have declined to regard these as so many "cases", and yet in the aggregate this duty entails a considerable amount of work, which finds no place in the foregoing figures. Again, the officer commanding in southern Saskatchewan has drawn attention to, but has excluded from his returns, the work done by a non-commissioned officer stationed on the international boundary line, who, as sub-collector of customs, has issued more than two thousand permits for motor-cars. It follows that, computing our returns under a more exacting system, and omitting certain peculiar classes of work which demand a modicum of labour, I nevertheless must report that the men of the force are discharging a volume of work which in the period under review has increased instead of diminishing.

The four general headings under which our work is classified call for a word of explanation.

The enforcement of federal statutes, in former years the staple work of the force, now consists of the enforcing of the penalty clauses of the various federal statutes with which federal departments are directly concerned. After some fluctuations, this item for several years has stood fairly constant at somewhat more than 4,000 cases a year. This is regular and ordinary police work, and, without desiring to show undue anxiety to obtain convictions, and realizing fully that under a just system some of the inquiries made necessarily must clear persons who have fallen under suspicion, it may not be amiss to point out that of late the proportion of convictions has tended to rise, the figures being: in 1925, 42.1 per cent; in 1926, 42.6 per cent; and in 1927, 47.9 per cent.

The enforcement of the Criminal Code is undertaken by us at present only in certain localities and under certain conditions. Before the erection of the present provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan we discharged this duty as a matter of course in the Territories; when the new provinces were constituted we continued to do this within their boundaries under specific agreements, the provincial Attorneys-General being responsible for the maintenance of law and order, and we executing the duties of police for them (outside of certain places which maintained municipal police forces) in return for a subvention; in 1917, however, these agreements were terminated, and the two provinces provided their own police forces. There remain the Yukon Territories, the Northwest Territories, and the national parks in which we are responsible for police work; the same condition obtains in Indian reserves. Moreover, we act when departments of the federal government are the aggrieved parties in breaches of the Criminal Code, as in thefts of government property. This class of work, while occasionally involving arduous and important work, has remained of late fairly constant at some seven hundred cases a year.

Mention is made in the foregoing paragraph of national parks. By virtue of special arrangements between the Dominion Government and the provincial administrations of British Columbia and Alberta, we enforce both federal and provincial laws in the national parks in the two provinces, this including regulations as well as acts.

The category styled "investigations for other departments" is very broad, and includes inquiries and investigations made at the request of the Dominion Government departments, together with a number of miscellaneous activities, such as the rendering of assistance to provinces and to other police forces, inquiries for missing persons, occasional executive action on behalf of other departments, etc. This class of our work has increased both in bulk and variety with surprising rapidity. In earlier years it was almost non-existent; in 1915, when this force was principally concerned with the policing of Alberta and Saskatchewan, work of this sort was so slight that it was not included in our statistical records. In 1920 it accounted for 8,500 cases; and now the record stands at about 25,000. For some years it has accounted for just over four-fifths of the total number of cases. In the two provinces just mentioned the cases of this sort numbered between eight and nine thousand.

A comparative analytic statement of our statistical record is:—

—	1920	1921	1922	1923	1924	1925	1926	1927
Federal Statutes.....	2,068	3,675	5,235	7,447	5,210	4,173	4,379	4,242

Provincial Statutes and Parks Regulations.....	88	172	219	294	238	257	408	494
Investigations for Other Depart- ments.....	8,500	8,235	8,108	7,915	24,531	21,743	23,280	24,498
	10,808	12,595	14,032	16,463	30,680	26,806	28,828	29,955

I put forward these figures with one reservation. They are the only way by which our labours can be measured, and yet they afford an uncertain and capricious standard. Our northern work, interesting and important as it is, contributes little to it, and a thousand mile patrol in the Arctic night, amid unnumbered toils and hazards, may not contribute a single "case". Again, in those regions the paucity of "cases" of some types I regard as a tribute to our work; there is, for example, a welcome falling-off in the number of homicides. Also bearing on this question is the success of our permanent guards in effecting their purpose of security; duties of this sort demand unusually good qualities of the men who discharge them; and yet they are monotonous to the men employed upon them, and barren statistically. Yet apart from these the multitudinous acts of administration which I am chronicling demand care, attention, an exact sense of duty, and in the aggregate account for no little work.

The "investigations" fluctuate exceedingly; occasionally we have non-recurring pieces of work, such as the Chinese registration in 1924, and the western census of 1925, and some species of work increase suddenly, perhaps to fall off again.

The changes in a number of classes are as follows:—

—	1922	1923	1924	1925	1926	1927
Secretary of State.....	4,473	3,933	8,666	7,997	9,047	8,153

Indian Affairs.....	81	186	415	695	623	602
Health.....	346	217	1,846	1,866	422	244

In the foregoing figures nearly all of the cases attributed to the Department of the Secretary of State are naturalization inquiries. Those for which the Department of Marine and Fisheries is responsible have principally to do with radio licenses. The reduction in the cases for the Department of Health is due largely to certain changes of policy. The considerable figures recorded for the Department of Mines are accounted for in part by our inspection of retail hardware stores, etc., which sell ammunition and other explosives.

As regards naturalization inquiries, Eastern Canada accounted for 56 per cent of them. For some years there have been more of these in the East, that is, in Ontario and Quebec, than in the West. Many of these inquiries are prosecuted in out of the way parts of the country, involving long journeys.

This force began in Western Canada, and rather more than two-thirds of our work still is done west of the Great Lakes, though the East perhaps is gaining a little. This year the West accounted for 20,827 cases, or 69.5 per cent; as against 9,125 in the East. Last year the numbers were 20,247 and 8,531 respectively. An analysis by classes is:—

PATROLS, GUARDS, ETC.

As I have remarked already, much work is done that is not represented in the foregoing statistics; indeed, the duties which they describe were principally performed by that part of the force which I have described as my disposable strength. I have touched upon our protective work, the prevention of disorder or theft, and in this, scarcity of incidents often is the proof of success. The endless patrol of scores of Government buildings in Ottawa absorbs the whole time of a great many men, whose work cannot be described as either light or unnecessary. Again, permanent guards are maintained at the offices of the Assistant Receivers General in Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, and Victoria, and a permanent customs guard at Montreal; each of these guards is kept up day and night, and the work of these men so far fortunately has been uneventful, though none the less important. Other services of an allied nature, in protection of public moneys, also yield the negative and therefore satisfactory results at which we aim. Again, the policing of the dockyards at Halifax and Esquimalt is another task which immobilizes men and achieves security at the expense of incident. The protection of distinguished visitors is another duty to which these remarks apply. Our whole Arctic work, again, which is of great public value, outside of one of two detachments, does not contribute much to our statistics; so that we have some three-score men, particularly valuable individually, numbering seven or eight per cent of our total strength, and discharging highly important duties, who supply very few of the cases which I have been considering.

I may at this point notice the numerous patrols, some of them very long and carried out under great difficulties, which form one of the traditions of this force. A small party recently concluded a stay of nearly two years in the extreme north of British Columbia, on the upper reaches of the Liard river, suffering much from the severity of the winter, moving about in a wild, remote and imperfectly known region, and doing much at once to enforce obedience to the law and to relieve distress and mitigate suffering. On the Western Arctic coastline our journeys of several hundred miles with dog-sleds have become almost a matter of routine, and it is gratifying to note a decrease in the tendency to violence which was a drawback in the character of that able, generally amiable and attractive people, the Eskimos. We are steadily extending our patrols into the Barren Lands from the vantage points afforded by the eastern ends of the great lakes of the Far North, while our Hudson Bay patrols are being prosecuted more around James bay, and we move about the coast-line and adjacent territory, from north of Cape Fullerton, to the parts of Ontario east of Moose Factory. In the Eastern Arctic our patrols often are very long, and take us into regions which recently were the Ultima Thule of large and well-equipped exploring expeditions, an example being the visits paid by Staff-Sergeant (now Inspector) A. H. Joy to the group of islands lying west of Ellesmere island. Perhaps even here there is a slight decrease in the romantic side of the northern work, for, while long pioneer journeys still are made, nevertheless practice in patrolling has brought facilities, and our men now as a matter of routine traverse regions which not long ago were the objects of difficult and tedious discovery. For example, while Baffin island has been known for three centuries, its interior until recently remained untouched; in the winter of 1925-26 a party of our men crossed the southern part from Cumberland gulf to Hudson strait, the journey, which was in the nature of exploration, being laborious and somewhat dangerous, while in the winter of 1926-27 a party made the journey expeditiously and comparatively easily, the route now being known; so also some years ago a patrol across North Devon island proved difficult and hazardous, and subsequent journeys were made more speedily. The arduous and adventurous nature of this department of our duty remains undiminished, for man still must pit himself against the elements. In one of our reports quoted on a later page, though the winter of 1926-27 on the whole was usually mild, it is noted that a sledge dog died through having its lungs frozen; and for grimness few occurrences could surpass the four hundred and fifty mile journey of a constable in Baffin island, conveying to his detachment, amid great difficulties of travel, the body of an unfortunate fur-trader, for decent burial after due investigation into the causes of his death.

Nor are the patrols confined to these far-away regions. Further south, in forests, along the rivers and on the prairies, by steamboat, power launch, canoe, motor car, and saddle horse, at times on foot, our men traverse regions where their presence serves at once as a reminder that laws must be obeyed and governmental regulations observed, as a means of carrying on the administration of the country, and as a proof that the Government can and will extend its aid to people in distress. I may add that the amount of humanitarian work performed by this force is an object of peculiar satisfaction to me.

ASSISTANCE TO PROVINCES

As in other years, a certain amount of administration work was done for some of the provinces. For the most part these services are rendered in northern Alberta, this province having a "far north" of its own, devoid of modern means of communication and sparsely inhabited; economy is effected by our discharging certain duties for the provincial government, particularly in the enforcing of the game laws. Somewhat similar conditions obtain in northern Manitoba, and here again we render some aid. The issuing of game animal and game bird licenses is a matter of local importance, and our special interest in the Indians causes us to be concerned with the provincial game laws, which they must obey. This work is likely to increase, as we are about to open a detachment at Fort Fond du lac, and it may be necessary to establish posts at other places in the maze of lakes and rivers to the east of that place, in order to control the situation there from our own point of view. In specific police work mutual services often are rendered.

ASSISTANCE TO OTHER DEPARTMENTS

I have dwelt in earlier paragraphs upon the importance now assumed by the investigations and inquiries carried on for other departments; the statistical record appears in appendix B, and in the paragraphs which follow a number of notes are given about particular cases; some account of this aspect of our work also is given in the extracts from the annual reports of the officers' commanding districts. The general principle underlying this aspect of our duties was described by in my annual report for 1926 in words which I take leave to repeat:—

“A great number of the departments of the Government from time to time require services of a field or executive nature: The Department of Mines needs to have hardware stores, local contracting operations, etc., watched to make sure that its regulations regarding the storage of explosives are observed; the Department of Marine and Fisheries is interested to see that the multitude of persons who use radios take out proper licenses, and that fishery regulations are obeyed; the Department of the Interior wishes to have migratory birds protected, persons who trespass on timber reserves brought to book, its game protection system enforced in remote places; these are but examples, which are supplemented in the paragraphs which follow. If we did not undertake these duties, it would be necessary for the departments concerned either to leave the work undone; or to employ private agencies, a course which would present problems of control; or to enlarge their staffs, so that each would have a separate force of field agents. If the last of these expedients were tried, it is safe to say that the aggregate number of persons employed, and the total cost, alike would exceed present figures. For example, the Department of Fisheries is mainly concerned with the sea and the Great Lakes, but the protection and regulation of the fisheries in the prairie rivers and in the innumerable lakes north of the prairies is an appreciable interest; and from time to time our men, often as an incidental feature of a patrol undertaken primarily for other purposes, help it to enforce its measures. A further advantage in having one force to discharge these ancillary services is that it is possible to have uniformity in methods of investigating, reporting, etc., and we avoid alike duplication of effort and working at cross-purposes. In one more or less inaccessible settlement, for example, it might be necessary about the same time to investigate the illicit manufacture of spirits, the selling of liquor to Indians, the illegal netting of fish, the slaughter of migratory birds, the raiding of Crown timber reserves, the use of unlicensed radios, the storage of explosives, and applications for naturalization; it would be wasteful to despatch eight separate agents there, when one member of the force on one patrol could attend to all these matters.”

DEPARTMENT OF NATIONAL REVENUE

In the twelve-month period 1925-26 a departure was made from the usual method of aiding other departments in the case of the Department of National Revenue. As a result of the investigation by the parliamentary committee and the Royal Commission which was subsequently appointed, I was required to place at the disposal of that department the services of a number of members of this force. These members, who included some of my most valuable detectives, passed out of my control—though I still was in a measure responsible for them, and they swelled the numbers credited to the force—and were directed in their operations altogether by the Department of National Revenue. During the period covered by this report the experiment came to an end, and they have been returned to me. They went from and returned to this force on varying dates, the experiment beginning on July 27, 1926, and coming to an end on July 14, 1927, when the last of them returned to duty with this force.

In addition to this episode, a certain amount of assistance was rendered to the Department of National Revenue in the more usual manner. The most interesting phase of this aspect of our activities had regard to the coastline near Halifax, where during the whole year the smuggling of liquor has greatly exercised us. Our strength there was specially increased, the use of a fast car was obtained, and in December, 1926, and January and February, 1927, a series of seizures and arrests took place, the former accounting for over 400 gallons of rum and not far short of 300 cases of liquors. The smugglers were defiant as well as persistent, on one occasion attempting to run our car down in the road, and resisting arrest; however, a number of prosecutions were instituted, strongly supported by evidence. I regret to be obliged to report that these failed, the juries, in spite of convincing evidence, able presentation and strong charges from the bench, persisting in returning verdicts of acquittal. The officer commanding in the Maritime Provinces in this connection observed: "It is absolutely useless to proceed against smugglers by way of indictment in Halifax."

An investigation into customs conditions on the boundary between British Columbia and the state of Washington west of Midway by Sergeant A. E. Birch revealed a curious state of affairs—the renting by some residents of small places on the Canadian side of mail-boxes in the post office of an American town close to the boundary line; to these they had articles sent by post from places in the United States, and they subsequently conveyed them to their homes without reporting to the customs. Several cases were made against these ingenious people.

Aid in the enforcement of the Excise Act usually takes the form of a large number of seizures of stills, etc., with few distinctive features. Mention may be made, however, of a rather small case which acquired some interest from the length of time it took to arrest the person wanted. The accused, a foreigner, simultaneously gave information which led to a seizure for illicit manufacture of liquor, and himself operated a still; in February, 1925, his still was seized, and for two years he evaded arrest while intermittently submitting claims—made from a safe distance—for the payment of the moiety due him as informer from the department which was concerned in his prosecution. From Toronto he fled to Manitoba, where he harboured in two or three remote rural districts; then he went to British Columbia, and he finally was arrested in Vancouver in February, 1927, taken to Toronto, and convicted.

HEALTH

Our work with the Department of Health, in suppressing the traffic in narcotic drugs, has been conducted during the period under review in a particularly harmonious manner. As in former years our main efforts have been directed towards the detection and conviction of the larger traffickers, leaving the peddlers and smaller miscreants as far as possible to the attentions of the provincial and municipal police forces; with as a subsidiary object the exposure and prosecution of those unworthy members of the medical profession who lend themselves to this nefarious traffic.

A case of much importance in Vancouver was the arrest and conviction of Lim Jim, a very prominent Chinese merchant, on a charge of selling opium. This man is wealthy, controlling several firms; he long has been regarded as the centre of the opium smuggling traffic in British Columbia, but hitherto no case could be made against him. However, in July, 1927, acting in conjunction with United States officials, and bringing a member of the force from Ontario, we managed to induce him to sell a considerable quantity of opium to an American agent; a large quantity of narcotics also was seized. Particularly skilful detective work was done in this operation. The trial took place after the date of the closing of this report, but it may be added that he was convicted and sentenced to a fine and to four years' imprisonment. Lim Jim appealed, a cross-appeal was entered by the Crown against the lightness of the sentence, and this resulted in the term of imprisonment being increased to seven years.

This man had been twenty-seven years in Canada and he testified that his companies did $900,000 worth of business in a year.

We also were especially active in Winnipeg, where a cluster of cases relieved the community for a while of some persistent traffickers. One of these, against a man known as Samuel Riley, a very careful and cunning drug peddler, afforded a good example of co-operation with the local police. During the earlier months of 1927 we endeavoured to catch him in the act of selling narcotics, but were not successful. The city police arrested him in April on a charge of "possession" and he fled after being granted bail; watch was kept for him in various quarters, and he was arrested in Toronto towards the end of July by a detective of this force. Returned to Winnipeg, he was convicted and received sentences aggregating two years' imprisonment. Another Winnipeg case carried to a successful issue during the summer of 1927 was that of a persistent trafficker named Mike Doba, or Dobois, who was watched for some time and finally was arrested while in possession of a quantity of heroin. This was a gratifying occurrence, as the man had a criminal record and was well known in the underworld of Winnipeg. After the termination of the period under review he was convicted and sentenced to a term of imprisonment which will entail his deportation, he being a native of one of the Central European countries. And again, late in the period under review, on September 6, 1927, a notorious drug peddler who went by the sobriquet of "Rusty Stevens" was arrested after making a sale of heroin; he was granted bail in $10,000 and fled, his bail being estreated. This man also was an important personage in the illicit drug traffic of Winnipeg.

The campaign against the traffic was carried on in nearly all the provinces, the instances adduced merely being special cases, which for one reason or another were of particular interest to us.

INDIAN AFFAIRS

Our interest in the Indians is traditional, and during the year this aspect of our duty provided a good deal of work and it was necessary to cope with perhaps more than the usual amount of turbulence. On two occasions it was necessary to be firm with British Columbia Indians. The unsettled condition of the Kitwancool reserve in northern British Columbia, which has attracted publicity from time to time, caused some anxiety during the summer of 1927. A survey was resolved upon by the Government, and a faction of the Indians undertook to resist by force. Protection was given to the survey party, a constable of this force going with it in plain clothes, and Sergeant H. E. Taylor, in charge of the Prince George detachment, placing himself at a convenient distance to support it. On the survey party entering the valley they were obstructed by the Indians, who tried to take away the transit, injured one or two articles of camp equipment, etc. Sergeant Taylor's report says:—

"Throughout all this disturbance the Indians did everything possible to provoke an assault upon themselves by the members of the survey party, by hustling, jeering, etc., giving the impression that they had been instructed not to actually assault the surveyors, but to do all possible to aggravate them and compel them to start a fight. It is obvious that this attitude on the part of the Indians is the result of careful advice and coaching on the part of some white advisers, who have told the Indians just how far they had better go in creating a quarrel."

In consequence of their behaviour, warrants were obtained and several of them were arrested; the leader was carrying a loaded revolver and on being put under arrest refused to give it up, obliging Sergeant Taylor to disarm him by force. The culprits were sentenced to short terms of imprisonment and the survey was completed, although the bearing of the Indians remained hostile, and protection had to be continued for some time. The Department of Indian Affairs expressed its appreciation of Sergeant Taylor's conduct.

At Penticton a dispute between the Department of Indian Affairs and the Indians of the reserve over the erection of a school-house caused an affray of some magnitude. A preliminary disturbance in March, 1927, led to some arrests, and in April a summons to court was ignored, and an attempt to arrest the accused was resisted with violence. Inspector R. L. Cadiz repaired to the reserve with three constables and, on the Indians continuing contumacious, arrested several of them. There was a general scuffle, some twenty-five to thirty men and women attacking the police. The fight lasted about three-quarters of an hour, but six Indians were taken into custody and duly made their appearance in court. Inspector Cadiz remarks:—

"No more force than was absolutely necessary was used in effecting these arrests and the restraint and good temper shown under very trying circumstances by Corporal O'Reilly and Constables Carnac and Woodcock, especially the two constables, who suffered considerable abuse and injury, was wholly commendable and I desire to bring it to your notice."

School-houses seem to be provocative in this connection; during the year under consideration a dispute over the erection of one in the St. Regis reserve occasioned some work. A faction of the Indians carried their objection to the decision to build a school to the point of intimidating the workmen, and it was necessary to keep members of the force there for some time, until an amicable arrangement was reached. At Caughnawaga and some other reserves in Eastern Canada a very considerable amount of work was done in the collection of evidence in the charge against certain people of conspiring to extract money from the Indians in order to prosecute a claim to a large area in the state of New York.

The Indians have to be protected against unscrupulous white men. A case of this sort was afforded by a news agent on one of the transcontinental lines in northern Ontario who for about two years persistently sold liquor to treaty Indians travelling on the trains. A trap was set for him and he was caught and convicted, to the fine which was inflicted being added the loss of the position which he had misused. He had been peddling alcohol of a very low grade, for which he charged $5 a bottle.

Another type of work which from time to time is necessary in protecting the Indians is occasioned by outbreaks of contagious disease in reserves. We recently have had two such affairs on our hands. During the summer of 1927 an outbreak of small-pox on the Maniwaki reserve made it necessary to keep Detective Constable A. Grignon there from July 6 to August 27. Constable Grignon enforced quarantine, dispersed a dance which was being carried on in defiance of the regulations, dealt with Indians who resented the application of the rules of sanitation, and, in the words of the agent of the reserve, "performed his duties in the most commendable manner." I may add that since the date of the closing of this report a somewhat similar case occurred in Ontario, the agent at Lower French reserve reporting that small-pox had broken out on Contin island and that the Indians were breaking quarantine, and asking for the assistance of this force. Constable W. W. Jacomb was sent from Toronto, and had to remain there for some weeks. In this case the Indian chief cooperated with Constable Jacomb. Public gatherings were forbidden for a time. In one case an alarm came that a woman was dying of the disease, but our constable took charge pending the arrival of the doctor and subsequently regularly took provisions to the house to prevent the husband from leaving it; the patient recovered.

The usual escorts were provided for parties paying treaty money, and numerous miscellaneous duties were performed. As a people the Indians are quiet and law-abiding, and in the vast majority of cases we come in contact with them as friends, and as affording help, rather than through repressive action.

COLLECTION OF REVENUE

In certain of the remoter parts of the country the force collects revenues for various departments to a not inconsiderable extent, the total amounting to a sum in excess of $60,000. In the Yukon and the Northwest Territories we collected game licenses for the Department of the Interior, and also disbursed bounties for the killing of 1,001 wolves, amounting to $30,030. For the Department of Marine and Fisheries we collected a number of radio licenses. In addition, we collected $31,908.25 in fines. The total amount of fines imposed as a result of cases which we instituted was $138,867.17; of this $97,751.17 was paid, some $65,000 being paid through channels other than this force.

IMMIGRATION

We are in constant touch with the Department of Immigration and Colonization, helping to enforce what may be styled the control side of its activities, searching for persons with whom it desires to get into touch, supporting its officials when necessary, etc. Occasionally a modicum of detective work is needed. As an example of the last-named type of activity, I may remark that in the early autumn of 1927 this force by investigation ascertained the presence in Vancouver of an odd little colony of Oriental seamen who had deserted from sundry ships and were working in a saw-mill—two Arabs, an Egyptian, and an Indian Mohammedan—and furnished the information which led to their deportation. Two Hindus who had deserted from ships also were apprehended for the immigration authorities in Vancouver.

MARINE AND FISHERIES

During the fishing season of 1926 in northern British Columbia the fisheries officials had reason to suspect that, through dereliction of duty on the part of certain local fishery protection officers, a good deal of illegal fishing was permitted, more particularly at Quashella creek, Smith's inlet. At the request of the Chief Inspector of Fisheries in British Columbia, Sergeant L. J. Sampson during the last months of 1926, made an investigation which, at the expense of much travel up and down the coast, revealed many irregularities. Subsequently, early in 1927, a commission was appointed to inquire into the matter, and Sergeant Sampson provided the witnesses and conducted the examinations. At the conclusion of each stage of these proceedings Major Motherwell, the Chief Inspector, officially expressed his appreciation of Sergeant Sampson's work, writing in one letter: "I have nothing but admiration for the manner in which the investigation has been conducted." On the completion of the investigation, the Commissioner, Mr. D. Mackenzie, wrote to the Officer Commanding in Vancouver, to thank him for the support given, adding, "The evidence could not have been procured any other way than by the commission and by cross-examining, which was very ably conducted by Sergeant L. J. Sampson."

We render a good deal of support to this department in the matter of radio, alike in issuing licenses where local circumstances render it advisable that we should act as dispensers, and in checking the disposition of some to make use of the radio without paying the license fee. A little aside from the ordinary run was a case which arose at Kenora, where the possessors of radio sets have experienced considerable trouble with their transmission. Suspicion was felt that some at least of the trouble was due to the operation of a transmitting set owned by a man living near the town. He was visited, and, as he maintained that he was not the offender, the constable investigating arranged for a test which appeared to confirm the surmise. The owner of the set was asked to refrain from operating it more than was absolutely necessary pending the result of the report made. Upon our informing the Director of Radio, he confirmed our action, thanking us for the steps we had taken.

DEPARTMENT OF NATIONAL DEFENCE

A service which we continually are called upon to perform for the militia is the recovery of rifles, equipment, articles of uniform and similar articles which have been issued, and which are not returned. This ordinarily is uneventful and routine police work, not worth any particular mention. However, one curious affair, small in itself, illustrates the value of a nation-wide system. A private in a militia regiment in Vancouver suddenly left for England, taking with him a uniform of some value. The regiment invoked the service of this force; a telegram was sent to Winnipeg; the man was met there on his arrival and handed over part of the equipment, but said that the rest of it was in his trunk; thereupon he was met at Montreal and the rest of it was recovered and sent to Vancouver.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

Mention has been made already of our work in issuing game licenses, paying wolf bounty, and otherwise assisting the Department of the Interior in the Northwest Territories. One of the out-of-the-way duties discharged by us is the protection of bird life in accordance with the terms of the international convention on the subject. A task performed in connection with this was the making of weekly visits to Bare island, a notable breeding ground for gulls, not far from Vancouver. On these visits war was waged on a colony of crows which were preying on the eggs and young gulls, and the number of these marauders was diminished. A certain amount of timber protection is done.

POST OFFICE

The Post Office, with its immense number of small offices, disseminated in every corner of the country, naturally suffers from a certain amount of fraud, and from occasional robberies. These cases often are difficult to solve, and in a number of instances a period of months, or even of years, has elapsed before the facts have been elucidated. We had a considerable number of cases during the period under review, but none of these were of special importance. Some interest attaches to a robbery in western Quebec, in February, 1927, in which a small sum was taken from a rural post office. The surface indications suggested burglary, and the postmaster expressed the opinion that the guilty person was a man of rather loose character who had passed through the settlement at the time. Careful work by Detective Corporal A. G. Champion of "A" Division proved that the postmaster himself was the culprit, the apparent evidence of burglarious entry having been arranged by him to avert suspicion.

NATURALIZATION

Investigation of applicants for naturalization continues to account in the aggregate for a considerable bulk of work. This work is increasingly of an urban nature, though it still is necessary to visit remote rural districts, and to look up scattered sojourners in the wilder parts of the country. Our duties consist of ascertaining the identity of applicants, and verifying their statements as to their circumstances and conduct; our reports are transmitted to the Department of the Secretary of State for Canada, which passes upon the applications.

THE EXPLOSIVES ACT

As usual, this accounted for many routine investigations. The steady pressure seems to have had some effect in causing the numerous people who are in custody of explosives to improve their methods of storage. A good deal of work of this character has been done during this year in the Maritime Provinces.

ESCORTS FOR HARVESTERS

The escort for harvesters' trains has become a piece of routine work and calls for little remark. As in former years, the administration of the service—which is considerable, as the men are sent in couples over a vast extent of territory, necessitating a great amount of correspondence in proportion to the number employed—fell to the lot of "N" Division at Ottawa, its strength, which has been low, being increased by borrowings from other divisions. No special incidents occurred, and the only comment to be made is that this is one of the seasonal tasks which strain our reduced numbers.

SPECIAL GUARDS

As before, we have furnished permanent guards at a number of places, these including the offices of the Assistant Receivers General at Victoria, Calgary, Regina, Winnipeg, and Toronto. We also have kept a guard, by night as well as by day, upon the customs warehouse at Montreal. In Halifax and Esquimalt we protect the dockyards, dry-docks and other Government property. All these duties are monotonous and yet call for particularly steady and well-disciplined men, and when a guard is maintained continuously it will be understood that to keep one man on duty immobilizes two or three men, to provide for reliefs, holidays, etc. Another duty which occupies the attention of a number of men pretty steadily is the protection of officers of the Finance Department, the customs service and the post office who are in possession of public money; the precautions are unobtrusive, but none the less absorb men. The general public is familiar with the presence of our men as guards when income tax payments are made; this is a seasonal drain on our reserves.

CO-OPERATION WITH OTHER POLICE FORCES

As in former years, we have co-operated to the best of our ability with other police forces. Our relations with the police forces of the British Empire are cordial and happy; we have in particular received much assistance from the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis in England and from the various departments of New Scotland Yard, and have been glad to reciprocate when occasion offered. From time to time we have furnished information to and have obtained information from police forces in continental Europe, and we have co-operated with sundry forces in the United States. With the provincial and municipal police forces of Canada we, of course, are continually in contact, and we are glad to render to them all the assistance possible, a particular example of this being the identification work done by our Finger Print Section with its great collection of finger prints, photographs, and records of convictions of criminals. I have in earlier reports noted our co-operation with other Canadian forces in shaping a general police policy with regard to the control of fire-arms, especially pistols.

WORK OF THE DISTRICTS

BRITISH COLUMBIA DISTRICT

Superintendent A. W. Duffus, officer commanding E Division (British Columbia, less the Eastern Kootenay district) reports a strength of 90 of all ranks, including 32 on detachment and 9 attached to the Criminal Investigation Bureau staff at Vancouver; in 1926 the total strength was 82. He observes:—

“From the beginning of last winter until August, we were somewhat handicapped in our work by a shortage of effective strength at division headquarters. This shortage was apparent until a draft of six recruits was transferred from Regina in the middle of August. We now have sufficient men available for all ordinary duties, and for a small reserve for detachments.”

Two officers have lately been transferred from Vancouver to other divisions—Inspector T. M. Shoebottom to “B” Division, and Inspector H. A. R. Gagnon to “G” Division for northern duty, while Inspector A. N. Eames has been transferred to the division, and has taken over the duties of pay and quartermaster, relinquished by Inspector Shoebottom.

The detachments at present are the same as in 1926.

At Victoria a corporal and four constables are stationed as a guard for the office of the Assistant Receiver General; the non-commissioned officer in charge also attends to sundry other duties.

At Esquimalt two non-commissioned officers and nine constables and special constables provide police protection for the dockyard. This is a monotonous type of duty, irksome to young men; changes were made during the year whereby married constables of more mature years were placed there.

The Penticton detachment, the only one in the West Kootenay sub-district, consists of 1 officer, 2 non-commissioned officers and 1 constable. The report says:—

“The work of this detachment is mainly in connection with the Indians, it being the centre of large reserves. The strength of this detachment had to be temporarily increased during the summer, owing to extra work in this connection.”

Prince Rupert, the headquarters of the Coast sub-district, has 1 officer and 1 corporal, this being a reduction of two; as the town is situated on an island, few supervisory patrols are possible.

Prince George, on the Canadian National Railway, at the junction of the Fraser and Nechacho rivers, has 1 sergeant and 2 constables. The report describes it as:—

“The centre of a large district necessitating lengthy patrols in a sparsely settled country, in connection with the Indian Act. It has been found necessary to station an extra constable here, due to increase in the duties, which have been carried out most satisfactorily.”

Telkwa, on the Canadian National Railway, about midway between Prince Rupert and Prince George, has one corporal and two constables. Superintendent Duffus says:—

“This, again, is the centre of numerous Indian reserves. The detachment has been exceedingly busy, and has carried out some excellent work in connection with the Indian Department, necessitating patrols being away for long periods.”

Two temporary detachments which have become part of our routine are thus noticed:—

“A corporal was stationed at Chilliwack and a constable at Agassiz (on the lower mainland) during September of this year, to assist the Indian Department officials in the enforcement of the Indian Act during the hop-picking season, when hundreds of Indians congregate from all parts. The Indian agents concerned have written expressing their appreciation of our services.”

The most interesting detached service of the year was the Liard patrol, which lasted for about thirteen months. The officer commanding reports upon it as follows:—

"A patrol, consisting of Inspector T. V. S. Wunsch, Reg. No. 9261 Sergeant Paton, J. R., and Reg. No. 9587 Constable Cooper, W. A., arrived at Lower Post, Liard, B.C. (near the border of the Yukon), in July, 1926. During the winter of 1926-27 they carried out various patrols in the Liard district, in connection with the Indians, making Lower Post their headquarters. Medicine supplied by the Indian Department was distributed to Indians as required, and the members of the party often rendered very effective first aid treatment to sick and injured Indians.

"Unfortunately, in January, 1927, Sergeant Paton got both hands very badly frost-bitten while on patrol with the other members of the party some distance from Liard. Circulation was restored after Inspector Wunsch and Constable Cooper had melted snow and given first aid treatment for four hours, in spite of the fact that their own hands were continually commencing to freeze. Sergeant Paton was taken back to Liard, and after three months of most assiduous and intelligent nursing night and day by Inspector Wunsch and Constable Cooper, the use of both hands was almost fully restored. Without this care it is probable that Sergeant Paton would have been left badly maimed or even succumbed to blood poisoning, as in the course of treatment gangrene set in at the extremity of one little finger, and, with the patient's consent, the last joint was amputated with a razor by Inspector Wunsch, there being no doctor anywhere in the district.

"This accident, and an attack of snow-blindness sustained later by Inspector Wunsch, greatly handicapped the operations of the patrol during the late winter and spring.

"On your instructions, the party returned to Vancouver in August, 1927, escorting an insane Indian. The six dogs, canoe and other surplus stores were disposed of locally before leaving for Vancouver.

"There is no doubt that the presence of this patrol was most beneficial in establishing a respect for law and order among Indians and other residents of that country; our men went out of their way to render help and succour to all, from assisting an Indian mother to bring a baby into the world to reading the Lord's Prayer at burials."

In dealing with the interior economy of the division, the officer commanding says:—

"Mounted training has been carried out at division headquarters throughout the year, and dismounted drill as opportunity occurred. Special attention has been given to arms drill and individual efficiency on detachments, by inspecting officers."

Satisfaction is expressed with the revolver shooting, first aid and other details of training.

Much space is occupied with the co-operation with other departments of the government, it being remarked that relations were excellent. Investigations in connection with the Criminal Investigation Bureau covered a wide field, and some extracts may be given. In dealing with assistance rendered to the Department of Health in combatting the narcotic drug evil, after observing that the policy of late has been to concentrate on the apprehension of principals, rather than of addicts, and giving particulars of several important arrests and seizures which were effected, Superintendent Duffus observes:—

"Speaking generally, I am of the opinion that the narcotic situation in this district has improved considerably during the past year. The determination of the Department of Health to stamp out the traffic, their thorough system for controlling the distribution of narcotic drugs through regular trade channels, and the support given by the courts in imposing drastic penalties on those found guilty of offences under this Act, have had a most beneficial result."

Dealing with the assistance rendered to the Department of Indian Affairs, the officer commanding mentions one particular incident, in which respect for the law was enforced and a serious affray averted:—

"At the instance of the department a survey of certain lands embracing the Kitwancool valley, in the northern interior, was ordered. For years past the Indians living in this valley have steadfastly refused to allow whites on these lands—even going so far as to offer armed resistance. Realizing that trouble might be expected when the survey party reached the boundary of the Kitwancool valley, Sergeant Taylor, in charge of Prince George detachment, detailed a constable in mufti to accompany the survey party, and requested the members of the latter not to provoke an assault, and not to resist by force unless absolutely necessary; in the meantime he would be close at hand with assistance.

"As anticipated, as soon as the survey party reached Kitwano valley they were warned by the Indians to proceed no further. Seeing that this was ineffectual, the Indians endeavoured to carry away the instruments and did everything possible to provoke a fight. Eventually, on being informed by the surveyor that no work would be done that day, the Indians went away, one of their number returning frequently, as though acting as a guard.

"The names of five Indians leading the disturbance were obtained, and warrants calling for their arrest executed before further trouble ensued. Subsequently, they were all convicted, four being sentenced to prison terms."

The Department of National Revenue was aided, partly in preventing the smuggling of narcotic drugs from ships plying to Vancouver, and partly in connection with the Excise Act, though the following remark is made:—

"The illicit distillation of liquor is not prevalent in this district, due to the fact that good liquor can readily be obtained from Government liquor stores scattered throughout the province. Four convictions were secured under the Excise Act, and one under the Customs Act. In addition, forty specific investigations were conducted and reported upon."

Investigations were made into 700 applications for naturalization, these involving frequent patrols from all detachments. Another duty which imposes a good deal of routine work is thus noticed:—

"The inspection of powder magazines and stores carrying small arms ammunition has been systematically carried out, with a view to enforcing the provisions of the Explosives Act. In addition, a large number of shipments of fire-crackers from the Orient and the United States—mostly the former—were inspected, during which operations a total of 173 cases were rejected for non-compliance with regulations.

"Accidents arising from the handling of explosives have been inquired into, and in all, a total of 261 investigations were reported upon for the information of the department."

The Department of Marine and Fisheries received assistance, partly by the issuance of 382 radio licenses, and partly in a more laborious manner:—

"At the request of the department, an investigation was conducted into alleged illegal fishing on the Pacific coast. This investigation disclosed that fishing in prohibited areas was carried on with the greatest impunity and with the sanction of certain fishery guardians,—two of whom were subsequently prosecuted."

NORTHERN ALBERTA DISTRICT

Superintendent James Ritchie, officer commanding "G" Division (Northern Alberta and the western part of the Northwest Territories), reports a total strength of 106, including 29 special constables; as three of these have since been transferred, the real strength is 103; this is an increase of five, which is accounted for by the employment of interpreters at certain detachments in the Northwest Territories. He writes:—

"The most important changes that have taken place during the year are in the officers in the Northwest Territories. Inspector Caulkin is now in Edmonton; his place at Herschel was taken by Inspector Kemp from Ottawa. Inspector Fletcher handed over the command of the Great Slave Lake sub-district to Inspector Trundle, and Inspector Gagnon from Vancouver has just recently been transferred to Fort Smith to assist Inspector Trundle. In the post at Edmonton Inspector Montizambert has been transferred to Regina and has been succeeded by Inspector Caulkin."

Within the limits of the province of Alberta no new detachments have been established, but all the old posts have been retained. Considerable improvements have been made at Jasper Park, where Inspector Frere is in command. The report says:—

"The three detachments in the Peace River district are situated at Peace River, Grande Prairie and Grouard. They have a number of Indian reserves in the district to oversee, and have done a lot of travelling in connection with naturalization investigations, and other inquiries for the Dominion Government."

Also in Alberta are the detachments at Fort McMurray and Fort Chipewyan. That at Fort McMurray has to look after the Indian reserves in the vicinity, and during the summer season assist all police passing through, whether they are going north or south. At Fort Chipewyan there are many Indians to supervise, and the non-commissioned officer in charge, in addition to his other duties, collected over $3,400 in fur taxes for the provincial government; a letter of thanks for this assistance has been received from the Game Commissioner of Alberta. The establishment of a new detachment at Fond du Lac, at the eastern end of lake Athabaska, has been ordered; it will prove an important post.

With regard to the organization in the Northwest Territories, Superintendent Ritchie reports:—

“The detachments in the Northwest Territories are divided into three sub-districts:—

“1. The Great Slave sub-district, under the command of Inspector Trundle, with the assistance of Inspector Gagnon, has headquarters at Fort Smith and includes the following detachments: Fort Smith, Resolution, Rae, Reliance, Hay River and Providence, with the two detachments in Alberta, Fort McMurray and Fort Chipewyan.

In dealing with the Great Slave sub-district, Superintendent Ritchie writes:—

“The only new detachment is the one at Reliance. Corporal Williams has gone in there with a complete outfit, and will have an experienced carpenter in Constable Hooper to help with the erection of the buildings.

“At Christmas time a sad fatality occurred at Rae. One of the police buildings there was burned to the ground, and Reg. No. 9951, Constable Rhodes, F., died as a result of the injuries he received, and Reg. No. 9444, Constable Armstrong, F.L., was also badly burned about the hands and feet. He was sent to Regina for medical attention by your orders. Constable Rhodes was very highly spoken of by all those who knew him and his untimely end is most sincerely regretted.”

Dealing with the Mackenzie sub-district, Superintendent Ritchie mentions the outbreak of an epidemic among the Indians at Good Hope in the late winter, and proceeds:—

“I obtained your authority to have Acting Assistant Surgeon Ward, who was going to Aklavik to relieve Acting Assistant Surgeon Cook, stop over at Good Hope on his way down and attend to any who needed medical assistance. This was found to be the most economical method of assisting these Indians. Acting Assistant Surgeon Ward took in some medical supplies with him. The doctor treated all in need of attention and proceeded to Aklavik on the Distributor, when the ship was making her second trip.”

Upon the western Arctic sub-district the officer commanding writes:—

“During the year the detachments at Cambridge Bay (in Victoria land) and Bernard Harbour have been thoroughly established, and the post at Tree River abandoned.

“Sergeant Anderton at Cambridge Bay reports that he has managed to make his buildings comfortable and has all that he needs in the way of storage accommodation. It is gratifying to note that this non-commissioned officer, after having time to look around, reports that the selection of Cambridge Bay for a detachment site could not have been bettered.

“This detachment is situated near Freshwater Lake, where the fishing is excellent. A plentiful supply of dog feed should be assured to this detachment at all times.

“Most of the building at Cambridge Bay was done with lumber previously used in the Tree River buildings. I think Sergeant Anderton and his assistant, Constable Dykes, deserve the highest praise for the manner in which they have established this, the most distant detachment in ‘G’ Division.

“Sergeant Anderton was able to visit most of the natives during last winter. He reports that infanticide among the Eskimos is on the decrease. The natives generally are fairly prosperous.

"The detachment buildings at Bernard Harbour were erected by Sergeant Baker, who is a very skilful carpenter. This detachment is in excellent shape. There was an epidemic among some of the natives during the fall and Sergeant Baker was instructed to assist in any way possible, and to let the missionaries have any medicines that he could possibly spare. The epidemic was checked when the weather turned cold."

Proposals are put forward for improving the buildings at Aklavik, which has become one of the most important posts in the Northwest Territories.

Upon more general aspects of the work in this region the report observes:—

"The Canadian Eskimos are progressive people. Many of them have sewing machines, gramophones and radio outfits in their houses. The ambition of the head of every family is to own a power schooner of his own, and quite a few have realized their desire already. It is possible to count as many as twenty-five boats with auxiliary gasoline engines in them tied up at Aklavik during the summer. . . .

"Inspector Caulkin instituted a system of patrols which were also used to carry the mail along the coast. Sergeant Anderton left Cambridge Bay round about the 15th of January, after he had made up his returns to the end of the year. He carried his mail to Bernard Harbour. The patrol from Bernard Harbour took the Cambridge Bay and Bernard Harbour mail on to Baillie Island. Inspector Caulkin, who had gone over to Aklavik from Herschel to meet the incoming winter mail, started a patrol off from Aklavik under Constable Kells to meet the Bernard Harbour patrol at Baillie Island. Constable Kells handed over the incoming mail for Baillie Island, Bernard Harbour and Cambridge Bay and brought back to Aklavik all mail that had been collected at Baillie Island. Sergeant Baker at Bernard Harbour had arranged to meet Sergeant Anderton from Cambridge Bay at Tree River some time in May and there turn over to Sergeant Anderton his incoming mail. This arrangement worked most satisfactorily, and meant that the whole coast line was patrolled during the winter.

"Inspector Caulkin was also able to keep in touch with the eastern end of his sub-district by wireless. The Hudson's Bay steamer Baymaud was frozen in at Bernard Harbour. This vessel carries a sending as well as a receiving wireless set, and could communicate when necessary with the Government stations at Aklavik. This proved of great assistance to Inspector Caulkin. The steamer Baymaud will be at Cambridge Bay during the coming winter, so that it should be possible to get messages through to Sergeant Anderton at any time."

One item in the duties of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in this region has been the collection of income tax; most of the arrears of taxes have now been paid up. An interesting minor activity is thus noticed:—

"The dog breeding that has been carried on at Herschel has been most successful. There are fourteen pups there which will be fit for work next winter. These will be used to supply the requirements of all the detachments in the sub-district. I do not anticipate that it will be necessary to purchase any dogs for the Western Arctic sub-district. I intend to enquire into the possibilities of establishing one or more dog-breeding stations on the Mackenzie river. It is increasingly difficult to purchase suitable dogs at a reasonable price, and the solution of the problem may be found in breeding our own dogs, as has been done so satisfactorily at Herschel."

The general situation is thus discussed:—

"There have been no really important criminal cases in the Northwest Territories during the past year. This does not indicate that our men have been idle; far from it. I think it is perfectly safe to say that, by their presence in the country, and the patrols they have made, they have accomplished the most important duty of any police organization, i.e., the prevention of crime.

"Inquiries have been made among the natives to ascertain what the marriage customs among the Eskimos are. Some rather interesting information on this subject has been gathered. It seems, according to a report from Sergeant Baker, of the Bernard Harbour detachment, that there is no definitely established ceremony of any kind. A man generally chooses a woman whom he considers suitable, and if both parties are agreeable, they commence living together as man and wife. The man generally selects a woman who is good at making clothing, preparing food and is generally handy around the camp. The woman desires a man who is a good hunter and provider. In most cases they continue to live together, but if after a time they find that they are not suited to each other, they separate. This may be after a few weeks, or even after a few years. Having separated, both parties feel themselves quite free to select another partner. Separation practically never takes place where there are children. Sergeant Baker says he does not know of a single case where an Eskimo has abandoned the mother of his children when they are young and unable to take care of themselves. A woman will sometimes leave her husband, when, through sickness or old age, he is no longer able to provide the necessities of life. Such a case might arise when the band to which a couple belong decide to move out on to the ice to fish for seal, or to go inland to hunt. The woman realizes that she must go with the party or starve. In these circumstances the wife leaves her husband to be cared for by the few people who remain behind. Those who stay are generally employed as traders. Then, as there is usually a shortage of women, she becomes the wife of another man who needs a woman's help, and she needs the means of livelihood which the new husband provides. This is regarded by them all as the only sensible procedure.

"There is a custom, which is not at all common, of taking a wife by force. This method of selection is generally practised at a dance. All the men who desire to marry a certain woman, take hold of her clothing and whichever one succeeds in dragging her from the dance house, is entitled to take her to wife.

"It is all done good naturedly and is considered a proper method of selecting a wife.

"A few natives have been married by clergymen. Some of these later desired to separate, but were prevailed on not to do so, but to regard their marriage as binding. The fact that these people are still living together seems to indicate that they have settled their difficulties to their mutual satisfaction. It is to be hoped that such cases as these may serve as an example to others."

Superintendent Ritchie discusses in some detail the problems connected with game protection, the regulation of the fur trade, the prohibition of posts that may interfere with the migration of the caribou, the wolf bounty, the administration of the Migratory Birds Convention Act, etc. The situation regarding the last named legislation is peculiar, as its provisions in effect prohibit the natives and residents from shooting game birds at all. "There is an open season for ducks, etc." Superintendent Ritchie writes, "but these birds are only in the territories during the close season." Further, it is widely asserted, rightly or wrongly, that little or no effort is made to enforce the Migratory Birds Convention Act in Alaska. Of course, Superintendent Ritchie observes, the residents of the Territories believing this, "do not relish our insisting on the Act being observed. It is no easy matter to convince the complainants that the Canadian Government is powerless to make any change in the date of the open season without the consent of the Government of the United States of America."

Another passage is:—

"All our detachments handle the estates of any persons who die intestate in the Northwest Territories. During the year several estates have been successfully and comparatively quickly wound up by our working in co-operation with Mr. H. Milton Martin, Public Administrator for the Northwest Territories. Mr. Martin has written me several times saying that he greatly appreciates the valuable assistance our men give him."

An improvement which has been authorized is thus dealt with:—

"We have for a long time felt the need of having a patrol boat of our own for use in the Western Arctic sub-district, capable of navigating the Arctic seas during the entire period during which the channels are open. In the past we have always had to depend on the commercial ocean-going vessels for the transportation of supplies and the reliefs for the personnel in the detachments east of Herschel.

"You are considering having a boat built which will meet all our requirements for patrol work east of Herschel island. This ship will have to be specially strengthened and equipped for working and wintering in the ice, so that the boat may serve as a floating detachment if necessary. I feel sure that such a vessel would be very useful indeed, and I hope arrangements will be made to have a ship of this kind sent in next summer."

Another remark is:—

"I would like to mention the wonderful results obtained at the different detachments where radio sets have been sent in from Ottawa. These sets have proved a wonderful boon to those at the detachments where the Government sets have been installed. From all along the Arctic coast I have received reports of extraordinarily good reception. Corporal Wall at Baillie Island, for instance, has logged 12 Canadian and 123 American stations. Sergeant Baker at Bernard Harbour reports that they have brought in London, Newcastle, Dublin, Bournemouth, Birmingham, Glasgow, Paris, Madrid, and stations from all over the American continent. They have also heard some of the German stations."

The following paragraphs are of interest:—

"The freight and passenger traffic on the Mackenzie river was heavier this summer than ever before. Over 5,000 tons of freight have been shipped in to the Territories: approximately 1,000 passengers travelled on the steamers during the season. A number of American tourists are included in this number.

"An analysis of the shipments shows that 55 per cent of the freight sent in was fur trade goods for independent trappers and traders and the Hudson's Bay Company. Thirty per cent was consigned to Government officials, including the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and wireless stations, and to mission organizations. The remaining fifteen per cent was private and miscellaneous freight.

"During the year 80,000 pounds of mail was delivered in the Northwest Territories, to distribute which the various agents of the Hudson's Bay Company have travelled 60,000 miles over summer and winter trails. The Post Office Department have expressed their pleasure at the manner in which the mail has been handled without a single complaint being registered. This is a noteworthy achievement.

"As I pointed out in previous years, the service in the Far North is a great attraction for members of the force, and it is remarkable the excellent health the men have notwithstanding the rigours of an Arctic climate. Many of them have no wish to come out, being quite contented at their isolated posts; some of them have not been out for thirteen years. It is interesting to note too that in the Western Arctic sub-district there are six ex-members of the force in charge of Hudson's Bay Company's posts, and two more ex-members are conducting trading and trapping operations on their own account. What I am trying to convey is that the North is very appealing.

"This division also goes down to the sea in ships, as may be noted from the fact that we have sixteen boats of varying types in commission in northern waters. Two of these are auxiliary sloops and 7 are power boats, and seven more are Columbia river fishing boats. Engine power is being increased as replacements come due. The 20-horsepower Kermath engines are now standard, and are giving complete satisfaction. The swift currents of the northern rivers make it essential to have power, and lots of it."

"The standard buildings adopted by you continue to give entire satisfaction in the North and are warm and comfortable."

In closing this part of his report, Superintendent Ritchie writes:—

"Before leaving the subject of the Northwest Territories I think a tribute should be paid to the work accomplished by Inspector Caulkin and Inspector Fletcher.

"Inspector Caulkin was three years at Herschel, and he has conducted the affairs of the Western Arctic sub-district to my entire satisfaction. He has, by his straightforward and manly bearing impressed on whites and natives alike that his chief concern has been to see law and order properly and impartially enforced. I am very pleased that he is to be stationed at Edmonton, as his wide experience of northern matters and his sound judgment on all police affairs will be of great service to me.

"Inspector Fletcher was at Fort Fitzgerald and Fort Smith for seven years. During this time there have been many changes in his sub-district, and this officer has been called upon to perform many and varied duties. Inspector Fletcher has at all times been most attentive to duty and scrupulously fair to all with whom he has come in contact. The esteem in which he is held throughout this vast district is an eloquent testimony to the methods he has invariably employed."

Another passage in the report which bears on the work in the Far North is:—

"Before closing this report I should like to mention that quite a number of people take an interest in the men at isolated posts and send magazines, etc. direct to different places. I would like to mention specially the missionary department of the Upper Canada Tract Society, which sent a parcel to each of the Western Arctic detachments which are highly appreciated in these northern latitudes. A word of commendation should be given to those who selected the books, it was so evident that careful thought was given as to the authors and also to their work.

"The final shipment of 218 bison went out from the Dominion Buffalo Park at Wainwright on July 26. This makes a total for this season of 1,940 animals to be transported to their new home. For the three years during which shipments have been made 5,358 buffalo have been sent forward from the park at Wainwright, and out of this number only six animals failed to stand the rail trip."

The mileage covered by the detachments in the Far North on patrol is stated as follows:—

In the more settled part of the country the force was kept as busy as usual.

"In the post at Edmonton we have had to carry on with fewer men than ever before. The men stationed here have been constantly away on investigations of all kinds. This has made regular and systematic training quite impossible. I do not think that discipline and the appearance of the men have suffered in consequence. The sergeant-major here has not tolerated any slackness. The men have always appeared on parade very smartly turned out and I feel that the high traditions of the Force in this respect have been fully maintained.

"The variety and scope of the enquiries and investigations we have been called upon to make have increased rather than decreased.

"The horse mileage during the year was 47,828."

Dealing with the work of the Criminal Investigation Bureau, Superintendent Ritchie notes a slight decrease in investigations for other departments, and adds:—

"Investigations re infractions of the Federal statutes, Criminal Code, provincial statutes and Dominion Parks regulations, are approximately the same as last year, but the percentage of cases brought to court and convictions obtained is considerably higher."

A good deal of work has been done in enforcing the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act, and after mentioning one or two specific cases the report adds:—

"As a result of our investigations and observations in the underworld generally, I am gratified to be able to state that there is a marked decrease in the illicit use of narcotics."

The work done for a number of federal department is reviewed, these duties having been of an exceedingly miscellaneous nature; the following paragraphs merit quotation:—

"A report was rendered regarding the life-saving equipment on a boat operating on the Mackenzie river, Northwest Territories. With regard to life-saving equipment, i.e., lifebuoys, a number of same have been supplied by the department and our detachments in the Northwest Territories have taken charge of same by placing them in the most advantageous positions on the various wharves. During the winter these lifebuoys will be stored in our detachments, being replaced on the wharves after the spring break-up."

"Collection of customs duty was handled by the officer commanding, Herschel, Y.T., as in former years, some $23,932.03 being collected. The sum of $1,412.55 was collected at Herschel, Y.T., for income tax from white residents of the Arctic coast, known as district No. 3, during the year 1926 and up to August, 1927. The work entailed in this connection is very heavy, and entails considerable clerical work."

"During the year, investigations were made regarding 642 applicants for naturalization. In conducting these investigations a total of 23,907 miles were covered, same being made up as follows: rail, 13,967 miles, trail 9,940 miles."

A few of the many other services rendered may be more briefly mentioned. Nearly $22,000 was collected for the Northwest Territories Branch of the Department of the Interior for over 500 licenses—hunting, trapping, trading, etc.—and bounty was paid on nearly 700 wolves. Disputes between trappers over their lines were settled. Bush fires were extinguished. Vital statistics were collected. Several post office cases were dealt with. Patrols were made to protect bird sanctuaries. Sick Indians were sought out and medical care procured.

In Jasper Park several criminal cases were dealt with, as this force enforces the Criminal Code and provincial statutes in that area.

An event of much interest to this force is thus chronicled:—

"On Sunday, July 24, 1927, Major General the Hon. W. A. Griesbach, C.B., unveiled a stone cairn which has been erected at Fort Saskatchewan, to mark the original site of the old Royal Canadian Mounted Police barracks. It was very fitting that the ceremony should have been performed by a distinguished soldier, who spent his boyhood days at Fort Saskatchewan, where his father, the late Superintendent Griesbach, was in command of 'G' Division of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The general was surrounded on this occasion by a number of Royal Northwest Mounted Police veterans and all ranks of this division at present stationed in Edmonton."

SOUTHERN ALBERTA DISTRICT

Superintendent Christen Junget, the officer commanding "K" Division (Southern Alberta and the Eastern Kootenay district), reports a strength standing unchanged from last year at 79 all ranks. At the date of the closing of the report he had 20 detachments, which was one fewer than in 1926, owing to the abolition of the Big Bend herd camp, consequent on the sale of the surplus horses, for which it was kept up; however, he was about to reopen a detachment on the Peigan reserve at Brocket. Superintendent Junget writes:—

"The outstanding feature of the work of this Force in Southern Alberta district, which includes the eastern part of British Columbia, is the number of detachments engaged in actual police work, or to put it more plainly, in enforcing law and order in territories where we have absolute and complete jurisdiction, to wit, the National Parks and Indian reserves. Thus it will be found that of the twenty detachments at present kept open, more than half are engaged as aforesaid.

"In the Rocky Mountain, Kootenay, Yoho, and Waterton national parks we maintain six permanent detachments, in addition to a well-established motor cycle patrol during the summer season, and on the Indian reserves five detachments. The other detachments are located at convenient points, four of them being directly on the international boundary, two in British Columbia and two in Alberta, their chief work at present being in connection with the enforcement of the Immigration Act. At one of these, Twin Lakes, in Alberta, our non-commissioned officer in charge is acting sub-collector of Customs. The other three or four detachments are maintained at certain points from which they can best carry out the enforcement of all federal Acts, to wit, such places as Cranbrook, Medicine Hat, and Drumheller.

"All the detachments have been kept busy during the year, especially the ones in the national parks, and on Indian reserves, and during the busy season in the summer we had, in the national parks alone, some twenty odd men employed, together with a motor cycle patrol consisting of six motor-cycles.

"This motor-cycle patrol, controlling, as it does, all the traffic throughout the national parks, has proved itself of special value, as the enforcement of speed regulations is very necessary, and accidents will happen. Men on this duty are instructed to use a certain amount of discretion in dealing with tourists, and to avoid court action if a warning will do. In addition to the duty of actually enforcing the speed laws, and other traffic regulations, every machine is supplied with a first-aid kit, and the men are instructed to assist tourists at all times when they are found to be in trouble.

"The Waterton national park, although in its infancy, is rapidly coming to the fore as a tourist resort, being closely linked up with the Glacier national park across the line, and this year the Great Northern Railway completed a very fine tourist hotel at this point and it is expected that next year, when all-weather roads will have been constructed to and from this park, that it will be one of the most popular tourist resorts in this part of the American continent."

Sundry improvements in detachment quarters are mentioned in this connection, including the erection of new barracks in Waterton park.

Superintendent Junget deals at length with the assistance rendered to other departments, mentioning first the investigation of 112 cases for the Department of Immigration and Colonization:—

"The prosecutions under the act in which members of this force were interested do not give an adequate idea of the amount of work carried out for this department, as the majority of cases were those wherein information was required regarding a man's antecedents, etc., and his status as a citizen or otherwise of Canada. A number of these cases resulted in members of this force escorting undesirables to the international boundary and handing them over to a regular Immigration official. In addition to the aforesaid number of cases shown as entered, detachments at border points have been active in the prevention of persons entering Canada by stealth.

"The non-commissioned officer in charge of the Twin Lakes detachment was appointed an Immigration officer about six months ago, and is responsible for all immigration work covering the district in which he is stationed."

With regard to the Department of Indian Affairs he writes:—

"A large number of cases were handled in connection with the Indian Act during the year, and while the figures show a slight decrease in the number of prosecutions entered as compared with the previous year, this by no means implies that there has been any relaxation on the part of the members of this force whose duty it is to see that the provincial and federal laws are enforced on the six Indian reserves in this district.

"The chief work, of course, consists in the prevention of intoxicants being supplied to Indians, and in this connection it is very noticeable that there is a tendency on the part of the Indians themselves to indulge in the drinking of alcohol squeezed from a compound known as 'canned heat'. Several convictions against white men for supplying this commodity to Indians have been secured with good results.

"All members of the division stationed on or adjacent to Indian reserves hold the appointment of truant officer, and have proved of good assistance in the enforcement of the Indian Act relating to truancy.

"In addition to matters of crime attended to by these detachments, close watch is kept by our men, when on patrol, to prevent trespassing on the reserves on the part of white men, as when the latter come to mix with Indians on the reserves they generally turn out to be a nuisance."

The Department of National Revenue has received a good deal of help:—

"The work has fallen off somewhat along the boundary, in so far as this force is concerned, due to instructions received from the Customs Department to the effect that it was not necessary for our detachments to make patrols in the enforcement of the Act.

This, of course, does not apply to the Twin Lakes district, where the non-commissioned officer in charge of our detachment is at the same time in charge of the Customs collecting and preventive station.

"The escorting of goods in bond through Canada by highway from Carway to Waterton Park, for exportation to the United States, is still being carried out.

"The illicit manufacture of spirits is a very rare offence in this part of the country at the present time, and although two or three convictions have been secured during the year for this offence in the division, the offence is rapidly dying out."

In addition, 80 prosecutions were entered at the request of the Department for infractions of the Income War Tax Act, convictions being secured in most cases.

Dealing with the suppression of the traffic in narcotic drugs, the report says:—

"In spite of the fact that the work of this force on behalf of this department has been considerably curtailed, there has been a slight increase in the number of convictions obtained under the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act during the year under review, although fewer prosecutions have been entered."

The Post Office had occasion to use this force.

"Assistance was rendered in connection with the bringing to justice of juveniles who had given considerable trouble in Fernie by pilfering from letter boxes. Also at Galloway, B.C., where the postmaster disappeared, a member of this force took charge of the mails, etc., until such time as the Post Office Department could make some arrangement to handle the situation. The assistance of this force is often asked at public investigations into the alleged improper conducting of a post office where complaints have been made by the public in such respect."

Satisfaction is expressed with the discipline of the division.

NORTHERN SASKATCHEWAN DISTRICT

Superintendent G. L. Jennings, O.B.E., the officer commanding "F" Division (Northern Saskatchewan), notes an increase of strength of two over the figures of 1926, the total of all ranks standing at 40; "for a time during the summer," he remarks, the strength "was really down to an irreducible minimum, and only with great difficulty was the necessary work carried on."

Here as elsewhere assistance to other departments constitutes a large share of the work performed. The enforcement of the Excise Act always has been a preoccupation in this district, and Superintendent Jennings writes:—

"A total of 147 cases were investigated during the year under the Excise Act, resulting in 46 convictions. This is a decrease of 23 cases entered, with an increase of 16 convictions, over that of last year.

"No outstanding seizures of large capacity stills were made, the usual exhibits seized being worm and drip stills of small capacity, also quantities of wash and beer.

"The situation is now fairly well in hand, mainly due to the sale of reputable brands of liquor at reasonable prices by the provincial Government liquor stores, and strict enforcement of the act. The foreign element from Central Europe are still shown as the outstanding offenders against this act, but it would appear that as the demand for illicit spirits has steadily decreased since the opening of Government liquor stores, the illicit manufacture has been mainly confined to private and family consumption. It has been stated that 'community stills' have been operating in certain foreign settlements, one family making use of the still and then passing the apparatus on to another neighbour. These foreigners are not disposed to pay the prices asked by the Government liquor stores, and persist in unlawfully distilling with utensils that are invariably dirty and poisonous."

Investigations under the Indian Act were fewer than in the previous year; most of those brought to court arose from infractions of those sections of the Act relating to intoxicants. Superintendent Jennings says:—

"The Indians in this district are divided into two distinct classes, namely, the southern bands who reside permanently on reserves and are being induced to lead an agricultural mode of life, and the northern bands who continue to make their living by hunting and trapping.

"Members of this division accompanied Indian agents from the Duck Lake, Carlton, Battleford and Onion Lake agencies on their annual treaty payments to the numerous bands under their supervision.

"During the summer months we are often requested by Indian agents to attend Indian celebrations, sports, dances, etc. At times large gatherings from various reserves meet quietly at some central point for the purpose of carrying out a series of dances, against the orders or wishes of the Indian agents.

"During July last, Corporal Chalk of our North Battleford detachment was requested to break up a large dance that was being held on Poundmaker's reserve. Upon arrival at the scene, he found an encampment of some 138 teepees, and between 500 and 600 Indians present, who had gathered from the Little Pines, Sweetgrass and Poundmaker reserves. The dance was in progress in a large improvised tent placed in the centre of the encampment. The various chiefs and headmen were called together and the dance immediately stopped, no resistance being met with in this regard. The four ringleaders responsible for the gathering were then escorted to Battleford and brought before the agent. No charge was placed against them, but they received a severe lecture from the agent and were ordered back to their respective reserves."

Superintendent Jennings also mentions the successful policing of a large treaty celebration in July, 1927, at Fort a la Corne, intoxicants being excluded with beneficial results.

Another case of controlling a large gathering is thus reported:—

"At the request of the Indian agent of Duck Lake, I detailed a patrol of an N.C.O. and constable from the post, to supervise the Indians at the annual pilgrimage to the Roman Catholic shrine at St. Laurent, near Duck Lake, on 16th July last; also to attend the Duck Lake and Beardsy's reserve Indian sports held on 18th and 19th July. Fully 7,000 whites, Indians and halfbreeds from all over the province attended the religious ceremonies at the shrine, coming by auto, waggon and saddle horse. In the absence of other police, our men were asked by the priests to control the traffic, which had become congested and dangerous. The request was complied with, and the traffic successfully handled."

Sports also were held here, and liquor was kept out.

"With reference to the Northern Indian bands, they are also reported to be in good circumstances, although their mode of life is necessarily a harder one. Fur-bearing animals were fairly plentiful, a good average hunt being made. Big game animals were also numerous, and fishing excellent. The general health of these Indians was fairly satisfactory, with the exception of the Hudson Bay district, where an outbreak of 'flu' was prevalent, resulting in 22 deaths. Our Port Nelson detachment visited as many camps as possible during this sickness, and issued relief rations when necessary.

"Our detachments at The Pas, Pelican Narrows and Port Nelson made periodical patrols through the Indian settlements and hunting areas in Northern Manitoba and Northeastern Saskatchewan. As we have no detachment other than Meadow Lake in the hunting and trapping country of Northwestern Saskatchewan, we have been unable to give the desired attention to the numerous Indian bands in this area. The district is far too large to be covered by our Meadow Lake detachment, and includes the Indian settlements at Lac la Plonge, Isle a la Crosse, Buffalo River, Portage la Loche, Clear Lake, Cree Lake, Island Lake, Canoe Lake, Patchonac, Souris River, Snake Lake, Stanley, Lac la Ronge, etc. It is to the general interest of Indians and whites alike that a detachment be established to cover this large area, especially now that the Saskatchewan Provincial Police have abolished their detachments at both Isle a la Crosse and Lac la Ronge.

"Our Pelican Narrows detachment has a large area to cover in Northeastern Saskatchewan and Northwestern Manitoba, and has not the time to patrol to the west, however, a lengthy patrol was made last winter as far west as Stanley, Lac la Ronge and Montreal Lake. During this patrol an Indian was arrested on a theft charge of a serious nature and sentenced to a term of two years in Prince Albert penitentiary.

"Foreigners of all classes are on the move into the north, ostensibly trapping and prospecting. Many of them are of a shiftless, immoral type who create trouble and discontent amongst the Indians.

"Our non-commissioned officer at Port Nelson acted as Indian agent in the Hudson Bay coast district, and paid the annual treaty money to the Fort Churchill, York Factory and Fort Severn bands during the summer. Investigation was also made by this detachment regarding an Indian girl of the York Factory band who had done away with the dead body of her child. A charge was preferred under Section 272 of the Code, and accused committed for trial and escorted to Dauphin, Man. The trial took place at the latter point and accused given a two years suspended sentence. She later returned to her band.

"I would again emphasize the necessity of more medical men being stationed in the northern portions of Manitoba and Saskatchewan. From The Pas north to Port Nelson and Fort Churchill in Manitoba, and west to Isle a la Crosse in Saskatchewan, there is not one physician in that tremendous area. The Indians should be visited more often than once a year, and in cases of accident the medical officer should have every facility to travel quickly to where his services are required. Should an epidemic occur it would be most fatal before a physician from outside could reach the locality."

With reference to the Department of Immigration and Colonization, 42 cases were investigated, the number being somewhat in excess of that of last year. Superintendent Jennings remarks:—

"These cases were of an interesting and varied nature, dealing with the proper settling of immigrants, gathering information re prospective deportees and undesirables, deporting aliens, etc. A number of these entailed considerable work extending over a period of months."

A record of the working of an interesting social change is contained in the following paragraph:—

"A total of 558 licenses to operate radio receiving sets were issued during the year, being an increase of 40 over last year's figures. The instalment of radio sets in this district is proving more popular as time goes on, especially in the outlying farming and trapping areas, not only as a source of entertainment, but also in keeping these outlying points in touch with markets, world events, etc.

"Many hardware merchants and others throughout the district have now been supplied with radio license books and sell licenses to operators of receiving sets."

The investigation of applications for naturalization bulks large in our returns, and the following passage shows the process at work:—

"A total of 337 naturalization applications were investigated during the year, being a decrease of 96 over that of last year. Saddle horse was used in as many of these cases as possible, often entailing long patrols into new settlement districts over very bad trails. While on these investigations, the members are able to get first-hand knowledge of conditions generally, and to make enquiries re the Explosives Act, Radiotelegraph Act, missing persons, etc., without incurring extra expense."

Another type of service is thus noticed:—

"Eighty-three hardware stores carrying explosives and small arm ammunition were inspected during the year, and with few exceptions, were found to be complying with the regulations. No expense was incurred in making these inspections, this work being done when opportunity occurred whilst on patrol re other duties."

Particulars are given of the investigation of one or two of the more important accidents from the improper handling of explosives.

In dealing with the three northern detachments, Superintendent Jennings observes:—

"Port Nelson detachment made two winter patrols and one summer patrol to Fort Churchill, one winter patrol to Shamattawa and Sturgeon Lake, Ont., one summer patrol to Fort Severn, Ont. and a number of winter and summer patrols to Kettle Rapids on the Hudson Bay Railway. These patrols were in connection with Indian treaty payments, rendering assistance to Indians during the 'flu' epidemic, carrying mails and general police duties.

"The Pas detachment made both winter and summer patrols to practically all settlements, trapping, fishing and mining areas in that district, in connection with the enforcement of the Indian Act and police duties generally.

"The Pelican Narrows detachment made one winter patrol to Stanley, Lac la Ronge and Montreal Lake, one winter patrol to the Churchill River Indian camps, one winter patrol to Pukkatawagan, one summer patrol to Flin Flon mining district, and one summer patrol to Reindeer Lake and Lac du Brochet. These patrols were made in the enforcement of the Indian and Excise Acts, and police duties generally. Whilst at Lac du Brochet an insane Indian woman was arrested and committed for treatment. This woman was accordingly escorted by Corpl. Molloy to the psychopathic ward, Winnipeg general hospital, entailing an arduous journey of 420 miles by canoe, 120 miles by boat, and 470 miles by train."

With regard to general conditions he reports:—

"General conditions as a whole throughout the district during the past year have been very satisfactory, agriculture and lumbering being particularly on a sound thriving basis.

"With regard to the fur trade, the Hudson's Bay Company, Revillon Freres, and other fur traders operating in the northern part of the district have had a fairly satisfactory year. The closed season for beaver was keenly felt in some localities; however, other fur bearers were fairly plentiful, with the exception of muskrat, which show a noticeable decline every year."

In this connection he notices a tendency to embark upon muskrat farming, for which certain regions within easy reach of the railways are well suited on account of the prevalence of marshes. He also remarks upon the increasing keenness of the competition between fur traders.

Other observations are:—

"Immigration was more brisk this season than it has been for many years, large numbers of Europeans being settled throughout the agricultural areas in the district. These newcomers have been of a good average farming type, and with few exceptions, have settled down to steady work."

"New areas to the north are steadily being opened up for homestead entry and stock raising. Much hard work in clearing land of timber is necessary in some of these northern areas before crop returns are forthcoming; however, wonderful progress has been made."

In a reference to the Hudson Bay Railway, the report says:—

"No labour unrest was experienced amongst the men on this work, wages and living conditions being reported as much superior to those of former railroad construction camps. No cases of the manufacture of illicit liquor have been reported from this district."

This part of the report is thus summed up:—

"I can only repeat that the country to the north of here is rapidly opening up and as a result thereof our work will undoubtedly be increased."

The total mileage of this division was 91,580, of the following types: by rail, 55,122; by trail, 29,698; by livery, 6,760. Of the total, 25,326, or rather over a quarter, was on police business proper, and the remainder was incurred on behalf of other departments, the largest items being 23,047 for the Secretary of State (mainly on naturalization inquiries), 20,417 for the Department of National Revenue, and 16,367 for that of Indian Affairs.

SOUTHERN SASKATCHEWAN DISTRICT

Superintendent W. P. Lindsay, officer commanding in southern Saskatchewan, in dealing with strength and distribution, says:—

"I have fifteen detachments including Regina, manned by a strength of 36—one officer (superintendent), 20 non-commissioned officers and 15 constables. This total includes five detectives, one stationed at Moose Jaw, three in Regina and one away on special duty. One detective staff-sergeant and one detective constable, who were on special preventive service for the Customs Department, returned to duty on March 17 last.

"Again this year there has been a noticeable increase in the work performed. The total investigations conducted this year amounted to 5,073—last year's total was 4,845—being an increase of one and half per cent. This increase has been gradual for the past six years. In 1921 cases investigated amounted to 1,982, and this year they are 5,073; being an increase of 3,090 cases, which is approximately 155 per cent."

The foregoing figures do not include certain work performed by the non-commissioned officer at Bengough in his capacity as sub-collector of customs and immigration inspector. The customs work was as follows:—

Customs permits issued to cars touring to U.S.A.....	298
Customs permits received from cars returning from U.S.A.....	271
Customs permits issued to cars touring from U.S.A.....	741
Customs permits received from cars returning to U.S.A.....	773
Total	2,083

The immigration work was:—

Admitted as non-immigrants.....	2,822
Admitted as immigrants.....	27
Total	2,849

A total of 4,932 transactions which can hardly be styled "cases," but which none the less require individual attention.

In this district as elsewhere assistance to other departments accounted for a great deal of work. With regard to work done for the Nationalization Branch of the Department of the Secretary of State, Superintendent Lindsay writes:—

"Investigations for this department amounted to 523, a slight decrease from last year. These investigations entail a great deal of work and each applicant is closely examined personally and then a general investigation is made into his character, etc. In many cases long patrols were made by saddle horse, the applicants residing in remote parts of the district which are not accessible by train."

Another class of work is that performed for the Department of National Revenue. Upon this Superintendent Lindsay reports:—

"A considerable amount of work was performed for this department in the enforcement of the Customs Act and Excise Act. Under the Customs Act a great deal of petty smuggling had been going on; numerous offenders were caught and dealt with severely; 131 cases were investigated, resulting in 88 convictions being obtained. In the Bengough detachment district 14 smuggled horses were located; these horses had been sold to various farmers; they were placed under seizure, and the seizures were upheld by the department.

"Arising out of a smuggling case reported upon in the last annual report re Zizu Natanson; the department sued this party for the duty paid value of the goods smuggled. In giving evidence on his own behalf, he and his brother, Lupu, committed perjury, and the presiding judge, Mr. Justice Taylor, of the King's Bench, instructed that indictments be preferred against them, which was done. Both these parties appeared before judge and jury in January last and were found 'guilty.' Zizu was sentenced to 2 years and 9 months and Lupu to 2 years and 3 months in the Prince Albert penitentiary. Both entered appeals, and Zizu Natanson's sentence was reduced to 15 months and Lupu Natanson was granted a new trial. A new trial was held before judge and jury this fall and he was again found 'guilty' and sentenced to 15 months in the common gaol, Regina. An appeal has again been entered which is to be heard in October, 1927."

Regarding the Excise Act he says:—

"Four hundred and fifty-four new cases were investigated during the year, this being a decrease of 65 from last year. The convictions obtained were 147. This illicit traffic is particularly confined to the foreign element, and they persist in making it for their own use, chiefly because it is cheaper than the Government liquor and also because they have acquired a taste for home-brew and now prefer it to the lawfully manufactured liquor.

"The amendments to section 185 of the Excise Act have greatly facilitated our obtaining convictions under this section of the Act; previously it was almost impossible to obtain a conviction unless the accused made an admission.

"Two old cases under section 180e of this Act, which have been outstanding for about three years, were brought to a successful conclusion this spring. One party named Ubaid Bienvenu, who was convicted in 1924 at Melville under section 180e, was given time to pay his fine; when the day approached for payment, it was learnt that he had left for parts unknown. Efforts were made to trace him in Montreal, Detroit and elsewhere. In the spring information was received that a party thought to be Bienvenu was working in the Gravelbourg district under an assumed name. Investigation was made and Bienvenu was located. He firmly denied being the party wanted, but the constable, after a great deal of consideration, decided to place him under arrest, as he tallied with the description he had, which was three years old; so when Bienvenu saw the game was up, he confessed that he was the party wanted and paid the fine and costs.

"The other case was Wm. Mararash, who was also convicted at Melville and given time to pay his fine. He also disappeared, and a hunt was instituted for him in the northern and southern parts of Alberta; eventually he was traced to Le Pas, Man., and placed under arrest and brought to Regina gaol to serve his sentence.

"The total amount of fines assessed under the Excise Act amounted to $29,825."

Under the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act eight convictions were obtained, the most interesting being one in which the Medicine Hat and Swift Current detachments co-operated in arresting a Chinese who received opium by mail, concealed in newspapers, at Piapot, Sask.

Under the heading of aid to the Post Office Department the following appears:—

"Referring to the Richardson post office robbery reported in last annual report: this party was located and apprehended at Thorold, Ont. He appeared before Judge Hannon at Regina, December 7, 1926, and was sentenced to three years in the Prince Albert penitentiary for this offence.

"Regarding the Goodeve post office robbery, which was reported upon last year, I am pleased to report that after a considerable amount of tedious work, Corporal Metcalfe of our Melville detachment brought this case to a successful conclusion. The culprit was tried by judge and jury at Melville on March 1, 1927, and found guilty, under section 364c of the Criminal Code, and was sentenced to three years in the Prince Albert penitentiary. The following is an extract from a letter dated March 3, 1927, from the District Superintendent Postal Services, Saskatoon:—

"The investigators deserve a great deal of credit for the manner in which this case was handled and I especially commend Corporal Metcalfe, who spent a great deal of time obtaining evidence. He did all in his power to bring the case to a satisfactory conclusion. I cannot speak too highly of Corporal Metcalfe's work in this connection."

The radio licenses issued numbered 3,011, and 310 shops were inspected under the Explosives Act.

Assistance was rendered when necessary to other police forces, the cases numbering 29. "In this number," observes Superintendent Lindsay, "are included several arrests for criminal offences in the absence of the provincial police; also a strict vigilance was maintained for the Winnipeg murderer, known as the 'Strangler.'"

The mileage in this district amounted to 151,301; in all there were 2,938 patrols.

MANITOBA DISTRICT

Inspector T. Dann, the officer commanding "D" Division (Manitoba and Northwestern Ontario), reports a total strength of 56 all ranks, adding:—

"A few more men are needed for general duties and replacements. The onerous duty of protective guard at the Assistant Receiver General's office is better performed when about eight men are employed in turn; at present it often devolves on four."

Inspector Dann observes with satisfaction the renting of new quarters, decidedly superior to those formerly in use.

In dealing with assistance rendered to other departments, Inspector Dann deals first with that under the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act:—

"The work done in this division during the past year, whilst not resulting in as many cases brought before the courts, has had a much more satisfactory effect on the drug traffic. Persistent effort has resulted in the apprehension of perhaps the most important figures in the local illicit trade.

"The arrest of Russell Conn had a good effect, as this man was perhaps one of the boldest of the street peddlers in Winnipeg, and his conviction undoubtedly had a deterrent effect on the other dealers for some time.

"Jun Gum Som, Chinese, according to our information, was the principal source (retail) of opium in Winnipeg. This man will appear for trial before the fall assizes.

"Mike Dobois, white, has also been committed for trial at the same assizes. This man was said to be the one who had taken Conn's place in the retail supply of narcotics to addicts, and in addition he is thought to have had something to do with the international traffic.

"The two most recent arrests, those of Henry Venegratsky, alias Henry Vine and John Stevenson, alias 'Rusty' Stevens, have caused consternation among the local dealers in narcotics. I consider that the work done in effecting the arrest of these two men was excellent. The men were perhaps the largest dealers in Winnipeg, both wholesale and retail, Vine being the suspected importer of the drugs from Montreal. We were not able to effect these arrests until outside assistance had been granted, although constant efforts had been made by my detectives for some months, to make a strong case against both of the suspects. Venegratsky has been committed to stand trial at the fall assizes and Stevenson is at present being sought for, he having defaulted on $10,000 recognizances."

Another remark is:—

The outstanding cases of Venegratsky and Stevenson would tend to show the inherent strength in the scheme of having an outside operative (a member of the Force if possible), come into a district and there work on information gathered by the local staff, following the most direct leads and keeping an open mind for any new developments arising out of contacts established."

After some further notes on this type of work, the report says:—

"Assistance of very considerable value was supplied by this Force to the Winnipeg city police in connection with Rex vs. Sam Riley (city police case). This man jumped his bail and on information supplied from this office, he was later arrested in Toronto and is now serving his sentence at Stoney Mountain Penitentiary."

As regards the Department of Immigration and Colonization, Inspector Daun writes:—

"During the year the assistance rendered to the above named department has been principally that of the examination of persons entering and leaving Canada, but apart from these duties considerable work has been undertaken in connection with enquiries for the immigration officials in all parts of my division."

As in divisions further west, certain travelling circuses were kept under observation.

Indian affairs occupied a good share of our attention.

"Looking over our work for the year in connection with assistance to the Indian Department, I am convinced that the prosecutions of the Bostrom brothers and Charles Sjogren, which took place in 1924 and 1925, have effectively put a stop to the wholesale liquor traffic in the Lake Winnipeg district amongst the Indians. A rumour was circulated that Sjogren was back at his old game, but during a patrol to Little Grand Rapids a careful inquiry proved this rumour to be false, and conditions on the reserves where Sjogren formerly operated are entirely satisfactory.

"Over $5,000 was collected in fines for breaches of the Indian Act, and a considerable proportion of this amount has been for fines levied for supplying liquor to Indians, which will have a good effect in helping to put a stop to drunkenness on the reserves.

"One case worthy of mention is that of a Canadian National Railway news agent (Max Steinberg) suspected for some time of selling liquor to Indians on trains. We were able to secure evidence and obtain a conviction. He was fined $200 and discharged by the company.

"The assistance rendered to the Indian Department has embraced treaty patrols, locating and conveying delinquent Indian children back to school, investigations as to alleged drunkenness on reserves, accidental death of an Indian woman, alleged shooting of Indian horse, theft of hay off reserves, conveying demented Indians to insane asylums,—one insane Indian had to be brought from Cat Lake, Ont., involving a patrol of 634 miles.

"A patrol was made to Valley River Indian reserve to investigate the prevalence of venereal disease amongst the Indians. This investigation revealed that 75 per cent of the adult population were suffering from this disease in some form or other. It is reported that the Indians seek to obtain help from medicine men on the reserve in preference to reporting their condition and obtaining proper medical treatment.

"The excessive slaughtering of moose on the Jackfish Indian reserve in order to obtain the hides, which were being sold for $1 each, was reported by us. A patrol was made by our Norway House detachment by sea plane through the courtesy of the R.C.A.F. Grand Rapids was visited and conditions among the Indians found to be satisfactory. The flying time on this trip was only 3 hours and 50 minutes, while 250 miles was the distance covered.

A curious piece of work for the Department of the Interior was the sealing and guarding of an oil well discovered in the Grandview district, and examined in May, 1927, by officials of the Department of the Interior.

Work was done for the Department of Marine and Fisheries, one aspect of it being thus noticed:—

"In reference to illegal sturgeon fishing, this has been quite prevalent in the Lac du Bonnet district, and considerable work has been done by us in an endeavour to put a stop to same, but the geographical nature of this district and the known lawless nature of the settlers, . . . —furthermore the privilege extended to those operating under a domestic license to sell a portion of their catch for local consumption—have continued to make the matter a hard one to deal with. I am pleased to note that this privilege has recently been rescinded, which will assist materially in enforcing the fishery regulations."

In dealing with the work done for the Customs Branch of the Department of National Revenue, Inspector Dann writes:—

"The bulk of the work in my division connected with assisting the above branch of the Federal service, has fallen on the border detachments, and has entailed principally such duties as: the assessing and collecting of duty, issuing of tourist permits, excise tax stamps, collectors' permits for less than 24 hours, goods seized and released on deposit, and escorting of cars to the boundary after release from seizure.

"The smuggling of horses into Canada by Indians of the Griswold Indian reserve was investigated by us, resulting in 5 Indians being assessed double duty, and one horse being seized and handed over to the Indian agent.

"Several cases of smuggled cigarettes and tobacco have been handled by my detachments but this form of smuggling is apparently not now as prevalent as last year.

"A case against a storekeeper smuggling a lighting plant and radio set was successfully prosecuted. There appeared to be little doubt that this conviction put a stop to smuggling that had been going on for a considerable time. . . .

"Considerable work done throughout the year, under this heading, has been in connection with the investigations in respect to smuggled automobiles, and escorts provided for United States cars, after release from seizure, to the boundary. The close co-operation which has been maintained by my boundary detachments with both United States and Canadian Customs officials has in my opinion helped to put a stop to the smuggling operations formerly carried on."

With regard to the Excise Branch, two or three paragraphs may be quoted:—

"The work done throughout the year by us, in connection with the enforcement of the Excise Regulations, shows a decrease,—this it is fair to suppose is not the result of decreased vigilance, but there is no doubt that the number of persons contravening the regulations is on the decline. . . .

"Five stills of large size, one of which was of 250 gallon capacity, together, with 41 40-gallon barrels of mash, and twenty one-gallon cans of alcohol, were located and raided in the division, assistance being rendered local excise officers in each instance; convictions were obtained in all cases.

"One of these stills was described by an Excise officer as being the most complete up-to-date apparatus seized, being modeled on the lines of a commercial distillery."

The Post Office Department provided some work; the following are extracts from this portion of the report:—

"Several minor post office thefts have been investigated by us at different points in this division. Considerable work was done in connection with the robbery of a store, also used as a post office, at Elk Ranch, Man. and the information obtained was transmitted to the Manitoba Provincial Police to assist them in tracing the culprits.

"Another case in which we assisted a Post Office inspector resulted in the arrest of a girl for raising post office money orders; she was sentenced to two years in an Ontario reformatory. . . .

"At the request of the post office officials an investigation was made regarding the tampering with rural mail boxes, and reports submitted to the department.

"A translation was made of what appeared to be a military map, which was in reality a game to be used for gambling, at the request of the Winnipeg postal officials."

With regard to naturalization inquires he writes:—

"The naturalization applications completed in my division during the past year numbered 1,235. This is a drop from last year's total.

"As in earlier years, the Austrian and Polish nationality predominate, next in number being Russian Jews. An increased number of American citizens appear to have been seeking Canadian citizenship.

"The greater part of these investigations were in Winnipeg and in the immediate vicinity. Fort William came next and quite a large number made application in the Dauphin, Shoal Lake and Lac du Bonnet districts.

"Another thing noticeable in this connection is the larger number of females applying for naturalization.

"Every effort has been made to carry out these investigations in the most economical manner possible."

In the cases arising under the Criminal Code, a set of offences at once mean and dangerous is noticed:—

"Two of the above convictions were for the theft of gasoline from R.C.A.F. caches in the Norway House district—a third case in this connection is under investigation."

Assistance was given on occasion to other police forces:—

"On a number of occasions members of this Force have been requested to assist the Provincial Police department and have done so whenever it was thought necessary in the interests of the public and when Provincial police help was not obtainable. In all, this assistance has been rendered in 32 cases. . . .

"Theft of furs from the Hudson's Bay Company post at Fort Alexander was investigated by us in the absence of Provincial police, reports being afterwards submitted to the Commissioner of the M.P.P. at this point.

"A theft of clothing at Lac du Bonnet was handled by us, the provincial police not being available. The suspect was arrested by us as he was leaving the train at Winnipeg and turned over to the M.P.P. authorities.

"In connection with the murder of Mrs. E. Patterson and Miss Lola Cowan at Winnipeg, in June last, every assistance was given to both the city and provincial police in an endeavour to apprehend the man known as the 'Strangler' for this crime."

WESTERN ONTARIO DISTRICT

Superintendent H. M. Newson, officer commanding "O" Division (Western Ontario), reports a strength of 45 all ranks, a gain of four. The number of detachments remains at nine, with a patrol at Camp Borden, and a permanent detached guard at the Assistant Receiver General's office in Toronto. Inspector G. F. Fletcher has come to the division from "G" Division and is stationed at Oshweken, while Inspector T. H. Irvine has been transferred to the "Depot" Division at Regina. A matter of some moment to us is thus treated:—

"As in previous years I have been unable to hold any intensive drill in the division owing to the very few men available at any one point and it would be impracticable to group the members of the detachments in the different areas as they, the detachments, are too great a distance from one another, and also the members are kept busy with their duties. At every inspection the inspecting officer drills the members present, which keeps them efficient.

"The revolver practice for the current year has not yet been completed owing to the members of the division being urgently required on other duties. The showing made, however, is a great improvement over previous years.

"As regards training, the constables are getting good instruction from the non-commissioned officers and they are also gaining experience in carrying out their various duties."

Similar observations, it may be interjected, are made by most of the officers commanding districts.

In expressing his satisfaction with the work of all ranks under his command, Superintendent Newson adds that, owing to three of the senior non-commissioned officers being detailed to other duty, extra and responsible work was thrown on to younger men and with less experience, and that this was well met.

In dealing with the Criminal Investigation Branch, Superintendent Newson writes:—

"The total number of cases handled by this department during the year show a decrease but this decrease, on analysis, is in the number of applications for naturalization handled. There was an increase in other investigations."

In the enforcing of federal statutes, an increase of 114, or 18.75 per cent, was recorded, the number of cases standing at 722 as compared with 608 in 1925-26. The report proceeds:—

"Owing to the fact that for the greater part of the period now under review I was without the services of two of my senior detectives and also those of one of my best non-commissioned officers from detachment, the added volume of work put a great strain on the men left in my command, to which they responded creditably, as is evidenced in the large number of convictions obtained—269 as against 185 in the fiscal year 1925-1926—or over 45 per cent."

Dealing with the warfare on the illicit use of narcotic drugs, Superintendent Newson says:—

"As in previous years, the major operations in "O" division have centred around the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act. Since 1925, when our attention was first drawn to the illicit trafficking in drugs by certain members of the medical profession, we have from time to time run across fresh evidence, showing clearly that the menace from this source was not under-estimated in 1925, when after a year's operation in Western Ontario, I expressed the opinion that there was still considerable work to be done in this connection.

"In 1926, nine doctors were prosecuted and convicted under the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act, and this year another six have been proceeded against, of whom three have been convicted, and three are awaiting trial.

"Our operations have been given press publicity, but despite this the general public are seemingly unaware of the extent of this menace. The tendency through ignorance is to belittle the danger, as the evil of drug addiction is a private one, only occasionally reaching the attention of the public through the medium of the police court news. I would not venture to estimate the number of addicts in my territory, but their number is, I am afraid, larger than suspected.

"In the cases of two veterinary surgeons engaged in this nefarious traffic, ounce quantities were purchased by men who were not addicts. In these cases, the drugs legally purchased by the veterinaries cost $12.50 per ounce and were retailed to our operatives at $40 per ounce, proving conclusively that they were trafficking in narcotic drugs for personal gain."

Superintendent Newson mentions one case in which the press comments were to the effect that "physicians who are ignorant, careless or worse in the giving of narcotics to drug addicts, will realize acutely their position by the decision of a Toronto police magistrate when he inflicted a $500 fine." After quoting the magistrate's judgment in this case, he says:—

"It will be noted that attention is drawn in this summing up to the lack of provision of proper machinery to enable doctors to deal with patients who should be under restraint submitting to a cure for addiction to a narcotic drug. This question I raised in my last annual report, pointing out that the only present unsuitable alternatives are the common jails, asylums, or expensive hospitals.

"In securing the conviction of John Keenan and subsequently Mrs. Keenan, his wife, we destroyed one of the most dangerous sources of supply of narcotic drugs in this district.

"We were also successful in arresting a large trafficker from the United States, W. J. Hayes, who carried on his operations under cover of the race tracks, he being an owner of several race horses. I am sorry to say that he was allowed out on $10,000 bail and he has skipped the country.

"Co-operation of this division with the United States' narcotic agents resulted in our force arresting several prominent drug traffickers at Vancouver, B.C., and Montreal, P.Q. We were also able to effect several important arrests for the United States' authorities of important drug traffickers, who had come to this district. The success resulting from this co-operation only goes to show what can be achieved by working closely with other police departments."

Another passage in this part of the report is:—

"The Customs and Excise Acts also claimed a great deal of our attention, 81 convictions being recorded as against only 26 the previous year. Fines totalling $10,400.99 were inflicted, of which $8,300.99 was paid.

"As in previous years, assistance was rendered the local Excise Officer in conducting searches and raids.

"Heavy penalties were inflicted in many instances where white men had supplied liquor to Indians, in an effort to make this illicit traffic unprofitable."

Another feature of our work is thus noticed:—

"Investigations made for the Department of Secretary of State (Naturalization Branch) during the fiscal year totalled 2,716, a decrease of 417 as compared with the period 1925-26. Of late, suspicion has been aroused as to the genuineness of the claim of certain individuals who have secured naturalization certificates and who have made application for duplicate certificates, claiming the originals were accidentally lost. This suspected trafficking in naturalization certificates is receiving our close attention."

EASTERN ONTARIO DISTRICT

Superintendent T. S. Belcher, officer commanding "A" Division (Eastern Ontario and part of Western Quebec), reports a strength of 248 all ranks, an increase of 14. After noting that his territory is identical with that known as Military District No. 3, he proceeds:—

"In addition to the above, we have a detachment consisting of an officer and 35 men at Halifax. Their duties are the same as previously reported, i.e., guarding the dockyards, magazines, and other Government property. They also have a plain clothes staff enforcing the federal statutes."

In dealing with the increase in strength he notes:—

"To make up this increase, five were taken on at Halifax, and, of course, are of no use in Ottawa to carry out the work here. The other nine were taken on to replace men who were transferred temporarily to the Customs. The present strength does not give us any too many, as extra calls are coming in all the time for work and all the men are kept busy."

With regard to detachments he reports:—

"At Amos, P.Q., I have two constables and two specials. Their work consists principally of looking after the Indians of the district, and attending to offences which come under the Indian Act. The constable in charge has been appointed a Customs preventive officer, and, therefore, gives attention to infractions of the Customs and Excise Act. Also, of course, the detachment attend to anything under the federal statutes which come to their notice. Travelling in the district has somewhat improved on account of the roads having been fixed up. It is now possible to get around anywhere with motor cars in the summer. Of course, in the winter most of the travelling has to be done by dogs, as the trails get heavily snowed in and are impassable to motor traffic. A lot of travelling is also done on the river in the summer time by motor boat and canoe.

"During the summer months, I again had to send a man for duty at Bersimis, P.Q. He is there for the purpose of looking after the liquor traffic amongst the Indians and enforcing any other federal statutes which come to his notice. Owing to the increased work, and the fact that the Indian reserves are scattered, it has been decided to send a second man to Bersimis and make the detachment a permanent one. To enable our men to get around the district, especially in the summer time, I would recommend that a motor boat be supplied to the detachment. At present, we have to depend on the river steamers, which only run once or twice a week, and a lot of time is wasted in this way that otherwise could be used profitably in doing our work.

"During the year past, Inspector Kemp was transferred to Herschel Island and Inspector King was sent to this Division to take his place."

Superintendent Belcher adds a commendation of Inspector Kemp, as thoroughly acquainted with the work, and taking a great interest in everything concerning the men.

Satisfaction is expressed with the buildings in use, and with the general condition of service.

The work of this division differs in many respects from that of others, and the following remarks under the heading "Duties and Investigations" may be quoted:—

"The duties undertaken by this division consist largely of the protection to Government buildings, supplying men for ceremonial purposes, investigations, and the enforcement of federal statutes, the patrolling of Government parks, and looking after fire protection in all Government buildings, and running a Government mail service.

"During the year, we stationed guards at 26 buildings, one less than the previous year, the Electoral building being withdrawn, but, to offset this, we had to put a double guard on the Printing Bureau, one man on the back door as well as on the front; this to check the removal of parcels from the building. . . . In addition to this, our patrols visited and inspected 39 buildings at night time; these are ones on which no men are posted. The doors and windows were tested and if found open, the building was entered and thoroughly examined to see that everything was all right, and then locked securely, and the matter reported. We still find a great deal of carelessness on the part of the staffs in the different buildings. Night after night our patrols find the doors left open or the windows unfastened and not closed down. It is a wonder, owing to conditions, that more thieving is not taking place. To carry out these duties, it takes an average of 18 non-commissioned officers and 153 men. This includes reliefs and supervision men for the different buildings. Last year the annual leave started on March 1, and will end about October 31. Every man has got his twenty-one days, with the exception of the recruits who have not been here a year.

"We still continue to keep a heavy guard on the Finance Department and supply armed escorts, both in uniform and plain clothes, for the Currency Branch, for the protection of gold coming from the Mint. We also supplied 16 non-commissioned officers and men for special duty at Ottawa, Ont., Belleville, Ont., and Kingston, Ont., for protection to the Taxation offices during the year; this duty lasted for ten days and was carried out satisfactorily.

"The mail service, run by this division, shows an increase over that previously reported. We carried and collected, during the year, 33,118 letters, which was an increase of 3,795 over last year. This duty is carried on by three constables who make four trips a day to eleven buildings, three trips a day to ten buildings, and two trips a day to four buildings.

Each evening the mail slips are turned into the guard room and kept on file, so they can be referred to at any time in case any mail is reported missing. We get numerous inquiries from the departments covering mail, and on all occasions we have been able to prove that the mail in question was handed over to the messengers of the department concerned and signed for, and that our men were not responsible for any loss.

"Most of the buildings are supplied with control clocks and telephones. The men have to visit their buildings at regular hours with the control clock and at the close of each visit have to telephone to the guard room and report that everything is correct or otherwise. A record of these calls is kept in the guard room, so that if any man fails to telephone at the hour stated, he is immediately called up to see what is the matter. This, together with the visits paid by the different patrol non-commissioned officers and officers, keeps the men alert and does not give them a chance of sleeping or becoming slack in their work. . . .

"We have kept up the usual patrols through the Experimental Farm and Major Hill park during the day and night; this for the protection of the flowers and fruit. I have found that the men on these patrols have been very useful. In addition to preventing stealing, they have also prevented disorderly conduct in these places and on a number of occasions have arrested people who were not behaving themselves.

"The detectives and constables who were away on the Customs duty at the time of my last report have returned.

"The past year has been an exceedingly busy one for the members of this division. The Jubilee, which lasted for several days, required in the neighbourhood of 100 men every day for extra work; some of the men did 16, 18 and 20 hours a day. You were good enough to recommend that extra pay be given for this duty. We also supplied extra men for a large number of functions at Government House, meeting all trains on the arrival and departure of Their Excellencies, and during the visit of H.R.H., The Prince of Wales. There were also a number of functions at the Museum and Experimental Farm which took from five to ten men extra while they were going on.

"Our fire department consists of one sergeant and six men. Twenty recruits were instructed, during the year, in the use of fire apparatus. Each recruit, on joining up, was given two months' work with the department until he got thoroughly conversant with all matters pertaining to fire protection. . . .

"During the year 1926-27, seventeen fires occurred in the different Government buildings, a decrease of 13 over previous years. These fires were all put out with our own appliances with the exception of two, viz., a fire at the Printing Bureau in the paper-chute on December 9, and one at the Langevin block on April 12; these were put out by the city fire brigade, as they were of a more serious nature. The loss from these fires, as nearly as we can estimate, is $1,000, which is very small considering the accumulation of inflammable material in these buildings."

Under the heading "General Remarks," Superintendent Belcher writes:—

"The work of the division has been carried out satisfactorily during the year. The orderly room, quartermaster stores, office, and guard room have all attended to their end of the work to the best of their ability and I am very satisfied with the way things have been running. As before stated, all the men, both duty and staff, have been called upon to do an exceedingly large amount of extra work, calling for long hours; this in addition to their ordinary duties. The work has been carefully done and the men have given their best. . . . I have done everything possible to see that the members of the division have been given fair play; their complaints have been attended to and rectified to the best of my ability and none of the privileges, which they had as Dominion Policemen, have been taken away from them in any way. In fact, I think they are far better off than they ever were before."

Owing to the special nature of the duties of this division, its criminal investigation work is somewhat different from that elsewhere; however, the volume is considerable.

One phase of work which conforms to the general pattern is that of combatting the narcotic drug evil; here as elsewhere active measures were taken against medical men who prostitute their profession. In dealing with this class of work, Superintendent Belcher separates the cases arising in Ontario and in Quebec; with regard to the former province he says in part:—

"Fifty-four cases under this Act were investigated. Thirty-one prosecutions were entered. Of these eight resulted in convictions; three were dismissed, and twenty withdrawn. The eight convictions were all against doctors under section 6, when fines totalling nineteen hundred dollars were imposed and paid. Two cases against one doctor, under section 6, and one against a trafficker, under section 4 (f), were dismissed. An appeal was entered in one of the cases against the doctor, but the Police Magistrate's decision was sustained.... Of the twenty that were withdrawn nineteen were against the eight doctors previously mentioned, and when they were found, or pleaded, guilty to one charge the department advised dropping the others."

Unfortunately, strong grounds were found for suspecting certain other doctors. Investigations were prosecuted in other cities than Ottawa, the following remarks being made:—

"These were for the most part made on the strength of statements by prominent citizens to the Department but who, it appeared, had very little actual knowledge of the drug traffic."

With regard to investigations in the Quebec portion of the district, the report says:—

"Only eleven cases under this Act were investigated during the past year. Six convictions were obtained. Two doctors, against one of whom were three charges and the other two charges, under section 6, were found guilty on all counts. Concurrent sentences of two hundred dollar fines and costs were imposed in each case. This meant that each had only to pay a fine of two hundred dollars. The other conviction was against an addict found in possession of a fairly large supply of morphine. He was sentenced under section 4 (d) to six months in jail and to pay a fine of two hundred dollars or serve an additional fifteen days."

The following general remark is added:—

"There is no doubt that the traffic in narcotic drugs throughout 'A' Division district is less than it was two or three years back, but the decline in the number of cases investigated is not to be laid to this nearly so much as to the fact that for the past six months the local authorities are responsible for the enforcing of the Act."

The Indian Act entailed a considerable amount of work, 140 investigations resulting in 98 convictions; these were principally for offences in which liquor was concerned. Work under the Criminal Code is heavy in this division, owing to the necessity of protecting government departments from theft and other forms of wrong-doing. Many investigations also owe their origin to the same cause; these often were small affairs, but they entailed work, and in the aggregate the amount of labour involved was considerable. A familiar source of work is thus described, dealing first with the Ontario portion of the district:—

"For the Naturalization Branch of the Department of Secretary of State one hundred and forty-eight inquiries were made regarding the character of as many applicants for citizenship, as follows: seventy-four at Ottawa, thirteen at Kingston, six at Belleville, five at Arnprior, four at Brockville, three each at Vankleek Hill, Renfrew, Smith's Falls, Cornwall and Almonte, two each at Marmora, Eastview, Galetta, Picton and Pembroke, and one each at the following places: Black Donald, Morrisburg, Petawawa, Westboro, Northbrook, Eganville, Pakenham, Ameliasburg, Golden Lake, Deseronto, Laurentian View, Clontarf, Wolfe, Quadeville, Moulinette, Lansdowne, Perth, Prescott, Schutt, Alice and Maynooth."

On the Quebec side:—

"Twenty-one inquiries were made...regarding the character of as many applicants for citizenship, at the following places: five at East Templeton, four at Gatineau Point, three each at Hull and Amos, and one each at Paugan Falls, Low, LaReine, Senneterre, Chelsea and Joseph Farm."

Some of the places named are somewhat out of the way.

QUEBEC DISTRICT

Inspector J. W. Phillips, officer commanding in the province of Quebec, has two detachments in addition to those in Montreal, a permanent one in Quebec city, and a summer detachment at Pointe Bleue.

As usual in this district, counterfeiting engaged the vigilance of our men. Inspector Phillips writes:—

"During the year there have been some prosecutions for passing and being in possession of counterfeit bills, the most noticeable incident of this nature being that of Arthur

M. Hope, convicted of being in possession of over $8,000 worth of counterfeit bills. In another case, over $5,000 worth of American bills were put out of circulation and destroyed, and the possessor convicted. During the early spring we had information of a ring comprising six men, who were about to operate in the manufacture of United States currency in the city of Montreal, but owing to some reason they became afraid; also, one of their most prominent members, Paul Theoret, sickened and died.

"When bills raised or counterfeited make their appearance on the market, vigorous steps are taken by us, at once, to protect the interests of the public and in this connection the assistance of the various banks is much appreciated, especially that of the Bank of Montreal."

With regard to the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act he writes:—

"After months of shadowing we were successful in arresting Charlie Bennett with five ounces of drugs in his possession. At the time of his arrest he was just about to make delivery. Later the same night we searched his cache and found a further quantity of drugs. Two charges were placed against him, and at the time of writing, his cases are still pending.

"A local Chinaman, named Lee Yuey Att, was arrested in connection with the sale of twenty tins of opium; his case is still before the courts.

"During the past year we have done considerable work under the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act and have concentrated on the larger men or higher ups in the traffic; this fact accounts for the decline in the number of men arrested. The larger cases entail long hours of shadowing, etc., before we can obtain sufficient evidence to catch men of this calibre.

"The opium joints and addicts and deck peddlers have been left entirely to the local police to deal with."

Dealing with the inspection of explosives, Inspector Phillips reports:—

"The Department of Mines placed a Ford car at my disposal during the year; this car has been used to very good advantage in visiting outlying districts, and a number of towns not easily accessible by railroad have been visited and the records of the firms carrying explosives checked. During the patrols to these towns, other work has also been done."

The Air Service of the Department of National Defence received assistance.

"At the request of the Air Services, two patrols were sent to Gaspé, Que., to put a stop to the flying operations of a company which was using French pilots to fly Canadian registered machines for commercial purposes. A conviction was obtained in this case.

"An inquiry was also conducted into the flying operations of Alphonse Archangeault of Joliette, Que. The aeroplane owned by this man was subsequently seized by the Customs Department."

Regarding the Post Office the report says:—

"On July 13, 1927, the mail carrier between St. Ludger and St. Samuel was held up and $4,500 stolen. We were asked to investigate the case, and a few days later, one J. O. Bureau was arrested and confessed to the robbery. He was sentenced to three years' imprisonment ($3,740 of the stolen money was recovered).

"Reg. No. 8226, Corporal Lafond, U., has done exceptionally good work during the year for the Post Office Department, and he has been successful in apprehending a number of Post Office employees for theft of mails."

As with "A" Division, Indians have been responsible for some work, the Caughnawaga and Oka reserves having been visited frequently. A matter which attained some publicity is thus chronicled:—

"O. J. Kellogg, Mrs. O. J. Kellogg and W. K. Cornelius, who have been collecting money from Indians for the prosecution of a New York claim of the Six Nations Confederacy, were arrested on November 17, 1926, at Caughnawaga, P.Q.; their books and papers were seized at the time of arrest. Two charges were laid against them, one for conspiracy and the other for false pretences. The accused appeared before Mr. Justice Wilson and jury on the charge of conspiracy, and a verdict of 'not guilty' was found and the accused were dismissed. The charge of false pretences is pending, but it is not thought that the Indian Department will proceed with this charge, as the law has now been amended to prevent persons collecting money from Indians on an Indian reservation."

The Pointe Bleue detachment enforced the Indian Act, some arrests being necessary.

Naturalization inquiries numbered 1,292.

THE MARITIME PROVINCES DISTRICT

Inspector C. D. La Nauze, the officer commanding in the Maritime Provinces, reports "a decided increase in the general work of the district," and explains it thus:—

"I attribute the increase in the statistical tables to the authorized increase of my strength in the early part of 1927. I am now in a position to perform any work that is required, and the Department of National Revenue has placed motor transport at my disposal."

In part the increase in strength is due to additional numbers in the district, and in part to the release, through a change in the arrangements of the garrison, of certain men formerly employed as permanent guards. The cases arising under federal statutes are almost twice as many as in 1925-26, the cases under the Criminal Code show an increase, and the investigations numbered 1,142, as against 302 a year ago. With regard to the last he observes:—

"This is greatly due to the large amount of work performed for the Department of Mines, Explosives Division, and the Radiotelegraph Branch of the Department of Marine and Fisheries."

A feature of the year's work is thus remarked upon:—

"I was able to send four recruits to Regina for training, have sufficient men on hand to carry on the work and grant to every man three weeks annual leave during the summer months.

"Two recruits have since returned from Regina and the experiment has been entirely satisfactory. From now on I will be in a good position to carry out lectures and training locally."

In describing the services rendered to the Department of National Revenue, after remarking that the department provided a good motor car for customs work, Inspector La Nauze proceeds:—

"During the period in question, approximately 2,600 gallons of rum, 500 cases of assorted liquors and 355 gallons of alcohol were seized by us and turned over to the various collectors of National Revenue, as well as seven automobiles, two trucks and two large motor boats.

"In December I was consulted by the Chief of the Customs and Excise Preventive Service for Nova Scotia as to the best methods to prevent the smuggling into Halifax. I recommended the hire of a car, a force of six constables, and the return of Detective Staff-Sergeant Blakeney to duty from the Special Branch of the Customs Department. My recommendations were immediately approved, you sent me three constables from Ottawa, and the hire of a good car was authorized.

"The patrol commenced on December 16 and continued until January. During the first week of the patrol seven rum-running automobiles and trucks, with their drivers and loads, were captured, and later other large seizures of liquor were found and turned over to the Collector of Customs at Halifax.

"Most of our efforts were directed against the Dauphinees' gang of smugglers of Tantallon, and in a fracas one early morning with them, our men were out-numbered four to one. Reg. No. 10046 Constable Oakes, J., was knocked out with a revolver and three of the Dauphinees escaped custody. Our men, however, hung on to the cars and loads, and the Dauphinees were arrested the same day.

"When the Supreme Court opened in March, we had ten indictments under the Customs Act, and nine under the Criminal Code, of which the Grand Jury found in all cases 'true bills.' When the cases, however, reached the petit jury they were all dismissed in spite of the presiding judge's charges to convict, and I am forced to come to the conclusion that it is impossible to proceed by way of indictment against smugglers in this province.

"In referring to the Dauphinee cases, Mr. Justice Mellish said in his charge to the jury: 'First we have the evidence of these Mounted Policemen. I don't think we have much to say in criticism of them. I wish to commend them however on the good sense they displayed in the use of fire-arms on that occasion. If they had not shown their good sense and judgment on that occasion, it might be a serious matter, and I think their good judgment and sense ought to be encouraged. They should be encouraged to act with as good sense and courage as they did on this occasion.'

"The Halifax Herald contained the following leading editorial on December 30, under the caption 'A Bulwark': 'One of the most admirable things in the life of this country is the finely-maintained efficiency of the Royal Canadian Police. Go where you will in Canada and the 'Mounties' are there, living up to their high reputation.

"And the Force in this Province is no exception to the rule. Efficiency and integrity, these are the cardinal principles of its code.

"We are sure that the public at large appreciate these facts. They should also appreciate the duty of supporting the "Mounties" in their work. Such a force of fearless, incorruptible men deserves the best backing the citizens of this country can give."

The Department of Marine and Fisheries also accounted for some work:—

"Assistance was rendered the Radiotelegraph branch of this department, in checking up the operating of receiving sets in Halifax and Dartmouth districts. This occupied the attention of one of our men for a considerable time, and a number of convictions were secured for failing to have a license.

"A patrol was made to Cape Breton to arrest three McKay brothers who were reported as outlaws for infractions of the Fisheries Act. After a struggle the arrests were successfully carried out and the parties lodged in Port Hood gaol."

Here, as elsewhere, the Explosives Division of the Department of Mines made use of our services. Inspector La Nauze reports:—

"Nova Scotia has been covered by one of our Deputy Inspectors of Explosives at the request of this department, and instructions given in the manner of keeping record of receipts and sales, also the storing of explosives.

"Prince Edward Island was also visited in this connection for the first time, but there is little demand for explosives there. New Brunswick is being covered and three convictions were obtained in this province.

"The Chief Inspector of Explosives remarks: 'The services rendered by the special patrol already made in Nova Scotia is greatly valued, and their repetition this year, if practicable cannot but effect marked progress in the enforcement of the regulations.'"

THE YUKON DISTRICT

Inspector F. Humby, reporting for "B" Division (the Yukon), pending the arrival of the late Superintendent T. M. Shoebottom, who had been appointed to command the division, reports a total strength of 39, a slight increase on last year; however, he repeats the recommendation that it be raised to 50. He writes:—

"This territory is becoming more and more popular as a holiday resort, tourists increasing every year, a larger number every year making the round trip, i.e., from Skagway to Dawson, thence down-river to Fairbanks, Alaska and out by way of Anchorage, Alaska; this year some 9,000 entered by way of the White Pass Summit, all of whom are examined by the constable at that detachment in his capacity of Deputy Immigration Inspector.

"The mining industry in the Mayo district is slowly but surely improving as work goes on, and a new strike some 26 miles below Dawson gives promise also of proving valuable.

"There has been more placer work done in the Dawson district than for several years. Hydraulic mining has been restarted, giving employment to some 100 or so men, and all the dredges are working, so that money is more plentiful and everything points to a busy season next year.

"The work and investigations we do for other departments are steadily increasing as will be seen from the attached statistics. It will be noted that our strength in dogs has been increased by seven during the year. This was found necessary owing to the number of patrols to be made in districts where there are no trails, and where supplies have to be carried for the whole trip, since there are no stores where such can be purchased."

A special circumstance affecting this division is the condition of many of the buildings; erected a good many years ago, many have decayed, especially as regards the foundations. In addition, the quarters occupied by Inspector Humby were destroyed by fire on March 17.

As usual, there has been much patrolling:—

"During the year the whole district has been patrolled as much as is possible, the more settled districts receiving the greater consideration, but patrols have not been as frequent as they should on account of our shortage of men. . . .

"Many of our patrols to these outlying points are to investigate reports of accidents, destitution or sickness, and sometimes to bring such contingent cases in to the nearest point for treatment, necessitating arduous work for the investigator.

9971 "The principal patrols were:—

Dawson—Wellesley Lake	600 miles, 28 days
Mayo—Lansing	252 miles, 8 days
Rampart House—Fort Yukon.....	397 miles, 16 days
Whitehorse—Kluahne	500 miles, 16 days
Mayo—Dawson	250 miles, 5 days
Ross River—Whitehorse	616 miles, 20 days
Whitehorse—Teslin	500 miles, 25 days

"The mileage for the past year is as follows:—

By horse	21,984
By dogs or on foot.....	10,783
Train and stage.....	14,490
By motor car.....	4,005
By water	35,601
Total	122,863

Some of the detachments had to be closed in the summer to use the men on special duty. Inspector Humby remarks:—

"It was intended to re-establish the detachment at Champagne this spring, but we had not the men to send. Authority has now been asked for and as soon as received arrangements will be completed to reopen it.

"This detachment takes in the Kluane district, a district requiring frequent patrolling, and this had to be done by the Whitehorse detachment, and since Inspector Bruce has no men to send, detachment men had to be brought in for this duty. . . . Inspector Bruce deserves great credit for the manner he has carried out the multifarious work in his command. . . .

"The detachments at Mayo and Keno were also under strength all summer but have now been brought up to efficiency."

In the Yukon this Force is responsible for the maintenance of law and order, and consequently has to discharge duties elsewhere performed by provincial or municipal police forces. Only one serious crime took place during the twelve months, the murder on October 11, 1926, of an Indian named Pelly Jim by another Indian named Jackie MacIntosh. The crime was committed at Whitehorse, and Inspector Bruce, the Officer Commanding there, on telegraphing the information to headquarters at Dawson, was instructed to spare neither men nor money to arrest the murderer. The report says:—

"Owing to navigation having closed.... methods of travelling were rendered much more difficult, and since we were so short-handed it was necessary to call in men, temporarily from detachment, and also engage special constables to assist in the search....

"Reg. No. 9927 Constable Smith, P.B., traced MacIntosh to the cabin of Dutch Henry on Lake LaBarge, 30 miles below Whitehorse, and Constable Blatta, E., remained there to continue the search whilst Constable Smith continued down stream and up the Hootalinqua river to the winter crossing, where MacIntosh had a camp. He arrived at a point five miles below the crossing on October 13, and walked from there to the Indian encampment, stopping when a short distance away to get his bearings, and whilst there saw an Indian armed with a rifle, who corresponded to MacIntosh in dress and appearance, the latter appearing unconcerned. He sent the Indian guide, who accompanied him, over to MacIntosh (who had not seen Constable Smith), to talk to him, and in a short while both Indians approached Constable Smith, MacIntosh's rifle having been left in his cabin. Constable Smith informed him what he was there for, and arrested him, giving him the necessary warning in simple words that he said he understood. MacIntosh then made a statement to the effect that he had been drinking on the night of the affray, had a fight with Pelly Jim, and finding he was getting the worst of it picked up a knife that was handy and stabbed Pelly Jim two or three times in the neck."

The trial took place on January 8, 1927, and the accused was found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to three years' imprisonment. Inspector Humby makes the following comment:—

"MacIntosh was brought before the courts for the preliminary hearing 5 days after the crime had been committed, despite the fact that he was arrested after a continual search reaching 200 miles away from the scene of the murder, and great credit is due Constable Smith for the manner in which he effected the arrest, and to Inspector W. V. Bruce and members of his detachment for the expeditious manner in which everything was handled and the case conducted."

One Miles Blackburn had supplied the liquor which caused the killing. He was arrested, convicted, and sentenced to six months imprisonment and three months additional imprisonment in default of paying a fine of $300.

In this connection Inspector Humby observes:—

"A considerable increase will be noted in the cases against the Indian Act. Last year 17 cases were reported against 31 for this year, an increase of almost double, most of the cases being ones of 'intoxication'."

"The extreme penalty for this under section 144 of the Indian Act is only one month I.H.L., which I would suggest, is not sufficiently severe; as an instance I might state that one Indian here has been convicted 15 times for this offence, and in no instance will he inform on the person supplying the liquor, and this applies in almost every instance, the Indians preferring to pay a fine or suffer imprisonment rather than turn informer."

" N " DIVISION

Inspector C. H. Hill M.C., the Officer Commanding " N " Division, reports a total strength of 36 all ranks, an increase of 4. During 1926 this division moved from Lansdowne Park in Ottawa to Rockcliffe, where it is quartered in the old rifle range buildings. Inspector Hill reports that during the winter these were found to be warm. A feature of these quarters is that a considerable amount of hay was cut on the old ranges, probably enough for a year's requirements.

The duties of this division are exceptional, it having no territorial responsibilities, and being maintained principally as a reserve for special duties. As regards these, Inspector Hill reports:—

"During the year, the duties of this division have been very varied and we have had more calls and demands than any time since it was established in Ottawa.

"During the winter months, two parties were sent to Halifax for special duty in connection with the rum running, the first party consisting of three constables, leaving on December 17 and the second party consisting of one non-commissioned officer and four constables, leaving on January 10 and not returning until the end of that month."

He enumerates a considerable number of other employments, such as special duty on the Ohsweken reserve, patrols to enforce observance of the Migratory Birds Act, income tax guards, race track duty etc. One interesting piece of work is thus noted:—

"On July 1, I was detailed by you to form a camp and also guard the aeroplane of Colonel Lindbergh during his stay in Ottawa. I took 19 other ranks and 20 horses with me and formed a camp on the Bowesville Road, close to the landing field. We left Ottawa on July 2, and returned to barracks on the 5th."

A task which recurs yearly is the escorting of harvesters' trains:—

"Details were also furnished for duties providing escorts for the purpose of maintaining law and order in connection with the harvester excursion trains. For this duty, I received 35 men from Regina who carried out these duties, the supervision and administration being placed under this division."

Inspector Hill draws attention to a curious and melancholy duty which frequently falls to the lot of this division, owing to its possession of horses, and to its situation in Ottawa,—the furnishing of details for military funerals, both for members of this Force who have died, and also for officers and other ranks of the Militia.

TRAINING

Since the close of the period covered by this report the force has sustained a severe loss in the sudden death of Assistant Commissioner R. S. Knight, who commanded the Depot Division. Before he was struck down Assistant Commissioner Knight completed his annual report.

In dealing with his strength Assistant Commissioner Knight says:—

“The strength of the division as on September 30, all ranks included, was 137, showing a decrease of 4 from the previous year. Of this number 25 non-commissioned officers and constables were stationed on detachment.

“The following engagements, transfers, etc., took place during the year:—

Promotions—

- 1 Staff Sergeant to the rank of Inspector.
- 1 Corporal to the rank of Sergeant.

Reductions—

- 1 Corporal to the rank of Constable.

Recruits posted to Depot Division..... 78

Special Constables engaged..... 3

Transferred from other divisions—

- Officers 1
- Non-Commissioned officers 4
- Constables 22

Transferred to other divisions—

- Officers 1
- Non-Commissioned officers 2
- Constables 90

Struck off the strength—

- Time expired 1
- Purchased 4
- Invalided 4
- Dead 1
- Free discharge 2
- Unsuitable 2
- Dismissed 2
- Special constables discharged..... 2

Details are given of the training, which covered the usual ground—most important of all are the lectures on the duties of a constable, on the federal statutes, the Criminal Code, and the multifarious other things which a policeman must know in addition to riding, mounted drill, foot drill, training with arms, musketry and revolver practice, training of non commissioned officers in instruction, the teaching of special police duties, veterinary science, first aid, etc. One remark is:—

“The absence of a suitable riding school is found to be a great handicap to the winter training of recruits. Last winter the weather was so bad that difficulty was encountered in getting the horses exercised at all.”

Another is:—

“The period allowed for the training of recruits has been far too short to get sufficiently good results. Men are no sooner got well into training than they are wanted for transfer to other divisions.

“Every endeavour has been made to supply good men to meet the many requirements, but I realize that it is not fair to the men or to the Force to pass them out from the training establishment until thoroughly fit.

“The recruits who have been posted to this division during the past year have been a good class of men who seemed to be keen on getting through their training as quickly as possible. They have been used exclusively for guard duty at the Receiver General's office and have performed those duties satisfactorily.”

The graceful side of military life was not neglected, and a musical ride which was trained gave performances on several occasions at Regina and Saskatoon. Another passage is:—

“All forms of sport were encouraged among the men, such as football, baseball, tennis, golf and military sports during the summer months. At the United Services Sports, held in the barrack grounds on July 2, members of Depot Division took part in all events, winning most of them.”

CONTROL OF THE NORTH

Year by year our numbers in the Far North increase. This year the number of officers and men absorbed by detachments on the Arctic coast and islands, on the shores of Hudson bay, in the lower valley of the Mackenzie river, and in the wild region west of Hudson bay, is 77, as against 70 in 1926. These are distributed as follows:—

The Eastern Arctic sub-district, Inspector C. E. Wilcox.—Port Burwell (mainland, near Cape Chidley); Pangnirtung (Cumberland gulf; central Baffin island); Lake Harbour (Hudson strait; southern Baffin island); Ponds Inlet (northern Baffin island); Dundas Harbour (North Devon island); Bache peninsula (central Ellesmere island); six detachments: one officer, 17 other ranks. These are administered from headquarters.

Hudson Bay—Chesterfield Inlet; Port Nelson; Moose Factory; The Pas; Pelican Narrows; five detachments: nine other ranks. Chesterfield Inlet is administered from headquarters, Port Nelson, The Pas and Pelican Narrows from Prince Albert (The Pas is included as the gateway of Northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan), and Moose Factory from Toronto.

Western Arctic sub-district, Inspector V. A. M. Kemp.—Herschel island; Baillie island; Bernard Harbour; Cambridge Bay; Aklavik: five detachments: one officer, 14 other ranks.

Mackenzie sub-district, Inspector Moorhead.—Simpson; Arctic Red River; Norman; Good Hope; four detachments; one officer, 10 other ranks.

Great Slave sub-district.—Inspector C. Trundle and Inspector H. A. R. Gagnon; Fort Smith; Rae; Providence; Fort McMurray; Chipewyan; Resolution; Reliance; Hay River; eight detachments; two officers, 22 other ranks. The three sub-districts last named are administered from Edmonton.

Thus the total is 28 detachments with 5 officers and 72 other ranks, an increase of 7 over 1926.

Geographically speaking, Rampart House, where two constables are stationed, might be included, as it is situated very far north, between latitude 66 and latitude 67, but it is regarded as part of the Yukon.

There have been some changes, especially in the northeastern islands. Craig Harbour detachment has been closed, as that at Bache peninsula proves to be more conveniently situated for reaching the interior and Axel Heiberg and the other islands to the west of Ellesmere island. Against this is to be set the establishment of a new detachment at Lake Harbour, in the southern part of Baffin island and on the northern shore of Hudson strait; this will bring us into touch with a considerable Eskimo population, and with fur trading operations.

In the Western Arctic the suppression of the Tree River detachment and its replacement by that at Cambridge Bay seem well judged, the situation of the latter on further examinations appearing to be superior to that of the older post. Reliance, at the eastern end of Great Slave Lake, is expected to prove an important post, partly because it is the entry to an extensive game country, where a sanctuary is being established, and partly because of its convenience if it should become desirable to open a line of communication from there to Chesterfield Inlet. The establishment of a detachment at Fond du Lac, at the eastern end of Lake Athabaska, is in contemplation; this also will give access to an enormous region.

Inspector C. E. Wilcox, who had spent the winter at headquarters, returned to the north in the summer of 1927, travelling in the s.s. Beothic with reliefs. He will winter at Ponds Inlet, and landed there on August 14, after visiting Bache Peninsula, Craig Harbour and Dundas Harbour, and going with the Beothic to Beechey island, Cornwallis island, North Somerset island, and Arctic Bay.

After he had landed at Ponds Inlet the ship continued her voyage to Pangnirtung and Lake Harbour. At the latter place Sergeant J. E. F. Wight established the new detachment on August 28, 1927.

Inspector Wilcox's report is as follows:—

"I left North Sydney, Cape Breton, in the s.s. Beothic, at 2.45 p.m. July 16, with the undermentioned non-commissioned officers, and constables: Sergeant Wight, Corporal Petty and Constables Anstead, Dersch, Margetts, Cox and Makinson.

"The voyage from North Sydney to Godhavn, North Greenland, was devoid of incident. At Godhavn arrangements were made with the Danish authorities for procuring a few Eskimo families for police service at the two most northerly detachments. The usual courtesies were exchanged with the Danes. Governor and Mrs. Rosendahl and Dr. and Miss Porslid dined on the ship and two informal motion picture shows were given, attended by practically the entire population.

"The expedition left Godhavn, July 23. The weather was fine and the sea calm. The ice-pack was sighted for the first time at 6 a.m. Sunday, 24. On Monday the 25th the icefields to the west were entered at 6 a.m. It rained throughout the day. The following day, was, however, clear. In clear water at 4 a.m. Bylot island was sighted at 10 a.m. The ship was forced to stop about ten miles inside Ponds Inlet, on July 26, owing to solid ice, and was unable to continue on to detachment (distant 30 miles). After waiting at the edge of ice till midnight we proceeded to Dundas Harbour. Members of the detachment came on board and reported 'all-well' during past year. Stores for detachment were being unloaded at 6 a.m. next morning and completed by noon. At 2.45 the anchor was hoisted and the expedition proceeded to Craig Harbour, encountering no heavy ice until arrival there.

"In order to reach the detachment it was necessary to travel over the ice with a boat owing to frequent ice pools. Everything was found to be in a satisfactory condition.

"At 1.10 p.m. we steamed for Etah, North Greenland, to pick up natives to relieve those at Dundas Harbour, who were returning to Ponds Inlet. Dropped anchor at Etah, 7.35 p.m., July 30, encountering incessant rain and fog en route. Two men, two women, one big boy and two small children comprised the natives destined for Dundas Harbour.

"Left Etah at 7 a.m. 31st for Bache Peninsula, stopping at Kane Basin sub-detachment, Fram Havn, where the Northwest Territories cache appeared to be in good condition. Proceeded from there to Bache, arriving at 4.30 p.m. Stores were immediately unloaded. Much trouble was occasioned by the pressure of pack ice which eventually forced the ship to hoist anchor at 2.30 a.m. August 1. In the meantime, however, all stores were landed with the exception of a few tons of coal. Constables Anstead and Makinson were set ashore to relieve Staff Sergeant Joy and Constable Bain, who were returning to headquarters, Ottawa. Ship was considerably retarded by heavy ice, the situation necessitating blasting and ramming, which was carried out with little effect. The ship was eventually stopped from 5.30 a.m. until 12.30 noon, when good progress was made towards Craig Harbour, which was reached at 7.45 p.m. August 2nd.

"At Craig a police party went ashore and took on board a quantity of stores which were transferred to other detachments. Left Craig Harbour for Dundas at 2.20 a.m., August 3, arriving at Dundas at 6.35 p.m. Unloaded lumber which was required for this post and took on board the two Eskimo families who were returning to Ponds, replacing them by Etah party.

"Anchor hoisted at 2 a.m. August 4, the ship steaming west to Beechey Island. Heavy pack ice coming in from the west in the vicinity of Beechey necessitated shifting of anchorage many times. Conditions were unchanged for two days, during which time we went ashore and visited the winter quarters of the ill-fated Sir John Franklin expedition. On Sunday 7 we steamed towards the west, but when abeam of Cornwallis island were forced to retreat on account of heavy ice.

"Anchor was dropped at Port Leopold, North Somerset, August 8, where officials of Hudson's Bay Company and natives leaving post for coming year were taken on board. The police spent some time excavating old Eskimo stone huts, and secured some utensils used in the past....

"Anchor was hoisted at 7.30 a.m. of the 11th, the expedition proceeding to Arctic Bay, arriving there at 1.25 a.m. of the following day. The Hudson's Bay Company staff and natives came on board taking passage on the ship, as the trading post was being closed for at least the coming year.

"At 7 p.m. the anchor was again hoisted, the ship proceeding to Ponds Inlet, which was reached at 11 p.m. August 13. Heavy pack ice forced the ship to seek anchorage at Albert Harbour.

"Fog, rain and snow prevailed almost without cessation throughout the trip from its inception at North Sydney.

"It was my intention to go to Pangnirtung to inspect detachment there, but owing to the loss of the Bay Rupert the Nascopie will not be coming north this year. As a result I have decided to leave the Beothic at Ponds Inlet and make my headquarters here for the coming year. Weather permitting I intend to make a patrol to Pangnirtung and return to Ponds Inlet this coming winter.

"Total mileage of the expedition from North Sydney to Ponds Inlet was approximately 3,675 miles."

As already noted, the Lake Harbour detachment was established a fortnight later by Sergeant J. E. F. Wight, who has under him Constables P. Dersch and J. Murray. Progress had been made with the erection of the requisite buildings when the Beothic left the place. Lake Harbour (otherwise Westbourne bay) is on the southern coast of Baffin island and the northern shore of Hudson strait, about 200 miles from the eastern entrance of the strait; it is a trading centre, with an Eskimo population dependent upon it.

CONSTABLES ATTACHED TO WIRELESS STATIONS

A new feature in our work in these regions is the presence of the group of wireless stations which is being organized around the outlet of Hudson bay to the Atlantic ocean. To each of the three wireless stations, at Port Burwell, Wakeham Bay (on the Ungava coast) and Nottingham Island (at the western end of Hudson strait) a member of the force has been attached in an advisory capacity. Each of these belongs to one of our own detachments and is lent to the wireless stations, careful arrangements having been made to regularize the relations of these men alike with the personnel of the wireless station and with the non-commissioned officer in charge of the detachment to which each primarily belongs. Corporal F. McInnes is at Nottingham Island, detached from Lake Harbour; Constable S. R. Montague is at Fox Harbour, three miles away from Port Burwell, to which he belongs; Constable J. Murray of the Lake Harbour detachment is at Wakeham Bay.

PATROL ON NOTTINGHAM ISLAND

Before the last mail had left Nottingham Island Corporal McInnes had made a patrol into the interior, and as that island is not particularly well known some extracts from his report may be quoted. Hearing that two Eskimos had come from the north side of the island on the night of August 18, to visit some other natives near the station on the south side, he resolved to accompany them on part of their return trip:—

"On August 19, having no means of transportation, I put a few ship's biscuits in my pocket and left in early a.m. with the two Eskimos.

"Walking in a northwesterly direction for about two miles, we came to a stream that joined two lakes.

"There was a number of small fish in this stream, so with the intention of coming back later with a net to try the lake, we followed the shore of the lake north where a number of caribou tracks were seen.

"Swinging down towards the southeast corner of the island we walked towards the southeast coast and followed the coast around till we arrived at a long narrow fiord about three miles long, and very narrow, at the mouth is Port de Boucherville, and on the southwest corner forming the mouth of the fiord is an island, on each side of the fiord is high hills running straight down to the water's edge making it impossible to walk close to the water. Meeting the fiord we had to travel west to get around the end.

"At the end a few fish were seen, evidently the fish were trying to get up into the fresh water lakes, as at the end of this fiord a valley continues through the southwest coast of the island, with a number of small lakes in it.

"After passing the fiord travelling was harder owing to the high hills that had to be climbed.

"Not having arrived at the native camp late in the evening made a fire . . . and then got down in a rock shelter to sleep. Having no blanket or equipment, it was a bit cold.

"At sunrise the next morning, I bid good-bye to the Eskimos as they were going to proceed to their camp. I left to walk back to the station.

"Shortly after I left rain and fog set in making it impossible to see much country and hard to pick out a straight course to the station. I arrived back at about 1 p.m.

"In walking through the country numerous caribou tracks were noticed, but all old, and I think there are only a few on the island.

"A number of fox tracks, ptarmigan droppings, and a number of signs showing that large numbers of swans or wild geese feed around the lakes in early spring.

"No signs of lemming or Arctic hare were seen, and very few birds on the lakes, probably due to the late season. The country seems to be one large mass of granite rock bare on the high lands and cut up into numerous valleys with a large number of small lakes."

BACHE PENINSULA

Staff Sergeant (now Inspector) A. H. Joy, who for two years was in charge of the detachment at Bache Peninsula in Ellesmere island, during the winter of 1926-27 made several long patrols, one of them a remarkable journey, entailing over 1,300 miles of travel, across Ellesmere island and to the Axel Heiberg, Sverdrup, King Christian, Cornwall and Graham islands; during the winter on his more important patrols he travelled 2,115 miles.

Inspector Wilcox's inspection report says:—

"The members of the detachment report a very mild winter, on only one night of which the thermometer registered 41 degrees below. . . . The health of the detachment has been good; this detachment appears to be one of the best favoured in the north in the matter of climatic conditions."

The detachment has living quarters, storehouse, blubber shed, etc., and two small but comfortable shacks for the three Eskimo families living there.

In October, 1926, Staff Sergeant Joy, Constable W. C. Bain and the three Eskimos attached to the post made a preparatory patrol to the head of Flagler fiord, to hunt for the winter supply of fresh meat. His report is:—

"Constable Bain and I, accompanied by Eskimos Nookapeungwak, Oodee, and Ahkeoo, left the detachment early on October 14, and walked across the point at the mouth of Flagler fiord to avoid the open water there. A short distance inside the fiord we picked up our dogs, komitiks, and hunting equipment, which had been transported there by boat the previous day, and proceeded up the fiord, following the north shore. About six miles inside the fiord we encountered many open leads and were obliged to take to the shore ice. We travelled on this for several miles, picked up dog meat when passing one of our caches, and returned to the ice again early in the afternoon. Open leads continued plentiful, and about 5 p.m. we met with one nearly a hundred yards wide, which we were unable to cross, and camped. Seven seals were killed during the day, but three of them were sandwiched under the thin ice and lost.

"The following morning we made a big detour and crossed the wide lead near the north side of the fiord. Travelling then improved, although several large open holes were encountered and big detours made necessary. We reached the head of the fiord at 6 p.m. and camped. Four seals were killed during the day, but only two were captured.

"Early on the 16th Nookapeungwak and Ahkeoo left camp to hunt in the valley extending from the head of the fiord. Constable Bain, myself, and Eskimo Oodee hunted through the valley and on the hills adjacent to the camp. Many old musk-ox bones and other signs were seen; a few hare tracks and a few ptarmigan were also seen, and five of the latter killed.

"Not far from our camp we found the cache of provisions and fuel made by the American aviators in 1925, which was still intact, although the rubber covering had been badly rent by the wind.

"On the left side of the valley for a distance of two or three miles, the ground was quite covered with a rich growth of vegetation. This locality has, no doubt, been an excellent grazing ground for musk-oxen in the past, but it is now evident they have been killed off by explorers, and North Greenland Eskimos on their annual hunting excursions to Ellesmere island, for not a fresh track can be found anywhere in the locality.

"On the 17th Oodee hunted on the north side of the fiord, while Constable Bain and I hunted both sides of the valley for several miles inland, without either of us seeing any game. Nookapeungwak and Ahkeoo returned to the camp in the evening, having gone nearly half-way to Grethasoer Bay fiord, but saw no game or fresh signs of any.

"The following day we started on our return journey to the detachment. We followed the east side of the fiord and conveniently avoided open leads until within a few miles of the mouth. It then became necessary for us to cross to the north side, and darkness caught us on a large icepan in the centre of the fiord, where we camped, surrounded by open water, until the following morning. Nookapeungwak killed a seal during the afternoon.

"On the 19th we killed four seals before leaving camp, but lost one of them under thin ice. On reaching the mouth of the fiord we found the ice set fast, which enabled us to drive direct to the detachment, instead of crossing overland as we did on the outward journey. We arrived at the detachment early in the afternoon.

"Only a small portion of the sun appeared above the horizon at noon, and this proved to be our last opportunity of seeing it for the year.

"Time occupied by patrol six days, and travelled approximately 130 miles."

Not long afterwards Staff-Sergeant Joy and two of the Eskimos made a patrol of five days to the head of Beitstad and Jokel fiords, extending from Hayes Sound, also to procure game; it accounted for 115 miles. The head of Jokel fiord is described as filled by a large glacier, which discharges a considerable quantity of ice. "Vegetation in this fiord is very scarce, and no game or signs were met with." As a hunt the patrol was not successful, and the remark is made:—

"The territory covered by this patrol is evidently no good for game. The coast line along the entire route is precipitous, and frequently broken by small discharging glaciers. The only vegetation seen was at the mouth of a small stream at the right side of Beitstad fiord, and on a small plain, nearby, which extends from the head of the fiord to the face of a dead glacier a mile or so to the west."

Patrol to Axel Heiberg

Staff-Sergeant Joy's long patrol was made in March, April and May, 1927; his report is as follows:—

"I left the detachment at noon on March 26, accompanied by Constable Garnett and Eskimos Nookapeungwak, Ahkeoo and Oodee, with four dog teams of 11, 14, 12, and 15 dogs respectively. The fourth team in charge of Constable Garnett and Eskimo Oodee was taken to assist us overland with dog feed and oil as far as Grethasoer Bay fiord.

"While going through the rough ice a few miles inside Flagler fiord the left runner of my komitik split from end to end and broke off, which caused a three-hour delay for repairs.

"Shortly after resuming our journey we came upon smooth ice swept almost clear of snow and we made splendid progress until camping time. A strong cold wind blew from the west all day, and the air was thick with drifting snow after 3 p.m.

"The following morning we reached the head of the fiord after two hours' travel. Our smooth easy travelling soon ceased when we entered the valley extending from the head of the fiord. The river which runs through the valley covers the entire valley bottom, and is divided into many small tortuous streams that are frequently not more than three or four feet wide. The ice on these streams was as smooth as glass; the strips of gravel and boulders between them were swept clear of snow, and these handicaps, together with a fierce gale blowing from the west, made it almost impossible for the dogs and ourselves to keep footing. The komitiks were repeatedly being blown on the gravel so that they had to be lifted, pushed or partly carried every few feet.

"A few miles inside the valley we came to a place where the river makes a fall of 30 or more feet; a convenient snow drift, however, enabled us to climb this without unloading our komitiks.

"Beyond the falls the valley becomes narrower, the river more concentrated and better defined and the travelling improved considerably for the balance of the day. A few fresh signs of hares were seen in the valley from time to time, and after camping two of the Eskimos went out to hunt for them, but had no success.

"On the 28th the travelling conditions were much the same as the previous morning, and still aggravated by the same westerly gale. We made very poor progress until late in the afternoon when the riverbed became fairly well covered with snow. We camped in the evening near a dead glacier on the south side of the valley a few miles east of the watershed.

"The following morning there was a marked absence of snow again. The ground, however, was fairly well covered with moss and grass, and the komitiks slid over this without much difficulty. We reached the watershed at noon. Immediately west of the watershed the river passes through a narrow, crooked canyon through which it would be impossible to take a komitik. An extensive search was made for a practicable route, and the best offered necessitated our hauling the komitiks over the bare rocks for a good two miles and descending to the river bed at the far end. Two of our komitiks were broken in making this passage. Soon after entering the river bed again we met our last obstacle in the crossing—a glacier from the south, which for a mile or so fills the entire valley and butts against the mountains of the north side. Here we camped.

"The next day we chopped a road through the masses of ice fallen from the glacier, and later packed our entire outfit, except the komitiks, over the trail, which kept us going for 15 hours.

"One of our Eskimos has made this crossing several times before, and he states that this glacier has become more difficult to pass each succeeding trip.

"On the 31st we passed the face of the glacier with the empty komitiks in four hours, and another six hours' travel brought us to the head of the Grethasoer Bay fiord.

"The river between the glacier and the head of Grethasoer Bay fiord is much better than that on the east side of the watershed. It is more concentrated the greater part of the distance, and toward the mouth where it is divided there was plenty of hard packed snow to travel on.

"We camped a short distance down the fiord. In the evening we dressed the komitik shoeing, which had become badly scored by being hauled over bare rocks. A gale from the northwest blew all night and did its best to carry away our tent.

"Leaving camp the following morning we crossed to the north side of the fiord and followed the shore line for several miles to a low point, then recrossed the fiord to the south side, and camped a few miles west of a small island. The weather was clear and calm and the sun quite warm. During the day we saw two seals on the ice, and the tracks of several herds of musk-oxen crossing the ice. In the evening just before we camped the Eskimos killed six large hares. While we were building a snow igloo a gale sprang up from the southwest and blew its worst for more than 24 hours. When it abated some time after midnight on the 2nd, the fiord ice for more than two miles from shore looked like a sand beach; it was literally covered with small pebbles and grit. The Eskimos then went along the unnamed fiord branching southward to hunt for hares, but the wind was still too strong for good hunting, and they only succeeded in killing one.

"The weather was splendid on the 3rd of April, and we remained in our present camp making an attempt to dry our clothing, which had become saturated with perspiration while crossing Ellesmere island, first over the primus and later outside in the sun, but the results were far from satisfactory. Our clothing was ruined for the trip. During the day we saw a large herd of musk-oxen on the south side of the fiord west of our camp which we were unable to count, and two more herds on the north side of the fiord, one of six animals and one of 18. A single wolf came to our camp in the evening. Oodee, who was the only man outside, fired two shots and missed at a range of 75 yards. I was surprised at his missing such a mark, for he is quick with a rifle and a good shot normally. He moaned when I reminded him of the $30 bounty he had missed.

"On the morning of the 4th, Constable Garnett and Eskimo Oodee left on their return journey to the post. At the same time Nookapeungwak, Ahkeeo and I headed west for the mouth of the fiord. Our loads were now much heavier, and the dogs had a hard pull through loose snow for several hours. Later in the day the travelling improved wonderfully. In the evening when we were about to camp near the small islands at the mouth of the fiord we killed two large bears, both males. One was fed to the dogs at once, the other put in cache for our return journey.

"The following day we turned southward and followed the east side of Eureka sound. The first half of this march we encountered rough ice; the rest of the day, however, the travelling could not have been better. We camped almost opposite the south end of Storoen. The weather was overcast with a strong cold wind from the south. During the day we saw several fresh bear tracks and many musk-ox and caribou tracks on the ice. And a short distance inland from our camp the ground was almost covered, in patches, with the excrement of musk-ox, caribou and hare, but only the latter were fresh.

"On the 6th Nookapeungwak and Ahkeeo walked inland in search of caribou, while I made a further attempt to dry our clothing. During their ten-hour absence they killed four hares, and saw many caribou tracks a few days old, but no caribou.

"We made a small cache of provisions here for our return, and as we were preparing to leave camp the following morning, a large wolf appeared on the ice several hundred yards from us. We waited quietly for it to come closer until the dogs scented it and started an awful noise. The wolf then started to retreat down the sound, and Ahkeeo broke one of its hind legs with a shot. We followed it with komitiks for several miles until it took to the hills, and once got within a hundred yards or so of it, but the dogs acted like animals possessed and would not be controlled, and the wolf escaped before anybody could get in a shot.

"In the afternoon we passed close to a herd of five male musk-oxen on the east side of the sound. Later we crossed to Axel Heiberg island, and killed a small bear at the mouth of Skaare fiord as we were about to camp.

"During this march we passed through large areas of rough ice, but invariably found a smooth surface wide enough to pass with a komitik. The weather was wonderfully clear and calm.

"On the 8th we had first-class ice until we reached Bjornsundet. Here we struck deep soft snow, which continued until we arrived at Wolf fiord, where we camped.

"All along the coast of Axel Heiberg we saw many caribou tracks on the ice, and once near the S.E. corner the dogs indicated game inland.

"Next day I took a walk inside Wolf fiord. Nookapeungwak and Ahkeeo climbed to the top of Hyperit point, and from there saw three caribou on a low stretch of land to the east near Eureka sound. All three animals were killed in the afternoon. I had them carefully skinned with the intention of preserving the skins and skulls for the museum. Many hares and several ptarmigan were seen on both sides of Hyperit point.

"We proceeded westward on the 10th. In passing the point between Wolf and Gletscher fiords, I observed that the small cairn in which I placed a record last year had recently been knocked down by animals. Fresh musk-ox and bear tracks were near it.

"On entering Gletscher fiord we came upon the immediately fresh tracks of six wolves. We must have disturbed these animals when we turned in the fiord. The snow here was deep and soft, both on the ice and inland. We camped early a few miles inside the fiord on the east side, as there was plenty of good snow and I wished to cache securely our skins and a small quantity of provisions. A short distance inland from our igloo we saw the fresh tracks of eight musk-oxen and two herds of caribou, one of eight and one of three animals, on the slope on the east side of the fiord. The Eskimos started out to secure the herd of three. They first followed a river bed until they sighted the caribou, and then drove directly towards them for half a mile without cover, and in spite of the noise made by men and dogs, they continued to graze until they were shot at a distance of ten paces where the dogs were halted.

"While returning to the camp with the caribou on the komitik, two hares jumped up from under the dogs' feet; the dogs followed the hares like animals gone mad and took the komitik over a high cut bank into a bed of rocks, with bad results on the komitik. It took over a day to put it in running order again. All our komitiks were repaired and strengthened at this camp.

"We resumed our journey on the 13th, travelling all day through deep soft snow and often very rough ice, although we kept several miles from the shore line to avoid both as much as possible. We camped near midnight about 12 miles short of cape South-West, after a long hard pull.

"On the 14th the snow continued deep until we reached the cape, then the travelling improved wonderfully. In the afternoon we saw a herd of five musk-oxen some distance inland east of the cape, also the fresh tracks of two bears, two wolves and several caribou on the ice. . . .

"Soon after going into camp a mile or two west of the cape, the weather which had been splendidly clear for more than a week, became overcast and blew a gale from the northwest. It abated to some extent on the morning of the 16th, and we left to visit the first large cape north of our camp. We had scarcely covered half the distance when the storm came on again. We reached the cape, but the storm made it almost as dark as mid-winter, and we were unable to see more than a few feet on land or ice. The storm continued until the morning of the 18th, when the snow ceased drifting and the wind moderated to a strong breeze.

"We left camp at noon on the 18th, and proceeded in the direction of North Cornwall island. Five hours later when the weather cleared we were able to see a prominent cape on the north east side of the island. The travelling was fair. In the evening a dense fog came over, accompanied by a breeze from the southeast, and maintained for the balance of the day. We camped at midnight. Each of us had a good deal of trouble with our dogs all day. There were breeding bitches in all three teams, and they are a nuisance of the worst kind. I had had one in my team since April 1st, and I know of nothing more annoying.

"Heavy fog still prevailed the following day. Three hours after leaving camp we arrived at the big cape on the northeast side of Cornwall island. While we were here a strong, cold wind blew up from the northwest and cleared away the fog. . . . This cape is the highest and most conspicuous landmark I saw west of Axel Heiberg, and I will call it for reference in this report Record cape.

"At this point we saw many signs of caribou on the ice, and a mile or so farther west our dogs tried hard to take the komitiks inland, a sure sign of game.

"From the cape we turned northwest in the direction of Amund Ringnes island. After travelling an hour in this direction, we encountered a low sand beach not more than a foot or so higher than sea level, which, as far as we could see, appeared to be a projection of North Cornwall, leaving a bay of considerable size and depth between our position and Record cape. We then followed the low land northward, which at times was only perceptible by the tide crack or an occasional small rock back from shore. On reaching the termination of the lowland, we perceived not more than a mile or so to the north between us and the higher land of Amund Ringnes, another small low island, or a low point extending from Amund Ringnes island. On turning northwest along the channel between the two islands, we reached Amund Ringnes island in a little over half an hour. It is, therefore, fairly certain that the channel between North Cornwall and Amund

Ringnes is much narrower than that shown on the various maps, and that it is also very shallow. At the point on Amund Ringnes island near which we camped that night, I found the land so flat that the tide overflow covered it for a good half mile inside the tide crack.

"The whole of the south coast of this island is similarly flat and sandy, with scarcely a particle of vegetation to be seen, and continues thus for several miles inland, except for a small group of low hills at the southeast corner of the island. Fresh caribou tracks were seen on several occasions during the afternoon, all leading in the direction of Amund Ringnes.

"On the 20th we continued westward and reached the southwest point of Amund Ringnes after seven hours travel. We then turned in the direction of Ellef Ringnes, and soon got into old pack ice of a rough character, which gave us a busy time for several hours. We got through the worst of it about midnight and camped midway between the two Ringnes islands. The sun kept above the horizon all night for the first time this year. This was one of the coldest days of the trip, and a dazzling haze existed all day. Sometime after camping we got a brief glimpse of Ellef Ringnes Island through a mirage.

"Three hours after leaving camp the next day we reached the southeast point of Ellef Ringnes. We then followed the south coast of the island and drove across several small points. A dense fog prevailed from the time we left camp until we had traversed almost the full width of the island, when it partially lifted and gave us a limited view of the coast line. This island, like Amund Ringnes, has a very low coast line, not more than a foot or two above sea level, and the rise for several miles towards the interior is hardly perceptible. The foreland extends possibly four or five miles inland, and is backed on the east part of the island by a block of low hills. The hills run parallel with the south coast for about half the width of the island, then fall back sharply to the northwest until they were obliterated by haze and fog.

"On arriving at the southwest point of the island the weather looked threatening and I decided to reach King Christian island before camping. While making some tea at midnight a bear came out of the haze within two hundred yards of us. Nookapeungwak's dog team was let go. They were desperately hungry, and instead of following the usual method of keeping the bear at bay, they made a vicious attack, with the result that crippled dogs were soon tumbling in all directions. One of the best of them was completely ruined. The bear was a female of medium size, in good condition. The whole carcass was fed to the dogs immediately.

"At this time a fierce blizzard blew up from the southeast. We built a shelter and camped until the storm subsided 24 hours later.

"We resumed our journey early on the 23rd, and three hours later we reached King Christian island. The fog which came over as soon as the storm ceased now lifted for a short time and we were able to see something of the island in our immediate vicinity. From our position the coast line, which was low, trended nearly south and north-west, forming two large bays to the south and a series of tiny bays to the northwest, with an immediate hinterland of low rolling hills. A small group of hills somewhat higher than the rest stood about four miles inland to the southwest. The land was swept almost clear of snow. Here and there a few tufts of grass, an occasional frozen Arctic poppy and a little heather were all the vegetation that could be seen within several hundred yards of the shore line.

"At this time we had only two feeds of dog pemmican for each team; our dogs were thin and languid, and I decided to start on our return journey immediately.

"There were no rocks available with which to build a cairn and deposit a record therein I therefore buried a note of our visit in a small mound, and froze it down, on the south side of a small river bed 240 paces from the shore line, almost opposite the east end of an ice-berg which is pushed up on shore. I then carried several large lumps of earth from the shore line and built a small cairn over it. These will, of course, crumble when they thaw, but will, nevertheless, make the mound more conspicuous.

"I had stated in the record that I was returning immediately. While I was arranging the record the Eskimos walked a mile or two inland and came back with the information that they had seen tracks three or four days old of four caribou. I then decided to remain on the island 24 hours and try and capture the caribou. If successful I would cross King Christian island and visit Loughheed island. I started the Eskimos out at once after the caribou. They had not been gone an hour when a dense fog came over and obliterated everything for the rest of the day. The Eskimos returned to camp in four hours, having been unable to see anything of the interior of the island.

"We left King Christian island at 1 a.m. on the 24th. The weather was fairly clear for an hour, then thick fog came over again.

"We followed our former trail and passed Ellef Ringnes island without seeing it other than the small points we drove across. We camped in the strait midway between the two Ringnes islands after a 17-hour march.

"Leaving camp on the evening of the 25th we set out for the west end of North Cornwall. We travelled through rough ice and deep snow until early the following morning, when both the ice and the weather improved and we were able to see where we were going. On reaching North Cornwall about midway along the north side we followed the coast eastward. We passed the comparatively fresh tracks of four bears all travelling together. Nookapeungwak followed these for four hours with a stripped komitik, with only the result of the extra run. We camped near noon on the 26th about ten miles west of Record cape. Fresh tracks of several small herds of caribou leaving the island for Amund Ringnes were seen just before camping time. Late in the afternoon the two Eskimos stalked and killed a large bearded seal on the ice. This was a boon, as we were badly in need of meat and blubber. The Eskimos must have been seized with an attack of 'nerves' at this time too, for they missed the first five shots at the animal at a distance of thirty yards. It was surprising that it conveniently stayed there to be killed.

"The following day we resumed our march eastward. An hour or so after leaving camp we killed a small bear and took the carcass with us. We drove across the base of the long low point which extends almost to Amund Ringnes island, then turned south along the east side of North Cornwall. An hour after passing Record cape we encountered deep snow, and later again large areas of rough ice. During the day we saw many caribou tracks on the ice, some of them fresh, all leading in the direction of Amund Ringnes and Axel Heiberg islands. There must be a large number of these animals live on North Cornwall during the winter, or this must be their line of migration from the more southerly islands in the spring. The weather, which had been brilliantly clear in our immediate vicinity, though foggy over the ice, for the past thirty-six hours, became overcast and cold at noon and very foggy in the evening.

"On the 28th a veritable blanket of fog existed and we remained in camp.

"The following morning the fog had almost leared off, and for a time we got a better view of North Cornwall island. 'Record cape,' says MacMillan, 'is twelve hundred feet high,' and this is no doubt the highest point of the island. To the west of this point, along the north side of the island, the hills are possibly five to six hundred feet high with gently rolling slopes to the shore line, and towards the west end of the island the hills become somewhat lower. This part of the island, in appearance, I would say, ought to be an ideal place for caribou, providing the vegetation is good enough. At one point where we went inland for about three miles, the vegetation was quite good, but not abundant. From Record cape southward, on the east side of the island, the hills gradually decline until, as far south as we saw, the land is not more than a few feet higher than sea level.

"Leaving camp at 8 a.m. we set our course for Graham island. We were soon enveloped in fog again, and saw no more of North Cornwall. All day we travelled through rough old ice and deep snow, and made very poor progress.

"Again on the 30th the travelling conditions were the same. The fog lifted somewhat in the afternoon, so that we got our first glimpse of Graham island when about two miles from it. We reached the island in the evening, about midway along the north side. While here the atmosphere was very deceptive. It was almost impossible to tell whether an object was half a mile or five miles from one. The island here was quite low, not more than ten to fifteen feet above sea level, and as far inland as we could see appeared to be quite flat. The surface was covered with snow knee deep. I walked a half-mile inland at the northeast point, and found no more than an occasional blade of grass where I scratched away the snow.

"There was a total absence of rocks here, and no conspicuous place to cache a record, so I did not leave one. As we were leaving the island our dogs made a race towards land indicating game, but with the aid of field glasses we could not see anything.

"We now turned in the direction of Bear peninsula. Travelling continued bad until we camped at midnight.

"On the following day, May 1, the weather was much clearer to the south. From our camp we were able to see almost the entire east coast of Graham island. Some distance from the north end the land increases in height, and continues to get higher and becomes a gradual rolling formation about half-way to the south. At this point too, and quite close to the shore line, we saw a herd of caribou and two small herds of musk-oxen. They were feeding in and out of the ravines so that we were unable to count them. There were six musk-oxen in one herd and four in another visible at one time.

"Fog came on again soon after we left camp the following evening. The snow continued deep, but the ice was much better than the two days previous. We did not see Bear peninsula until we were less than a quarter-mile from the coast line. We then turned northward and travelled inside the tide crack until we camped near noon on the 2nd. Two wolves visited the camp soon after we turned in for a sleep. One, a male, ventured within gun shot and was killed by Ahkeeco, the other remained hidden in the fog and howled for several hours.

"The next evening as we were about to leave camp the fog cleared off a little. We then saw a female musk-ox with a tiny calf within two hundred yards of our tent; to the south a half-mile or so from us was a herd of eight large animals with young calves among them, and a mile or so inland were two more herds of seven or eight animals each.

"Ahkeewo and I set out immediately for Gletscher fiord to pick up our skins and some provisions. Nookapeungwak rounded the head of Bear peninsula to try and pick up a bear for dog feed. We had scarcely left the camp when the fog came down again. It was then impossible to avoid the rough ice and we met with some hard work and made very slow time. We reached our old igloo in Gletscher fiord at noon on the 4th.

"Next day we drove several miles into Wolf fiord on a fresh bear track then abandoned it. We rounded Hyperit point and camped at the neck between Wolf fiord and Eureka sound. The condition of the ice was fair, but our dogs had no energy and our advance was slow. Heavy fog prevailed again after noon for the balance of the day.

"On the 6th we drove across the neck into Wolf fiord and followed the east shore. Hare tracks were very plentiful all along the shore line. Near Bjornsundet we saw a flock of fifteen hares on the side of the mountain. Ahkeewo went after them, and although they were timid he killed ten of them in an hour. We fed them all to the dogs on the spot. In Bjornsundet we passed the fresh tracks of several caribou, and again more tracks on Eureka sound, all leading in the direction of Ellesmere island. The travelling was good inside Wolf fiord and still better on Eureka sound. Near the point at the junction of Skaare fiord and Eureka sound we killed a female bear and camped immediately. Our dogs, which were both tired and hungry, got a royal feast on the fresh bear meat. Fog prevailed at intervals again to-day.

"Resuming our journey again the same evening, we followed the east coast of Axel Heiberg almost to Storoen, then crossed to the east side of the sound. We reached our old snow igloo at 6 a.m. on the 8th. Nookapeungwak had arrived there a few hours before us. He reported having seen very many musk-oxen at the head of Bear peninsula, near Baumann fiord, and having killed a small bear in Hare fiord, and seeing many caribou tracks on Eureka sound. On arriving at the present camp he found that wolves had broken into the snow igloo and eaten or destroyed all our provisions, except a tin of biscuits. The cache contained beans, pemmican, condensed milk, butter, cheese, honey, jam, tea and coffee. Most of the empty tins, badly chewed up, were still lying in the igloo, leaving no doubt as to what had happened to the contents. These animals must have acquired a taste for delicacies, for they returned again one at a time while we were there, and both were killed by Nookapeungwak. The second, a large one, turned out to be the wolf that was wounded and chased by us at this same camp previously. It still had an unhealed bullet wound in its right hind leg.

"The Eskimos killed four caribou a mile north of our camp, quite close to the shore, in the afternoon and hauled the meat to camp.

"This was the first day without fog since April 26th, and the second since April 14. We were able to dry our footwear and mitts thoroughly in the sunshine to-day.

"On the 9th I took a walk a mile or two inland, and found the ground covered with caribou and musk-ox tracks. The former were quite fresh, and the latter a few days old. As we were about to break camp in the evening we saw three small herds of caribou, totalling sixteen animals, two or three miles to the east.

"I am now of the opinion that there must be many more caribou on these northern islands than I suggested last year. For even if we have passed over a route of their migration, the number of tracks we have seen, all going in the same direction, indicate that many more of these animals exist than is generally believed. It must not, however, be inferred that there are numbers, or herds like those to be found in some parts of Baffin island or in some of the western Arctic islands.

"One of our Eskimos says that a few years ago caribou tracks were never seen in Grethasoer bay fiord, or on Axel Heiberg below the same latitude; whereas now caribou tracks can be seen in any part of Grethasoer bay fiord, and many animals too at the right season of the year.

"If they migrate north in the spring and south in the fall, their most likely routes would be from the south to North Cornwall island, thence to Amund Ringnes and Axel Heiberg islands, following the west coast of Axel Heiberg to the northern part of that island, where they are said to be plentiful at some seasons of the year, and along the south coast to Axel Heiberg to the west coast of Ellesmere island. They might also migrate to and from Cornwallis and Bathurst islands via Grinnell and Colin Archer peninsulas to the southern part of west Ellesmere island, where they were quite numerous a year ago. Then again they may be more plentiful in different parts of the country in different years.

"They appear to be a very stupid animal, even more so than the barren ground caribou. They are not afraid of men, nor are they much concerned over the noise made by a team, or a number of teams, of howling Eskimo dogs. For the latter reason it would be interesting to observe how they would act when being approached or attacked by wolves. The wolves must play havoc with such easy prey. And, no doubt, there must be many die annually from starvation and sickness, for they are wretchedly poor in the spring, and not all can be lucky enough to survive the winter a living skeleton.

"The weather had been overcast with a gale from the east all day. As we approached the mouth of the Grethasoer Bay fiord the gale turned to the northwest and snow drifted badly. We camped next morning beyond the most easterly of the small islands at the mouth of the fiord.

"The same evening we left with light komitiks to examine an uncharted fiord on the east side of Eureka sound north of Grethasoer bay fiord. We drove inside the unnamed fiord about three miles to a point where we were able to see the head of it. From this point the fiord is narrow and almost straight, runs due east, and appears to be from twelve to fifteen miles long.

"At the mouth of the fiord we saw the fresh tracks of four caribou.

"We then crossed Eureka sound to Axel Heiberg island, and, without touching land, circled past the head of Storoen. On the west side of the island we saw a large herd of musk-oxen. Each time we counted them at a distance of two miles there were more in sight. My last count was thirty-two grown animals, and ten young calves visible. Nookapeungwak describes the herd he saw at the head of Bear peninsula on the 4th instant as being more than twice the size of this one. We returned to the camp on the evening of the 11th. The weather was brilliantly clear, with a strong breeze from the north, the whole twenty-four hours of our absence.

"On the 12th we picked up the bear meat cached on our outward journey. Following the south side of the fiord during the day we saw several single and two pairs of musk-oxen, and several unsuccessful attempts were made to stalk seals. We camped near a small island about half way down the fiord.

"On the west side of the point near our camp and quite high up we found the remains of several old Eskimo stone igloos, all very small, and several graves. The lower part of the point is covered with a fair growth of vegetation, and recent signs of caribou were abundant.

"On the east side of the point there is a seam of shale-coal forty or more feet thick above the ice-foot. The seam is broken at the thickest point, but where it is not more than thirty feet thick it is compact. At sea level and a little below the coal appears to be quite mature. Subsequently several small coal seams were seen along the same shore.

"I decided to return across the glacier to the head of Hayes fiord, instead of following the valley to the head of Flagler fiord, the way we came.

"We resumed our journey the same evening (the 13th), and left the sea ice by a river in a small bay about ten miles from the head of the fiord. We followed the tortuous course of this river for about four or five miles inland, then commenced the climb to the glacier. There was a scarcity of snow on the mountain, and the surface was fairly even and free from rocks. The komitiks were relayed and all three dog teams were used on each komitik. We reached the summit of the first series of hills at mid-day on the 14th, and camped. Recent signs of musk-oxen and caribou were abundant on all the hill tops near our camp. Fog prevailed until late in the evening. When it cleared we were able to see several herds of musk-oxen, large and small, from our camp. The large herds all had young calves among them.

"We set out at 4 p.m. on the 15th with the intention of reaching Hayes fiord before camping. We continued to climb until we reached the glacier four hours later. In the meantime a dense fog came over and it snowed heavily. On the glacier the atmosphere seemed stifling, the snow was deep, and the dogs were hardly able to move the light komitiks. Once we rested them for three hours while we dressed the komitik shoeing and prepared a meal. Snow continued to fall, sometimes light and sometimes heavy, all through the march. At times we could see the bare tops of mountains on each side of the glacier; at other times we could not see each other at a few yards distance. The fog eventually became so thick we could not see where we were going and camped, after a march of twenty-nine hours.

"Four hours later, when the fog cleared, we started again, and reached the end of the glacier in six hours.

"We then crossed a fresh water lake about two miles long and the width of the valley. This is formed by a cross-glacier from the south filling the valley and preventing the drainage from the inner glacier and the adjacent mountains escaping. We next passed over the cross-glacier and descended the face of it to the head of Hayes fiord by means of ropes, which was accomplished in six hours.

"This route is by far the best of the two by which to travel to or from the west coast with an empty komitik. It would be a difficult undertaking to ascend the face of the cross-glacier above-mentioned with a loaded komitik. On the other hand it would be a long, hard climb with a heavy load from Grethasoer Bay fiord to the glacier. The glacier itself, minus the deep snow, would be good travelling.

"Going down Hayes fiord during the afternoon many seals were seen on the ice, and almost as many unsuccessful attempts were made to kill them. The Eskimos were able to approach them within a very short distance, but always missed their shot or only wounded the animal. The light from the sun was dazzling, and all of us were suffering from defective eyes. Nookapeungwak killed a seal just before we camped at 11 p.m. opposite the south arm of the fiord. The fiord ice was in splendid condition. Soon after we went into camp a gale blew from the head of the fiord, and continued until late the following afternoon.

"We left camp shortly after noon on the 18th and arrived at the detachment late the same evening. Had this patrol been made during winter there could hardly have been less seen of the islands west of Axel Heiberg than we saw. From the day we reached cape Southwest until we returned to the detachment, there were but very few days that our view was not marred by fog or haze, and this, no doubt, prevented us seeing more game.

"There is apparently no scarcity of musk-oxen on the west coast of Ellesmere island. The coast line covered by the patrol is not reputed to be the best in the district for game by any means; it is but a very small portion of the whole, and we saw over two hundred and fifty of these animals without looking beyond the hills facing the sea coast along our line of march. We saw no musk-oxen or signs of them on the islands west of Axel Heiberg, and it is hardly likely they ever visit them. The land does not appear to be of the formation suitable for musk-oxen. They seem to like the low rolling hills, but always in the vicinity of mountains, where they can retreat when necessary.

"It would be possible, if necessary, I believe, to carry on an extensive survey of the islands west of Eureka sound by aeroplane. Landings could be made almost along the south coast of Axel Heiberg, and, anywhere on those parts of the other islands that came under our notice.

"I would like to express my appreciation of the splendid manner in which Eskimos Nookapeungwak and Ahkeoo behaved on this trip. They worked very hard at times; were always willing and cheerful, and I found them both first-class travellers.

"Enclosed herewith is a diagram of the route followed by the patrol. . . .

"The patrol occupied 54 days, and travelled approximately 1,320 miles."

Patrol to Craig Harbour

In April and May, 1927, Constable W. C. Bain and Eskimo Oodee paid a visit to Craig Harbour, in the southern end of Ellesmere island, the patrol occupying 23 days and entailing a mileage of 550. Although he describes the report as uninteresting, it is a faithful description of Arctic travel:—

"At 10 a.m. on April 13, I left the detachment, accompanied by Eskimo Oodee, with two teams of dogs, one of twelve and the other nine.

"On leaving the detachment we followed the coast of Bache peninsula almost to cape Camperdown, then turned south direct for Rice strait. In the afternoon we met Eskimo Akumadingwak, from Etah, and his wife, who were on their way to the detachment.

"This was the first information we had that Smith sound was frozen, and communication with Etah was possible. Several attempts had been made by Eskimos at the detachment to reach Etah during the winter, but each one was arrested by open water. And later, since the return of the sun, observations of the ice had been made from points of advantage at cape Sabine, and Bache peninsula, and all revealed open water in the sound. It seems strange that it should freeze over when the weather was comparatively mild.

"On passing through Rice strait we headed for cape Herschel where we arrived late in the evening, and camped. Two hours before camping we encountered rough ice. Previous to this travelling was good.

"Leaving camp at 10 a.m. on the 14th, we struck ice conditions of the worst kind, a succession of pressure ridges so close together they formed a continuous mass of loose broken ice, which lasted until late in the afternoon. The travelling then improved and we reached cape Isabella at 10 p.m., where we camped.

"We left camp at noon on the 15th, and later from an iceberg at the mouth of Cadogan inlet we could see open water at Paget point. To avoid this we turned in the inlet and crossed the point over a small glacier, which brought us to the sea ice about two miles south of Paget point. Soon after midnight we killed a large male bear and camped immediately. Both weather and travelling were good all day.

"On the 16th and 17th, we encountered deep snow, with the addition of falling snow and dense fog on the latter day, and the travelling was heavy. Midnight of the 17th brought us to cape Faraday, where we camped for the night. Several fresh bear tracks were seen on the 16th.

"We continued on the afternoon of the 18th. From Talbot inlet to cape Cumbermere the ice was in good condition, and we made an excellent day's journey.

"On the following day we reached Clarence head in five hours. Here the ice was in a bad state, and continued so until we reached cape Norton Shaw, where we camped early on the 20th.

"Next day we had good ice as far as Stewart island, then it became bad until we camped at 4 a.m. on the 21st.

"In the afternoon we continued again and reached King Edward point at midnight. Here we found open water touching the shore line. On examination, however, we found it possible to get the komitiks along a narrow strip of ice frozen on the rocks. We arrived at the detachment at 4 a.m. on the 22nd, and found everything in good order.

"We experienced disappointment, however, to find that the meat boxes, which had been left full the previous August, had been completely cleaned out, no doubt by bears, and three full barrels of seal oil had been upset, and cleaned up, so we had to resort to canned meat and dog biscuits to feed the dogs.

"The usual snow drifts reaching from the back of the house, along the end of the stone house, to the ice foot, almost as high as the building, were in evidence. Inside the house, I found a note from G. P. Putnam, stating that the schooner Morrissey had called on August 24th last. Also the card of Knud Rasmusson.

"In the succeeding days of our stay, I prepared a small case of stationery, and some other small articles of equipment, including axe handles, which were badly needed at Bache peninsula; did some cooking for our return trip, and collected information on stores still to be struck off the books.

"We left the detachment on our return journey in the afternoon of the 25th. Leaving King Edward point we followed the open water east of Cobourg island, then turned north-east and set our course direct for cape Norton Shaw, where we rested for fourteen hours. A heavy fog came up during the day and we became separated. I reached the cape several hours ahead of Oodee.

"The following day we arrived at Clarence head at noon and camped.

"On the 28th, we killed a female bear, and although we had not been travelling more than five hours I considered it best to camp and give the dogs a good feed of meat and a rest.

"Fog and snow prevailed again on the 29th, and the travelling was most disagreeable. We camped that evening at Talbot inlet.

"The next day was very foggy and heavy snow falling, and we remained in camp.

"On May 1st, we travelled twelve hours in heavy going. Many fresh bear tracks were seen during the day.

"Soon after leaving camp on the 2nd, we saw a large bear. The Eskimo immediately started after it with his team, and when within two hundred yards of the bear and near a large iceberg he cut loose the dogs. They chased the bear to the far side of the 'berg and then stopped. The Eskimo followed expecting to find the bear at bay, but instead he found only the dogs, and the bear nowhere in sight. He became so enraged at the bear escaping he completely lost control of himself, and shot his two best dogs on the spot. This made three dogs he shot on the trip in a fit of temper. Breeding bitches in the team were the cause of their disinterest in the bear. We camped at midnight near the foot of the glacier at Paget point.

"The following day we crossed the glacier to avoid open water at the point, and reached cape Isabella a little before midnight.

"On the 4th, we encountered several open leads of considerable size near cape Herschel. Each one compelled a detour of some length being made to find a suitable crossing. We camped in Rice strait early on the 5th.

"We continued the same evening and arrived at the detachment early on the 6th.

"This seems a most uninteresting trip to report. Most of the travelling was done many miles from shore, often out of sight of land, and only the most salient points of the coast line touched. These are almost alike, huge walls of rock surmounted by snow and ice, and in the dull foggy weather were as unattractive as any landscape could be. Apart from this one only has to mark time on the conditions of the ice, and progress made from day to day.

"A trip like this is enjoyable, however, after the monotony of post routine."

DUNDAS HARBOUR

At Dundas Harbour, on the south shore of North Devon island, Constables E. Urquhart, W. R. Stephens and S. J. Wilson spent a quiet year, the principal incident being a terrific storm about June 28, 1927, which did some damage. This is not one of the detachments from which long patrols can be made, the island being uninhabited by Eskimos and the interior exceedingly inhospitable; however, several local patrols were made, and an attempt was made to travel along the south coast of the island, this failing because of bad ice conditions. The detachment was found neat and tidy, and the dogs in good condition and fit for hard work, an unlimited supply of walrus meat being available here. It is observed that the radio service proved very satisfactory, messages having been received by broadcasting and in code on all scheduled nights.

Extracts from Constable Urquhart's report are:—

"Weather was fairly good during the fall months, very high winds and tides during a few days in the middle of September. The winter months were moderate, no exceptional cold weather. The first snowfall to stay came in the beginning of October, when about two feet fell. Only light falls from time to time during the winter until May, when two big falls came. The sun disappeared about 5th November, and returned 3rd February. April and May were bright and warm, but June turned cold and dull with very strong east winds."

"Ice conditions were good throughout the whole winter for travelling purposes, at no time did it break up from the first freeze-up in October until May. At odd times narrow strips of open water could be seen far out in the sound.

"Game was plentiful throughout the year, a good supply of walrus meat was got in the fall for dog feed. They are the easiest variety of sea game to get as they are usually to be found asleep on ice pans, sometimes in large numbers. Seal were seen in large numbers in the spring on the ice, the natives being experts at creeping up close to them. They were able to secure a good number; that is their main meat food as no caribou have been found on the island yet. White whale and narwhal were seen in large numbers close to the shore both spring and fall; only three were secured; the sinew is about the only useful part for sewing purposes on them; the rest is mostly fat. Ookshuk, the hide of which is best for footwear and dog harness, were not so plentiful, but enough were secured in the spring for that purpose.

"A few white bear were shot, two of them coming up close to the detachment. Ptarmigan were seen in large flocks during the dark period and were a welcome change to our bill of fare. Ducks and geese were also seen in large numbers both spring and fall. The white Arctic hare seem to be very scarce here; only one was got, and only a few tracks were seen, no wolves were seen. The white fox tracks were seen frequently during the winter.

"The natives employed here are expert hunters and guides, also fairly clean in their habits of living which contributes largely to their good health. The health of all members was excellent and no sickness of any kind reported.

"A few short patrols were made along the coast. One attempt was made to Philpot island on the east coast, but only got as far as cape Warrender, where open water was encountered. Another patrol went west about 50 miles along the coast but again encountered open water and had to return, on this patrol tracks were seen of musk-ox, but no animals seen, also the glaciers were seen coming down to the sea which would indicate that the ice cap would extend a long ways west. No overland travelling was done as the natives seem to fear travelling on glacier ice on account of cracks."

The gale of June 28, was of such exceptional strength that Constable Urquhart's report upon it may be quoted:—

"On the above mentioned date, a terrific gale of hurricane force, blew from the north-east. On this date a total eclipse of the sun was supposed to occur, but, owing to the storm, the sky was so cloudy that it was invisible, water was blown out of the bay in large sheets, also small stones were lifted and blown through the detachment windows, not cracking the glass but making small holes. Under these conditions it was almost impossible for a person to venture out in it.

"A number of the dogs were driven by the wind to a sheltered part of the hill, and were unable to come back until the wind abated. Considerable damage was done to buildings and boats; one rowboat was blown away and never found. The two others were moved around and damaged considerably. These boats are kept tied down at all times as the high winds frequent these parts. But this wind was exceptional even for here, perhaps due to the eclipse. The rubberoid roofing on both detachment and storehouses was partly torn off, the storehouse listed on one side and would probably have blown away only for the large quantity of stores in it. The blubber shed even though full of meat was badly wrenched. The Northwest Territory store and latrine were completely wrecked and most of the material blown out to sea. Full gasoline barrels were blown over and moved around, and empty ones were scattered over the island. A few have left for parts unknown.

"The harbour and all inlets were at this time all full of ice, but this wind blew all ice out and left the harbour open for navigation. It is impossible to suggest anything that would protect the buildings unless strong cables were carried over the roof and anchored in the ground. This wind must have been of an unusual strength as the natives showed signs of alarm."

PONDS INLET

The detachment at Ponds Inlet consisted of Constables M. M. Timbury, T. B. Dunn, and J. Murray. Their last contact with the outside world, otherwise than through the radio, was on September 11, 1926, when the ss. Nascopie left. The winter was unusually mild, Eclipse sound not freezing over until November 2; the weather was calm and good, with very little snow, and "weeks upon weeks of clear, cloudless days." The temperature was constant, the lowest recorded being 43 below zero. The most important occurrence was the long patrol to Home Bay on the east coast of Baffin island, in March, April and May; a patrol was made to the west in the winter, and in the early spring an attempt to visit Arctic Bay, also to the west, was foiled by very rough and moving ice encountered in Lancaster sound. A passage from Constable Timbury's report says:—

"Eskimo families arrived from Hecla and Fury straits during April, having only a fair winter's catch of fur, owing to the fact that they had lost many of their traps. They all appeared to be in good health, and had caught several walrus during their hunt in the fall. These natives numbering about 20 families appear to be a tribe of their own, as about fifty miles west of their encampment lives another tribe of about thirty families who made their way to the trading post at Arctic Bay."

Another passage is:—

"Fur bearing animals in this district, and Arctic Bay have been plentiful, foxes in particular, but caribou scarce.

"There have been sufficient seals caught this year to enable the local natives to live fairly well. Ptarmigan have been very plentiful, also the Arctic hare, ducks and geese this spring seem to be in making their appearance, possibly due to the weather being somewhat colder than that of last year.

"The natives have been at Button point this spring in hopes of having a narwhal hunt, but no narwhal have been seen.

"The salmon run this year along the coast has been very successful, having caught several tons of fish which have been packed for dog feed.

"The disease among the dogs in this locality made its appearance during the fall and continued until spring killing off a number of good dogs. This detachment suffered badly and by spring, could only muster one team of thirteen dogs. Everything possible was done to try and save them, but it seems as if nothing can be done once they show signs of having the disease which kills them very rapidly; other natives have also suffered.

"Early in June Dr. Livingstone of the Indian Department arrived at this detachment by komitik from Pangnirtung, staying at this point until the arrival of the police ship."

The patrol to Bluff head, Navy Board inlet, was made late in January, 1927, the purpose being to make a cache to facilitate the patrol which was planned later to Arctic Bay. Constable Timbury reports:—

"At 7 a.m. on Sunday, January 23, 1927, I left detachment in company with native hunter Kautuk and dog team proceeding across the sound over rough ice and heavy snow until within five miles of the land when we turned and followed the coast line west until 5 p.m. when we made camp at southwest corner of Bylot island.

"This place is a fine breeding ground for geese during the month of June, when hundreds of these birds arrive from the south to lay their eggs; it being lowland extending from the coast as far back as seven or eight miles when it rises to a height of several thousand feet.

"The following morning at 9.30 a.m. we broke camp and with fine weather, proceeded along the west coast of Bylot island, passing through rough ice during the morning eventually making our way towards Low point on the mainland, and about 6 p.m. the ice began to be rough; it being dark we decided to make our igloo, when we met two native families who were on their way in to the trading post, they had already made their igloo, and so assisted us in making ours where we camped for the night.

"The following morning at 9.30 a.m. January 25, we broke camp and with good weather, and travelling over smooth ice until about 5 p.m. when we encountered rough ice which made travelling very slow, it becoming so bad that we had to make an igloo about five miles south-east of Low point, and camped there for the night, when we fed the dogs.

"At 10 a.m. the next morning, January 26, we broke camp and with fine weather, travelled in a northerly direction close along the coast of Baffin island until about 4 p.m. when we passed three small glaciers and at 7.30 p.m. we arrived at a native settlement, consisting of four families who were living in stone igloos, on the coast, where we camped for the night.

"These natives appeared to be in good health and having sufficient food to keep them going until spring, having secured walrus meat in the fall.

"The following day my native went seal hunting whilst I made a cache of coal oil and dog meat.

"At 9 a.m. the following morning January 28, with fine and clear weather we started on our return journey travelling south along the coast and with a very small load on komitik made good over smooth ice and at 2 p.m. we passed Low point then crossed towards Bylot island and at 8 p.m. being unable to locate our previous igloo, it being too dark, we built another and camped for the night.

"The next day at 9.30 a.m. we broke camp and with good weather travelled on until 11 a.m. when we struck soft deep snow which made progress very slow, this continued until 5.30 p.m. when we made igloo at southwest corner of Bylot island, where we camped for the night after feeding the dogs.

"The following morning at 10 a.m. we broke camp January 30, and travelled down the centre of Eclipse sound at times over rough stretches of ice, but most of it was smooth and hard, arriving at detachment at 7 p.m.

"Approximate distance travelled 175 miles."

This was followed up by the attempt to reach Arctic bay in April, 1927, Constable Timbury leaving on April 8, with one Eskimo. He reports:—

"Proceeding in a northwesterly direction, the weather being calm and misty, travelling was made slow owing to soft snow and at 6 p.m. we met two native families making their way to the trading post from Igloodik, after exchange of greetings we made on until 8 p.m. when we made camp for the night on the ice by the side of a large iceberg.

"The following morning at 9.30 a.m. April 9, we broke camp and with a strong westerly wind drifting snow we travelled on towards the southwest corner of Bylot island; at 10.30 a.m. we met five other native families from Igloodik all of whom appeared to be well, and were making for the fur trading post. At 3 p.m. we were unable to travel further owing to bad drifting snow so we camped at southwest corner of Bylot island; at 8 p.m. the weather cleared enough for us to feed the dogs.

"The following morning 9.30 a.m. we broke camp the weather being fine and clear the snow heavy in places we travelled along Navy Board inlet in a northerly direction until 6 p.m. when we made camp for the night.

"At 9 a.m. following day, April 11, we broke camp and travelled on following the west coastline of Bylot island, through heavy snow until 6 p.m. when we arrived at a small Eskimo camp consisting of three families about five miles northeast of Low point. These Eskimos, who seemed to be in good health, and appeared to have enough seal-meat for their need, had recently left their winter quarters which consisted of stone igloos on the land about 20 miles further north, and were now living in snow igloos upon the ice where we camped for the night. The weather during the day being clear and calm in the a.m., cloudy in p.m.

"The following morning at 10 a.m., April 12, we broke camp travelling north through rough ice until 4 p.m. when we pulled in towards the land and picked up cache of dog feed and coal oil which was placed there by me in February, and proceeded north towards Lancaster sound, having a favourable wind in our backs and coming into smooth, clear ice, made travelling good and at 10.30 p.m. we arrived at Adams island, northwest corner of Navy Board inlet, where we came across a snow igloo in which two native families were living. Here we camped for the night, using our tent for the first time this year.

"The following day, April 13, we fed the dogs and went hunting, the weather being fine and clear.

"On April 14 at 8.30 a.m. we broke camp and with good clear weather we travelled in a westerly direction along Lancaster sound following close to the land when after about two hours' journey we came into rough ice extending from shore to floe edge making progress slow; we travelled on until about 7 p.m. the ice becoming so bad that it was necessary to halt and take observations from a nearby iceberg, and found that as far as could be seen with telescope nothing but very rough ice extending from shore to floe edge, it being impassable with dog team there being no leads, the native stating that it was too bad to travel any further so we pitched our tent and camped for the night."

The return journey was uneventful, Ponds Inlet being reached on April 20, after 13 days travel, covering 200 miles.

Patrol to Cape Kater

The long patrol already mentioned proved unexpectedly arduous because of the death of Mr. Hector Pitchforth, the agent in Baffin island of the Sabellum Trading Company. Owing to circumstances connected with his business Mr. Pitchforth lived for a long time at cape Kater in Home bay completely alone, his sight and hearing having failed, and he died in solitude soon after January 4, 1927. Eskimos took the news of his death to the Hudson's Bay Company's post at River Clyde, about 120 miles further north. The original intention of Constable Timbury, in charge of the detachment at Ponds inlet, had been to send a patrol to River Clyde, and in March, 1927, he despatched Constable J. Murray on this errand. As will appear, Constable Murray on arriving at River Clyde early in April heard the report of Mr. Pitchforth's death and pushed on to investigate. Owing to the length of the journey, some 900 miles in all, the time occupied, 53 days, and the difficulties surmounted, Constable Murray's report is reproduced here substantially in full:—

"I left the detachment at 10 a.m. on the 23rd March, 1927, accompanied by native hunter, Komonee, with a team of twelve dogs. Progress was slow owing to deep snow until we reached Ponds inlet, when the ice became much better, and travelling much faster. On reaching the eastern end of Albert Harbour, we encountered a strong east wind, with a heavy ground drift. As it was useless trying to face the wind, which was bitterly cold, we stopped and built an igloo, at 2 p.m.

"The following day the wind was still blowing hard but had veered round to the S.W.; being in our favour we proceeded to Button Point, arriving there at 3 p.m. We were met by two native families, Eenyougo and Nooyackaloo, who had left the trading post about ten days previous, en route to their own camp (situated at Coutts Inlet) but had been held up by continual wind storms. They informed me that they were hungry and had had nothing to eat for two days, as it had been impossible to hunt owing to the weather. I gave them some biscuits and tea to tide them over.

"Next morning, Friday, the 25th, the weather was still stormy, a gale blowing from the southwest, making travelling impossible. Towards evening the wind died down, so I told Komonee to ice the komitiek in preparation for moving the next morning.

"Saturday, 26th, broke fine and clear, so we left camp at 9 a.m. accompanied by the two native families, travelling in a southeasterly direction across the mouth of the sound. Excellent progress was made till we reached a point about five miles east of Eric Harbour at 2 p.m. where we encountered very rough ice. This continued till we turned the point at cape Weld at 9 p.m. Camp was built at a cache of provisions belonging to the two natives, which they had received at the trading post in exchange for furs, etc. The dogs were fed fish.

"The following day we left camp at 8 a.m. travelling along shore, which is low-lying, rising to high land inland. Progress was very slow all day owing to deep snow; at times it was piling up in front of the komitiek. On reaching the mouth of a small inlet midway between cape Weld and cape Bowen we turned west along the north shore of two small islands not marked on the map, camping at the western end of them at 8 p.m. with a very short day's run to our credit. Weather during the day was fine and clear.

"Monday, 28th, we left camp at 8 a.m. travelling south round the west side of the islands; the going was good till we reached cape Bowen, when rough ice was met with. Passing around the cape the ice became so rough that we were three hours in getting over about a quarter of a mile: as there was no sign of the rough ice coming to an end, we camped for the night at 8 p.m. During the day we saw some bear tracks, heading out towards the floe edge; the natives informed me that they were about three days old. The dogs were fed a bag of fish.

"Next morning we broke camp at 8 a.m., getting clear of the rough ice about two hours later; fast progress was then made. We reached Eenyougo's permanent camp at Coutts inlet at 12 noon, where we were met by his father and his two wives. They gave us a very cordial reception, and invited me to remain till the following morning, but I told them I would have to push on. The camp consists of three igloos and fifteen natives; all were in good health and were well supplied with clothing and food, having had a very successful hunt during the winter. I exchanged a few biscuits and a little tobacco for a large seal. As my komitiek was already heavily loaded, Eenyougo volunteered to come along the rest of the day and give me assistance over the rough ice. Leaving there at 2 p.m. we travelled in an easterly direction across Coutts inlet in the direction of cape Antrobus. After six hours' tiring work amongst rough ice we reached a small inlet on the west side of the point. We turned south along this inlet, passing a large glacier on our right. Camp was built at the south end of this inlet. The dogs were fed part of the seal.

"Before leaving camp the following morning, Wednesday, the 30th. I built a cache of dog feed and one tin of biscuits for the return journey. Leaving Eenyougo, we cut across a small neck of land into Maude Harbour; crossing this we travelled along the north shore of a large island in the middle of the harbour; on reaching the eastern end of this island we encountered rough ice; as it was too rough inshore we had to strike out for some distance before we could get an opening through. Men and dogs being played out completely we stopped, and built camp at the southeast corner of the island. The dogs were fed the remainder of the seal meat. Weather during the day was fine and clear, with slight southwest breeze.

"Next morning we left camp at 8 and continued our journey through the rough ice, eventually getting clear of it about noon, when travelling became much faster. We reached cape Adair, running into some rough ice; as the dogs were showing signs of fatigue we stopped and built camp at 6 p.m.

"Friday, the 1st April, I built another cache of dog feed before leaving at 9 a.m.; as we progressed slowly, ice conditions became worse until 2 p.m. when we reached smooth ice. We stopped and re-iced the komitik, moving on again at 3 p.m. Following the north shore of Scotts inlet, we reached native Akitick's camp at 8 p.m. He has a wife and four children and all in the best of health, also well supplied with food and clothing, having killed a bear and four seals the previous day. He fed my dogs on seal meat.

"The following morning Akitick handed me another seal and I gave him a little tobacco and a few rounds of ammunition in exchange. We travelled in a southeasterly direction across Scotts inlet, passing a large perpendicular rock on our right; it is very conspicuous by its shape and height, standing out alone in the middle of the inlet. Reaching the south end of the inlet, we again encountered rough ice, where we were another five hours in getting through. After building our igloo, native Komonee informed me that his back and arm was giving him considerable pain, having had them injured a few years previous when he fell off the top of some building. I rubbed his back and arm with liniment.

"On Sunday, the 3rd, Komonee was not feeling at all well, being hardly able to stand upright or lift his arm. He told me that he would not be able to continue the journey further than the next camp, as he understood there was considerable rough ice ahead and he would be unable to handle the komitik. Leaving camp at 9 a.m. we arrived at the next native camp, situated in a small inlet lying between Scotts inlet and Eglinton fiord at 4 p.m. We received a very cordial reception from the natives, all helping to unload the komitik and unharness the dogs; two of the elder boys were told to feed the dogs right away, by native Etotick, without being requested by me or anyone else. All were in good health. The camp consisted of two large igloos and eleven natives all told; they were well supplied with meat and blubber and had been fairly successful with their winter hunt, but not to the same extent as the natives farther north. After supper native Cootlick brought his gramophone to my igloo and treated us to an hour's concert. Later I made arrangements with him to accompany me to Clyde, in place of Komonee, as he was badly in need of a rest.

"Monday, 4th April, I left camp accompanied by Cootlick and fifteen dogs, four belonging to him and 11 of mine, leaving one of my young dogs behind as it was tired out completely. We proceeded southeast across this inlet, where the ice was in good condition for travelling, until we reached Eric point, when we encountered the roughest ice yet met with on the journey. We continued till we got through the worst of it and then stopped and built camp on the ice opposite the north point of Eglinton fiord.

"Tuesday the 5th we broke camp at 7 a.m. reaching Cape Eglinton at 2 p.m. We cut across a small neck of land west of the point as the ice was too rough to get round the outside, then down the shore for a short distance, when we turned on to the land, heading for the post at River Clyde. The going was good across flat rolling country, arriving at the Hudson's Bay Company trading post at 8 p.m.

"We were received very kindly by Mr. Troup, manager of the post, he being the only white man stationed there.

"The post consists of six buildings and stands on the south shore of a small bight on the north shore of river Clyde. The district round about is reckoned one of the best hunting grounds on the east coast of Baffin island. Caribou is usually found in large numbers, but this year very few have been seen.

"The health of the natives in the district during the past year has been good, only one death occurring against three births.

"Mr. Troup informed me that he believed that Mr. Pitchforth, manager to the Sablellum Trading Company at Home Bay, was lying dead in his shack, having had reports from natives that the door of the shack was blown over with snow and had been in that condition for some time. Later the same evening native Okamili arrived from Home Bay, and informed me that he had looked in at the window of the shack as he was passing and saw Pitchforth lying in bed, covered over with blankets, and all he could see was the top part of his head. Also that the door of the shack was blown over with snow, and had been since the early part of January, 1927. I asked when he last saw Pitchforth alive and he informed that his girl Enooya had seen him on the 4th January, but not since.

"I was compelled to stay at Clyde till Monday the 11th as six of my dogs were suffering from cut feet, having been cut on the last day's journey coming through the rough ice. During the interval I interviewed several natives, with the assistance of the Hudson's Bay Company interpreter, who had been living in the vicinity of Home Bay for the past year, but none could give me any information regarding having seen Pitchforth during the later part of 1926 or the early part of 1927. None of them having been near his shack for some considerable time.

"Accompanied by Mr. Troup and his native hunter Matto I left the post at 10 a.m. on the 11th, travelling south across river Clyde. Rapid progress was made all day over smooth ice. Passing several small islands on our left we entered an inlet west of cape Hewitt, reaching the point where we were to cross the land at 7 p.m. During the journey the natives killed two seal which were lying on top of the ice, one being fed to the dogs that night.

Tuesday the 12th, we broke camp at 7 a.m. travelling on the land; we climbed gradually uphill, arriving at the top at 1 p.m. Our course then lay straight south till we reached a small mountain stream, which we followed till we reached Isabella bay. We continued for another two hours through Isabella bay, finally camping for the night on the west shore of a small island in the middle of the bay. Dogs fed the other seal.

"The next morning we left camp at 7 a.m. following the north shore of a large island for some distance, we turned sharply to the south into Arctic harbour, where the native killed a large seal. Leaving the ice about 1 p.m. we climbed up the bed of a small mountain stream till the top of land was reached. From then on we had a splendid run over rolling country, crossing over several small lakes and down the bed of another stream, reaching the shores of Home Bay at 8 p.m. Camp was built some distance west of cape Kater.

Thursday 14th. We left camp at 9 a.m. travelling west along the north shore of Home Bay, arriving at the Sabellum Trading Company's post at 11 a.m. It stands on the west side of a small point called Tikkekat, and consists of one small wooden shack, measuring 14 feet by 12 feet. There was no sign of life and the place had a very neglected appearance. The shack is barricaded on the northeast and west sides with rock and chinked with moss. On the south side a small lean-to porch is built with a door about 3 feet high. This door was blown over with snow. After clearing away the snow I tried the door, but found it locked on the inside, it was fastened with a wooden snib; forcing it open I found another door leading into a small ante-room on the southeast corner, also locked on the inside. The door leading into the living room was also locked on the inside with a sliding bolt. Forcing it, accompanied by Mr. Troup I entered and found Mr. Hector J. H. Pitchforth, lying dead in bed with every appearance of having died peacefully.

"I made a thorough examination of the premises and in the evening I decided to take the body to Ponds Inlet to await the arrival of the ship, when the inquest will be held.

"As no wood of a suitable nature could be found to make a coffin, I placed him in three blankets and sewed them up. All personal property and papers were collected.

"The following day Friday the 15th, I sent native Matto to a small island in Home Bay, for native Atakilik, as I wanted to interview him, as he was the only native that had spoken to deceased since Inspector Wilcox's visit in the spring of 1926. Whilst awaiting their arrival with the assistance of Mr. Troup I checked all stores around the place.

"Native Matto returned at 4 p.m. with natives Kutuk and Ohoqualook, with the information that Atakilik had left on a hunting trip inland two days previous. Neither of these two natives could give me any information regarding deceased. Native Ohoqualook said he would leave the next morning and bring Atakilik back. I told him to send him to River Clyde, where, with the assistance of the interpreter, I could interview him.

"Saturday, the 16th, we started on our return to Clyde. Before leaving, I nailed up all doors and boarded the windows, leaving the place secure. The body was placed on my komitik along with his personal property. Moving off at 10 a.m., we followed our old trail, overland, reaching Arctic Harbour at 7.30 p.m. The day was scorching hot, being the first warm day we had since leaving Ponds Inlet.

"Sunday 17th. One of my dogs that went lame about an hour before making our camp the day previous was unable to put its foot to the ground, so it was tied into the komitik. Moving off at 7 a.m., we travelled north across Isabella bay, reaching the land west of cape Raper at 4 p.m. Whilst crossing the bay we passed an old native camp, where we saw a dog lame on the near fore foot; he had been left by the natives when they went to the trading post. He followed us into the post, where he was claimed by one of the natives.

"We reached the height of the land at 8 p.m. where we built camp.

"Monday 18th April. We broke camp at 7 a.m., continued our journey overland, reaching the ice at 3 p.m. The sky was overcast and heavy all forenoon, commencing to snow about mid-day, gradually getting heavier, finally turning into a blizzard at 5 p.m. The wind was bitterly cold and blowing in our faces, the dogs kept continually turning round away from the wind. We continued till we reached the post at River Clyde at midnight, cold and hungry having been travelling for seventeen hours without a break.

"The storm continued for the next seven days and during that time I again interviewed Okamili and his daughter, along with several other natives. As they were the only two who could give any definite information regarding the time that deceased was last seen alive, I told them they would have to accompany me to Ponds Inlet, so that they could be present at the inquest if required. A strong coffin was made for the body to prevent it becoming damaged on the way to Ponds Inlet.

"As Atakilik had not turned up and no likelihood of him doing so, I left River Clyde at 11 a.m. on the 29th of April, on my return journey to Ponds Inlet, accompanied by Mr. Troup, Okamili and his family, and native Akitick, who had arrived at the post during our absence, and was returning to his camp. Before leaving Mr. Troup said he would send Atakilik to Ponds Inlet as soon as he turned up. Mr. Troup took half of my load as I had a very heavy one, so that we could make better time over the land. After having been travelling for an hour, my native informed me that he had forgot some of his stuff, so I sent him back for it. We made good progress all day, arriving at Cape Eglinton at 8 p.m. where we built camp. The river south of Cape Eglinton was running on top of the ice and had apparently been doing so for a few days as the ice was covered with water over a wide area. The natives said it runs continually underneath during the winter, being fed from a large lake some distance inland.

Next morning we broke camp, leaving Mr. Troup to return to Clyde. As my komitik was very heavily loaded we made slow progress through the rough ice. At times it took the combined efforts of four natives and myself along with the dogs to get over parts of it. On reaching Eric point at 8 p.m. I intended making camp, but my native requested me to continue to his camp, as the ice was good from there on; we continued, arriving at 1 a.m.

"Sunday, 1st May, I remained in camp; during the day I made arrangements with Cooltilick to accompany me to Ponds Inlet with his komitik and dogs, as my load was much too heavy for twelve dogs. Komonee had recovered and was fit to travel.

"We pulled out the following morning at 9 a.m., accompanied by Okamili. Rapid progress was made, till we hit the rough ice in the afternoon, when Komonee gradually fell behind and by 7 p.m. there being no sign of him we stopped and built camp, a few miles north of the south point of Scott inlet. Komonee arrived two hours later with the left runner partly torn off the komitik. During the day I observed a large flock of birds flying north, but they were too far away to see what kind they were. Weather was dull and cloudy all day, with a south wind.

"Tuesday, 3rd May, we broke camp at 8 a.m., travelling north across Scott inlet; our advance was slow owing to deep snow, a great deal having fallen since the outward journey. A north wind rose about noon, gradually getting stronger until we were unable to see for drifting snow, compelling us to stop and build camp at 5 p.m. some distance south of cape Adair. The dogs were fed some seal meat.

"The following morning we broke camp at 8 a.m., the weather being cloudy with a light snowfall, getting heavier towards evening. We made slow progress through deep snow and rough ice. We built a camp a few miles north of cape Adair, having come a very short distance. On the way we picked up a bag of fish that I left on the outward journey and it was fed to the dogs that night.

"Thursday, 5th, was still snowing when we left camp at 8 a.m., going was stiff and was continually getting worse with the heavy snowfall. The weather cleared at 5 p.m. and shortly after native Komonee killed a large seal which was lying on the ice. We stopped at 7 p.m., all being tired tramping through the deep snow.

"Friday, 6th. Broke camp at 8 a.m. and followed the south shore of Maude harbour behind the large island to avoid the rough ice we crossed on the way down. We camped for the night at the western end of the island at 8 p.m. During the day Okamili killed a large seal, which was fed to the dogs.

"Next morning was snowing hard with a northeast wind. The natives wanted to remain in camp till it cleared, but as it did not have the appearance of clearing up that day, I asked them to make the next cache at Cape Antrobus, where I had a box of biscuits and two bags of dog feed. We left at 9, reaching the cache at 1 p.m. As the storm had increased we remained in camp the rest of the day, feeding the dogs the two bags of fish.

"The wind having died down during the night, we started off with the snow still falling heavily at 8 a.m. on Sunday, 8th, travelling north along the inlet west of the cape. On reaching the coast line we turned northwest towards cape Coutts, amongst rough ice, this being buried amongst soft snow, combined with the snowfall in progress made it very difficult to find a trail through, the dogs sinking to their bellies, the most of the time. Men and dogs being played out we stopped at 7 p.m. having only covered a distance of twelve miles since morning.

"Monday, the 9th, we left camp at 9 a.m., travelling very slowly through the deep snow, reaching cape Bowen at 9 p.m. when we camped. The weather was cloudy and dull all day with a northeast breeze.

"Tuesday, the 10th. During the night the dogs had eaten all the seal skin lashing on Cooltilick's komitik, also about 30 feet of lash rope. Having the komitik to fix we did not get started till 10.30 a.m. Travelling along the west side of the two islands lying between cape Bowen and cape Weld, we spent the most of the day hunting seal for the dogs, as they were getting very hungry. We were able to shoot two large ones, which were fed to the dogs when built camp at the north end of these island. By this time my food supply was running very low, only having a few biscuits and a little tea and sugar for the rest of the journey.

"Wednesday, 11th. We left camp at 8 a.m.; progress was very slow owing to deep soft snow. Everybody being tired out with the heavy going, we stopped at our old igloo at 8 p.m. on the south side of Cape Weld. Weather dull with snow-showers all day.

"Thursday, the 12th, was still snowing, accompanied by a northeast wind, making it impossible to see any distance ahead. As the last of our food had been eaten that morning we started out at 9 a.m. but were compelled to stop on turning the point an hour later, as it was impossible to pick a way through the rough ice. We pitched Okamili's tent and waited till nightfall to see if it would clear up, but 8 p.m. arrived and no sign of it doing so, so we decided to remain till morning, all sleeping in Okamili's tent as there was no snow suitable to build an igloo. As we had nothing to eat Okamili kindly gave us a little bread his wife had made during the day. As his supply was very low I didn't want to take it but he insisted, saying he would no doubt get a seal the next day.

"Friday, 13th. Breakfast consisted of a small piece of bread and a drink of tea. We left camp at 8 a.m., advancing slowly through rough ice and deep snow. In the afternoon the natives complained of being hungry and tired and no prospects of getting anything to eat. I stopped at 6 p.m. and told the natives I would continue to the post, taking Cooltilick and all the best dogs and the komitik carrying the coffin, as it would take two days to reach the post at the speed we were travelling, and leave them to hunt seal. Also that I would send the dogs back with food for them. Being quite satisfied with this arrangement, I took twenty of the best dogs, leaving them ten, and started out, getting clear of the rough ice about 8 p.m. We then turned west up the sound, when travelling became a little faster. It commenced to snow at 11 p.m. and continued till 4 a.m. Several times during the storm we had to stop as we were going the wrong direction, not being able to see the coast line, it only being visible now and again. We reached the eastern end of Albert Harbour at 1 p.m. on Saturday; by that time we were both feeling very tired and hungry, Cooltilick feeling the effects of hunger so badly that he vomited several times between there and the detachment. He was also suffering severely from snow blindness, having taken his glasses off the previous day so that he could see better through the rough ice. The dogs were very tired and hungry, not having eaten anything since Tuesday night. We reached the detachment at 4 p.m. on Saturday, the 14th May, having been travelling continually for thirty-five hours. The dogs were given a good feed that night and the following day Komonee's eldest son was dispatched with them and some food to the natives I left behind.

"They arrived at the post on the night of the 20th, having killed a number of seals in the interval.

"This patrol occupied fifty-three days, covering a distance of 900 miles."

Constable Murray brought away with him Mr. Pitchforth's personal effects and papers, made an inventory of the trade goods, and took statements from all persons who had come in contact with him during 1925 and 1926; the body was interred at Ponds Inlet.

As noted in the next section, in May, 1927, a patrol from Pangnirtung visited cape Kater to make inquiries about Mr. Pitchforth.

PANGNIRTUNG

The detachment at Pangnirtung, on the northern shore of Cumberland gulf, consisted of Corporal H. P. Friel, Constable E. Tutin, Constable T. H. Tredgold, and Constable G. J. M. Curleigh. Corporal Friel's general report describes the district as an unusually good hunting ground, and states that the natives had a fairly prosperous year, though they suffered from an epidemic of chicken-pox.

The snowfall was light, there was considerable rainfall, and the winds were exceptionally severe. One piece of work is thus recorded:—

"A census of the natives and white men of Baffin island from cape Kater south to Amadjuak on Hudson strait, was made this past winter. Cape Dorset with a population of approximately 200, was not visited. Northern patrol pending, time could not be spared.

"The census showed 574 natives at Frobisher bay and Hudson strait, 94 at Kivitoo and Padlee. Cumberland gulf, as yet not complete, approximately 350. A total of 1,018, which would bring the population of Baffin island to nearly 2,000."

Regarding patrols generally he writes:—

"Patrols have been made to all posts and native settlements, south of river Clyde, with the exception of cape Dorset on Hudson strait.

"Part of the gulf was patrolled in the fall with motor launch, Lady Borden. A patrol was also made to Meelooalee fiord during the annual whale drive. Many hunting trips were also made which kept the dogs well supplied with meat. Caches are now being made for the coming winter.

"The southern patrol, which circumnavigated southeastern Baffin island, was the longest. The patrol took in most of the gulf, visiting Blacklead island, Frobisher bay, Lake Harbour and Amadjuak on Hudson strait, returning by a new route in less than half the time on any previous record.

"The northern patrol which usually only went to Kivitoo went as far as cape Kater, although the patrol travelled under difficulties, soft snow on the outward trip and no snow on the land for the return, rivers were also running. The patrol was made in record time, returning on the 26th of May.

"A patrol was made to Ilkkuloolee, in the early winter for caribou skins, very few skins being obtained.

"The Cumberland gulf and cape Mercy patrols were made in February and March.

"A special patrol was made to Newboyen harbour in April.

"A total of 4,603 miles, 899 miles by motor launch and 3,704 by komitik; a few smaller patrols were made, which are not included in the total."

In the spring another case of murderous insanity occurred, resulting in two deaths. At Newboyen harbour lived an elderly Eskimo named Ka Ka (or Caw Caw) and his wife Ee-Kee-ack-see, a son, Pee-ta-rose-see and his wife also living with them; for some time Ka Ka had been behaving strangely, and in March, 1927, his conduct so alarmed his family that on March 29, the son and his wife fled; soon afterwards Ka Ka shot his wife and himself. This case illustrates some of the peculiarities of these people and some of the difficulties of police work there. On March 29, Constable Tutin while returning from a visit to Blacklead island met "Peter Rosie", as the son usually is called, and his wife in hasty flight, their clothing in disorder, and without weapons, etc. They told him that Ka Ka had been sleeping with a loaded rifle in bed with him, that he had kept them awake the night before sharpening butcher knives, and that he was threatening to shoot somebody. They communicated their fears to the Eskimo with Constable Tutin, and he refused to drive the dogs towards Ka Ka's camp, and Constable Tutin did not know where the place was; consequently he could do nothing more than proceed to the detachment and report. Corporal Friel went to the place, the patrol involving 170 miles of travel, and found the two people dead. He brought the bodies to Pangnirtung and as coroner held an inquest on April 18, the verdict being murder and suicide while of unsound mind. Despite her danger, the insane man's wife made no attempt to leave him; on the other hand, it did not occur to the son to rescue his mother, or to do anything except flee.

Patrol to Hudson Strait

The longest patrol made this winter was the southern one, from February 14 to April 5, 1927, occupying 51 days and traversing 1,300 miles, much of it new ground. Corporal Friel, who was accompanied by Dr. L. D. Livingstone of the Department of the Interior, defined his purpose as:—

"Inquiring as to the health and condition of the natives; wild life, where most plentiful and whether decreasing or increasing; hear complaints if any; collect expired game animal licenses; wolf bounty warrants if any pelts were on hand; encourage the extermination of wolves and the conservation of caribou."

The journey was a "circumnavigation" of the southeastern portion of Baffin island and return, visiting places like Blacklead island, Davis strait, Frobisher bay, Lake Harbour and Amadjuak, the return being made across the interior by Amadjuak lake. The report is:—

"On the morning of February 14, with Reg. No. 9295 Constable T. H. Tredgold and Employed Native Akatooga as dog driver and guide, with two teams of eleven and twelve dogs respectively. It was intended to have one team of fourteen dogs and one of twelve; three dogs being missing on the morning of our departure, left Akatooga with only eleven, I driving the other twelve.

"About five inches of soft snow made travelling hard for the dogs; a party of natives en route to the trading post at Pangnirtung, were met at 5 p.m., four komitiks in all. The patrol made better time following their tracks. We arrived at Sow-nil-to-auk-jew-on, a native settlement of twenty inhabitants, at 9.45 p.m.

"The natives here were in good health, had plenty of meats and provisions, and reported this place as one of the best hunting grounds in the gulf.

"The following morning 500 pounds of previously arranged dog-meat was picked up. With good going the patrol crossed the mouth of Nettiing fiord, passing inside of numerous islands. We arrived at Newboyen harbour at 1 a.m.

"The camp consists of one double tent, serving two families, all were in good health and had plenty of meats and provisions, Cawcaw, head man of the camp, defined the route to Singiyah. Oosootapik, son of Cawcaw, was engaged by Dr. L. D. Livingston, who accompanied the patrol.

"The next day was spent in resting and feeding the dogs, harness repaired, etc.

"February 17, the patrol took on more meat; travelling amongst numerous islands, we came to a native settlement called Kim-milk-soo. The camp consisted of nine tents, with 41 inhabitants, plenty of meat was everywhere in evidence. Two women and a boy who complained of stomach trouble and pains in the head, were attended to by the doctor. One of the women appeared to be in the early stages of insanity.

"February 18, we travelled in an easterly direction; the weather was hazy, due to the close proximity of the floe edge. We arrived at Blacklead island in early evening and were received kindly by Mr. Whitton, manager of a sub-post for the Hudson's Bay Company.

"The post consists of several buildings, purchased by the Hudson's Bay Company from the missionaries; twenty-five natives in good health were at the post.

"A gale from the west with a low temperature held the patrol on the 19th and 20th; harness and clothing were dried and repaired, dogs fed.

"February 21, left Blacklead island at 10 a.m. Passed Bear sound and Nettiing harbour; caribou tracks were seen on the ice; a neck of land about five miles in width was crossed; on coming down the other side were unfortunate in breaking one of the komitik runners, Camp was made to make repairs. Land very high and mountainous, travelling good, clear and calm.

"The following morning we exchanged komitiks with Eenoosil, who assisted the doctor over the land crossing, and continued south; passing a suk-paw (a hole of considerable size in the ice caused by the fast currents) many seal were seen. Turning east we passed many islands, camping near Hall island at suk-paw; four seal were procured and fed to the dogs. Many caribou and bear tracks were seen to-day; country mountainous, with high cliffs; clear and calm.

"The following morning we left camp, travelled in various directions, amongst islands, saw many bear tracks also one bear; camp was made at 7 p.m. (dusk) southeast of peak called by the natives Ad-gay-see-saw; country very high and mountainous but considerably lower towards evening. Travelling good, clear and calm.

"February 24, much detouring around islands, general direction southeast went around a peninsula, camping under soapstone cliffs (Oa-keo-shey-shook-goo-a) at 8.50 p.m. Strong westerly wind with drift.

"Our course was various on the 25th; a neck of land about eight miles in width was crossed (many signs of caribou in this vicinity). We then entered Cornell Grinnell bay, a long bay with numerous salmon in the rivers that empty into it. Camp was made at 9 p.m. Soft snow made hard going the latter part of the day; clear and calm.

"The next morning travelling south down the bay we came to a suk-paw; five seal were procured (of which there were many); three were fed to the dogs; putting the other two on the komitiks for future use, we continued on, camping about ten miles south of suk-paw in same bay. Clear, with a northwesterly wind, travelling good.

"February 27, on leaving camp dog Q.6, Agjing, who had been ailing for some time, was left behind. The briny surface of the ice made pulling hard for the dogs. Cape Haven was crossed on entering Cyrus Field bay. Komitik tracks were noticed going in a north-east direction, we followed the tracks amongst islands, and arrived at Singiyah at 4.30 p.m.

"The people were very much excited on our arrival (we being the first police they had ever seen), were very friendly; after the usual greetings were over, our komitiks were unloaded and the outfit put in Michiman's shack, which was to be our quarters during our stay.

"This is a trading station of the Sabellum Company, one building used as a dwelling, with two smaller ones adjoining used as a store house, put up some forty years ago by whalers. Eskimo Michiman in charge, four other tents with twenty-seven natives, comprised the village; 1925 was the last time they had a ship, up to date they still had plenty of provisions, flour, tea, sugar, milk, etc., also trade goods. No invoices of goods were left at this place; Michiman had only a half idea of goods left there with him.

"The natives all appear well off, walrus, seal, oojook, and bear are plentiful. Two whale boats in good repair are here for the use of the natives in hunting. Numerous salmon are also found in the rivers.

"The place appears well sheltered from winds and from the sea with islands in front. Michiman reports big seas in the fall, some of them coming up to the shack.

"Drift-wood is found on the islands and is used for heating purposes in the house. The wood is found in the logs for considerable length and thickness.

"The following day was spent in visiting natives, for general information, collecting expired licenses, inquiring as to customs, vital statistics ordinance, and taking census.

"One old woman, in a piteous state due to old age, was the only one in poor health; tobacco, matches, tea, etc., were given her by the patrol. Snowing with a strong breeze from northeast.

"We took our leave at 9.30 a.m. March 1, crossing neck of land into Frenchmen's Cove. We travelled between islands; coming to Blunt peninsula, we crossed in a southerly direction, altitude 350 feet. The climb was hard on both men and dogs, komitiks had to be let down with line carried for the purpose. Two guides hired to assist the patrol over the crossings returned from here to Singiyah. The patrol continued up a long bay, camping at its mouth at 7.30 p.m. Clear with a northeast breeze.

"The following day we travelled west up Frobisher bay, a little rough ice was encountered. The land here was of soil running gradually from the shore, the first low land we had seen so far on our trip. Travelling inside of islands we passed two bays, the latter of considerable length; we came to higher land and a native settlement, on the southwest corner of the last bay (Mingoakto).

"The Sabellum Company have a trading post here run by Nen-ee-a-guh; the building of frame, with a store house attached about thirty feet over all, with three tents comprise the settlement; five whale boats are here for hunting purposes.

"The place appears to be a poor hunting ground, very few seal, walrus can be had in the spring and have to be cached for the following winter. Big seas will not permit fall hunting; caribou can be had about twenty-five miles inland in the summer, no wolves in this district. This winter's catch of furs was above the average.

"One native wanted to give a written statement saying the place was no good for hunting, and that they wanted to go north of Singiyah to Robinson Sound, where there is good hunting, but were afraid the white men would not like it (traders). All the natives of this camp complained of hard times.

"A census of the camp showed twenty-eight, one old couple dependent on the camp for their living. Licenses were collected; there were no births, deaths or marriages since January, 1927.

"Natives in good health, well clothed and appear much bigger than the average native.

"Shortly after leaving camp on the morning of the third we met Adam, a native in the employ of the Hudson's Bay Company, at Ward inlet en route to Singiyah; on hearing the condition of the land crossing returned with us to Ward inlet. Travelling amongst islands along the coast, we passed Chase island to the south of us, on entering Ward inlet which had about eight inches of soft snow slackened the pace of our already tired dogs. A thirty foot barrier of ice was crossed (caused by the high tides which Frobisher Bay is noted for) on the northeast part of Ward inlet, arriving at the Hudson's Bay Company post at 1 a.m. We were received kindly by Mr. Manning, manager of the post, and Mr. Ford who is clerk. We were the guests of Mr. Manning during our stay here. Clear and calm, northern lights very bright at night.

"The post consists of a dwelling-house, store-house and two native shacks.

"The following day our clothes were dried and komitiks repaired; line was purchased to replace the broken ones on the komitiks. The natives here are placed by the Hudson's Bay Company's manager in what is thought to be the best hunting grounds, only two families at the post. All the natives were reported as having a fair hunt for the season. Owing to the scattered settlements and the limited time at the patrol's disposal, we did not visit all the natives. No births, deaths or marriages were reported since the commencement of 1927.

"A census given by Mr. Manning showed 140 all told, in good health. Mr. Manning who had blood poisoning in the fall, has lost the use of his fingers in the right hand.

"After exchanging farewells we took our departure, travelling south across Frobisher Bay to a group of islands where there was a native settlement and many sukpaws. We arrived there (Ee-nook-soo-lee) at 6 p.m. The natives were all very friendly, but complained of the hard times, saying there was not sufficient meat to supply their needs, very often they were hungry. At the time of our visit they had plenty of meats. (At new and full moon the current is very fast in the sukpaw, making the ice thin and dangerous around it, when a seal is shot the current carries it under the ice before the Eskimo can get to it. This is when they have their hard times.) Hazy with a strong breeze from the east with drift.

"The following day was spent in visiting the natives for general information. A party of ten natives went hunting for seal, getting three, reporting the ice very thin.

"Caribou can be had a short distance inland in the summer and fall, salmon are found in the rivers in the spring; there is also a large lake said to contain cod fish. It appears from complaints received that Frobisher Bay is a poor sealing ground. The seal is a necessity to the Eskimo, it furnishes them with food, oil for their lamp, shoes and summer clothing.

"The health of this camp was good with the exception of one man who was paralyzed on the right side.

"March 7, left camp; travelling over thin ice with many holes and cracks, caused by the fast current, we came to a native settlement called Tes-see-you-kud-la. The natives were in good health, but complained of the shortage of seals. Continuing on in a northwest direction the land crossing was soon reached. After a hard pull we came to a lake some 275 feet in elevation, following a river we camped about twelve miles inland at 8 p.m.

"March 8, continuing up the river, we came to the water falls, 600 feet above sea-level; all the dogs were hitched with a long line attached to one komitik, by this means and every one assisting, we were over the falls at 2 p.m. Akatooga claiming to know the remainder of the way, our guide returned. The patrol travelled in a northwest direction to an elevation of 1,000 feet, when camp was made.

"The following day we continued up a ravine with soft snow in a northwest direction; towards noon Akatooga became doubtful of the route; we then headed south over hill and valley, camping at 8.45 p.m. at an elevation of 2,000 feet. A strong breeze from the northwest with drift blew all day.

"March 10, travelling south we attained a height of 3,000 feet above sea level, continuing on down the hill in a ravine of soft snow we came to a large lake, where we saw komitik tracks, following these we came to an igloo where we camped at 8 p.m., having dropped to an elevation of 1,000 feet. Soft snow in the ravines and climbing hills was an endurance test for any dog, ours showing no signs of weakness. Country rolling, many valleys and hills; a northeast wind with drift blowing all day.

"March 11, followed komitik tracks, numerous fox and caribou tracks seen, also igloos made by Eskimo when hunting the caribou. Camp was made at 9.15 p.m., having descended 500 feet; a northeast breeze with drift blowing.

"March 12, left camp at 8.30 a.m., passed the ruins of 4 old stone igloos; trail led over hills to a succession of lakes; crossing these, we came to the salt ice, where we made camp at 9.15 p.m.; fed remainder of dog feed. Clear and calm.

"March 15, broke camp at 8.30 a.m., travelling south we passed a small bay on our right, turning to the west, north of Beacon island, we entered Westbourne bay, arriving at Hudson's Bay Companies post, Lake Harbour, situated at head of bay, at 1 p.m.

"We were received very kindly by Mr. McGibbon, manager of the Hudson's Bay Company's post, Mr. Bell, clerk, the Rev. B. Ackinson and Mrs. Ackinson, missionary. We were invited by Mr. McGibbon to spend our sojourn with him.

"The following days were spent in visiting the missionary and natives; births, deaths and marriages were gotten from the Rev. B. Ackinson and registered; a census of the Eskimos, east of Lake Harbour and as far as Gabriel strait, was gotten from Mr. McGibbon. Several young children dying, cause unknown but similar to dysentery.

"The Hudson's Bay Company have a dwelling-house, store-house and several other buildings, a thirty ton schooner, and many whale boats. The missionary with a dwelling-house, store-house and church, taking up all the available land at the head of the harbour.

"Game of all kinds common to Baffin Island can be had at this place.

"The harbour is narrow, and has rocks and shoals; an Eskimo pilot is necessary to take a ship in. Ice coming in from the southeast often blocks the harbour for days. A tide of some thirty feet make it necessary to unload stores at low tide.

"A mica mine that had been in operation some years ago is now discontinued.

"Our provisions were replenished from the Hudson's Bay Company's store, and preparations made for our departure.

"March 18, exchanged farewells and left at noon, crossed neck of land, southwest part of Lake Harbour, leading into White strait, travelling west with Big island to the south, we passed numerous small islands; entering a bay off White strait we came to an Eskimo settlement (Pee-toak-kil). A census of the camp showed eighteen, one a girl of seven years with a hunchback. The camp was well supplied with meat, natives clean and healthy. Hazy and calm.

" March 19, we left camp, travelling in a westerly direction, three land crossings were crossed; arriving at Crooks inlet we turned north, going to the head, where on the north-east side was a native camp, arriving there at 9.15 p.m.

" The camp is well situated; a small creek, which has salmon in the spring, runs by the camp, furnishing fresh water, land low, sandy beach, good harbour. A-see-waw, head man of the camp, said there was always sufficient meat to supply their needs.

" This place, being more or less central, would be a good place for a police post.

" A census of the camp showed seventeen, one man suffering from internal trouble, otherwise all healthy and no complaints. Calm, with snowfall.

" March 20, left camp at 9 a.m.; crossing bay we commenced travelling on the land, in a northwest direction, camp was made at 8 p.m. near Markham bay, clear and calm.

" The following day, travelling northwest we crossed a small bay and a neck of land, turning to southwest we came to a native camp, after inquiries of a general nature were made, a census of the camp was taken which showed twenty, all in good health but reporting hard times. At the time of our visit they had sufficient meats to supply their needs. We continued on across the land to another settlement, Ees-til-nil (in Markham Bay) many islands adjoining and considerable limestone in vicinity.

" These natives appeared well off, plenty of meat and good clothes, although short of dogs, only seventeen dogs for the whole camp.

" No births, deaths or marriages were reported here. A census showed twenty-four.

" One old woman infirm, and a young woman with a rash on her face, were the only unhealthy ones. Clear with a wind from the northwest.

" March 22, left camp at 8.20 a.m. travelling west we came to Tuk-see-too a native settlement in early morning.

" The camp was hard up for meat, all the men away hunting, sufficient provisions were given the people from the patrol's supply, to last until the return of the hunters. . . .

" A census of the camp showed twenty-three, poorly clad, igloos dirty, some without fire, but all in good health, with the exception of one woman who was paralyzed down the right side.

" It was reported here that four families of natives left cape Dorset, in the spring of 1926, to hunt caribou in the vicinity of Amadjuak lake, and have not been heard of since. Clear with a northwest wind.

" March 23, left camp at 8 a.m. Travelling northwest we took an inside passage. The land here much higher than further east. Amadjuak bay was entered, we arrived at Hudson Bay company's Amadjuak post at 5 p.m. at which place we spent our sojourn.

" We were received by Mr. Campbell, a young fellow just out from Scotland, who is acting as clerk at the post. Mr. D. Wark, manager, absent on a trip to cape Dorset.

" During our visit here information of a general nature was gotten, a census taken, births, deaths and marriages registered, natives sent to outlying camps for dog feed, sufficient to feed our dogs while in camp and our return.

One woman, a Labrador Eskimo who is employed by the company as cook, was found suffering from tuberculosis of the stomach.

" Natives complaining of hard times, few seal, and unfavourable winds at the floe edge making hunting uncertain. A southerly wind drives the ice in towards the shore ice bringing walrus.

" The natives west of Lake Harbour, to and including Amadjuak, have only four or five dogs, some have none, they having to do their hunting on foot.

" A few caches are made in the spring and summer, plenty of caribou are found inland and are decreasing annually.

" Natives were warned to conserve the caribou and not to kill any females unless absolutely necessary.

" On March 25, Mr. D. Wark returned from cape Dorset, reporting a successful fox hunt, and all the natives in good health.

" There are some 189 natives attached to the Amadjuak post.

" March 28, we took our departure, travelling north up a hill; we crossed several small lakes, following a river; we travelled until 8 p.m., when camp was made.

" March 29 and 30, we travelled on Amadjuak lake in an eastern and northeastern direction.

" The country was very flat, many caribou, fox, ptarmigan tracks were seen. This is one of the favorite grazing grounds for the caribou in the summer. Hazy with a northeast breeze.

" March 31, April 1 and 2, travelled east and northeast across country, very little snow on the land. Many caribou, fox and wolf tracks were seen. Came to a large river running northwest to the southwest part of Nettiing fiord; camp was made on the river. Clear and calm.

"April 3, left camp at 7.55 a.m. Travelled down the river in a northerly direction; two small waterfalls were passed. A herd of caribou was seen feeding along the banks of the river, and quickly took to the hills on our approach. Camp was made at the neck of a long bay at 7.40 p.m.

"Natives from Cumberland gulf bring boats up this river when they go to hunt caribou in the summer. The river is wide and very deep, but has no salmon. Clear and calm.

"The following morning at 7.45 we left camp, travelling over a tide flat of ten miles; we came to Kick-yick-ta-aloo in Nettling fiord. Camp was made on the east side at 6 p.m. Stormy from the northeast.

"April 5, left camp 6.45 a.m.; with good going we crossed the head of the gulf, arriving at the detachment at 11.40 p.m.

"The return trip from Amadjuak was on a new route which proved quite successful, taking only half the time of any previous trip. We returned with our dogs in good condition.

"A patrol from this detachment to Frobisher bay district need not carry any dog feed, as far as Cornell Grinnell bay. Suckpaws at intervals have an abundance of seal, but dog feed must be carried from this bay to Ward inlet.

"The patrol occupied fifty-one (51) days, covering approximately thirteen hundred miles (1300), visited 654 Eskimo, and travelled only forty miles over our previous route from Imigen to Pangnirtung."

Patrol to Home Bay

The other long patrol, of over a month and more than 900 miles, was in the other direction, to the northeastern coast, on Davis Strait. It was longer than usual because it was extended to cape Kater to look up Mr. Pitchforth, only to find itself forestalled by Constable Murray's patrol already noticed. It was made by Corporal Friel; an earlier attempt, made in January, 1927, failed in Kingniat fiord, owing to lack of snow and injuries to the sled. Corporal Friel's report is:—

"The patrol was made for the purpose of inquiring as to the health and condition of the natives, investigating report re insanity of Pee-tite-to at Kivitoo, hear complaints if any, collect expired game animal licenses, take census and do vital statistics, encourage the extermination of wolves and the conservation of caribou

"I left the detachment on the 24th of April with employed native Koodloo and a team of eighteen dogs, Constables Tutin and Curleigh assisting to the height-of-land in Kingniat.

"The snow being of insufficient quality for igloo building, the silk sail of the surf boat was taken along (weight about three pounds) and used as a tent. The tents on charge at this detachment are too big and heavy for travelling. The large team of dogs was taken for the purpose of making a quick patrol; land being free of snow in places, a smaller team could not have pulled the komitik over the rocks and bare ground.

"Camp was made east of Tess-ee-ar-aloo in mouth of Kingniat fiord, at 9 p.m. Clear with a light breeze from the west.

"April 25 and 26, travelling up Kingniat fiord; came to head of fiord and commenced travelling up the river, which was covered with glare ice, many rocks protruding; in some places there was neither snow or ice. Camp was made at 9.20 p.m. on river. Clear with a light breeze from the southwest.

"April 27, we continued up the river which was mostly rocks, picked up a cache of biscuits left here on our previous attempt, and were over the falls which is the height of land at 3 p.m. Dog feed was then transferred to the patrol's komitik, Constables Tutin and Curleigh returning to Pangnirtung. The patrol crossed two small lakes and a stretch of stony land, camping on the southwest corner of Tess-see-auk-jew-oh, a big lake with many salmon. Numerous caribou tracks were seen during the day.

"The following morning at 8.30 a.m. we left camp travelling in a northeastern direction on the lake. We came to a river which was shallow and had many stones, komitik continuously running on them and dog traces catching. Three caribou were sighted. . . . Numerous caribou tracks were seen everywhere during the day. This is a favourite grazing ground. Camp was made at 8.30 p.m. at head of Kingniat fiord in Davis strait. Clear and warm with a northeast breeze. Water running in river to-day.

"April 29. Shortly after leaving camp, travelling on the sea ice, caribou were sighted ahead, which gave the patrol a merry ride for about fifteen miles, when they took to the land. They were not molested. The patrol continued on; passing a native settlement recently vacated, we arrived at Padlee in a dense fog at 6.30 p.m. The latter part of the day the snow was very soft.

"Padlee (A-mik-to-auk-goo-sil) an island situated west of Durban harbour. A galvanized shack put up in 1900 by the Scotch whalers, used as a store-house by the natives, and three tents were the only buildings.

"A census of the camp showed twenty-nine inhabitants, with no births, deaths, or marriages since the first of the year.

"King-ood-lee, head man of the camp, was sick with pneumonia and a young woman had a cyst on the eye, both of which were attended to. The remainder of the camp were in good health.

"A fire caused by the explosion of a primus stove burned the shack of Kingood'lee and its contents last fall. Expired game animal licenses were also burned. This man has been doing no trading this year.

"The camp was well supplied with meats; tents clean and the natives well clothed.

"The Sabellum ship has not been in for two years, therefore the natives are without flour, biscuits, sugar and tea, which they miss greatly.

"This camp is in the midst of good hunting, the natives are always well supplied with meats.

"April 30, we retraced our tracks for about five miles, taking an inside route which was said to be the best. The snow was very soft and the day warm, slow progress was made. A neck of land was crossed about five miles in width, and camp made at 10 p.m. south side of Kung-al-choo-apik, a long bay.

"The following morning at 8 a.m. we left camp travelling northeast. We were unfortunate in losing one of my dogs. His trace catching on the shore ice, the komitik ran on him and broke his leg before we could stop the team. The day being warm and the snow deep, camp was made at 4 p.m. to await the cool of evening. At 11.20 p.m. the patrol continued on, passing entrance to Pangnirtung pass, and to the east of an island with high smooth cliffs. Camp was made at 12 noon May 2, on the south side of Broughton island. This is a camping place for the natives of Kivitoo when they are sealing; four snow houses showed the place was recently occupied. Warm during day, hazy with a light breeze from northeast at night.

"May 2, at 10.30 p.m. we left camp, Koodloo snow blind and unable to drive; with good going we passed to the west of Broughton island; continuing on through rough ice, we met A-ta-gile-lee, a native from Kivitoo who was going to hunt seal. He informed us of the death of Mr. H. Pitchforth of cape Kater. We arrived at Kivitoo at 12 noon May 3.

"The day was spent in getting information regarding the death of Mr. Pitchforth, and taking statements re one Peetiteto who was talked of by the Eskimo as insane.

"May 4, visiting the natives, taking census, registering three births and one marriage.

"The natives here are very dirty and hard up for clothes, tents filthy. The majority of the natives are going to hunt caribou this summer, next winter should find them better clothed. All however are healthy with the exception of one woman who has a swollen knee, having been hurt by a komitik; she is unable to walk.

"The Sabellum Trading Company have four small shacks here. Kivitoo appears to be a poor hunting ground, natives having to do two days travel in order to hunt. They hunt east of Broughton island.

"At 5.25 p.m. of the same day we left for cape Kater. There being many islands in Home bay, Ataguilelee was hired as guide for the patrol, Koodloo not knowing the way. We crossed the land west of Kivitoo, arriving at Peetiteto's camp at 9 p.m.

"After ascertaining the condition of Peetiteto, who at the time was all right, I took census of the camp which was nine, all in good health, dog feed was bartered for, then the patrol left crossing a small neck of land. Camp was made at 1 a.m. on the southwest side of an island opposite two large bays.

"May 5, left camp at 9 a.m. Koodloo's eyes all right again. Travelled west and northwest. Camp was made on the northwest side of Keek-tor-re-uh an island southwest of Kekertalujuk at 9.30 a.m. Hazy and snowing.

"May 6 and 7, travelling west and northwest; few seal on ice; Koodloo was fortunate in getting two large ones on the 7th. Storming weather and soft snow retarded our progress, camp was made in the lee of an island.

"The following morning at nine we left camp; soft snow and hazy weather made travelling slow. Crossed bay called Noogloo; caribou can be gotten at its head, in summer. Crossed Cape Hooper and camped on Satigun island at 9 p.m.

"May 9, on leaving camp many seal were noticed on the ice. Two were gotten and fed to the dogs. Passed to the east of Kekertaloriak, camping opposite Tooktooa-lee at 9 p.m. Much iron in the rocks here. Snow soft but travelling fair. Sun shining for first time since leaving Kivitoo.

"May 10, left camp at 9 a.m., good going; arrived at Eevesaw, an island and native settlement; the natives having just left we continued on across the bay to Tea-kilk-ka, southwest part of cape Kater, arriving there at 5.30 p.m.

"A shack about 8 feet by 10 feet with a small porch and store-house alongside, was the only building. (A wall of stone about two feet thick and up to the roof was on the north and west side, probably for a wind-break).

"The doors were nailed and locked, windows barred. A snow drift against the door showed the place had no life for some time.

"We continued on to a native camp some five miles east Nee-a-koe-naw-goe-sil, arriving there at 9.15 p.m.

"The camp, consisted of three tents, with eleven natives, all in good health, and plenty of meats. Dog feed was bartered for from Kowtoe.

"The following day was spent in getting information and taking census.

"I was informed by the natives that the police from Ponds Inlet were down and took the remains of Mr. H. Pitchforth back up with them.

"Ang-oo-tit-soc-auk, a native from Ponds Inlet and now living at Scott inlet, was down visiting, reported the natives further north in good health and having a large catch of foxes. A strong northwest wind with drift blowing all day.

"May 11, we started on our return; fresh snow had covered our previous trail. Met Peetiteto on the 15th, five seal previously arranged for were picked up; two fed to our dogs, the remainder were put on the komitik. We arrived at Kivitoo at 2 a.m. of the 17th.

"May 17 was spent in camp resting dogs and preparing for the return trip. Expired game animal licenses were collected, destitute relief was given to one old man and woman. Clear and calm.

"May 18, left Kivitoo on the homeward trip, snowing and hazy, camped northwest of Broughton island at 11 p.m.

"On leaving camp the next morning two teams en route to Kivitoo to trade, were met, they reporting Kingoodlee well again. Camped at 12.30 a.m. of the 20th, east of Pangnirtung fiord on Davis strait. Many ptarmigan seen here. Soft snow and hazy.

"The following morning travelling southwest and hunting for seal, one being gotten and fed to the dogs. We camped on the northwest side of the fiord at 11 p.m. Sea gulls were seen to-day.

"May 21, travelling up the fiord and hunting seal, sufficient to feed our dogs while crossing the land required. Three large seal were gotten; camped on land by river at 12 p.m. Both sides of the fiord have high smooth cliffs with numerous streams running down into the fiord; the river here is very wide with sand and gravel bottom, soil on either side. Water running in the river and no snow on the land.

"May 22, resting and feeding dogs, walked up river during the day to see possibility of taking komitik through, snow only in places along bank of river. Left camp at 11 p.m. Snowing heavily which made the grass wet, enabled us to travel. Two small rivers were crossed, passing two land slides, one a half mile in length, caused by the fall of a glacier, the remains of which are still visible. Hare and ptarmigan were seen, also fresh caribou tracks; dogs getting wind of caribou, fast time was made on rivers' edge. Strong westerly wind blowing sand. Camped behind rock at 8.30 a.m. of the 23rd; too windy for tent.

"May 23, left camp at 9 p.m., strong easterly wind with snow. Travelling on river when ice permitted, crossed height of land and three lakes, coming to a waterfall; dogs had to be taken off komitik, and drags put on to take it down the falls; ice thin, komitik going through in many places; water running. Camped at 11.30 p.m. of the 24th.

"May 24, left camp at 12 o'clock midnight; many large rocks in river. Dogs had to be unhitched while the komitik was taken over. Camped at 11 p.m. on the 25th.

"May 25, started to pack outfit over the rocks at 10 p.m. Everything including komitik was carried for a half mile where the dogs were hitched to it; we then travelled on side of river on ice caused by overflow during the day. A seal cached by Ungmallee was found and fed to the dogs, arrived at sea ice at 8 a.m. of the 25th, continuing on with good going we arrived at the detachment at 1.45 p.m., completing the sledge patrols for the season.

"The patrol occupied 32 days and travelled approximately 920 miles. Visited 94 natives."

Between March 16 and March 31, 1927, Constable E. Tutin made a patrol of 550 miles along the southern shore of Cumberland gulf, visiting ten native encampments with 190 inhabitants; a census was taken, and the usual relief distributed, information collected, etc.

PORT BURWELL

At Port Burwell, where Corporal H. G. Nichols and Constable S. R. Montague are stationed, new buildings have been erected, and the neatness of the post is commented upon in the inspection reports. This is not one of the detachments from which long patrols are made, its duties having to do with the seaboard. Constable Montague in February, 1927, made a fifteen days' patrol of 320 miles to George River, visiting a number of native families along the coast of Ungava bay, and finding them well supplied with food and clothing, and in good health. He issued a certain amount of food supplies to widows, aged people, etc. He also exhibited and explained the posters issued by the Indian Department with regard to game conservation, observance of the laws, etc.

Corporal Nichols' monthly reports contain a number of glimpses of the condition of the Eskimos. That for December, 1926, describes them as "in good condition with regard to health and necessities of life", and adds:—

"Several families arrived in from the Ungava bay coast to spend Christmas at the post. A service was held, and after a good feed, followed by sports on the sea ice, they departed for their different winter homes along the coast. Apparently foxes are scarce as very few signs have been seen. This, coupled with the poor fall seal catch, tends to make the coming winter a trifle hard."

Later reports describe these people as "all self-supporting, with the exception of several widows and orphans," and also some old people; it is observed that "their health during the winter has been a great improvement over (that of) the last two years, scarcely anybody asking for treatment." It is noted that the aid given to the destitute is gratefully received.

CHESTERFIELD INLET

At Chesterfield Inlet Staff-Sergeant M. A. Joyce and Constable W. B. MacGregor in August, 1927, made a patrol by water, partly by the Hudson's Bay Company s.s. Nascopie and partly by motor launch, of 800 miles altogether, to Southampton island and return. The settlement at that island consists of a trading post and a mission, and about 85 natives were encamped there. Staff-Sergeant Joyce's report includes the following paragraphs:—

"The health of the natives on Southampton island appears to have been very good during the year. Only one death was reported, that was an old man who had been in a bad state from dropsy for some time.

"Walrus, seals, fish, white bear and game birds appear to have been fairly plentiful during the year, but caribou have been very scarce. However, there was but little hunger and destitution. The fur catch was extremely good, and as a result the natives had purchased everything that was on the island for sale, about 2,600 foxes being the total catch. About 100 walrus were killed during the season, and the hides shipped out this year. Mr. Ford, the post manager, informed me that he had sent the natives walrus hunting this spring, and gave them strict instructions regarding the saving of the meat and blubber as well as the hides; however, they killed 21 walrus and brought in the hides, but made no attempt to save the meat and blubber. In this respect I feel confident that Mr. Ford did all which he considered necessary to have the natives save the meat and blubber for future use, but it is indeed difficult to make a native see this from our point of view, and as long as there is anything to kill in sight, and the ammunition lasts, the Eskimo will continue to shoot to satisfy his desire to kill. I would again urge that if the walrus are to be saved from extermination in the Hudson's Bay that the killing of them be prohibited for commercial purposes."

The old post at Fullerton was visited on the return journey. A stay was also made at Depot island, where there were some caches of blubber put up by the Eskimos; the following remark is of interest:—

"There were five native-owned dogs on Depot island. They were found to be in perfect condition, and, although there had been no person on the island for one month, and the dogs had been unable to get at the caches of blubber, they had kept very fat on the walrus and seal bones that had been discarded when the caches were put up."

Earlier in the year, in April, Constable MacGregor made a patrol to the west end of Baker lake, traversing 418 miles. There had been some destitution among the Eskimos, and the police helped by giving them some caches of meat made for their own purposes. At this place another case of insanity was reported, a middle-aged Eskimo who had been behaving strangely having walked away from his camp in a blizzard, and having disappeared. Constable MacGregor reports:—

"Natives north of Baker lake, practically all of whom trade at Revillon Freres post, have experienced a good winter. Caribou and fish have been plentiful, and sufficient food and dog feed was obtained all year. Fox catch was better than last season, and some wolves were obtained. Six of these northern natives, seen at Revillon Freres post, were well clothed in caribou skins, and had some to trade."

A patrol from Chesterfield to Churchill between May and July, conveying the mail, was marked by some difficulties of travel. For some time the detachment at Churchill has been closed, and Constable MacGregor on arriving at Churchill had to arrange to forward the mails to Port Nelson. He set out by whaleboat, with a party of Eskimos, and when near the Manitoba boundary was held up by ice conditions; he hired a dog team and went on with two Eskimos, leaving the rest to bring on the boat when ice conditions permitted travel; he reached Churchill in three days, but the boat took 25 days to travel the hundred miles. At Churchill the aeroplane service had been discontinued and he hired two Indians to take the mails on to Port Nelson, only to have them turn back after going part of the way; eventually he managed to get the mails despatched. Altogether he was 49 days away from the detachment.

CAMBRIDGE BAY

In the Western Arctic there are fewer long and dangerous patrols to record, our detachments having become more numerous and inter-communication being more systematic. Conditions, however, still remain wild and arduous, and nature is unfriendly.

Sergeant F. Anderton, who is in charge at Cambridge Bay, our easternmost, and most remote, detachment in this part of the Arctic, patrolled in January, February, and March, 1927, to Bernard Harbour and back, travelling 734 miles in 62 days. He left on January 15, with an Eskimo driver; his report in part is as follows:—

"The route followed on this patrol was along the south shore of Victoria land, this being the most direct route, but it proved to be very difficult travelling owing to the weather, and the old and rough ice encountered; during the whole of the travel there was a very strong northwest wind blowing, and at times it developed into a strong blizzard, and at such times it was impossible to face it, and in all we were held up five days; visibility was very poor, and there was only one day when we could see clearly where we were going, other times we just struck a general direction, which we fortunately maintained fairly correctly; neither the native or myself had travelled this route before, and it was difficult to recognize points when we arrived at them, as the coast line practically all along is very flat, and it was at times most difficult to know whether we were on land or ice, until we dug down; therefore if we had recognized Lady Franklin point, when we passed, and then have crossed the straits, we should have gained one day on the trip, instead we went to Rymer point before we crossed over. On the 22nd instant the wind turned into a blizzard just after noon, and we were compelled to move camp. This was done hurriedly as we were both freezing our hands and face badly, and during the night the snow house was broken twice, by the strong wind, which raged all day, and the following night it was again broken open, and a very uncomfortable time was spent there until we could move away again; at all other times our snow houses were fairly comfortable. From the time we left Cambridge bay we saw no one until we arrived at Rymer point; there there was quite a large settlement of natives, and a Hudson Bay post, also one of C. Klengenbergs posts, and from here we made Bernard harbour in one day.

"On the return journey from Bernard harbour, we made cape Krusenstern the first day, then struck straight across the gulf for Tree river, arriving there on the night of the third day out, then from there to cape Barrow, and on down Bathurst inlet to Hood river, where I was informed I should find a number of natives camped, but to my surprise there was only one old native there, and he was then preparing to leave as he had very little food, and no dog-feed; as I had hoped to get sufficient dog-feed here to continue my trip down to the bottom of Bathurst inlet, and as I only had two nights' feed left, I was compelled to return; as the old native informed me there was no natives at Bathurst now, all being inland, and no change of getting dog-feed it was useless for me to go further; from here I went to Patsy Klengenbergs on Oongeevik island, and procured sufficient feed to continue my trip via Kent peninsula to Cambridge bay.

"There were very few natives seen during this patrol, as at this time of the year they are all inland, hunting and trapping, with the exception of the few that hang around the settlements. And one small seal camp visited off cape Krusenstern and a larger one northwest of Melbourne island, and from the information I could gather the fur catch is of the usual average, but of poor quality; the traders at the different posts I visited all complain, that since there are now so many posts established in the district, and competition is so keen, and a higher price being paid for the fur traded, that the natives are not trapping so much as usual, as they can now get all they require with a few pelts, and I am fully assured that this complaint is in a sense true, as the natives have spoken to me on several occasions, of the amount of stuff they get for a fox pelt now to what they used to; of course, they do not look at it in any beneficial way, but more in the nature of a joke, that one person should pay more for their fur than another.

"During the whole of the patrol I received no complaints, and no cases of sickness or destitution were brought to my notice."

From the same detachment Constable S. Dykes made a patrol of 24 days and 328 miles to Perry river, reporting thus:—

"During this patrol I visited at all places where anyone was camped, first at Ellice river, where there was only two natives; at this point the Hudson's Bay Company have a small store partly erected, and I presume it will be completed this spring; none of the Hudson's Bay Company men were present. I next visited White Bear point; where there were a few natives, and Mr. C. H. Clarke has established a small trading post, under the management of R. C. MacGregor, but this I understand will be discontinued in the spring. I then went to Mr. C. H. Clarke's, he having established a trading post on an island off from Perry river, then down to Perry river, where the Hudson's Bay Company have a post. I also visited a seal camp northeast from Perry river, where there was quite a bunch of natives, having returned from inland hunting and trapping.

"Quite a number of natives were seen on this patrol, but no complaints were received from them, and they all appeared to be quite healthy and contented, their fur catch being about the usual average, and no destitution apparent amongst them.

"In this part of the district there have been since last fall four trading posts established by the Hudson's Bay Company, and Mr. C. H. Clarke, which fact has been beneficial to the natives in some ways, by obtaining a high price for their fur, but this has also a tendency to make them lazy, as they do not require so many pelts to trade for their requirements, and the traders themselves state that the natives do not trap any more than is absolutely necessary for their needs, but prefer to lay around the camps doing nothing.

"During this patrol travelling was good, very little rough ice being encountered, and the dogs were in excellent shape, strong winds and drifting snow lasting only a few days when it was impossible to travel. I returned to Cambridge Bay on Friday, May 6, 1927."

BERNARD HARBOUR

Bernard Harbour is the next detachment to the west; Sergeant E. G. Baker is in charge. Constable C. E. Wood in April and May patrolled with the mail to Cambridge Bay, his total mileage being 770. His report is:—

"We arrived at Cambridge bay on May 22, having delivered mail for Hudson's Bay Company's posts at Krusenstern, Tree river, and Kent peninsula.

"Owing to the bad condition of the trail during certain periods of this trip, it was necessary to stop over two or three days at different points, in order to rest and recuperate the dogs sufficiently for them to continue. Special Constable Ikalukpiak, acting as guide, not having been over the route between Tree river and Cambridge bay since a very small boy, was at times very uncertain as to whether we were travelling in the proper direction or not. While crossing Bathurst inlet he developed snow blindness, and on reaching the east side we could not locate the gap in the mainland, which is the entrance to Kent peninsula, and having a very limited supply of dog-feed, we were forced to turn back, but only travelled a short distance when we picked up an old trail leading to C. Klengenberg's trading post, which is situated on an island just outside of Bathurst inlet. We found plenty of dog feed at this point, where I stopped and doctored Ikalukpiak's eyes until they were healed and in condition to travel again, when we resumed our patrol to Cambridge Bay.

"We stayed at Cambridge Bay six days, and started on the return trip to April 28, the dogs having been well fed and rested.

"On our return trip we stopped at Klengenberg's post, which is operated by his son Patsy, and while we were there about seventy-five natives, with sixteen dog teams, arrived from the foot of Bathurst inlet. I visited them as soon as they had their camps established, and found them all very healthy and prosperous, with large catches of fur and sufficient deer meat to supply them with food for a considerable time."

The death, after an illness of some months, of a trapper at Kugaruit, 20 miles east of the Coppermine river, caused Sergeant Baker and Constable R. S. Wild a journey of 180 miles, to look after his property. This trapper, who was living with a partner, had been visited before, but lack of transport facilities had prevented his being moved to the detachment.

An example of the uncertainty of travel in these regions is afforded by an interruption sustained to the carefully devised plan for mail patrols. Constable Wood set out on February 18, 1927, with an Eskimo special constable to make the winter mail patrol. On February 23, after travelling about 70 miles, to Cache point, some 25 miles east of Inman river, and being held up by a two-day blizzard, the party "encountered exceptionally rough ice, and being heavily loaded we unfortunately broke our sled and could not proceed." Efforts at repair failing, Constable Wood had to return, the care of the load proving a difficulty. At the detachment a new sled was made, and Sergeant Baker and Constable Wood set out again on March 8. On March 21, they reached Pearce point, some 200 miles short of Baillie island, their destination, and there met Constable G. M. Wall, in charge at Baillie island, who, alarmed at their non-arrival, had set out on March 21, to search for them. The mails were exchanged, and the two parties returned to their respective posts. Both parties were hampered by bad weather conditions. Sundry visits were made to native camps in the course of these patrols. Including some deviations on various duties, and the unsuccessful start, the two parties covered 1,035 miles.

Sergeant Baker also visited Victoria land.

BAILLIE ISLAND

At Baillie Island Constable G. M. Wall had an alarm over two trappers who spent the winter at Harrowby bay, about 60 miles away; they had not been seen for some time by the Eskimos, and Constable Wall visited their camp in December, 1926, and found them well, circumstances having caused them to remain close to their cabin. Other traders and trappers were visited on this journey. The report remarks:—

"On the return I met with a slight mishap, falling into a crack which was about 6 feet wide and drifted over. This was about six miles from Maitland point crossing Harrowby bay, so, for changing foot gear and as the weather was dull, the ice conditions ahead not being known I returned to my last camp where there was wood and dried out a little. The following day I went down to Mr. Peterson's camp and got my clothing thoroughly dried and repaired; this delayed me four days."

Constable Wall's diary shows that one of the days spent in repairing damages was Christmas, an additional detail being, "northeastern gale blowing."

Another patrol had to be made by this detachment in January, 1927, to look for white trappers who had gone along the coast, and of whom news had been lacking.

HERSCHEL ISLAND AND AKLAVIK

A number of patrols were made from Herschel island and Aklavik, and the usual journeys were made between these two places.

Another long mail patrol was made by Constable R. W. Kells from Aklavik to Baillie Island; he left the former detachment on February 7, 1927, and arrived at Baillie Island on February 19; he was delayed there by the mishap to the Bernard Harbour patrol already mentioned, left on the return trip on March 6, and completed his patrol March 23, having been away from the detachment 75 days, having spent 31 days on the trail, and having a mileage of 711.

Police work of a more ordinary kind now occupies our men; thus the Baillie Island detachment, on receiving a complaint that an Eskimo was ill-using his wife, found that the cause was "homebrew" supplied by a white man, and dealt with the offender. So also the Arctic Red River detachment had to look into a case of an Indian killing moose out of season.

THE MACKENZIE RIVER

The detachments strewn along the course of the Mackenzie and on the shores of the lakes in its basin during the year kept up the usual system of patrols, few if any of them as adventurous as those in the very far north, but arduous and useful.

Thus Corporal A. Fielding, in charge of the detachment at Good Hope, in February, 1927, travelled about 140 miles to the west to visit a band of Indians living somewhere in the mountains, to investigate complaints made by these Indians about certain trappers; the Indians could not be found, no guides could be procured, travel conditions were bad owing to deep snow, the food carried gave out, and the game proved so scarce that the supply could not be supplemented. A report that an Indian was very ill caused Constable J. D. Cummings of the same detachment a journey of some 250 miles in April; the journey was rendered laborious by a three-day blizzard which had covered all the trails with snow.

At Simpson Constable J. S. Clark made a journey of 356 miles up the Liard and back in February and March, trails being very heavy and badly drifted. This was undertaken in the interests of the Indians, who seem to be suffering from the competition of white trappers. One complaint which was encountered was:—

"The Indians complained of the wolves being very thick in the district and were eating the fur out of the traps. One Indian told me he had seen about ninety wolves in one pack. I informed them that wolf bounty is still being paid, and that it was up to them to kill all the wolves they could. The Trout Lake Indians were in Liard on my arrival there; they have had a hard winter making a poor catch of fish. Before coming into Liard they killed about twenty moose, which put them on their feet again. They have lost half their dogs due to starvation."

Complaint also has been made at several places along the lower Mackenzie that coyotes or "brush wolves" are invading the trapping grounds and destroying the fur-bearing animals trapped.

At Fort Smith an investigation into a fire which occurred made it necessary to take statements from persons living some distance away from the river, and this caused Corporal L. M. Lloyd-Walters some heavy travelling in April and May, when the ice was dangerous and the snow melting. The earlier trip was of about 200 miles to Landry river and Hanging Ice river. The second one, of 75 miles, was made later. One passage from his report is:—

"At 1 p.m. on the 7th instant, I started with a small canoe, accompanied by W. D. Lyall, to try and get down the Slave river by following the water along the shore, but as the ice started to move above us, we had to return. We were fortunate in turning when we did, as in another half minute we would have been crushed.

"I waited at the Salt River settlement until the morning of the 12th, expecting the ice to move sufficiently to allow us to travel. As the ice during this time kept moving only short distances at a time and there was no immediate prospect of being able to get down by the big river, I started at 10 a.m. to try and get through to Portage lake by the winter road over the sloughs. We portaged into the first sloughs and found them still ice-bound but managed to break the ice and paddle along the edge. We travelled this way portaging from slough to slough for two miles when we arrived at the forks of the trail and went down to the shore of the Slave river to have a cup of tea. On our arrival at the river bank we found the ice was just starting to run so we portaged right away and started down to get ahead of the ice. We were able to go about a mile and a half when we reached a jam so went ashore to wait until we could get through. In about an hour we managed to get through and paddled to a willow point about a mile further down, and as the ice was piled up here, made a portage of about one mile into a back channel which was open. The ice had not moved below this so we decided to go back to the sloughs portaging about a mile through the bush. We were able to paddle down a couple of short sloughs and found the next ones were full of ice and so had to drag the canoe through the water in the grass. We travelled this way until 10 p.m. when we had to camp at the south end of Portage lake as it was too dark to travel, and we were continually falling into rat holes. Weather cool.

PELICAN NARROWS

Pelican Narrows at present is a remote place, north of the Pas, but the mining developments at Flin Flon will be fairly close to it, as distances are counted in these immense solitudes. This detachment is being placed on a permanent footing, buildings being erected. Corporal J. J. Molloy spent an active winter there, one patrol, to the Montreal Lake Indian reserve, near Lac la Ronge, giving him 536 miles of travel. This visit to the Indians was the occasion of some expostulation:—

“At the north end of Montreal lake I visited some Indians who reside there during the winter season. I found their houses very dirty, their children dirty and not properly clothed, with nothing in the houses to eat except moosemeat; questioned, they stated they were poor, as the fur hunt had been a failure. I had them clean up their houses.”

On another occasion, finding the Indians feeding their dogs on moose meat (moose happening to be plentiful) he instructed them to put their nets out and get fish for their dogs. A good deal was heard on this patrol about illicit supplies of liquor.

TICKET-OF-LEAVE

The report of the Ticket-of-Leave Branch, by Lieutenant-Colonel R. de la B. Girouard, remarks that the increase of 68 in the number of licenses issued is largely due to releases during Confederation week in conjunction with the Act of Grace and Mercy dated July 1, 1927. It is noted with satisfaction that the delinquent percentage has dropped from 11.2 per cent last year to 5.74 per cent, the revocations of licenses for failure to report and non-observance of the conditions having decreased by 24, and forfeitures for the commission of indictable offences while on conditional liberty having decreased by 13. Mention also is made of increased co-operation and better understanding between the different police forces throughout the country and the branch in the supervision and reporting of licensed convicts.

The figures are:—

CRIMINAL IDENTIFICATION

The statistical report of the Criminal Identification Bureau is to be found in appendix B. The work of the bureau continues to expand, the number of finger prints received numbering 24,346, an increase upon last year of 2,663, or more than 12 per cent, while the identifications effected were 2,929, an increase of 308, or nearly 12 per cent. For the last decade every year has seen an increase; in 1919 the number of finger prints received was somewhat over 11,000. The total number of records received since the founding of this service in 1911 is 218,479.

There is also a substantial increase in the number of photographs received, from 5,415 last year to 6,306 in this year.

We are most desirous of extending this service, which is maintained for the general benefit of all the police services in Canada, and in order to take our part in the general warfare against crime all over the world. Our co-operation extends, not only to other forces in the Dominion, but also to other British countries and to public authorities elsewhere.

Constable Rhodes lost his life in a fire which destroyed one of the buildings at Rae on December 6, 1926. Constable Rhodes was a promising young policeman, and his tragic death is much lamented.

Although it happened after the date of the closing of this report, I cannot pass by the death of Assistant Commissioner R. S. Knight at Regina on November 4, 1927, without an expression of appreciation and regret. He had been a member of this Force for upwards of 37 years and was a most valuable officer.

HEALTH

The health of the force has in general been good, and the sanitary condition of the barracks satisfactory.

ST. JOHN AMBULANCE ASSOCIATION

Inspector M. H. Vernon, the Adjutant of the force, and the secretary of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Centre of the St. John Ambulance Association, reports as follows:—

“Every endeavour has been made to stimulate interest in this important work throughout the force and as a result classes have been held at Ottawa, Regina, Winnipeg, Vancouver,

Halifax, Calgary and Lethbridge. The following awards were issued to successful candidates:—

Certificates	49
Vouchers	24
Medallions	13
Labels	15

"Two instructors' certificates were also issued to members of the force.

"During the year 32 men, holding certificates of the St. John Ambulance Association, have taken their discharge from the force, leaving the net gain rather small, but arrangements have been made to carry on the work in a more extended manner at all posts during the coming year.

"The following shows the positions obtained by Royal Canadian Mounted Police teams in the Trophy Competitions held during the year:—

Montizambert Championship

No. 3 "A" Division, Ottawa.

"E" Division, Vancouver, are to be congratulated on the fine showing made by their team, being winners in three competitions and runners up in two others.

"The more notable cases during the year where first aid has been rendered by members of the force, follow:—

"Sergeant Paton of 'E' Division, while on Liard River patrol in December, 1926, found an Indian named Long Shorty suffering from a neglected wound on the inside of his left leg in which blood poisoning had set in. After first aid treatment had been given a great improvement was noticed in a few days, and it is altogether likely that the timely aid given was the means of saving this Indian's life.

"On June 3, 1927, Constable Horsfield was asked by an Indian named Aleck Williams to attend his daughter, aged 12 years, who had a bad wound caused by running a stick into her groin some three weeks previously. First aid treatment was given and on the wound being treated large quantities of pus were released which brought out small pieces of rotten wood. Instructions were also left as to the treatment to be continued."

HORSES

The number of horses now stands at 248, a decrease of 66 from the figures of last year. The details of gains and losses during the twelve month are:—

Purchased	5
Increase		5
Cast and sold.....	64
Died	1
Destroyed	6
Decrease		71
Total decrease for year 1927.....		66

We have once more begun to purchase horses, as those we have are ageing. Those bought are proving satisfactory.

TRANSPORT

Motor transport is becoming increasingly important; many of the cars in our possession are no longer new, and, while they are well cared for, replacements as well as additions are becoming necessary. The motor-cycle is being relegated to highway work.

BUILDINGS

Three detachments in remote places have been provided with buildings, at Lake Harbour in the southern part of Baffin island, Reliance, at the eastern end of Great Slave lake, and Pelican narrows in northern Manitoba. These are of standard types.

CLOTHING

The supply and quality of clothing have been satisfactory.

FORAGE

The supply of forage has been satisfactory and the quality good.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

CORTLANDT STARNES,

Commissioner.

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE OF CANADA

FOR THE FISCAL YEAR ENDED MARCH 31, 1927

CORRESPONDENCE BRANCH

The Correspondence Branch conducts the general correspondence of the department and the official correspondence of the Dominion Government with the Provincial Governments and administers the Boards of Trade Act, Canada Temperance Act, Ticket-of-Leave Act, Trade Unions Act, and War Charities Act.

The volume of correspondence conducted during the year by the branch shows a very considerable increase over that of previous years.

The following summary will indicate the work performed in connection with the administration of the Acts mentioned:—

BOARDS OF TRADE ACT

Fourteen new boards of trade, the names of which will be found in the report of the Registrar's Branch, were registered during the year. All boards registered under the Boards of Trade Acts or under Special Acts of Parliament have been required since the passage of the Amendment Act, 1920, to make annual returns to the department. These returns are examined and filed in the Correspondence Branch.

CANADA TEMPERANCE ACT

No elections were held under Part I for the bringing into force of Part II in counties or cities during the fiscal year. Part II is now in force in the following places:—

Ontario—District of Manitoulin.

Quebec—City of Thetford Mines and counties of Brome and Compton.

Manitoba—Lisgar and Marquette.

No further action was taken during the year under Part IV with respect to the prohibition of the importation of intoxicating liquor into the provinces or the exportation of liquor therefrom.

TICKET-OF-LEAVE ACT

This Act is administered jointly by the Department of Justice and the Department of the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State receives petitions for clemency and communicates His Excellency's pleasure in relation thereto to the parties concerned. During the year 767 licenses were issued under this Act. In 49 other cases conditions of liberation contained in licenses previously issued were varied and in 2 cases licenses were made unconditional.

In addition to these cases under the Ticket-of-Leave Act the Remission Division dealt with the following criminal cases:—

Deportation	119
Unconditional releases	49
Reductions and remissions of fines (Excise Act).....	81
Conditional releases	53
Remission of lashes.....	1
Return of confiscated firearms.....	1
Balance of sentence remitted.....	4
Penalty remitted	1
Cases of "No Interference".....	848

CAPITAL CASES

Seventeen capital cases were dealt with in the Remission Division during the year jointly with the Department of Justice. The judges' reports and the evidence in all such cases are filed with the Secretary of State, who also communicates His Excellency's decisions regarding the execution of the sentence to the authorities concerned. Of the 17 cases the death sentence was carried out in 9; 5 were commuted and in 3 cases new trials were granted.

THE WAR CHARITIES ACT, 1917

The War Charities Act was repealed by Act of Parliament assented to on March 31, 1927. At that date 157 societies remained on the register. From the time the Act came into force until its repeal a total of 855 societies took out Certificates of Registration. As soon as the registered societies have filed financial statements covering the year ended March 31 the work of the department in connection with the administration of the Act will be closed. For the first year and a half after the Act was passed a special staff was engaged to supervise its administration. Since early in 1919 the work has been carried on by the regular staff of the Correspondence Branch.

The following societies were registered during the fiscal year 1926-27:—

Youngstown Chapter, I.O.D.E., Youngstown, Alta.

Date: April 27, 1926.

TRADE UNIONS ACT

Two new Trade Unions were registered during the year. The returns made by registered unions are checked and filed in the Correspondence Branch.

GOVERNOR GENERAL'S INSTALLATION

As supervisor of State functions the department was called upon in October last to make the necessary arrangements for the reception and installation of Viscount Willingdon as Governor General of Canada. Much time and study was given to the preparation of the program for the various ceremonies and functions and it is gratifying to record that all features of the program were carried through with signal success. The working out of the details, including the co-ordinating of preparations with the Departments of National Defence, Marine, Public Works, Railways and Canals, and Mounted Police, as well as with the civic officials of Quebec and Ottawa, was in the hands of the Correspondence Branch, which performed its duties with thoroughness and precision.

NATURALIZATION BRANCH

The total number of persons naturalized under the Naturalization Acts, 1914 and 1920, during the fiscal year ended March 31, 1927, was 16,917. This total includes the wives of the persons to whom the certificates were issued, also the minor children whose names are shown on the certificates.

Nine thousand and seventy-two certificates were issued during the fiscal year, comprising 8,272 under section 2, 2 under section 4, 1 under section 5, and 797 under section 6 of the Acts. These figures do not include the wives and minor children, but refer only to persons whose names appear on the face of the certificates.

There were issued, in the same period, 189 copies of certificates granted under the old Naturalization Act, chapter 77, R.S.C., 1906, and 163 copies of certificates granted under the Naturalization Acts, 1914 and 1920.

Twenty-five certificates were revoked and cancelled by the Governor in Council during the fiscal year, being a decrease of four as compared with the previous year.

For purposes of ready reference the statistical portion of the report of the branch, which follows, is arranged alphabetically in six separate schedules.

Schedule 1 shows, under the heading of Country of Origin, the number of certificates issued and the number of persons naturalized during the fiscal year 1926-27.

Schedule II shows, in alphabetical order, the name, former nationality, date of oath of allegiance, date of certificate, occupation, present residence, and certificate number of persons naturalized under the Naturalization Acts, 1914 and 1920, as registered in the branch during the fiscal year.

Schedule III shows, in alphabetical order, the names of persons naturalized during the preceding fiscal year (1925-26), but whose certificates were registered at too late a date to be included in the annual report for that year.

Schedule IV shows, in alphabetical order, the names of persons to whom certified copies of certificates granted under the provisions of the old Naturalization Act, chapter 77, R.S.C., 1906, were issued.

Schedule V shows, in alphabetical order, the names of persons to whom certified copies of Certificates granted under the provisions of the Naturalization Acts, 1914 and 1920, were issued.

Schedule VI shows the name, place of birth, date of certificate, date of oath of allegiance, occupation, residence, date of revocation and certificate number, of persons whose certificates of naturalization were revoked by the Governor in Council under the provisions of the Naturalization Acts, 1914 and 1920, during the fiscal year.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONERS

In compliance with the requirements of section 36 of the Civil Service Act, the Civil Service Commissioners submit their Nineteenth Annual Report, covering the transactions and affairs of the commission for the calendar year 1927.

EXAMINATIONS

The commission conducted, during the year, more than eighteen hundred individual examinations, at which the qualifications of more than twenty-four thousand persons were tested. This is an increase over the preceding year of more than twenty-five per cent in the number of examinations and nearly sixty per cent in the number of persons tested.

Among the important positions filled by open competition were those of sales tax auditors, junior trade commissioners, research engineers, departmental solicitors, medical officers (overseas), emigration agents, chief conciliation officers, and carillonneur.

As in former years, the commission has been assisted in its examinations by the services of scientific and professional experts and business administrators outside the government departments, as well as by departmental officers. In a list given on page x the commission expresses its appreciation of these services, which in most cases were given without remuneration of any kind. Through this active interest and assistance the application of the merit system has been greatly facilitated.

APPOINTMENTS, PROMOTIONS AND TRANSFERS

Tables showing the appointments, promotions and transfers made by the commission will be found in the appendix, in connection with which the commissioners desire to point out that action in such cases is taken only after requisition therefor has been made by the departments concerned.

The tables show that one thousand nine hundred and seventy (1,970) appointments of a permanent character were made, including three hundred and thirty-seven (337) rural postmasters, and that there were three thousand five hundred and fifty-seven (3,557) assignments for varying periods of temporary employment. Certificates were issued also for one thousand five hundred and fifty-nine (1,559) promotions and two hundred and four (204) transfers.

Reference has been made in previous reports to the Orders in Council passed under the provisions of section 11 of the Civil Service Act, whereby permanent status was given to certain employees. These Orders in Council were cancelled on May 5, 1927.

VETERAN AND DISABILITY PREFERENCE

The statutory preference in entrance examinations extended to veterans and pensioners of the Great War under section 39 (2) of the Civil Service Act has been faithfully administered by the commission. Of the one thousand five hundred and sixty-three (1,563) males appointed to permanent positions during the year, eight hundred and twelve (812) were ex-service men. Of the two thousand six hundred and ninety-five (2,695) males assigned for temporary employment, nine hundred and twenty-six (926) were ex-service men. In this connection the commission is glad to express its appreciation of the co-operation and assistance which has been rendered by the ex-service men's organizations in Canada.

SEPARATIONS

During the year one thousand five hundred and twenty-six (1,526) separations from the public service took place. Of these one thousand and ninety-six (1,096) were from permanent positions, ninety-four (94) from seasonal, and three hundred and thirty-six (336) from postmasterships.

SUPERANNUATION

Under the Civil Service Superannuation Act, 1924, the Civil Service Commission is required to report as to whether the granting of a superannuation or retiring allowance will be in the public interest. After June 16, 1927, no retirements on account of age over sixty-five years were submitted to the commission because of the regulations amended as of that date. During the year the commission approved of granting annuities in connection with ninety-five (95) retirements.

CLASSIFICATION

In pursuance of its policy of considering the classification of branches as a whole in preference to the investigation of individual positions, the commission has continued its efforts to discourage the submission of single cases, except where there has been a material change in duties and responsibilities. In the opinion of the commission, the number of requests of this nature is still far too high; and, in order to check this, it has been decided to disallow requests for reappraisal unless funds have been specifically provided for such revision in the estimates for the current fiscal year.

The preparation of establishments for departments is being continued. With the fixing of these establishments, it is anticipated that the number of single cases will be greatly reduced; and, as the duties of each position in a branch are placed on record when the establishment is prepared, it will be a much simpler matter to ascertain the degree of change since the position was last classified.

The commission has continued to reduce and combine classes as much as possible, and further reductions will be made as occasion offers.

SALARY REVISION

After an intensive survey of salary conditions in the Civil Service, both as regards special classes and also the general salary groups, the commission submitted a number of alternative proposals to the Government for consideration. This study resulted in the collection of much valuable information, including a considerable volume of figures from municipal and business organizations in Canada. The plan adopted was the flat increase of $120 per annum.

Arising out of this salary revision was the investigation of positions in the former senior clerk grades, the maximum of which was $1,680. Owing to a number of protests from employees who were left in this grade and not reclassified in grade 4, which carries a maximum of $1,920, the commission decided to investigate all such cases so that no employee should be overlooked. The reports on these investigations will be completed early in 1928.

As directed by His Excellency the Governor General in Council, the commission is proceeding with a study of compensation rates for professional, scientific and translator positions in the service, and it is hoped that early in 1928 a report on this matter will be completed for presentation to Council.

ORGANIZATION

Surveys of a number of branches of departments have been made either in the course of reorganization or for the purpose of providing a set establishment. Minor investigations in existing establishments have been undertaken, and it has again been proved that once an establishment for a unit has been drawn up any further changes can be accomplished easily and expeditiously. In addition to several smaller organizations, establishments have been set up during the year for the following:—

Interior:

- (a) Forestry Branch.
- (b) Natural Resources Intelligence Service.
- (c) Dominion Lands Branch, Western Division.
- (d) Office of the Supervising Mining Engineer, Calgary.

Health:

- (a) Overseas Medical Service.

National Revenue:

- (a) Preventive Service.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police:

- (a) Accounts Branch.
- (b) Administrative Branch.

Secretary of State:

- (a) Naturalization Branch.

As positions become vacant and are filled by promotion from within the department, an effort is made to reduce the organization by the abolition of the position rendered vacant by the employee's promotion. The commission has received considerable assistance from most of the departments in this regard.

The commission has assisted the Board of Railway Commissioners in a survey of the duties of its staff, with a view to reorganization. Special attention has been paid to the Traffic Division.

A survey of the Astronomical and North West Territories and Yukon Branches, Department of the Interior, is now in progress.

OBSERVANCE OF THE CIVIL SERVICE ACT AND REGULATIONS

Section 4 (b) of the Civil Service Act places upon the commission the duty of reporting upon the "violation of any of the provisions of this Act or of any of the regulations made thereunder". The commission again presents the suggestions made in its last report.

Acting Appointments:

In their last report the commissioners drew attention to the practice, which has frequently been found to exist, of placing officers in vacant positions in an acting capacity for considerable periods of time before asking the commission to take steps to fill the vacancies either by promotion or by open competition. When the competition is finally held, the temporary incumbent of the position has obviously an unfair advantage over the other competitors. The commission accordingly requests that requisitions for appointments or promotions be filed at as early a date as possible, so that when the position in question becomes vacant there will be no necessity for an acting appointment, but the new appointee will be ready to take over the duties.

An aggravated case of this nature has lately engaged the attention of the commission. The facts are as follows: One department, finding it necessary to appoint supervisors over certain sections of the work, selected employees for this office, which was of a higher grade than that in which they were then classified, and after having employed them in this higher grade for a considerable length of time, asked the Civil Service Commission to ratify their promotion by the issue of certificates, without consideration of any of the other employees of the department.

The higher grade in question was "Clerk, Grade 2", an entrance class for which a certain standard of education is required in order that the higher grades, which are filled by promotion, may be properly manned. None of the employees nominated for promotion by the department had passed the examination for Clerk, Grade 2, and an examination was therefore arranged by the commission to which all employees of the department desiring to be considered for promotion were admitted. Three of the department's nominees qualified and were promoted. Of the other four, two failed altogether to pass the examination, and two did not attempt it. The Civil Service Commission issued promotion certificates for those who secured the highest place in the examination, and it may be noted that their qualifications could not be called in question as they had obtained satisfactory ratings on efficiency in their present positions and on fitness for promotion to the positions in question by the rating officers of the department. The department, however, rejected all these employees, and repeated its request for the promotion of the four who had not qualified. The commission refused to issue certificates until these four employees should establish their qualifications for promotion by successfully passing the required examination, in order that the standard of education in the higher grades might be maintained. To this the department took exception; and being unable, without examination, to secure the promotion of the employees in question, withdrew its requisition for the filling of the higher positions.

Delays in Promotions:

The commissioners have again to refer to the considerable number of complaints which have been received regarding the delays which have taken place in connection with promotions in certain departments. In the great majority of such cases inquiry has disclosed the fact that the delay has been caused by the failure of the department concerned to furnish the commission, with reasonable expedition, with the reports upon the qualifications of the candidates in question, upon which, in large measure, selections for promotion are made. When these departmental reports are furnished promptly and promotions are allowed to proceed without hindrance, the result is decidedly beneficial to the public service, as protracted delays and the dissatisfaction and uncertainty which they arouse in the minds of the employees are bound to react against their efficiency and morale.

Delays in the Installation of Appointees:

In certain cases the persons who have been selected and certified by the commission, in accordance with the provisions of the Civil Service Act, for appointment to vacant positions have not been installed in these positions by the departments without what appears to the commissioners to be undue delay. In some cases no steps have yet been taken to install in office the candidates who, for months past, have been certified therefor, but persons for whose employment no legal authority exists have been placed in office by a department and retained. While departmental conditions in exceptional circumstances may render immediate action in some cases inadvisable, the commissioners are of opinion that when reasonable latitude in this regard has been allowed the persons who have been selected and certified as required by section 43 of the Civil Service Act should be installed in office by the departments concerned without further delay.

Unnecessary Requisitions:

While as a rule departmental requisitions for appointment have been found to be based upon an actual need for the services of additional employees, the commissioners regret to state (as to a few cases) that rather than accept the person certified by the commission after competition as provided by law, the department concerned has withdrawn its requisition, leaving the impression that the requisition has been designed to provide employment for some particular individual rather than to obtain additional and justifiable assistance for the work of the department. Needless to say, the system of open competition prescribed by the Civil Service Act has done much to eliminate the possibility of any extensive practice of this kind.

Probation and Rejection:

Section 13 of the Civil Service Act provides a probationary period in connection with appointments, during which the appointee, if found unsatisfactory, may be rejected by the deputy head of the department to which he has been assigned. The right of rejection is exercised sparingly by most of the departments, and in a spirit of fairness and justice, but in some cases the commissioners feel that a reasonable opportunity has not been afforded those assigned to demonstrate their qualifications for the positions in question. This is particularly true of one department where persons appointed by the commission are rejected without being given a fair trial. It may be noted that out of one thousand nine hundred and seventy (1,970) appointments to permanent positions made during the year, only fifty-seven (57) appointees, or less than three per cent, were rejected under this section of the law—an indication of the suitability for their posts of those selected and assigned by the commission. The commissioners realize, however, that even the best examination is only an approximate indication of a candidate's ability to perform certain duties, and therefore urge upon the departments the fullest use of the probationary period, in order that the most satisfactory type of public servant may be selected and retained.

To rejection without trial, however, and without sufficient cause, the commissioners take unqualified exception, and they attribute to such action many of the difficulties which they experience in administering the Civil Service Act. It is obvious that if the candidates who stand at the head of an eligible list are set aside without being given an opportunity to demonstrate their ability to perform the duties required of them, such action is not fair to either the commission or the appointee and is distinctly contrary to the spirit of the Act; and the commissioners are of the opinion that the Civil Service Act should be so amended as to ensure a fair trial to all those selected for appointment.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

W. J. ROCHE,
Chairman.

NEWTON MacTAVISH,
J. EMILE TREMBLAY,
Commissioners.

REPORT OF THE UNDER-SECRETARY OF STATE FOR EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

The Right Hon. W. L. MACKENZIE KING, C.M.G., M.P., Secretary of State for External Affairs,
Ottawa.

SIR,—I have again the duty of laying before you my annual report on the activities of the department for the past fiscal year, with some note of developments to the close of the calendar year 1927.

A notable occurrence in the year's history was the inauguration by the Dominion of direct diplomatic relations with foreign powers by the accrediting of a Canadian Minister to the President of the United States in the person of the Hon. Vincent Massey and the subsequent reception at Ottawa of the President's representative, the Hon. William Phillips, as United States Minister at this capital. Mr. Massey presented his credentials to the President on February 18, and Mr. Phillips was received by the Governor General on June 1.

After being housed for three and a half months in temporary rented quarters, the Chancery of the Legation was moved early in June to a building at 1746 Massachusetts avenue, purchased by the Government as its permanent establishment. This building contains ample space for offices, and, in addition, reception and residence apartments.

The Legation has been fully employed from the day of its establishment. In the ten and a half months between February 18 and December 31, 1,098 despatches have been sent to the Department of External Affairs, and 306 notes have been addressed to the Secretary of State of the United States, in addition to more informal communications with these offices. There has also been a large and increasing volume of correspondence with Government departments in Washington, with business firms and private individuals, as well as with other diplomatic missions.

Among matters which have engaged the attention of the Legation have been the following:—

The many problems connected with boundary waterways.

The numerous questions connected with the movement of persons across the international border, and especially the situation created in Canadian border towns by the alteration of the United States regulations in April, 1927. This question occupied the attention of the Legation for many months until a satisfactory settlement was reached which protected the interests of the two or three thousand Canadians, born outside Canada, who were principally affected.

Many questions connected with the United States tariff and trade between the two countries, of which the most important was the embargo declared on milk shipments from parts of Eastern Canada to the United States in March, 1927.

The allocation of radio broadcasting channels and other radio matters of international importance.

The means of co-operation between the two Governments in the suppression of smuggling, both by land and sea.

International flying; international fishery questions; the extradition of criminals.

In general the protection of the interests of Canadian citizens in a very wide range of matters, principally connected with immigration, deportation, arrest and imprisonment, settlement of estates, and claims against the Government of the United States.

Reference might also be made to the part played by the Legation in connection with international visits and ceremonies. Thus it was concerned in bringing about the flight of Colonel Lindbergh to Ottawa during the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation, and was responsible for many of the arrangements for the official celebration of the opening of the Peace Bridge over the Niagara river in August as well as of the unveiling of the memorial erected in Arlington cemetery by the Government of Canada in memory of the citizens of the United States killed with the Canadian forces during the Great War.

The work of the Office of the High Commissioner in London continues to cover a wide range:

(1) Duties as a channel of communication between His Majesty's Government in Canada and His Majesty's Government in Great Britain, and in obtaining information in London on departmental matters.

(2) Activities as agent for the Canadian Government in financial relations with foreign governments, in connection with repayment of loans and of reparations, and with private firms, in purchases of supplies.

(3) Supplying information to British inquirers as to Canadian agricultural and industrial resources, tariff and taxation laws and other conditions, including the publicity service afforded by the national resources and industrial information branch of the office.

(4) Providing assistance to Canadian business men and to Canadian tourists desiring information and assistance in securing access to notable ceremonies and institutions.

The High Commissioner presided at the two dinners given to the provision trade in Great Britain by the Federal Department of Agriculture, the first in London for the leading importers of Empire produce, and the second to the wholesale and retail dealers of the Manchester district, with fare exclusively of Canadian products in both cases. Deputations from prominent business men presenting views as to the operation of Canadian banking, bankruptcy and income tax laws were received and their representations conveyed to the appropriate authorities. A settlement of outstanding war accounts was effected with the British Government, under which approximately $2,200,000 was received.

The High Commissioner and the Secretary visited Canada during the year for consultation on outstanding questions, and the Ministers of Finance, Interior, Trade and Commerce and Agriculture made the Canadian Building their headquarters during their visit to England.

Besides the Office of the High Commissioner, the Canadian Building in London accommodates the offices of Emigration, Trade and Commerce, Agriculture, Customs, Health, Secretary of State, Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment and the Land Settlement Board.

Among the many ceremonies and commemorations of the year, the Armistice Day services and the Canada Club dinner to Mr. Baldwin, which was attended by the Prince of Wales, were notable, but the outstanding event was the participation in the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation. Special commemoration services were held in Westminster Abbey and in Westminster Cathedral and a reception was held in the evening in the Canadian Building. It may be of interest to quote a letter from Mr. Rudyard Kipling to the High Commissioner, dated 1st July:

"Dear Mr. LARKIN,

"I must send you a line before this wonderful day ends. The Service in the Abbey was the visible seal on all faithful, unremembered work, done for Canada in the past by men and women who would have been quite content to have been forgotten in its superb fulfilment. The gathering in the evening, under the light and flowers, was a step on the threshold of a new life and self-knowledge for the Dominion and for the Empire—only the first step. Think what the next sixty years will bring of strength and achievement to grace such beginnings!

“As a race, we pretend that the little we are always doing is always done badly. So, what I ought to have written you—after having seen Canada, awake, aware and resolute in her Mother’s House—is:—‘All things considered it isn’t half bad’.

“Very sincerely and gratefully always,

(Sgd.) RUDYARD KIPLING.”

The Visitors’ Book bore over five thousand signatures for the year, chiefly registrations of Canadian visitors in London; letters despatched during the year totalled 44,128, circulars 31,965, and cablegrams and telegrams 1,474.

The Agency at Paris has discharged its usual duties in obtaining the varied information required by Government departments and individuals in regard to trade and other matters, details of French legislation and regulations affecting Canadian interests, and in smoothing out difficulties with the local authorities in behalf of Canadian importers and travellers. It provides a much appreciated centre to which Canadian visitors may address themselves for assistance in obtaining advice as to conditions of residence, travel, passports and other local matters in which they may be interested.

The Diamond Jubilee of Confederation was marked by an afternoon reception and by a dinner at which many of the most notable men of France assembled to do honour to Canada; the presence of Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, and Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Speaker of the House of Commons, further contributed to the success of the celebration.

The increasing importance of the political and trade interests of Canada in France and the continent of Europe generally have made it desirable to enlarge the scope of the Agency and to establish a Canadian Legation at Paris, and the French Government has announced its intention of establishing a French Legation in Canada.

The Canadian Advisory Officer in Geneva has continued to keep the Government informed of current League of Nations developments and represent it at various Conferences and Committees, including the Governing Body of the International Labour Organization in January, April, May and October, the Eighth Assembly of the League in September as alternate delegate, the Tenth International Labour Conference, the International Economic Conference, the Conference for the Limitation of Naval Armaments and the Diplomatic Conference for the Abolition of Import and Export Prohibitions and Restrictions. The Canadian Advisory Officer visited Canada in January, 1927, and besides discussing League questions with federal and provincial governments, addressed a number of public gatherings on the work of the League.

To refer to changes in our treaty relations with foreign powers it might be noted that at its Eighth General Assembly in April, 1926, the International Institute of Agriculture opened a Protocol for the modification of Article X of the Convention creating the Institute so as to provide for an increased contribution for its purposes by the several high contracting parties. Canada having approved of this modification, His Majesty’s Ambassador at Rome was requested to sign the Protocol on her behalf, and did so on the 11th February, 1927.

An Agreement was entered into at London on the 24th June, 1927, between His Majesty’s Governments in Great Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the Union of South Africa and the Irish Free State and the Government of India with the Government of Latvia for the reciprocal recognition of tonnage measurement of shipping as indicated in certificates of registry or other national papers issued by the competent authorities, the Hon. P. Larkin, High Commissioner for Canada in London, signing as the Canadian representative.

During the year as usual Canada took part in many international conferences, of which the following may be noted:—

International Labour Conference.

The Tenth Assembly of the International Labour Conference was held at Geneva in May, 1927, the Canadian Government being represented by Dr. W. A. Riddell, the Canadian Advisory Officer, League of Nations, and by Mr. R. A. Rigg, of the Department of Labour, the employers by Mr. W. C. Coulter, Vice-President of the Booth-Coulter Copper and Brass Company of Toronto, and Canadian workers by Mr. P. M. Draper, Secretary-Treasurer, Trades and Labour Congress of Canada; Mr. L. L. Peltier, Mr. H. W. Macdonell and Mr. J. T. Foster attended the conference as technical advisers to the delegates. Draft conventions concerning sickness insurance for workers in industry and commerce and domestic servants, concerning sickness insurance for agricultural workers as well as a recommendation in regard to the general principles of sickness insurance were adopted by the conference.

International Economic Conference.

The International Economic Conference authorized by the Sixth Assembly of the League of Nations was convened by the Council of the League to meet at Geneva on the 4th May, 1927, for the consideration of problems connected with the improvement of the world economic situation in respect of commerce, industry and agriculture. Canada sent to this conference a delegation under the chairmanship of Mr. Albert Matthews, of Toronto, the other members being Mr. Joseph Daoust, of Montreal, Dr. Adam Shortt, Mr. W. A. Wilson and Dr. W. A. Riddell. The report of the delegates will be submitted to Parliament.

Naval Disarmament Conference.

At the invitation of the President of the United States a conference was assembled at Geneva on the 20th June, 1927, to discuss the question of further limitation of naval armaments as arranged under the Washington Naval Treaty of 1922. Representatives of Great Britain, of the Dominions, of the United States and Japan attended the conference, the Canadian delegates being the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, and Dr. W. A. Riddell. The conference terminated its sessions on the 4th August without having been able to come to any agreement.

World's Poultry Congress.

Following out arrangements made at the World's International Poultry Congress held at Barcelona in 1924 the Third International Poultry Congress was assembled at Ottawa on the 27th July, 1927, more than thirty Governments of the Empire and of foreign countries participating and the sessions lasting until the 4th August.

Imperial Educational Conference.

An Imperial Educational Conference of representatives of Governments within the Empire was held in London during the months of June and July, being attended by representatives of the provinces of Ontario and Nova Scotia.

Conference on Communications and Transit.

The Council of the League of Nations convened at Geneva on the 23rd August, 1927, the Third General Conference on Communications and Transit, at which, as usual, Canada was represented, Mr. Pacaud, Secretary, High Commissioner's Office, London, being appointed as the Canadian delegate.

International Congress of Zoology.

The Tenth International Congress of Zoology was held at Budapest from the 4th to the 9th September, 1927. On the invitation of the Hungarian Government, Dr. J. M. Swaine, Associate Dominion Entomologist in the Department of Agriculture, was sent to represent Canada.

International Horticultural Congress.

An invitation from the Austrian Government to send an official representative to the International Horticultural Congress at Vienna in September, 1927, was duly accepted and Mr. W. T. Macoun, the Dominion Horticulturist, appointed as the Canadian delegate.

International Conference on Weights and Measures.

At the Seventeenth International Conference on Weights and Measures held at Sevres in September, 1927, Canada was represented by Mr. J. E. Sears, Deputy Warden of the Standards of the Imperial Board of Trade.

Assembly of the League of Nations.

At the Eighth Assembly of the League of Nations, held at Geneva from the 5th to the 27th September, Canada was represented by the Hon. Raoul Dandurand, the Hon. Charles Stewart, the Hon. Philippe Roy, Dr. W. A. Riddell and myself.

Among the principal resolutions adopted by the League were those regarding (a) the calling of a conference for the codification of international law, (b) the work of the Health Organization of the League, (c) the results of the Third General Conference on Communications and Transit, (d) the work of the International Economic Committee, (e) the opening for signature of a convention on the execution of foreign arbitral awards, (f) urging that development of aviation be directed only towards economic ends, (g) recommending the taking of measures in advance to facilitate meetings of the Council of the League at times of emergency, (h) the assembling of an international conference for the conclusion of a convention regarding international trade in arms and ammunition and in implements of war. A declaration was also adopted condemning all wars of aggression and emphasizing the necessity of employing only pacific means for the settlement of all disputes between states.

Canada, Cuba, and Finland were elected members of the Council.

A full report of the proceedings by the delegates will be presented to Parliament.

Imperial Agricultural Research Conference.

In accordance with a proposal endorsed by the Imperial Conference, 1926, an Imperial Agricultural Conference was held in London in October, 1927, for the purpose of discussing co-operation between the different Empire organizations engaged in agricultural research, the promotion of joint programs of research, the utilization of results obtained and the training, supply and interchange of scientific workers. Canada was represented by Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture; Mr. E. S. Archibald, Director of Experimental Farms; Dr. E. A. Watson, Chief Animal Pathologist; Mr. W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist; and Dr. J. M. Swaine, Associate Dominion Entomologist.

International Radiotelegraph Conference.

The Third International Radiotelegraph Conference was held at Washington during the months of October and November, and was attended by representatives of over seventy Governments, and resulted in the adoption of an international convention signed on the 25th November, 1927, subject to ratification by the various contracting Governments. Canada was represented by a delegation headed by Mr. Alexander Johnston, Deputy Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Mr. C. P. Edwards, O.B.E., Major W. A. Steel, M.C., and Mr. Laurent Beaudry, of the Canadian Legation, also being members.

Congress of the International Statistical Institute.

In response to an invitation received from the Government of Egypt to participate in the Seventeenth Congress of the International Statistical Institute held at Cairo in December, 1927, Mr. R. H. Coats, the Dominion Statistician, was appointed to represent Canada at this congress.

The business of the Passport Office has been well maintained, new passports having been issued for the year ending the 31st October to the number of nearly 27,000 and renewals granted numbering over 5,000, the revenue received amounting in round numbers to $145,000.

I am happy to express my satisfaction with the manner in which the members of the staff have discharged their respective duties.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

O. D. SKELTON,

Under-Secretary of State for External Affairs.

REPORT
DEPUTY MINISTER OF LABOUR FOR THE FISCAL YEAR ENDING MARCH 31, 1927

To the Hon. PETER HEENAN, Minister of Labour.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit a report on the work of the Department of Labour for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1927.

A general improvement in conditions of trade and industry was noticeable during the period under review. Employment was consistently active and reached a higher level than in any of the five preceding years, while wages showed a slightly upward tendency.

A favourable record appears for the year with regard to strikes and lockouts, which involved less time loss for workers than in any year since 1916. The salient feature was the improvement with respect to coal mining disputes as contrasted with conditions prevailing during the four preceding years, a period marked by numerous strikes which involved large numbers of miners for long periods of time. The principal strikes occurring during 1926 were those in establishments manufacturing clothing and boots and shoes, nearly two-thirds of the entire time loss of the year resulting from these disturbances.

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES INVESTIGATION ACT, 1907

There was no change during the year under review in the jurisdiction of the department in relation to the settlement of industrial disputes.

Nineteen applications under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act were dealt with, resulting in the establishment of eleven Boards of Conciliation and Investigation. Nine boards reported during the fiscal year; in each case the strike which had been feared was averted and work continued steadily.

In each of four cases the dispute concerned was amicably adjusted by a Board of Conciliation and Investigation and the agreement formed a part of the board's unanimous report. The report of a fifth board was also unanimous, and no strike occurred in this case. The four other boards presented majority and minority reports, and in two instances the recommendations contained in the majority report were accepted by the parties concerned as an adjustment of the differences.

The two remaining disputes proved more difficult, the majority findings of the board being rejected by the employees in one case and by the company in the other. The disputes in question involved, respectively, 15,000 conductors, trainmen and yardmen in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway and Canadian National Railways, and 6,300 clerks, freight handlers, station agents, etc., employed on eastern and western lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The employees in each case, by a large majority, voted in favour of a strike unless a settlement satisfactory to their representatives was otherwise secured. The Hon.

Mr. Heenan, Minister of Labour, assisted in one instance by the Minister of Railways and Canals, intervened personally in the two controversies and on each occasion secured a resumption of negotiations during which a compromise was effected, thus avoiding interruption in the transportation service of the two major Canadian railways.

NEW MEASURES INTRODUCED BY THE MINISTER OF LABOUR

Two important measures from the point of view of labour were introduced in the House of Commons by the Hon. Mr. Heenan, Minister of Labour, during the 1927 parliamentary session, as follows: (1) providing for the establishment of a system of old age pensions for Canada, and (2) providing for the registration of union labels. Each of the Bills received the approval of Parliament and became law.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

The problem of providing for aged people who have neither the strength to earn a livelihood nor the necessary means of support was brought to the attention of the Federal Parliament as early as the session of 1906-07. The subject was debated in Parliament on several occasions at subsequent sessions and received the consideration of parliamentary committees. No effort to legislate in the matter was made until the session of 1926, when a Bill was introduced in the House of Commons based on the recommendations of a parliamentary committee which, in 1924 and 1925, had made an enquiry into an old age pension system for Canada. In the House of Commons the Bill was adopted unanimously. Severe opposition, however, was encountered in the Senate, where a motion for the second reading was rejected by 45 to 21 votes.

A Bill, identical in terms with that presented to Parliament in 1926, was introduced in the House of Commons by the Hon. Mr. Heenan, Minister of Labour, during the 1927 session, and, after considerable discussion, was passed by the House of Commons and by the Senate, receiving Royal Assent on March 31, 1927.

The legislation provides for a Dominion-Provincial system, under which the administration and payment of pensions is entrusted to the provinces, the Dominion Government to reimburse each province coming into the scheme one-half of the net sum disbursed by the province in pensions. The system is not effective in a province until the province has passed legislation authorizing payment of pensions and agreeing to bear one-half of the cost. The continuance of the federal grant is designated as dependent upon an agreement between the Dominion and each of the provinces desiring to come into the scheme, the agreement to be terminable only upon the repeal of the provincial legislation authorizing payment of pensions or upon ten years' notice by the Dominion.

It is not anticipated that the cost of administering old age pensions will bear heavily on the provinces, as administrative machinery for dealing with workmen's compensation, mothers' allowances, etc., is already available in practically every province and could be utilized in the administration of old age pensions.

In view of the desirability of having the scheme uniform in all the provinces, the Act specifies the classes of persons who shall be entitled to pension. A pension shall be granted to every person who is a British subject (or, being a widow, who is not a British subject, was such before her marriage) of seventy years of age and upwards who has been resident in Canada for at least twenty years immediately preceding the date of commencement of a pension and who has lived in the province in which the application is made for at least five years immediately preceding the granting of a pension. A person will be disqualified from receiving a pension who is an Indian as defined by the Indian Act, or who has made any voluntary transfer of property in order to qualify for a pension. The maximum pension payable is fixed at $240 yearly, and from this will be deducted the amount of any private income received by the pensioner in excess of $125 a year, the total of any pensioner's income, including pension, being, therefore, $365 a year, or $1 a day.

An account of the Old Age Pension Act is given in greater detail in the body of this report.

The duties entailed in connection with the drafting and introduction in Parliament of the Old Age Pension Bill, and the mass of correspondence occasioned in supplying information in response to inquiries concerning the measure, added very materially to the work of the department during the year.

While the Old Age Pension Bill was before the Dominion Parliament a law was enacted by the Legislature of British Columbia approving the federal scheme and giving authority to the Provincial Government to enter into an agreement with the Dominion for the establishment of a system of old age pensions in that province.

UNION LABEL REGISTRATION

Organized labour in Canada over a number of years requested permission to register their trade union labels with the Dominion Government in order to prevent their unauthorized use and also to obviate forgeries and counterfeits. Instances were brought to the attention of the Government on numerous occasions of the imitation of union labels and of their unauthorized use on clothing, etc., for the purpose of deceiving purchasers. Bills looking to the protection of labour union labels against imitation and unlawful use were repeatedly introduced in the Dominion Parliament between the years 1895 and 1905, suffering defeat, however, on each occasion.

The principle of adopting legislation for this purpose was endorsed by the Hon. Mr. Heenan, Minister of Labour, who introduced in the House of Commons on March 7, 1927, an amendment to the Trade Mark and Design Act which was designed to secure for union labels the same measure of protection as was accorded to trade-marks. The Bill was passed by the House of Commons on March 25, 1927, without division, and by the Senate shortly after the close of the fiscal year, receiving Royal Assent on April 14.

The union label is employed to distinguish the particular goods on which it is placed as having been produced under working conditions regarded by the employees as satisfactory. Union labels have been adopted by various trade unions in the course of the past forty years and a large number of agreements have been made with individual employers for their use. The use of the union label on goods is subject to agreement in all cases between the unions and the employers. It is provided in the Act accordingly that no union labels are to be placed upon goods or otherwise displayed without the consent of the proprietor; moreover, when an agreement has been reached with an employer for the use of a union label on his goods, such authorization shall be subject to cancellation only on twelve months' notice, unless otherwise specified by agreement. Goods bearing the union label may also be sold at any time if, when the union label was applied to the goods, the proprietor was so authorized.

Registration of union labels may be refused in certain cases. Authority is given to the Exchequer Court to direct the cancellation of the registration of union labels after investigation and hearing, if in the opinion of the court such action is justified by all of the circumstances of the case. Penalties are provided to protect union labels against unauthorized use or counterfeit.

In the House of Commons the Bill was passed without amendment. During its passage through the Senate it was referred to the Banking and Commerce Committee, where an opportunity was afforded for hearings from persons interested, including the representatives of various trade unions, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and the Retail Bureau of Canada.

Slight amendments were made in the wording of the Bill at the request of the Government during its consideration by the Senate Committee on Banking and Commerce. These changes did not, however, involve the principle of the measure. A provision was also added that the union shall accord the use of the union label to any applicant who complies with the rules of the union.

Although the Minister of Trade and Commerce is charged with the administration of the Trade Mark and Design Act, the amendment was prepared in the Department of Labour and was piloted through the House of Commons by the Minister of Labour, considerable work accruing to the Labour Department in this connection.

GOVERNMENT ANNUITIES

As an incentive to thrift there has been on the federal statute books since 1908 a Government Annuities Act, under which individuals may, with absolute security and at an exceptionally low cost, make provision for their old age by the purchase of annuities.

The plan of Government annuities is not to be confused with old age pensions, which imply a direct contribution from the public treasury for the protection of persons who reach old age without the necessary means of support, whereas Government annuities represent a safe and profitable form of investment through which individuals may make financial provision for their old age.

It is gratifying to be able to report that during recent years there has been an increasing evidence of the desire of Canadian citizens of moderate incomes to take advantage of the facilities offered by the annuities system. On March 31, 1927, there were 7,713 annuity contracts in force, purchase money received to that date totalling $13,588,105.88, over 60 per cent of this money having been received during the past five years.

Five hundred and three annuities were purchased during the fiscal year 1926-27, the total value of the contracts being $195,360.28, an average of about $388 for each annuitant.

COMBINES INVESTIGATION ACT

The most important investigation conducted under the Combines Investigation Act during the fiscal year concerned the operations of the Proprietary Articles Trade Association, an organization of wholesale and retail druggists and manufacturers established to fix the resale prices of proprietary medicines and toilet articles. Minimum wholesale and retail prices of more than six hundred proprietary medicines and toilet articles were included in the first price list issued by the association, which at that time was composed of 157 manufacturers, 28 wholesale druggists, and 2,732 retail druggists. Four applications for investigation in this case were received, and an inquiry was made by the registrar. The results of the operations of the association in certain respects and the means adopted to enforce the maintenance of prices were reported by the registrar to be against the public interest and therefore in contravention of the Combines Investigation Act. A more extensive investigation was thereupon urged by the association, and was authorized by the minister. Mr. L. V. O'Connor, barrister, of Lindsay, Ont., was appointed commissioner for the purpose, and Mr. A. R. McMaster, K.C., of Montreal, was named by the Minister of Justice to conduct the investigation before him. At the close of the fiscal year the inquiry had not been concluded.

An inquiry into an alleged combine in the distribution of fruits and vegetables produced in Ontario was completed during the year by the commissioner, Mr. Lewis Duncan, who reported that in his opinion there had been no contravention of the Combines Investigation Act, but that the inquiry had disclosed certain marketing conditions and practices prejudicial to the interests of growers and consumers. The report was brought to the attention of the proper authorities, and as a result legislation was enacted by the Ontario Legislature providing for the regulation of the sale of fruit and vegetables on consignment by requiring that records should be kept and shippers notified regarding sales of their products.

Steps were also taken to prevent the recurrence of conditions such as were disclosed in the inquiry into the combine in the distribution of fruit and vegetables in Western Canada. Statements concerning this combine appeared in the annual reports for the fiscal years 1924-25 and 1925-26.

Other inquiries during the fiscal year related to the basic industries as well as to manufacturing and the distributive trades. The points involved in these cases included the principle of resale price maintenance, price-fixing by manufacturers and by distributors, exclusive dealing arrangements, withholding of supplies for various reasons, and other methods alleged to be in undue restraint of trade.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION

Disbursements during the fiscal year to the provinces under the provisions of the Technical Education Act amounted to $1,047,535.80, distributed as follows: British Columbia, $56,627.03; Alberta, $85,789.16; Saskatchewan, $18,021.83; Manitoba, $20,056.34; Ontario, $347,636.30; Quebec, $403,944.35; New Brunswick, $76,208.59; Nova Scotia, $31,494.87; Prince Edward Island, $7,757.33. These grants are made with a view to assisting the provinces in promoting and developing technical or vocational education for industrial workers. Summaries of the work accomplished in the respective provinces are given in the chapter discussing the operations of the Act.

During the year the Technical Education Branch convened the Second National Conference on Technical Education, at which representatives from every province met and discussed problems of mutual interest. Under the Technical Education Act as at present enacted the federal grants expire on March 31, 1929. A resolution was adopted by the conference urging the continuance of the grants for a further period of ten years. The conference also recommended the inclusion of agricultural instruction under the provisions of the Technical Education Act in such provinces as are not earning their full annual appropriations.

OTHER DEPARTMENTAL ACTIVITIES

No material change occurred during the year in the administration of the Fair Wages Resolution of the House of Commons. The operations of the Employment Service Branch also proceeded along usual lines. Full statements appear in the report with respect to these phases of departmental activity; also as to other duties of the department, including the work performed by conciliation officers; the publication from month to month of the Labour Gazette; the compilation and publication in report form of information on Labour Organization in Canada, Labour Legislation in Canada, and Organization in Industry, Commerce and the Professions in Canada; the maintenance of a library on industrial and economic subjects; and the work arising out of the relations of Canada with the International Labour Organization. A chapter in the present report reviews the statistics collected for the year 1926 with respect to strikes and lockouts, wages and hours of labour, prices and cost of living, and industrial accidents.

The annual grant to assist in the work of the Canadian National Safety League was continued by the Dominion Government, and $10,000 for this purpose was included in the financial appropriation of the Department of Labour.

Two sessions of the International Labour Conference were convened in Geneva, Switzerland, during the fiscal year, the first, which constituted the eighth session of the conference, being held from May 26 to June 6, 1926. The principal item on the agenda of this meeting related to the adoption of the convention providing for the simplification of the inspection of emigrants on board ship. The agenda of the ninth session, which lasted from June 7 to June 24, was confined to certain questions affecting seamen. The delegates representing the Government of Canada at each of these conferences were Dr. W. A. Riddell, Canadian Advisory Officer, League of Nations, Geneva, Switzerland, and Mr. Lucien Pacaud, Secretary, Office of the High Commissioner for Canada, London, England.

Four meetings of the Governing Body of the International Labour Office were also held at Geneva, Dr. W. A. Riddell acting in each case as Canadian Government representative in substitution for the Minister of Labour, who was unable to attend.

BRITISH DELEGATION VISITS CANADA

During the year a delegation was sent by the British Government to study industrial conditions and relations in Canada and the United States, with special reference to the relations between employers and employed in their bearing upon industrial conditions in Great Britain.

The delegation consisted of seven members. Sir Wm. W. Mackenzie, G.B.E., K.C., the chairman, was president of the Industrial Court of Arbitration from 1919 to 1926, and chairman of the Railway National Wages Board from 1920 to 1925. The others were Mr. Ernest Bevin, general secretary of the Transport and General Workers' Union, and a member of the general council of the Trade Union Congress; Mr. J. Kaylor, member of the executive council of the Amalgamated Engineering Union; Mr. M. B. U. Dewar, managing director of the Metropolitan Carriage, Wagon and Finance Company; Mr. C. Randolph Smith, a director of the shipbuilding firm of Barclay, Curle and Company; and Messrs. F. W. Leggett and I. Haig Mitchell, the latter two of the Ministry of Labour. Mr. H. C. Emmerson, of the British Ministry of Labour, acted as secretary to the delegation.

The British mission reached Ottawa on September 13 and was invited to make its headquarters in the Department of Labour, where all assistance possible was rendered by the minister and officials of the department. The delegation interviewed employers, representatives of workpeople (trade union officials and others) and workmen themselves. Some of the delegation attended the annual meeting of the Trades and Labour Congress held in Montreal. The itinerary of the commission in Canada included, besides Ottawa, the following industrial centres: in New Brunswick—Moncton; in Nova Scotia—Glace Bay, Halifax and Sydney; in Ontario—Dundas, Hamilton, London, Niagara Falls, Pembroke, Stratford and Toronto; in Quebec—Chelsea, Hull, Montreal, and Quebec city.

Time did not permit of the commission visiting Western Canada. Following is a list of the industries studied in Canada:—

Agricultural Implements	Oil Refining
Boot and Shoe	Paint, Varnish, Oil Cakes
Building	Power
Coal Mining	Printing
Confectionery	Public Services
Construction	Pulp and Paper
Docks	Railroads and Transportation
Electrical and Power	Rubber
Engineering	Shipbuilding
Furniture	Sugar Refining
Iron and Steel	Telephones
Matches	Wholesale and Retail Stores
Office Equipment

The delegation also visited the United States of America and studied industrial conditions throughout the east and middle west.

The commission presented its report to the British Ministry of Labour on March 18, 1927. A section of the report deals with conditions in Canada and refers particularly to its economic situation. Industrial relations are considered at some length. Special reference is made to the amount of social legislation, both Dominion and provincial, governing the industrial conditions of the workpeople in Canadian industry.

VISIT OF DEPUTY DIRECTOR OF INTERNATIONAL LABOUR OFFICE

Mr. H. B. Butler, Deputy Director of the International Labour Office, was also an important visitor to Canada during the latter part of 1926. The purpose of his mission was to discuss the work of the International Labour Office with governmental officials and with leading representatives of employers and labour. Mr. Butler spent several days in Ottawa, where he conferred with the minister and officers of the Department of Labour concerning various questions which had arisen in connection with conventions and recommendations adopted at successive sessions of the International Labour Office. Mr. Butler was afforded an opportunity of studying at first hand industrial conditions and relations in some of the large industrial plants in Montreal, Toronto and Hamilton, and of meeting representatives of the chief employers' and labour organizations. He also addressed several men's and women's clubs in those cities on the work of the International Labour Office.

DEPARTMENT SUSTAINS LOSS OF THREE OFFICERS

It is with deep regret that the department records the loss towards the close of 1926 of the services of three of its most valued officers by the death of Mr. E. Vincelette on November 20, of Mr. S. T. Bastedo on December 2, and of Major Lawrence F. Howard, on December 14.

The late Mr. Vincelette had been chief translator of the department for seventeen years, and among his other duties supervised the French editions of the Labour Gazette and of various departmental reports. He was unusually fitted for the efficient accomplishment of this work and by his death the department was deprived of the services of a particularly able officer.

The late Mr. Bastedo had been Superintendent of Dominion Government Annuities from the time of the enactment of the Government Annuities Act in September, 1908. For two years prior to this appointment he represented Canada on the Joint International Commission which investigated fishing conditions on the boundary between the United States and Canada, having been assigned to this important post by the Imperial Government on the recommendation of the Dominion Government. On the termination of the work of the commission, Mr. Bastedo was placed in charge of the Government Annuities Branch, which was in course of organization. An efficient and highly esteemed public servant, he gave splendid service in the position of Superintendent of Dominion Government Annuities until his death.

Before joining the staff of the department in January, 1919, the late Major Lawrence F. Howard had had a distinguished military career. Enlisting in 1914 in the early days of the war as a private, he subsequently gained promotion to the rank of major; during the course of his service he was wounded on three different occasions. His first position with the department was that of Dominion Superintendent of Eastern Offices in the Employment Service Branch, with headquarters at Ottawa. In 1923 he was transferred to the position of Dominion Superintendent of Western Offices, with headquarters at Winnipeg, which position he very capably filled up to the time of his death.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion I desire to place on record my appreciation of the excellent service rendered during the year by the staff of the department. The pronounced interest in their work manifested by the individual employees assisted materially to this end.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

H. H. WARD,

Deputy Minister of Labour and Registrar of Boards of Conciliation and Investigation.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOUR, OTTAWA.

I. INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES INVESTIGATION ACT, 1907

This chapter constitutes the twentieth annual report of the Registrar of Boards of Conciliation and Investigation, covering proceedings under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1907, for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1927.

The Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1907, the intent of which is more fully set forth in its complete title, "An Act to aid in the Prevention and Settlement of Strikes and Lockouts in Mines and Industries connected with Public Utilities", became law on March 22, 1907. The incident leading immediately to the conception of the statute was a prolonged strike in the coal mines at Lethbridge, Alta., which had threatened to cause a fuel famine in the Prairie Provinces during the previous winter. Negotiations resulting in a settlement of the strike were conducted by Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King, then Deputy Minister of Labour and now Prime Minister of Canada, who, in his report on the subject, dealt at length with the danger and loss to the country ensuing from such stoppages and recommended that consideration be given by Parliament to industrial disputes legislation which would have as its dominant motive the prevention of strikes seriously menacing the public safety. The outcome of this suggestion was the enactment of the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1907, which is popularly known as "the Lemieux Act", being named after the Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, who, in his capacity as Minister of Labour, presented the Bill to Parliament.

The essence of the legislation is the provision that in disputes arising in mines and public utility industries no strike or lockout may be lawfully declared until after the subject of the dispute in question has been investigated by a Board of Conciliation and Investigation and every reasonable effort has been made to bring the parties concerned to an agreement. The Act does not forbid strikes or lockouts failing an ultimate agreement, but forbids them only pending inquiry before a board. The award of a board is not binding unless the parties agree to make it so. At least thirty days' notice is required to be given by employers and employees regarding an intended or desired change affecting wages or working conditions, and the Act prescribes further that, in the case of a dispute arising, any such contemplated change may not take place until the dispute has been finally dealt with by a board.

Penalties are named in the statute for employers causing a lockout or change in wages or hours, and for employees engaging in a strike, prior to board proceedings; also for persons who incite, encourage or aid those taking part in such strikes or lockouts. While the Act applies equally to strikes and lockouts, it may be remarked that the lockout is rarely encountered in Canada, though it is true that here and there in an industrial dispute the nature of a stoppage of work becomes sometimes confused and it is difficult to determine whether it may be correctly attributed to either the one cause or the other. An admitted lockout is practically unknown.

VALIDITY OF THE ACT

The constitutionality of the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act has been the subject of judicial proceedings on two occasions.

In 1911, in connection with a board constituted under its provisions to deal with a dispute between the Montreal Street Railway Company and certain of its employees, a permanent injunction was obtained restraining the board from proceeding with its inquiry by reason of an alleged technical defect in the establishment of the board. The judges of both the Superior Court and the Court of Review of the Montreal District, however, declared the Act to be constitutional and intra vires of the Dominion Parliament.

In August, 1923, proceedings concerning the constitutionality of the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act were instituted in the Ontario courts by the Toronto Electric Commissioners, who refused to recognize the authority of a Board of Conciliation and Investigation established to deal with a dispute between the commissioners in question and their electrical workers. The commissioners contended that, as the Toronto Hydro-Electric System was controlled by a municipality, the provisions of the Act could not be applied to the particular dispute; also that the statute invaded provincial rights and was unconstitutional. The case was heard by various Ontario courts, and was carried to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. The judgment of the latter was delivered on January 20, 1925, and was to the effect that the Act in its then existing form was ultra vires of the Dominion Parliament on the ground that it encroached upon the rights given to the provinces under the provisions of the British North America Act. A volume was issued by the Department of Labour during 1925 containing a full account of the legal proceedings in this case and including the texts of the judgments of the various Ontario courts and of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, the cases for the several parties as presented before the Judicial Committee, the argument before the Judicial Committee, and other correlated data.

SCOPE OF THE ACT

Following the decision of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, the question of constitutional limitation was carefully considered and amendments to the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act were drafted with the object of confining the application of the statute to matters not within the exclusive legislative jurisdiction of any province. The amendments were enacted at the 1925 parliamentary session and the statute accordingly remains applicable to industrial disputes in such enterprises as come clearly within the purview of the Dominion Parliament, these undertakings being enumerated in the amending measure as including works carried on in connection with navigation and shipping; lines of steam or other ships, railways, telegraphs, canals, ferries, and other works extending beyond any one province; works operated by aliens; works declared to be for the general advantage of Canada or for the advantage of two or more of the provinces; and works of any company incorporated by or under the authority of the Parliament of Canada. The application of the Act is also defined as extending to any dispute which the Governor in Council may in apprehended national emergency declare to be subject to the provisions of the Act, and to any dispute within the exclusive control of the provinces which is brought within the scope of the federal Act by provincial legislation. The legislatures of five of the provinces, namely, British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia, have taken advantage of this latter provision of the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act and have enacted enabling legislation by which the terms of the federal statute are made applicable to disputes of the classes named in the Dominion law and otherwise within the exclusive legislative jurisdiction of the province.

The enumeration in the 1925 amendment referred to above is not to be construed as extending the meaning of the word "employer", which is interpreted in the statute as follows:—

(c) "employer" means any person, company or corporation employing ten or more persons and owning or operating any mining property, agency of transportation or communication, or public service utility, including, except as hereinafter provided, railways, whether operated by steam, electricity or other motive power, steamships, telegraph and telephone lines, gas, electric light, water and power works, or any number of such persons, companies or corporations, acting together, or who in the opinion of the minister have interests in common.

“Industrial dispute” is defined in the statute as meaning “any dispute or difference between an employer and one or more of his employees, as to matters or things affecting or relating to work done or to be done by him or them, or as to the privileges, rights and duties of employers or employees (not involving any such violation thereof as constitutes an indictable offence); and, without limiting the general nature of the above definition, includes all matters relating to

- (1) the wages allowance or other remuneration of employees, or the price paid or to be paid in respect of employment;
- (2) the hours of employment, sex, age, qualification or status of employees, and the mode, terms and conditions of employment;
- (3) the employment of children or any person or persons or class of persons, or the dismissal of or refusal to employ any particular person or persons or class of persons;
- (4) claims on the part of an employer or any employee as to whether and, if so, under what circumstances, preference of employment should or should not be given to one class over another of persons being or not being members of labour or other organizations, British subjects or aliens;
- (5) materials supplied and alleged to be bad, unfit or unsuitable, or damage alleged to have been done to work;
- (6) any established custom or usage, either generally or in the particular district affected;
- (7) the interpretation of an agreement or a clause thereof.”

Although the Act applies directly only to disputes in the industries or trades specifically named therein, its machinery may be put into operation in the case of differences arising in any other industry or trade with the joint consent of the disputants. A few disputes of this nature are usually referred under the statute in the course of a year.

During the war disputes in industries performing what may be briefly described as “war work” were brought within the scope of the Act by an Order in Council passed in 1916 under the War Measures Act.

MACHINERY OF THE ACT DESCRIBED

The general administration of the Act is placed under the Minister of Labour, and, since the enactment of the statute, the position of Registrar of Boards of Conciliation and Investigation has been held in conjunction with that of Deputy Minister of Labour.

Boards of Conciliation and Investigation are established by the Minister of Labour, usually on an application from one of the parties to the dispute. The minister has power, if he deems it expedient, to constitute a board on his own initiative. A municipal authority may also apply for a board. An amendment passed at the 1925 session places clearly upon the party desiring a change in wages and hours the full responsibility, in the event of a dispute occurring, for making application for a board.

Application forms are supplied by the department on request; it is not necessary that application be made on these forms, but an application should be, in any event, accompanied by a statement setting forth (1) the parties to the dispute; (2) the nature and cause of the dispute, including any claims or demands made by either party upon the other, to which exception is taken; (3) an approximate estimate of the number of persons affected or likely to be affected by the dispute; and (4) the efforts made by the parties themselves to adjust the dispute. The law requires further that the application shall be accompanied by a statutory declaration setting forth that, failing an adjustment of the dispute or a reference thereof by the minister to a board, to the best of the knowledge and belief of the declarant a lockout or strike will be declared, and (except where the application is made by an employer in consequence of an intended change in wages or hours proposed by the said employer) that the necessary authority to declare such lockout or strike has been obtained. When, however, a dispute concerns employees in more than one province, and such employees are members of a trades union having a general committee authorized to carry on negotiations in disputes and so recognized by the employer, there is an alternative procedure, free from the necessity of obtaining authority to declare a strike, whereby a declaration may be made by certain union officials setting forth that, failing an adjustment of the dispute or reference thereof by the minister to a board, to the best of the knowledge and belief of the declarants a strike will be declared, that the dispute has been the subject of negotiations between the committee of the employees and the employer or that it has been impossible to secure conference or to enter into negotiations, that all efforts to obtain a satisfactory settlement have failed, and that there is no reasonable hope of securing a settlement by further effort or negotiations.

A Board of Conciliation and Investigation consists of three members appointed by the Minister of Labour. One member is recommended by each of the disputing parties and the third member, who is chairman, is secured if possible by joint recommendation of the two members first appointed. Failing a joint recommendation the chairman is selected and appointed by the minister. There is also provision for the selection and appointment by the minister of a member for either of the parties who fails or neglects to nominate a person for appointment as board member within five days after being requested by the minister to do so, or within such extension of that period as the minister may allow. Members of a board must be British subjects, though not necessarily residents of Canada.

On the constitution of a board the registrar forwards to the chairman the necessary documents and instructions. The sittings of the board are fixed as to time and place by the chairman and the proceedings conducted in public unless the board, of its own motion or by request of any of the parties to the dispute, directs that they be held in private. The board may at any time dismiss any matter referred to it which it deems frivolous or trivial: also it may, with the consent of the Minister of Labour, employ competent experts or assessors to examine the books or official reports of either party, and to advise upon any technical or other matter material to the investigation.

The Act gives the board the requisite powers for taking evidence, etc., and provides for the remuneration and payment of expenses of board members and witnesses, and for all clerical assistance. Procedure under the statute is on simple lines, and in practice the effort has been to free the tribunal so far as possible from the formalities of a court of law.

If the board by conciliation effort brings the disputants together and a working agreement results, a copy of the memorandum of the settlement, with a report of the proceedings, is forwarded to the minister. If a settlement of the dispute is not reached during the course of its reference to a board, the board is required to report fully thereon and to make such recommendations as it seems fit for the settlement of the dispute. If the board deems it expedient the report shall state the period during which the proposed settlement shall continue in force and the date from which it shall commence. This report is sent to the registrar, and, similarly, a minority report may be made by a dissenting member of the board. Copies of the reports and minority reports made by boards or members of boards are, in accordance with the requirements of the statute, furnished the parties to the dispute. All reports are also published, either verbatim or in summary form, in the Labour Gazette, the official monthly publication of the Department of Labour, and are given publicity in the press.

It has not been the policy of the Department of Labour to institute proceedings in court when the provisions of the statute are believed to have been infringed; any individual may lay the information necessary, whether as regards employees or employers, and, in the various cases in which the penalty clauses have been enforced, procedure has been wholly independent of the Department of Labour or of any department of the Dominion Government.

Slight modifications of the Act intended to strengthen its principles or improve its machinery have been made by amendments passed in 1910, 1918, and 1920; also in 1925, the main feature of the 1925 amendment being, of course, the section limiting the application of the Act in terms to matters not within the legislative jurisdiction of any province.

TWENTY YEARS' OPERATIONS

The total number of applications under the terms of the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act received during the twenty years which have elapsed since the enactment of the statute in March, 1907, is 661; Boards of Conciliation and Investigation were established in 461 disputes, leaving 200 cases in which the dispute was settled by other agencies than those of a Conciliation Board, or it was found that the dispute did not come within the provisions of the statute. Of the 461 disputes so referred and as to each of which it had been declared on oath that a strike or lockout was believed to be impending, a cessation of work was averted or ended in all save 37 cases; the expression "or ended" will be understood to mean that in a few cases, despite the fact that a strike may have been improperly entered on, a board was none the less established and the dispute dealt with as if the strike had not been declared.

THE FISCAL YEAR 1926-27

It will be recalled that the statute was more or less inactive during the fiscal period 1925-26, four applications only having been received. The fiscal year ending March 31, 1927, however, shows renewed activity, nineteen applications having been received and eleven boards granted. In the case of two boards, proceedings were unfinished at the close of the fiscal period. Nine boards reported during the year, the threatened strike being averted in each instance. Unanimous reports were received from five boards, four of which were successful in effecting amicable agreements between the disputing parties. The fifth unanimous report made certain recommendations for the settlement of the dispute and no strike occurred. Majority and minority reports were received from four boards, the majority report being accepted as a settlement of the dispute in two instances, and a compromise being later effected in each of the two other cases.

With respect to the eight applications in connection with which boards were not established, in two cases working agreements were reached as a result of renewal of negotiations; one application was held in abeyance at the request of the applicants; one application was under consideration at the close of the fiscal year, and in the four remaining cases it was not possible to apply the provisions of the statute.

RAILWAY DISPUTES

With regard particularly to railway disputes it should be perhaps pointed out that, while the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act has since its inception applied directly to all classes of railway disputes, save only in certain rare cases where a dispute might affect a railway within the exclusive jurisdiction of a province, yet for several years past certain classes of disputes arising between railways and their employees have been disposed of by what is known as Canadian Railway Board of Adjustment No. 1. This is a body which was voluntarily formed in August, 1918, by agreement between (a) Canadian railways being members of the Canadian Railway War Board, afterwards the Railway Association of Canada, and comprising practically all railways of importance in Canada, and (b) six trades unions, namely, (1) Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, (2) Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, (3) Order of Railway Conductors, (4) Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, (5) Order of Railroad Telegraphers, and (6) United Brotherhood of Maintenance-of-Way Employees and Railway Shop Labourers. A new agreement, executed on April 15, 1921, is effective until amended or terminated "upon service of thirty days' notice by the one party upon the other." The board consists of twelve members, six selected by the Railway Association of Canada and six by the executive officers of the organizations above named. Under the terms of the agreement, decisions of the board are binding. In the event of a majority vote of the members of the board not being obtained, provision is made for the unanimous choice of a referee, or, in case of failure to agree, for the appointment of a referee by the federal Minister of Labour. However, all decisions so far rendered by the board have been unanimous. The board deals with all disputes between the respective railway managements and their employees, members of the unions above named, concerning the interpretation or application of wage schedules or agreements and which have not been settled by direct negotiations. Disputes arising out of the negotiation of new agreements as to wages and working conditions or amendments thereto are not, however, embraced within the jurisdiction of the Canadian Railway Board of Adjustment No. 1, and several disputes of this nature have, since the creation of the board, been referred to Boards of Conciliation and Investigation under the terms of the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act. The Canadian Railway Board of Adjustment No. 1 also determines differences existing between railways and classes of employees not represented on the board, provided joint submission of the case is made to the board by the parties concerned.

A similar tribunal, the Canadian National Railways Employees' Board of Adjustment No. 2, was organized on September 1, 1925, by agreement between the Canadian National Railways and its clerks, station, baggage room and freight shed employees, roundhouse, shop and stores labourers (members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Employees), for the purpose of disposing of grievances or disputes which might arise respecting the application, non-application or interpretation of agreements as to wages or working conditions. All disputes arising out of proposed changes in rates of pay, rules or working conditions are specifically excluded from the jurisdiction of the board. The board is composed of eight members, four of whom are selected by the railway management and four by the employees concerned. A majority vote of the full board is necessary for a decision, which is binding upon the parties; if no decision is reached, provision is made for the appointment of an arbitrator. The agreement is effective until cancelled by thirty days' notice given at any time by either party to the other. In November, 1925, the scope of the board was enlarged to include additional classes, namely, dining, sleeping and parlor car employees.

An agreement between the Railway Association of Canada and Division No. 4, Railway Employees' Department of the American Federation of Labour, governing rates of pay and rules of service for crafts in the locomotive and car departments of various Canadian railways, contains a provision that all grievances and disputes which cannot be adjusted directly by the railway officials and the employees' representatives shall be jointly submitted in writing to the Railway Association of Canada and to Division No. 4, Railway Employees' Department, American Federation of Labour, "for adjudication or final disposition." This arrangement has been in operation for several years.

The railways and employees participating in the above mentioned agreements are not exempted from the operation of the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, but, since all the disputes going before these voluntary agencies for adjustment are settled, comparatively few disputes affecting the railway labour classes are now referred under the terms of this statute. Five of the applications for Boards of Conciliation and Investigation received during the fiscal year 1926-27 concerned railway disputes; in each case the dispute was one falling outside the scope of the agreements referred to above.

SUMMARY TABLES RESPECTING PROCEEDINGS UNDER THE INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES INVESTIGATION ACT, 1907

The tables here presented are arranged in several divisions, viz: (i) showing proceedings by industries concerned during the fiscal years 1925-26 and 1926-27; (ii) showing proceedings by industries concerned from March 22, 1907, to March 31, 1927; (iii) showing by fiscal years, 1907-1927, number of disputes dealt with; (iv) showing by calendar years, 1907-1927, number of disputes dealt with; (v) containing statistical summary of operations under the statute for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1926; and (vi) containing statistical summary of operations under the statute for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1927.

In the nineteenth annual report of proceedings under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, the tables summarizing operations under the statute during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1926, were not inserted, the features of the year's activities in this respect being shown in narrative form. For the convenience of those who are desirous of keeping a complete tabulated record on the subject, the summary tables omitted from the 1925-26 report are included in the present chapter (see Tables I and V).

The figures contained in the above table may be thought to show discrepancies as compared with those appearing in the yearly summary. A closer examination will, however, show the respective statements to be in agreement. A complete statement of proceedings for a year must show all disputes dealt with during the fiscal year. The figures of the yearly statement include, therefore, disputes carried over from the previous year and which are counted in the summary of that year's proceedings. Thus the same dispute may properly figure in the annual statement for each of two years. In the statistical recapitulation covering several years, as above, it is necessary that no dispute shall be counted more than once, and account is taken of the number of applications received during the year and thus brought within the purview of the statute.

A few days after receipt of the application, however, the dispute was adjusted by mutual agreement and board procedure became unnecessary.

The company intimated its unwillingness to refer the dispute to a board whereupon the minister offered the services of Mr. E. McG. Quirk, a special representative of the department, as mediator. Through Mr. Quirk's efforts conferences were subsequently held between the parties concerned and a working agreement was reached.

June 4, 1926	June 29, July 3, 1926	During the hearings of the board it was intimated by the parties to the dispute that an agreement had been reached regarding the matter of working conditions. The report of the board, which was signed by the chairman and the employees' nominee, recommended an increase of pay to the employees concerned and suggested that an effort should be made in the very near future looking in the fixing of a basic day. The company's nominee submitted a minority report. While the employees signified their acceptance of the findings of the board, the employing company advised the department that it could not see its way to accepting the board's recommendations. The Hon. Mr. Heenan, Minister of Labour, however, took the matter up with the railway officials, urging upon them the desirability of acceptance by the company of the board's findings. As a result of the minister's mediation, negotiations were resumed, and advice was received that an agreement between the parties concerned had been executed and that the rates of pay recommended by the board had been put into effect as from Sept. 1, 1926.

With the board's assistance agreements were effected between the parties concerned which disposed of the points at issue, and which were drafted with a view to obviating the occurrence of similar disputes in the future. The agreements in question were embodied in the unanimous report of the board. No strike occurred.

The first interim report was accompanied by a letter written on behalf of the employers concerned, stating that the shipping interests undertook to meet their employees in or about the month of March, 1927, to discuss terms of employment for the ensuing year, to which arrangements, the report stated, the employees were agreeable. A second interim report stated that the board stood adjourned pending the outcome of the negotiations between the parties. The final report had not been received at the close of the fiscal year.

May 15, 1926	Corporation of the City of Winnipeg and an employee engaged as a plumber in its Municipal Hospitals.	Employees...	Winnipeg, Man.....	25 dir.....	Against dismissal of employee because of union affiliation.			The application was regarded as defective at certain points. Also the industry was not deemed to be within the scope of the I. D. I. Act for adjustment. Shortly after the application was received, however, direct negotiations between the parties concerned were resumed, and the dispute is understood to have been amicably arranged.

Employees.....	Montreal, P.Q.....	800 dir.; 1,100 indir.	For increased wages and changed working conditions.			The company being incorporated under a provincial charter and its operations being confined to the province, a board could be established, in accordance with the 1925 amendment to the I. D. I. Act, only on the joint request of the parties concerned. The company's consent being refused, no board was established.

Ottawa, Ont.....	158 dir.; 11 indir.	For increased wages and certain changes in working conditions.			In this case a board could be established only by mutual consent of the parties concerned, and, the consent of the municipality being refused, no board was established.
Feb. 11, 1927	Ottawa Sanitary Laundry Company Ltd., and certain of its employees being members of Local No. 275, International Laundry Workers' Union.	Employees.....	Ottawa, Ont.....	59 dir.....	Against certain amendments to existing agreement.			The industry concerned not coming within the direct scope of the I. D. I. Act, a board could be constituted only with the joint consent of the parties to the dispute under Section 63 of the Act. The employing company declined to join with the employees in submitting the dispute to a Board of Conciliation and Investigation. Efforts at mediation were unsuccessful, and on Feb. 14 about 45 employees ceased work, alleging a lockout and violation of an agreement. By March 5 the majority of the former employees had either returned to work or been replaced and the dispute was considered terminated.

II. CONCILIATION WORK

Apart from the operation of the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, the services of the officers of the Department of Labour were utilized during the year in the adjustment of a number of labour disputes through conciliation. In certain cases in which application had been made for the establishment of Boards of Conciliation and Investigation under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, it was found that the Act did not apply, but the department lent the assistance of its officers in promoting an amicable settlement. In many of the disputes where a settlement was secured by conciliation, no strike took place and it was deemed desirable to give the matter as little publicity as possible. Some of the best work of the department achieved in this way often is known, therefore, to the disputants alone.

The Minister of Labour took an active part personally in proceedings in certain cases. In several instances the disputes in question had previously been referred to boards established under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act. Reference is made in the chapter of the present report dealing with the operation of the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act to the services which the Minister of Labour rendered in this connection and in which he was particularly successful. The minister evinced, indeed, a personal interest in the settlement of all industrial controversies which came to the attention of the department, and himself mediated in a number of individual disputes, his efforts in promoting good relations between employers and employees meeting with decided success. In still other instances the good offices of the Department of Labour in the settlement of labour disputes were exerted through the Fair Wages Officers, who are stationed at different industrial centres. The officers in question are: Mr. F. E. Harrison, resident in Vancouver, who is the departmental representative for the four western provinces; Mr. E. N. Compton, resident Fair Wages Officer in Toronto, whose territory comprises the province of Ontario; and Mr. Theo. Bertrand, resident Fair Wages Officer in Montreal. Mr. E. McG. Quirk, of Montreal, though not actually an officer of the department, acted on various occasions as a special representative in connection with conciliation work in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces.

Following the custom of previous years, visits were made by Mr. Harrison to the largest centres of Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia, both during the summer and winter months, in order to keep in touch with industrial conditions, to obtain accurate wages data, and to assist in the adjustment of labour disputes. As in previous years, visits were made by the Fair Wages Officer to the various coal mining centres with a view to investigating employment conditions, and reports were forwarded to the department. Happily, there were practically no interruptions of work in the coal mining industry during the past year, largely owing to the fact that wage agreements had been made between the operators and the employees which have still another year to run.

During the fiscal year Mr. Harrison was instrumental in bringing ten strikes to a conclusion and also assisted in the adjustment of twenty-five other labour disputes. During April, 1926, the moulders employed in the different metal trades industries in Vancouver ceased work, demanding an advance of $1 a day in wages. The strike continued until August 12, when, through the mediation of the departmental official, a compromise settlement was made and work resumed. In May, 1926, the carpenters employed in the building trades industry in Vancouver ceased work owing to the refusal of the employers to grant a five-day week. Mr. Harrison was successful in bringing about the termination of this strike on the 12th of the month. The settlement provided for an increase in wages but for the continuance of the six-day week. During the month of February, 1927, an application for the establishment of a Board of Conciliation and Investigation under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act was under consideration by the civic employees of Calgary. Mr. Harrison called upon the Mayor of Calgary and the President of the Calgary Civic Employees' Federation and offered his services as a mediator. An amicable settlement was reached as the result of negotiations extending over a period of three weeks.

Mr. E. McG. Quirk, of Montreal, visited Winnipeg in April, 1926, in connection with a dispute between the Winnipeg Electric Railway Company and its motormen and conductors. In the month of May following, he visited Quebec in company with Mr. Theo. Bertrand, Fair Wages Officer, in connection with complaints which had reached the Department of Labour concerning employment conditions on a contract for harbour improvements there. In the same month Mr. Quirk proceeded to Halifax, Sydney, Truro, New Glasgow, and Amherst, N.S.; Charlottetown, P.E.I.; and to Saint John and Moncton, N.B., in connection with various departmental matters. In June and July his services were utilized as a mediator in connection with a dispute between the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Company and its electricians, helpers, and station tenders. Mr. Quirk's services were utilized during August in mediation work with respect to disputes between the Montreal Shipping Federation and its truckers and checkers, and also in a dispute between the Southern Counties Railway Company and its employees. He also rendered mediation service during the fall months in connection with both of these matters. Reference is made elsewhere in the present report to the assistance which this officer rendered with regard to disputes which had been referred to boards established under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act.

Mr. E. N. Compton, resident Fair Wages Officer in Toronto, had occasion to make frequent visits to the Welland Canal district in connection with a number of labour questions which arose on the contracts for the construction of the Welland Ship Canal. This part of his work is dealt with in the chapter relating to Fair Wages. His good offices as a conciliator were also utilized in connection with labour disputes which occurred in Toronto and elsewhere in the province.

Mr. Theo. Bertrand's work as resident Fair Wages Officer in Montreal during the year had mainly to do with the preparation of fair wages schedules and disputes as to wages rates paid on certain Government contracts. Assistance was also rendered by him on request in the preparation of a number of industrial agreements. Mr. Bertrand made investigations into nine industrial disputes during the year, involving 144 firms and upwards of 5,000 employees.

III. FAIR WAGES

The fair wages policy of the Government of Canada is based on a resolution of the House of Commons which was adopted at the session of 1900 in the terms following:—

"That it is resolved that all Government contracts should contain such conditions as will prevent abuses which may arise from the subletting of such contracts, and that every effort should be made to secure the payment of such wages as are generally accepted as current in each trade for competent workmen in the district where the work is carried out, and that this House cordially concurs in such policy and deems it the duty of the Government to take immediate steps to give effect thereto.

"It is hereby declared that the work to which the foregoing policy shall apply includes not only work undertaken by the Government itself, but also all works aided by grant of Dominion public funds."

The policy outlined in this resolution was accepted at once by the Government and has been adhered to during the years which have since passed. Additional force was given to the Fair Wages Policy in 1903 by the inclusion in the Railway Act of a section requiring the payment of current rates of wages to all workmen engaged in the construction of lines of railway towards which financial aid was granted by the Parliament of Canada. The section of the Railway Act in question reads as follows:—

"(1) In every case in which the Parliament of Canada votes financial aid by way of subsidy or guarantee towards the cost of railway construction, all mechanics, labourers or other persons who perform labour in such construction shall be paid such wages as are generally accepted as current for competent workmen in the district in which the work is being performed; and if there is no current rate in such district, then a fair and reasonable rate.

"(2) In the event of a dispute arising as to what is the current or a fair and reasonable rate, it shall be determined by the Minister, whose decision shall be final."

Contractors were required by Order in Council in 1907 to post fair wages schedules in a conspicuous place on any public works under construction and to keep a record of payments made to the workmen in their employ, such records to be open for inspection by fair wages officers of the Government.

In order that the fair wages conditions inserted in departmental contracts might be made as nearly uniform in terms and administration as possible, the Fair Wages Policy was confirmed in 1922 by Order in Council (see Annual Report, 1922, pages 42-46).

This Order in Council contains two sets of labour conditions marked "A" and "B," respectively. The former is applicable to "all contracts made on behalf of the Government of Canada for the construction or remodelling of public buildings of all kinds, railways, canals, roads, bridges, locks, dry-docks, elevators, harbours, piers, wharves, lighthouses, and other works for the improvement and safety of transportation and navigation, rifle ranges, fortifications and other works of defence, dams, hydraulic works, slides, piers, booms, and other works for facilitating the transmission of timber, and all other works and properties constructed or remodelled for the Government of Canada"; the like conditions are as far as practicable observable also by the departments of government in connection with all agreements involving the grant of Dominion public funds in the form of subsidy, advance, loan or guarantee for any of the purposes mentioned. The conditions marked "B" are observable by the departments concerned in connection with "all contracts for the manufacture and supply to the Government of Canada of fittings for public buildings, harness, saddlery, clothing and other outfit for the military and naval forces, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, letter carriers, and other Government officers and employees, mail bags, letter boxes, and other postal stores, and any other articles and things hereafter designated by the Governor in Council."

As a result of experience gained in the administration of the fair wages policy, as set forth in the Order in Council of June 7, 1922, certain amendments were made to the "A" conditions by Order in Council of April 9, 1924, on recommendation of the Minister of Labour, which, without altering the scope and intent of the policy, are intended to make its purpose clearer and more definite.

In the case of all contracts to which the "A" conditions apply, the department of the Government concerned is required to communicate to the Department of Labour the nature of the proposed contract and the classes of labour likely to be required in its execution. The Labour Department is charged with the preparation of schedules setting forth the rates of wages and hours of labour generally accepted as current, for competent workmen of the various classes required, in the district in which the work is to be performed. This fair wage schedule is thereupon embodied in the contract. In any cases where the Department of Labour is unable to furnish fair wages schedules for the purpose aforesaid, authority is given for the insertion in the contract of a fair wage clause in the terms following:—

All mechanics, labourers, or other persons who perform labour in the construction of the work hereby contracted for, shall be paid such wages as are generally accepted as current from time to time during the continuance of the contract for competent workmen in the district in which the work is being performed for the character or class of work in which they are respectively engaged, and if there be no current rates in such district, then fair and reasonable rates, and shall work such hours as are customary in the trade in the district where the work is carried on, or if there be no custom of the trade as respects hours in the district, then fair and reasonable hours, unless for the protection of life and property, or for other cause shown to the satisfaction of the Minister of Labour, longer hours of service are required. The Minister of Labour may at any time and from time to time determine, for the purposes of this contract, what are the current or fair and reasonable rates of wages, and the current or fair and reasonable hours, and may from time to time rescind, revoke, amend or vary any such decision, provided that his determination and any amendment or variation shall not be operative prior to the period of three months immediately preceding the date thereof. Where there are special circumstances which in the judgment of the Minister of Labour make it expedient that he should do so, he may, in the manner and subject to the provisions hereinabove set forth, decide what are the current or fair and reasonable rates of wages for overtime, and what is the proper classification of any work for the purposes of wages and hours. Immediately upon receipt of notice of any decision of the Minister of Labour hereunder the contractor shall adjust the wages and hours and classification of work so as to give effect to such decision. In case the contractor shall fail so to do, or to pay to any employee or employees for any services performed, or for any hours of labour, wages according to the rates fixed therefor by the Minister of Labour, the Minister of Labour may authorize and direct the minister* to pay any such wages at the rates so fixed and to deduct the amount thereof from any moneys owing by the Government to the contractor and any such payment shall for all purposes as between the contractor and the Government be deemed and taken to be payment to the contractor, and the contractor shall be bound in every particular by any such authority, direction and payment as aforesaid. The powers of the Minister of Labour hereunder shall not be exercised as to any employee or employees where it is established to his satisfaction that an agreement in writing exists and is in effect between the contractor and the class of employees to which such employee or employees belong or the authorized representatives of such class of employees fixing rates of wages, overtime conditions and hours of labour.

Since the inception of the Fair Wages Policy in 1900, fair wages officers have been employed by the Department of Labour to prepare fair wages schedules as required and to assist in the adjustment of complaints and disputes arising from time to time as to the proper rates observable under the terms of Government contracts.

During the year 1926-7 the Department of Labour prepared fair wages conditions in connection with the execution of sixty-nine contracts. These were divided among the different departments of the Government as follows: Railways and Canals, 6; Marine and Fisheries, 2; National Defence, 1; Indian Affairs, 4; and Public Works, 56.

Complaint received	Locality and public work	Department affected	Subject of Investigation	Disposition
Dec. 10, 1926	Welland Ship Canal.....	Railways and Canals.	Alleged non-payment of current wage rate to workman employed as rigger by contractor on Section 3	Investigation by a Fair Wages Officer of the Department of Labour showed that man's duties were those of a rigger's helper and that complaint was therefore unjustified
April 27, 1926	Welland Ship Canal.....	Railways and Canals.	Alleged non-payment of proper wage rate to workman employed as watchman and fireman by sub-contractors on Section 8	Investigation by a Fair Wages Officer of the Department of Labour showed that complaint was not justified.
June 12, 1926	Welland Ship Canal.....	Railways and Canals.	Alleged that workman performing duties of conductors on construction trains only receiving brakemen's rate from sub-contractors on Sections 3 and 4	Investigation was made by a Fair Wages Officer of the Department of Labour and complaint found to be justified. The Minister of Labour accordingly notified all the contractors on the canal construction that conductor's rate should be paid to all men in charge of construction trains
Apr. 19, 1926	Welland Ship Canal.....	Railways and Canals.	Alleged that workman employed as a machinist by contractors for Sections 3 and 4 was not receiving proper wage rate.	Investigation by a Fair Wages Officer of the Department of Labour showed that workman had first been engaged as a machinist's helper and then given a try-out as a machinist at a lower rate; the test being satisfactory, the Fair Wages Officer was informed that the man would in future be paid the machinist's rate
Apr. 19, 1926	Welland Ship Canal.....	Railways and Canals.	Alleged that workman employed as machinist's helper by contractors for Sections 3 and 4 was not receiving current wages rate	Investigation by a Fair Wages Officer of the Department of Labour showed that workman's duties were those of a labourer only and therefore that complaint was unjustified
Nov. 13, 1926	Welland Ship Canal.....	Railways and Canals.	Alleged that workman employed as carpenter's helper by sub-contractors on Section 6 was not receiving current wages rate nor payment for overtime	Investigation by a Fair Wages Officer of the Department of Labour showed the complaint was justified and a settlement of claim was made by the sub-contractors
Nov. 13, 1926	Welland Ship Canal.....	Railways and Canals.	Alleged non-payment of overtime to carpenter employed by sub-contractors on Section 6	Investigation by a Fair Wages Officer of the Department of Labour resulted in this claim being paid.
Sept. 21, 1926	Welland Ship Canal.....	Railways and Canals.	Alleged non-payment of current rate to workman employed as switchman by contractors on Sections 1 and 2	Investigation by a Fair Wages Officer of the Department of Labour showed that work performed was that of a watchman and that, therefore, claim was not justified
Jan. 29, 1927	Welland Ship Canal.....	Railways and Canals.	Alleged that workman employed as carpenter's helper by contractors on Sections 1 and 2 had not received current wages rate nor payment for overtime	Investigation by a Fair Wages Officer of the Department of Labour resulted in claim being settled by contractors.
June 21, 1926	Welland Ship Canal.....	Railways and Canals.	Alleged that workman employed as carpenter's helper by sub-contractors on Section 8 had not received current wages rate	Investigation made by a Fair Wages Officer of the Department of Labour resulted in claim being paid by sub-contractors.
Oct. 30, 1926	Welland Ship Canal.....	Railways and Canals.	Alleged that workman employed as carpenter's helper by sub-contractors on Section 7 did not receive payment for overtime	Investigation by a Fair Wages Officer of the Department of Labour showed claim to be unjustified.
Apr. 19, 1926	Welland Ship Canal.....	Railways and Canals.	Alleged that fair wages schedule was not posted on train contracts.	A Fair Wages Officer of the Department of Labour visited the contracts in question and posted schedules at ten different points
May 10, 1926	Welland Ship Canal.....	Railways and Canals.	Alleged that linemen were not receiving current wages rate.	Investigation by a Fair Wages Officer of the Department of Labour resulted in a ruling by the Minister of Labour fixing a rate of 90c. an hour for this class of men, instead of 55c. which had been in effect since 1925. This ruling was made under authority of the Fair Wages Conditions of the contracts for the several sections of the canal under construction. The revised rate was put into effect accordingly.
July 6, 1926	Welland Ship Canal.....	Railways and Canals.	Request for institution of a 10-hour day for carpenters by sub-contracting firm.	Request not sanctioned in view of the working hours for this trade generally current in the district being 8 hours.

Complaint received	Locality and public work	Department affected	Subject of Investigation	Disposition
Sept. 27, 1926	Welland Ship Canal.....	Railways and Canals.	Claim for overtime payment for work performed by hoisting engineers during noon hour.	Investigation by Fair Wages Officer of Department of Labour showed that work was occasionally done during the noon hour but it had never been the custom to pay overtime on this account. In such cases the employees were sometimes allowed to leave earlier in the afternoon. The claim was therefore not allowed, paying 11 hours pay for a 10-hour day. The claim was therefore not allowed.
Mar. 21, 1927	Welland Ship Canal.....	Railways and Canals.	Claim that gasoline locomotive engineers should receive same rate of pay as steam locomotive engineers.	Investigation was made into this matter by a Fair Wages Officer of the Department of Labour, and, after consideration of his report, the Minister of Labour communicated with the various contractors, asking that instructions be given to apply the same rate of pay to workmen employed in the operation of gasoline locomotives as is paid to steam locomotive engineers.
July 22, 1925 and Oct. 21, 1926	Halifax, N. S..... Grain Elevator	Trade and Commerce	Alleged non-observance of current working hours of carpenters.	The working hours of carpenters employed on this work were 10 hours a day and a request was made for the payment of time and one-half for the ninth and tenth hours. Investigation by an officer of the Department of Labour showed that there was no established practice of the trade in Halifax which would warrant the enforcement of punitive rates beyond the 7-hour day. Later, this complaint as to working hours was renewed in connection with a contract for additions to the elevator and the working hours of mechanics were fixed at 8 hours, with time and one-half for overtime.
Mar. 8, 1925	Halifax, N. S..... Grain Elevator.	Trade and Commerce	Alleged non-payment of current wages rate to labourers. (Reference to this complaint omitted from last Annual Report.)	Investigation by a Fair Wages Officer of the Department of Labour showed that the current rate of wages of labourers in Halifax was 35c. an hour. By direction of the Minister the rate of labourers on this work was accordingly raised from 30c. to 35c. per hour. Notice establishing the new rate was posted by the contractors on the work on July 18, 1925, and payment was made of the difference due to a number of workmen.
Feb. 18, 1926	Montreal, P. Q..... Prize Contract, Harbour Com'rs.	Marine and Fisheries.	Alleged that current wage rate was not being paid to carpenters employed on the bridge construction.	On the resumption of operations in the spring of 1926, the wage rate paid to carpenters on the northern section of the bridge was increased to 65c., following an investigation by a Fair Wages Officer of the Department of Labour. Later in the year the current wage rate of carpenters was raised by agreement to 75c. This latter rate was not introduced at once on the bridge contract, but, following correspondence exchanged with the Minister of Labour, it was put into effect when the work reopened in the spring of 1927.

IV. STATISTICS

Statistical and other information relating to labour conditions has been collected and published by the Department of Labour since its establishment in 1900 as required by statute (Conciliation and Labour Act, chapter 96, Revised Statutes, 1906, section 12). In accordance with the "Statistics Act, 1918," and under arrangements with the Dominion Statistician, statistics are collected and published in co-operation with the Dominion Statistician, in close association with statistics of general social and economic conditions as organized in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

An important feature of this arrangement is the use by the department of the classification of industries and occupations drawn up in the bureau and followed by various departments of the Federal Government Service in the compilation and publication of records and statistics.

The present chapter contains information as to strikes and lockouts, wages and hours, prices and cost of living, and as to fatal industrial accidents. Information as to employment, labour organization, and other subjects will be found in other chapters.

STRIKES AND LOCKOUTS

The departmental record of strikes and lockouts in Canada was begun on the establishment of the department toward the end of 1900 and particulars of industrial disputes have been given each month in the Labour Gazette, the official monthly publication of the department; also in an early issue each year a summary statement of the previous calendar year is printed in the Labour Gazette, with a statistical analysis. The figures are given for the calendar year rather than the fiscal year, because in this form they are more easily comparable with statistics on the same subject gathered in other countries, which also as a rule use the calendar year.

A special report on strikes and lockouts was issued in 1913 giving detailed information and statistical analysis for the period 1901 to 1912, and in 1918 another was issued giving summary tables for the period 1901 to 1916 and detailed information for the period 1911 to 1916. A report covering the whole period back to 1901 is now in course of preparation in view of the fact that the above reports have been for some time out of print. As the classification of industries and occupations was altered in 1918 and again in 1922, and as certain other changes in methods of compilation and analysis have been made, the record for the entire period is being revised in order to secure, so far as is possible, completeness and comparability of the figures for the entire record.

The record of the department includes all strikes and lockouts of which information becomes available to the department and the methods taken to secure information are such as to practically preclude omissions of a serious nature. As a lockout, or an industrial condition which is undoubtedly a lockout, is rarely encountered, strikes and lockouts are recorded together in the statistical tables, and the term "dispute" or "industrial dispute" is frequently used. So far as concerns figures given with respect to duration of strikes, numbers of employees concerned, etc., it is impossible always to secure exact information, but the estimate made in such cases is the result of painstaking methods in the collection of data, and, with increasing experience in dealing with the subject, it is believed that the statistics indicate the conditions with reasonable precision.

A strike or lockout, included as such in the records of the department, is a cessation of work involving six or more employees, and lasting at least one working day. Disputes of less than one day's duration and disputes involving less than six employees were not until 1924 included in the published record, but a separate record of such disputes was maintained in the department.

Since 1924, however, any disputes involving a time loss of ten working days or more have been included in the published record. In 1926 the separate record of disputes causing less than ten days' time loss included only one—involving three employees for one-half day, and resulting in a time loss of one and one-half working days.

The department secures information as to the occurrence of a strike or lockout through newspapers, from correspondents of the Labour Gazette in over sixty industrial centres throughout the Dominion, from its officers in touch with disputes and negotiations and from labour organizations and employers concerned. As soon as a strike or lockout is reported, report forms are sent to the representatives of the employers and of the employees involved in the dispute, calling for details as to dates, numbers involved, causes, negotiations, terms of settlement, etc. From these reports and any other information secured the statistics are compiled, as well as statements for publication in the Labour Gazette and in other reports. It is very unusual for either party to a strike or lockout to neglect or refuse to make out and forward to the department the desired report, all parties apparently recognizing the importance of the publication of complete and accurate information. If the dispute is of more than one month's duration, a progress report is secured at the end of each month or more frequently. Supplementary reports are secured through officers of the department and correspondents of the Labour Gazette, especially when conflicting information is furnished by the various parties to the dispute.

An analysis of the statistics shows that, out of the seventy-seven disputes in existence during the year, all but five involved less than one thousand employees and only fourteen involved over two hundred and fifty employees. Over thirty of the disputes lasted less than five days and only seventeen over thirty days. One dispute caused over 50,000 days' time loss, namely, that of boot factory employees at Quebec. Two disputes caused over 25,000 days' time loss and less than 50,000, namely, that of lumber workers in the vicinity of Port Arthur, Ont., and that of men's clothing factory workers at Montreal, P.Q. The province having the largest number of disputes was Ontario, namely, twenty-two, but these caused only nineteen per cent of the time loss for the year. The province of Quebec had eighteen disputes and these caused 61.5 per cent of the time loss for the year. The results of the disputes were that twenty-five out of the seventy-seven disputes terminated in favour of employees, twenty-three in favour of employers, nineteen ended in compromises or were partially successful, and ten were unterminated at the end of the year or lapsed without a definite result. Out of 24,142 employees involved in disputes during the year, 5,556 were successful, 14,736 were unsuccessful, and 3,347 were partially successful. An analysis by causes shows that thirty-five of the disputes were due to demands for increases in wages, in some cases with other changes, and that twenty-seven were connected with some question of union organization, sixteen of these being to secure or maintain union wages and working conditions.

The accompanying tables afford summary statistics as to the strikes and lockouts for the calendar year 1926 and preceding years, the first table showing the number of disputes, the numbers of employees and employers involved and the time loss in working days back to 1901, and the total for the period, the other table giving similar data by months back to 1921.

It will be observed that the year 1926 was marked by less disturbance from strikes and lockouts than any year since 1916, the number of disputes and numbers of employees involved being about the same as in each year from 1923 to 1925, but the time loss in man working days, less than 300,000, was the lowest figure since 1916, and less than in any year since 1900, except 1902, 1904, 1905, 1915, and 1916. The notable feature of the year 1926 was the relatively small amount of time loss due to strikes or lockouts in coal mines, in contrast with conditions from 1922 to 1925 inclusive, a period marked by not only a large number of disputes in coal mines but by a series of disputes involving large numbers of miners for long periods of time.

The chief disputes during 1926 occurred in establishments manufacturing clothing and boots and shoes, nearly two-thirds of the time loss for the year appearing in these two industrial groups. There was also a substantial amount of time loss in logging and in mining. The most important disputes during the year were those of boot factory employees at Quebec from May to September, involving 3,000 employees and causing a time loss of 88,677 working days; men's clothing factory workers at Montreal, involving 5,000 employees from July 26 to the end of the year, most of them having secured their demands and resumed work in a few weeks; lumber workers in the district about Port Arthur, Ont., involving 700 employees and causing a time loss of 30,400 working days. In coal mining there were twenty disputes, some involving large numbers of miners, but these lasted only a few days and so did not cause very much time loss.

*These figures relate only to the actual number of disputes in existence and the employees involved during the year, not being a summation in each case of the monthly figures.

The record does not include disputes as to which information has been received indicating that employment conditions are no longer affected, although the unions or organizations concerned have not yet declared them terminated. Information is available as to the following disputes of this nature: Metal polishers, Sackville, N.B., March 15, 1921; moulders at Galt, Ont., August 2, 1922; cigarmakers at Montreal, March 24, 1925; hat and cap makers, Toronto, June 16, 1925; tailors, Toronto, November 16, 1925; moulders, Guelph, June 2, 1924; moulders, Owen Sound, January 19, 1925; moulders, Sarnia, March 3, 1925; upholsterers, Montreal, June 23, 1925. All but the first three, however, lapsed during 1926.

The accompanying chart of the time loss in working days by groups of industries for each year back to 1901 shows that in mining considerable time loss occurred in 1903, 1909, 1910, 1911 and 1913, and again in 1917, 1919, 1922, 1923 and 1924, with very little time loss for 1926. In metal trades no great time loss appeared except in 1919, when the strikes in the metal trades in various cities and the general strike in Winnipeg in sympathy with the metal trades' strike there, caused a time loss of about two million days. In 1918, 1920 and 1923, however, the time losses (in these trades) were larger than in other years. In building and construction considerable time loss appeared in 1903, 1907, 1911 and 1919. In transportation there was considerable time loss only in 1901, due to a strike of trackmen, in 1908, due to a strike of railway shop machinists, and in 1918 and 1919 due to numbers of strikes in street railway operation, as well as among freight handlers, in local transportation, cartage, etc. The item "other industries" for 1926 included a comparatively large time loss in boot and shoe manufacturing.

From the chart showing results of the disputes it appears that the majority of employees were successful or substantially successful in 1905, 1906, 1915, 1917 and 1918, periods of steadily rising prices and expanding business, but were unsuccessful in 1908, 1919, and 1920, years of uncertainty in industry.

The following notes deal with the chief features in strikes and lockouts during the year 1926.

LOGGING

The four disputes in the logging industry involved 1,250 employees, causing a time loss of 32,230 working days. All these disputes were to secure increases in wages and all but one were partially or substantially successful. The principal dispute was one in the vicinity of Port Arthur, Ont., involving 26 employers and about 700 employees, between September 16 and November 8, causing a time loss of 30,400 days. This dispute was to secure increases in wages and better working conditions, and from time to time various employers agreed to increase the wages but not always to the amount demanded, namely, $60 per month.

MINING

All disputes in the industry occurred in coal mines, being 20 in number, involving 8,895 employees and causing a time loss of 30,135 days. Only two of the disputes involved a large number of men and only one of the disputes lasted more than a few days. A number of these were strikes in Nova Scotia to prevent the employment of miners who were not members of the United Mine Workers of America, which had an agreement with the employers, or of miners who were members of another organization. These were substantially successful. The only dispute lasting more than a few days was that involving coal miners in the neighbourhood of Edmonton, Alta., lasting from July 1 to the end of August, the miners demanding an increase in wages and the recognition of their union. The employers refused the latter demand on the ground that this union had become affiliated with a new organization, and also refused the wage increase. Shortly afterwards some of the mine operators settled with their employees on the basis of the same wages and working conditions as before the strike, without recognition of the union, and later employees returned to the other mines under similar conditions.

MANUFACTURING

Most of the disputes in this industry occurred in establishments connected with the manufacturing of men's clothing, furs and boots. Nearly all of these disputes were to maintain union conditions, to secure union wage scales and working conditions, or to secure union agreements and recognition of the union. The most important of these disputes was in Montreal, where the Amalgamated Clothing Workers called out on strike at the end of July all the workers under its jurisdiction, in order to maintain the wages and working conditions provided for in agreements already in force and to secure agreements in other establishments. A number of employers were reported to be violating the terms of the agreements, especially by sending out work to non-union contract shops. As a result of the dispute the majority of the establishments entered into agreements with the union within a short time, and from time to time before the end of the year other establishments followed; at the end of the year it was reported that there were only two employers having a dispute with the union. During the year both at Montreal and Toronto there were a number of strikes against violations of agreements in men's clothing factories. There were disputes involving two women's clothing factories and disputes involving corset makers, cap makers, millinery workers, and embroidery workers.

There were also a number of disputes, involving a relatively small number of employees for a few days, in saw mills, sash and door factories, printing establishments, foundries, etc. One of these involved 40 pressmen and bookbinders in an alleged lockout, the employer having made an agreement with another organization to employ only its members, dismissing those employees who would not join it. The unions to which the dismissed employees belonged did not call off the dispute until the middle of September.

A dispute involving moulders in Vancouver and New Westminster, B.C., lasted from April to August, the employees demanding an increase in wages from $5.70 per day to $7. Through the mediation of the Conciliation Officer of the Department of Labour a compromise was reached at $6 per day.

CONSTRUCTION

The most important disputes in this industry occurred at Vancouver, carpenters attempting to secure a 5 day week instead of a 5½ day week of 44 hours. Employees in certain other building trades went on strike in sympathy with the carpenters. Through the mediation of the Conciliation Officer of the Department of Labour a compromise was reached, the carpenters receiving an increase of 50 cents per day, the 44 hour week to be continued. Painters in Vancouver also went on strike for an increase in wages of $1 per day and for the employment of union members only. Through the mediation of the Conciliation Officer of the Department of Labour some of the employers granted these demands, but others refused and replaced the strikers.

TRANSPORTATION AND PUBLIC UTILITIES

The only disputes in this industry were those involving longshoremen, none of them lasting more than a few days nor involving a large number of employees.

SERVICE

The only disputes in this group involved stage hands and musicians in theatres. One of these involved stage hands in one theatre in Vancouver; another involved musicians in the same theatre who went out in sympathy with the stage hands. After some months the theatre concerned closed down. A third dispute involved musicians at Windsor and Walkerville, Ont., who demanded changes in wages and hours. Within two days the employees won their demands.

STRIKES AND LOCKOUTS IN OTHER COUNTRIES

It is of interest to compare strikes and lockouts in Canada with those in other countries and the accompanying table gives the figures available for 1925 and 1926. The authorities in the various countries do not at present follow uniform methods in compiling and publishing statistics of strikes and lockouts, so that the figures are comparable only in a general way. In some countries the number of disputes shown is the number beginning during the year, in other cases it is the number ending during the year, and in others again it is, as in Canada, the number of disputes in existence, that is, in progress, during the year at some time. As regards the numbers of employees involved, some authorities record the number directly involved only, as in Canada, while in certain other countries the number indirectly affected, that is, thrown out of employment as a result of the strike or lockout, is included. For some countries strikes and lockouts are recorded separately, but in the table herewith figures for both strikes and lockouts have been included. In some cases no figures as to time loss are available.

The population of each country as shown by the latest census is given in the table so that the relative degree of disturbance to industry in the various countries may be noted.

WAGES AND HOURS OF LABOUR

Statistics as to wages and hours of labour are secured to a considerable extent in connection with the work of the department on strikes and lockouts, industrial agreements, conciliation and mediation in industrial disputes, proceedings under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1907, fair wages schedules, and reports of changes in wages and hours. Each year representative employers in the various industries are requested to furnish figures as to the wages of the principal classes of labour in their employ, hours per day and per week, and information as to any other features of conditions of employment, such as rates for overtime, Sundays and holidays, bonus, profit sharing, old age benefit or other welfare schemes, annual vacation or sick leave with pay, agreements as to wages and working conditions, etc. Labour organizations are also requested to furnish data as to rates of wages, hours of labour, other working conditions, with copies of agreements with employers or schedules of wages and working conditions in effect.

From the information so secured tables of rates of wages and hours of labour for the principal classes of workers in a number of industries are published annually as a supplement to the Labour Gazette issued in January each year, with a table of index numbers of wage rates of certain industries back to 1901, calculated with rates for the year 1913 as 100. This series of bulletins was begun with the publication in March, 1921, of a report covering a number of occupations and industries from 1901 to 1920, and certain manufacturing industries from 1911 to 1920. Since that time the scope of the report has been extended to deal with several of the industries more adequately and to increase the number of industries covered, especially manufacturing industries; for which in the early reports in the series information was not available for comprehensive data. Statistics as to wages in coal mining, metal mining and in agriculture have been included, data for agriculture being secured by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics through crop correspondents. The tables of figures for logging and sawmilling have been greatly increased and a considerable expansion in the information as to metal manufacturing industries has been provided for in the bulletin to be issued in January, 1928, Report No. 11 in the series. It has also been arranged to publish in this bulletin more comprehensive data as to wages and hours of labour in steam railway employment.

So far as is possible, copies of agreements between employers and trade unions and other organizations or representatives of employees are secured by the department on their consummation and published in the Labour Gazette in summary form, or in full when of sufficient importance, with rates of wages, hours of labour, etc. This feature of the Gazette also includes schedules of wages and working conditions put into effect by municipalities, other public bodies, etc. The information in the Labour Gazette as to settlements of disputes also affords considerable current information as to wages, hours and other working conditions.

The information as to wages and hours of labour secured by the department is used not only for publication as above but also in connection with the settlement of disputes, the administration of the Fair Wage Policy in Dominion Government contracts, and the determination of prevailing rates of wages, hours of labour, etc., for certain classes of Dominion Government employees under the Civil Service Act, and in furnishing information as to wages rates, hours of labour, etc., in response to special requests.

The accompanying table of index numbers of rates of wages for various classes of employees to be published in January, 1928, shows levels of wages in 1927 as compared with 1926 and previous years. It will be seen that slight increases appeared in all the groups except coal mining, but in no group except printing did the index number reach the figure for 1920, a year followed by substantial decreases in each group except printing and coal mining, with many decreases also in 1922. Thereafter in most groups slight increases appeared, but in coal mining substantial reductions occurred, not only in 1922 but in 1924 and 1925.

PRICES AND COST OF LIVING

Statistics of retail prices of a number of staple foods, fuel and lighting and rentals of workingmen's houses in the industrial centres of Canada, chiefly cities with a population of 10,000 and upward, have been given in the Labour Gazette each month since January, 1910, the number of articles covered and the number of localities included being increased from time to time. The changes in the cost of these items as affecting family expenditure have been shown in the form of a table of the cost of a weekly family budget calculated from the average prices in all the localities each month, the amount of each article used for the calculation being determined according to its importance or representative character in workingmen's family expenditure. The number of items of food, fuel, etc., being relatively small and incomplete, the resulting figures have not been suitable for showing either the actual expenditure of the average family or any standard of living, but the figures calculated have been issued for the purpose of showing the changes from month to month in certain items and as a basis for determining approximately the extent of changes in the cost of living. Since 1918 data have also been secured as to prices of clothing, boots, house furnishings and miscellaneous items, and since March, 1921, from time to time, usually at the beginning of each year, the Labour Gazette has contained a table of index numbers of changes in the cost of living, constructed from the figures of the weekly family budget of food, fuel and rent above mentioned, with the addition of figures for clothing and sundries groups. These figures were issued as the result of tentative calculations pending the compilation of more complete data, and in January, 1927, the department was able to issue a new series of figures for the following groups: fuel and light, rent, clothing, and sundries, and this table has been brought down to date from month to month in the Labour Gazette. These figures have been calculated only as averages for the Dominion and it is intended to make similar calculations for the provinces and some of the cities. In the calculation of these index numbers allowance is made for the importance of each article in the average expenditure of workingmen's families.

The accompanying table gives the index numbers by groups, with a figure for all items, back to 1914, prices in 1913 being taken as 100. It will be observed that, while there was a steep decline from June, 1920, when the peak was reached, until the summer of 1922, prices have been relatively steady since the latter date. The index number during this period did not rise above 160 nor fall below 153, the changes occurring being principally seasonal, and due usually to variations in crop conditions from year to year, this being reflected in the prices of food. The fuel and light group has been affected by strikes of coal miners in 1922, especially in the latter part of the year, and a perceptible trend downward in recent years is apparently due to the increasing use of coke in households, and of fuel oil in industries and transportation, thus affecting the prices of coal. The development of electric current production, chiefly from water-power, has also affected the cost of fuel for cooking in houses as well as the cost of electric light.

Statistics of wholesale prices and of prices in other countries have been published in the Labour Gazette along with retail prices in Canada since 1910, the figures for wholesale prices since 1924 including those issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in continuation of the record and index number compiled by the Labour Department and published from 1910 to 1924. Index numbers of wholesale prices in Canada compiled and issued by other authorities have also been given in the Labour Gazette, namely, Professor Humphrey Michell, of McMaster University, and the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The United States Federal Reserve Board discontinued the index number of prices in Canada compiled and issued by it during recent years. A supplement to the Labour Gazette for January, 1927, contained a review of prices in Canada and other countries during 1926, with comparative figures for previous years.

FATAL INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS

A statement as to fatal accidents in industry is given in the Labour Gazette quarterly and a compilation for the calendar year is given early in the year following. The statistics include all accidents to workmen during the source of employment which result fatally, and also fatalities from industrial diseases listed with fatal accidents by workmen's compensation boards, etc. The records are compiled from reports from Dominion and provincial authorities, from Labour Gazette correspondents, from a number of employers of labour, and from newspapers, the various reports being verified and checked to avoid duplication. The published record has in recent years been confined to fatal accidents, but it is intended to extend the compilation and publication to include non-fatal accidents.

The total number of fatalities recorded for the year was 1,303, the fatalities being attributed to the various industries in the following proportions: transportation and public utilities, 351 or 26.9 per cent of the total; manufacturing, 184 or 14.1 per cent; construction, 159 or 12.2 per cent; mining, non-ferrous smelting and quarrying, 154 or 11.8 per cent; agriculture, 151 or 11.6 per cent; logging, 134 or 10.3 per cent; fishing and trapping, 71 or 5.4 per cent; service, 68 or 5.2 per cent; trade, 26 or 2.0 per cent; finance, 2; unclassified, 11.

The classification of fatal accidents according to causes shows that the largest number, 446, came under the category "by moving trains, vehicles, etc." This includes all accidents due to cars or engines (including mine and quarry cars), to automobiles and other power vehicles and to horse-drawn vehicles, as well as accidents caused by moving implements, (including those impelled by power and those drawn by horses, by moving water craft and by air craft). The largest number of accidents thus caused resulted from workers being struck or run over by or crushed by or between cars and engines. Of these there were 160, 102 of the victims having been engaged in the industry "steam railways".

The table of fatalities by months shows the highest point to have been in August, when there were 193, the average per month being 108.6. The low point for the year, 66, was reached in February and April. The largest number of accidents in construction occurred in August, and in the other industries for which this month is a period of exceptional seasonal activity, namely, fishing, agriculture and transportation, this was also to a great extent reflected in the record.

V. THE LABOUR GAZETTE

The monthly publication of the Labour Gazette was one of the original functions of the Department of Labour as prescribed by section 10 of the Conciliation Act of 1900 (section 12 of the Conciliation and Labour Act, Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906, chapter 96), under which the department was established. This section provides as follows:—

“With a view to the dissemination of accurate statistical and other information relating to the conditions of labour, the Minister shall establish and have charge of a Department of Labour, which shall collect, digest, and publish in suitable form statistical and other information relating to the conditions of labour, shall institute and conduct inquiries into important industrial questions upon which adequate information may not at present be available, and issue at least once in every month a publication to be known as the Labour Gazette, which shall contain information regarding conditions of the labour market and kindred subjects, and shall be distributed or procurable in accordance with terms and conditions in that behalf prescribed by the Minister.”

The first number of the Labour Gazette, issued in September, 1900, contained a statement of the policy and aims of the new publication. “The Gazette,” it is stated, “will not be concerned with mere questions of opinion, nor will it be the medium for the expression of individual views. It is an official publication, and as such will seek to record only such statements of fact, and such collections of statistics as are believed to be trustworthy. In the selection and publication of these, care will be taken to have the information as complete and impartial as possible, and so to arrange it that, while furnishing from month to month facts and figures of current interest, these may at intervals be classified and compiled in such a manner as to show, over periods of time, the trend and development of the subjects dealt with. The work thus undertaken will, it is hoped, establish a basis for the formation of sound opinions, and for the drawing of correct deductions, but these, in themselves, are tasks which lie beyond the scope and purpose of the Gazette, and are ends it will seek to serve, not to meet.”

While the main purposes of the publication still remain as they were stated in the first issue, a gradual widening is noticeable in the range of subjects treated in the Gazette during the twenty-six years of its existence. This extension of scope has resulted from the increase in the functions of the department, which now include the work of arbitration and conciliation in labour disputes, the co-ordination of the provincial employment services, the organization of technical education, the administration of Dominion Government annuities, and other duties. Moreover new fields for investigation have been opened up by the remarkable growth of labour legislation during the past twenty-five years; and more recently the work of the International Labour Organization has given a strong impetus to the study of comparative legislation.

The Labour Gazette contains the official record of all proceedings under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1907, including the full text of the reports of Boards of Conciliation and Investigation established under the provisions of the Act. Information is also given with respect to proceedings under the other statutes administered by the Department of Labour, including the Employment Offices Co-ordination Act, the Technical Education Act, the Government Annuities Act, and the Combines Investigation Act, and to proceedings under the federal Order in Council providing for the payment of fair wages to workmen employed under Dominion Government contracts.

The “statistical and other information relating to the conditions of labour” which, under the provisions of the Conciliation Act, the department is required to collect, digest and publish, includes a monthly analysis of prices, wholesale and retail, in Canada, with estimates of the average cost of living, the prices of staple articles, and index numbers of price movements over a series of years. Similar statistics compiled from records in other countries are also given for the purpose of comparison. Periodical statements and tables appear indicating the movements of employment and the extent of unemployment in Canada and in the various provinces and municipalities. This information is derived from three sources: (1) reports received from the 64 offices of the Employment Service of Canada showing the number of applications for work, the existing vacancies, and the number of workpeople placed in positions; (2) reports from trade unions showing the extent of unemployment among their members; and (3) reports from employers throughout Canada showing the number of employees on their pay-rolls. Statistical information on changes in wages and hours of labour is presented from time to time in special articles. Monthly and annual tables of industrial disputes are also given, showing the causes, extent and results of strikes and lockouts in Canada. The agreements entered into between employers and workmen are described each month in detail. Quarterly and annual statistics are given of the fatal accidents that have occurred in the various branches of industry, stress being laid on the causes of these accidents with a view to the possible elimination of some of the risks of industry; and a series of notes on industrial safety and health is also published monthly with the same object.

The labour legislation enacted by the Dominion Parliament and by the legislatures of the various provinces is outlined in the Labour Gazette on the conclusion of each session, and note is made, as far as possible, of the outstanding activities throughout Canada under existing Acts or regulations. Each issue contains further an account of important recent legal decisions affecting labour.

The conventions and other activities of labour unions are noted from month to month, with particular reference to legislative proposals put forward by labour representatives. The subject of technical education and apprentice training is also covered in a series of notes in each issue.

Prominence is given in the Labour Gazette to the important work of the League of Nations International Labour Organization, the draft conventions and recommendations put forward from time to time being printed in full, and a record kept of the progress of ratifications, both in Canada and in other countries. Reviews are also given of the increasingly valuable publications of the International Labour Office at Geneva, based on expert studies of labour conditions in various countries.

In addition to the regular periodical articles, each issue of the Labour Gazette contains special articles on subjects arising out of the general work of the department, as well as notes on current topics of interest to labour.

The Labour Gazette was published monthly in English and French during the fiscal year ended March 31, 1927, which was the twenty-sixth year of its existence, the average number distributed each month being 9,143 of the English, and 1,504 of the French editions. The average monthly paid circulation was 6,436, or 5,567 of the English edition and 869 of the French. A nominal subscription of 20 cents a year, or 3 cents per copy, is charged, the purpose of the subscription being to keep the distribution within the limits of the actual demand, rather than to pay the cost of production. The subscription list includes the names of chartered banks, employing firms, and labour unions which paid subscriptions in behalf of their individual officers or members. In addition to the paid circulation, the publication is issued gratuitously to certain public bodies and institutions, including government departments, both federal and provincial, municipalities, university and public libraries, board of trade, labour organizations, newspapers and trade journals, as well as to certain persons who from time to time supply information requested by the department. Free single copies are frequently sent to persons seeking information on subjects dealt with in a particular issue. The average monthly distribution of complimentary copies was 3,576 of the English and 635 of the French edition.

VI. LABOUR ORGANIZATION IN CANADA

The department has continued the publication of the annual reports on labour organization in Canada, that for 1926 being the sixteenth. These reports, which are prepared in the Labour Intelligence Branch, give much information as to the nature of the labour unions with which the Canadian organized workers are identified, and contain complete statistics of organized labour in the Dominion, as well as setting forth some of the more important activities of trade unionists. The report for 1926, which contained 281 pages, indicates that the trade union movement of the Dominion is made up of the following groups:—

- (1) Local branches of international craft organizations, having headquarters in the United States;
- (2) One Big Union, an international industrial union, with headquarters in Winnipeg;
- (3) Local branches of the Industrial Workers of the World, a revolutionary industrial union which seeks to abolish the wage system, with headquarters in Chicago;
- (4) Non-international craft organizations with headquarters in Canada;
- (5) Independent trade union units, and
- (6) National and Catholic Unions.

The figures presented for the international craft union group, which includes the members of 89 organizations, shows there has been an increase in local branches of 26 and a gain in members of 6,694, the total branches being 2,011 and the combined membership 179,267. The report from the One Big Union claims 61 local units with a combined Canadian membership of 18,665, gains of eight in units and 1,409 in members. The Industrial Workers of the World, though retaining its six branches, shows a loss in membership of 5,400, the number of members reported being 4,600. The non-international craft organizations, of which there are 20, had a loss in branches of 15, but an increase in members of 767, the branches now numbering 296 and the membership being 34,837. The independent units have decreased by two, now standing at 38, of which 33 reported a combined membership of 12,235, an increase of 70. The national and Catholic unions have increased by four, there now being 103, the combined membership of which was reported by the Federation of Catholic Workers of Canada to be 25,000, the same as reported for the two previous years. The computation of the above figures indicates a net gain in branches of 21 and an increase in members of 3,540, making a grand total of 2,515 branches of all classes of unions in the Dominion, with a combined reported or estimated membership of 274,604. The chart appearing herewith, which is taken from the report, shows the fluctuations in Canadian trade union membership since 1911 to 1926, the period covered by these annual reports on labour organization.

Another chart published in the report indicates that the 274,604 trade union members in the Dominion are divided by trade groups as follows:—

- Railroad employees, 79,810 members, or 29.07 per cent of the total;
- Public employees, personal service and amusement trades, 29,308 members, or 10.68 per cent;
- Building trades, 26,877 members, or 9.71 per cent;
- Mining and quarrying, 25,586 members, or 9.32 per cent;

SIXTEEN YEARS OF TRADE UNIONISM IN CANADA

Other transportation and navigation trades, 20,828 members, or 7.60 per cent;

Metal trades, 15,614 members, or 5.70 per cent;

Printing and paper making trades, 13,433 members, or 4.90 per cent;

Clothing, boots and shoes, 12,410 members, or 4.53 per cent;

All other trades, 50,738 members, or 18.49 per cent.

TRADE UNION CENTRAL ORGANIZATIONS OPERATING IN CANADA

At the close of the year 1926 there were 91 international labour organizations operating in the Dominion, the same number as recorded in 1925. There were also 20 other central labour organizations in Canada (which are termed non-international), an increase of two.

The following tables taken from the report show: (1) international organizations having members in Canada, (2) number of branches in Canada and elsewhere, (3) reported or estimated membership in Canada and elsewhere, (4) other trade union central organizations operating in Canada:—

ORGANIZED LABOUR IN CANADIAN CITIES

The figures given in the report show that there are 30 cities in Canada in which not less than 20 local branch unions of all classes are operating, and between them they represent about 55 per cent of the local branch unions in the Dominion and contain approximately 46 per cent of the entire Canadian trade union membership of 274,604. The following table gives (1) the names of the cities with not less than 20 local branch unions, (2) number of branches in locality, (3) number of branches which reported their membership, and (4) the membership reported:—

TRADES AND LABOUR CONGRESS OF CANADA

The Trades and Labour Congress of Canada, which was originally established in 1873, is the most representative labour body in the Dominion, and is designated as the legislative mouthpiece of the Canadian organized workers. The congress has in affiliation two national organizing bodies, two provincial federations of labour, 41 trades and labour councils, 41 directly chartered unions, as well as the Canadian membership of 57 international organizations, with 1,297 local branches, the combined directly chartered and affiliated membership being 103,037.

The report makes extended reference to the various classes of delegate bodies which have been established as a part of the plan of labour organization in North America, and which are designed to co-ordinate the activities of unions of closely allied or particular trades in dealing with matters of like concern to all members of the bodies represented.

LABOUR ORGANIZATION ABROAD

Besides the information given in the report in regard to the membership of labour organizations in Canada and the United States, figures are published showing the numerical strength of organized workers in 44 other countries, the total for the 46 countries being 38,388,956. Of this number about 18,000,000 (though not in direct affiliation) are sympathetic towards the principles of the International Federation of Trade Unions, with which organization the Trades and Labour Congress, with its 103,037 members, is affiliated. The following are the latest revised figures for the various countries as taken from the report:—

REVOLUTIONARY LABOUR ORGANIZATIONS

Revolutionary labour organizations are dealt with in a chapter of the report which states that the Third (Communist) International of Moscow is responsible for the establishment of the Red International of Labour Unions, a body designed to propagate the communist doctrine in the trade unions. The Red International declares itself to be "an international which, together with the Communist International, will organize the working class for the overthrow of capitalism, the destruction of the bourgeois state and the setting up of the dictatorship of the proletariat; an international which will seize all the means of production and establish the communist commonwealth." The affiliate in Canada of the Communist International is the Communist Party of Canada (originally the Workers' Party), with headquarters in Toronto, and which recognizes the Moscow body as the only real centre of world revolutionary activities. As an aid to the propagation of the communist doctrine among the Canadian youth there is the Young Communists' League, a body which was formed under the auspices of the Communist Party, and which is affiliated with the Young Communist International of Moscow. The official representative in America of the Red International of Labour Unions is the Trade Union Educational League. One of the objects of the league is the changing of the old-established plan of craft labour organization to what is known as industrial unionism, similar to the system in operation in Russia—one union for each industry. Adherents of the league, who are also members of trade unions, it is alleged, are endeavouring by a system called "boring from within", to secure support for the proposed plan of labour reorganization, following the accomplishment of which the organized workers on this continent are to be affiliated with the Red International. The report points out how the parent communist body and the communist leaders emphasize the importance of work in the trade unions, which are declared to be the natural link between the Communist Party and the working class, and that it is only through this medium that the party can permeate the labour movement. The tactics of the communists, the report states, have encountered strong opposition from the old-established trade unions, some of which, with a view to combating the communists' propaganda, have expelled its advocates or outlawed "Red" organizations. In this respect Mr. Wm. Green, president of the American Federation of Labour, advises labour unions that "there is only one way to handle a communist found in a union; make public his affiliation and expel him." Among the organizations to recently deal with the matter of communists is the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, which body warned all of its members, on pain of forfeiture of membership, to refrain from joining or giving assistance to any communist body, while the attitude of the United Mine Workers of America was indicated in official instructions declaring communist organizations dual to the U.M.W., which makes any member joining such bodies liable to expulsion from the miners' union. Among other interesting items regarding the activities of the communists both at home and abroad is the statement that the British Labour Party has once more refused to accept the affiliation of the British Communist Party, the proposal being decisively defeated.

INDUSTRIAL WORKERS OF THE WORLD

The reference in the report to the origin and development of the Industrial Workers of the World, commonly known as the I.W.W., shows that, though the organization was apparently firmly established in 1905 with a declared membership of 400,000, it has experienced such divisions within its ranks, which on three occasions have disrupted its solidarity, that at the close of 1926 the total membership had dropped to 34,450. The I.W.W. was originally intended to function as a political as well as an industrial organization, but the political plank was discarded in 1908. The organization claims to be the advocate of revolutionary industrial unionism, its chief objective being the abolition of the wage system. Repeatedly its leaders have run counter to the laws of the United States, and the report indicates the record of indictments and convictions registered against many of its adherents, chief of the indictments being that entered in Chicago in 1917, when 94 members of the organization were convicted for interfering with the execution of certain wartime measures of the United States Government. Although professing revolutionary principles, the I.W.W. has not shown any sympathy towards communism, always refusing to affiliate with the Red International of Labour Unions, the trade union adjunct of the Communist International of Moscow. There are now six branches of the I.W.W. in Canada, the same number as in 1925, with a reported membership of 4,600—a decrease of 5,400 as compared with the report for last year.

INJUNCTIONS IN INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES

Reference is made to the persistent opposition of the organized labour movement to the issuance of injunctions in industrial disputes, in which it is stated that the first application for such an injunction came before a Canadian court in 1885 and that the first writ of this nature in the United States was granted in 1888. An outline is given of the origin and history of injunction procedure as it developed in the legal systems of Great Britain and Canada, culminating in the former country with the enactment of the Trade Disputes Bill in 1906, which practically precluded the further issuance of injunctions in labour disputes in Great Britain. The report also traces the development of the steady opposition of the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada to the employment of the injunctive powers of the courts as applied to strikes and lockouts, nearly every convention of the organization since 1900, with the exception of those held in the war years, supporting the executive in its emphatic opposition to the injunction process in labour disputes. The Trades and Labour

Congress has concentrated chiefly on pressing for the reinsertion in the Criminal Code of those sections (which had been abolished in 1892 when the criminal law was codified) which permitted the right of peaceful picketing. In 1921 when the executive of the Trades Congress presented its annual legislative program, the position of the Federal Government in regard to the above mentioned sections was defined in a memorandum from the Department of Justice, which declared, in part, "that picketing, however conducted, when it consists of watching or besetting, is always and of necessity in the nature of an annoyance to the person picketed. As such, it must savour of compulsion, and it cannot be doubted that it is because it is found to compel that trade unions systematically resort to it." Reaffirming its demands, the convention replied in part that "trade unions do not ask to be placed above the law," and that "the right to seek and impart information during the progress of a strike should not be so considered, unless the right to organize, bargain collectively and strike is to be also declared illegal." At its 1926 convention the Trades Congress again dealt at length with this question of picketing and injunction, the executive council and the provincial executives being urged to press for demands for remedial action. The American Federation of Labour has similarly conducted an insistent and long campaign against the issuance of injunctions in industrial disputes, and the report details the successive steps taken by various conventions of the A.F. of L., especially since 1896, to secure curtailment of the powers of the courts regarding injunctions.

LABOUR BANKS

The report outlines the progress which has taken place in the establishment of labour banks. The first institution of the kind in North America commenced operations on May 15, 1920, as a result of the purchase by the International Association of Machinists of the Mount Vernon Savings Bank at Washington, D.C. In November of the same year, at Cleveland, the second, and perhaps the most powerful of the labour banks, opened up under the name of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers' Co-operative National Bank. From these two conspicuous successes, the report shows how rapid has been the development of labour banking until at the close of 1926 there were 38 labour banks in operation, the total deposits of which were $108,584,597, while their combined resources amounted to $127,849,318; capitalization totalled $10,366,600, and surplus and profits aggregated $3,799,422. Of the 38 labour banks, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has established 15, the combined resources of which exceed $54,500,000. In addition to these banking institutions, organized labour is represented in the investment field with 10 investment companies, 8 of which are owned by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which body, with its 15 banks and 8 investment companies, together with its interests in trust companies, is estimated to have resources approximating $150,000,000.

LABOUR IN POLITICS

A chapter of the report is devoted to indicating the developments of labour political parties in Canada, and in which is outlined the proceedings of the 1926 conventions of these bodies. In the Federal election of September 14, 1926, there were 18 candidates nominated solely under the auspices of labour political parties, and, of these three were elected, all the others, with one exception, losing their deposits. In addition there was one Communist nominee and three Independent Labour candidates, all of whom also lost their deposits. Only three Labour candidates were entered in the Ontario provincial election, one being elected. In the Alberta provincial election, the Alberta section of the Canadian Labour Party officially nominated twelve candidates, five of whom were elected. An Independent Labour candidate in Calgary, who opposed the choice of the Labour Party, was also elected. In 26 localities 100 candidates were nominated or endorsed for municipal office by labour political parties or organized labour bodies. Of these, 44 were elected to the following positions: Mayor, 1; aldermen and councillors, 28; school trustees, 13; police commissioners, 2.

TRADE UNION BENEFITS

For the calendar year 1926, the report points out, seven of the non-international organizations made payments for benefits, viz: (1) Amalgamated Carpenters of Canada, $805 for death benefits, $298 for sick benefits, and $247 for tool benefits, making a total of $1,350; (2) Canadian Carpet Weavers' Beneficial Association, $150 for death and $650 for other benefits, a total of $800; (3) Canadian Electrical Trades Union, $4,824.25 for death benefits and $936 for other benefits; (4) Dominion Railway Mail Clerks' Federation, $18,036 for death benefits; (5) Engineers' Mutual Benefit Fund, $159.20 for relief for children of destitute engineers; (6) Federated Association of Letter Carriers, $5,000 for death benefits; (7) Mine Workers' Union of Canada, $1,002.45 for strike and $864.45 for other benefits, making a grand total of $32,972.35 expended by the non-international bodies, an increase of $9,788.35 as compared with the disbursements in 1925.

Of the 91 international organizations with branches in Canada, 60 reported disbursements for benefits, the combined expenditure being $22,565,857, an increase of $5,168,586 as compared with the previous year. The disbursements for each class of benefit were as follows:—

Death benefits	$12,684,239
Unemployed and travelling benefits	340,421
Strike benefits	2,218,622
Sick and accident benefits	3,828,357
Old age pensions and other benefits	3,494,218

BENEFITS PAID BY LOCAL BRANCHES

In addition to the amounts expended for benefits by the central organizations a statement is also included in the report showing the amounts disbursed in benefits by local branch unions to their own members. The total of these payments were $316,922, an increase of $33,780 over the year 1925, the disbursements for 1926 for each class of benefit being:—

Death benefits	$105,211

NON-TRADE UNION ORGANIZATIONS

Space is given in the report to a class of associations which are in no way connected with the organized labour movement, but which in the main are composed of wage-earners, and are considered to be of sufficient importance to justify their names being included in a report designed to show the standing of bodies of wage-earners in the Dominion. There are 80 associations included in this non-trade union group, 19 of which are composed of school teachers, 26 of Government employees, 4 of municipal employees, six of commercial travellers, and the remaining 25 are of a miscellaneous character, the whole comprising a reported membership of 95,697, an increase of 5,209 over the number recorded in 1925.

VII. ORGANIZATION IN INDUSTRY, COMMERCE, AND THE PROFESSIONS IN CANADA

In addition to the report discussed in chapter VI, the work of the Labour Intelligence Branch includes the preparation of the Report on Organization in Industry, Commerce and the Professions in Canada. This report was originated in 1921 with a view to meeting the demand for information showing the extent to which organization prevails in the Dominion among persons engaged in industrial, commercial and professional pursuits. The marked approval given the first report prompted the issuance of a second volume on the same subject, and since 1923 the report has appeared annually, that for 1926 being counted as the fifth. The names of the associations included in the volumes, and which are divided into the groups below enumerated, indicate that there are in Canada organizations covering almost every phase of industrial, commercial and professional activity:—

- | | |
|--|--|
| I. Manufacturing. | X. Agriculture. |
| II. Building and Construction. | XI. Dairying. |
| III. Mining. | XII. Horse, Live Stock, Sheep Breeders, etc. |
| IV. Transportation and Communication. | XIII. Co-operative Societies. |
| V. Printing and Publishing. | XIV. Wholesale Merchants. |
| VI. Laundering, Cleaning, Repairing, etc. | XV. Retail Merchants. |
| VII. Personal Services and Amusement. | XVI. Real Estate Dealers. |
| VIII. General Manufacturers and Employers. | XVII. Professional. |
| IX. Financial. | XVIII. Technical and Scientific. |
| | XIX. Insurance. |
| | XX. Funeral Service. |

It is pointed out in the report that the membership included in the first eight of the above divisions, which consists of 353 associations, with a combined membership of 24,197, is composed of employers or firms who are for the most part operating industries in which the employment of help is essential. With some of the corresponding organizations of workpeople these employers have agreements covering the conditions of employment in their respective establishments. In the remaining groups the employment of labour is in some cases only incidental, and, with the exception of the personal service and amusement and the retail merchants groups, there is no corresponding body of organized employees. Although the majority of the associations whose names are recorded in the report are wholly Canadian, a number are identified with organizations whose headquarters are in the United States. The report states that there are in the Dominion 1,318 main and 623 branch associations, making in all 1,941, an increase of 616 in the number recorded in 1925. The bulk of this increase is accounted for in the co-operative societies group, which now embraces 802 associations, 554 more than appeared in the report for the previous year. The total membership of all classes of associations is 1,238,812, an increase of 205,681.

The following table shows the number of associations in each group, together with the number of branch associations, where such are in existence, as well as the reported membership.

VIII. LABOUR LEGISLATION IN CANADA

The annual report on Labour Legislation in Canada for 1926 is the twelfth report on this subject to be issued by the department and the sixth supplement to the volume showing labour legislation in Canada as existing on December 31, 1920. The first report of the series was issued in 1915 and contained the text of the labour laws which had been enacted by the Parliament of Canada and by the provincial legislatures up to December 31, 1915. This volume was followed by annual supplements in the years 1916-19. The report for 1920 was again a consolidation covering legislation to the end of that year, and supplements thereto have been issued annually. The introduction to each report contains a summary of the principal laws which have been passed during the year. Since 1922 the reports have been published in French as well as in English. The English edition of each supplement contains a cumulative index covering the contents of the basic volume and supplements.

The report for 1926, which contains 88 pages, shows that a considerable amount of legislation of interest to labour was enacted during the year and covered a wide range of subjects. Owing to the fact that the 1926 session of the British Columbia Legislature continued into 1927, the laws passed thereat were not included.

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES

In four provinces, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Manitoba, and Saskatchewan, laws were passed similar to that enacted in British Columbia in 1925, taking advantage of the 1925 amendment to the Dominion Industrial Disputes Investigation Act and making that Act applicable to disputes which are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the province. The Alberta Legislature enacted a new law, the Labour Disputes Act, which is based on the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act. It does not, however, contain any provisions similar to those in the federal statute which prohibit a strike or lockout prior to a reference to a Board of Conciliation and Investigation. The Act applies to all industries in the province and provides for a provincial Board of Conciliation. Owing to the fact that these five laws passed their respective legislatures during the fiscal year 1925-26, they were fully dealt with in the report of this department covering that period. For that reason they are not given a detailed description here.

An amendment to the School Act of Alberta repealed a section which authorized the Minister of Education to appoint a Board of Conciliation to inquire into a dispute relating to the proper carrying out of a contract between a school board and its teachers, and replaced it with a section providing for the establishment of a Board of Reference to serve as a Board of Conciliation in any dispute between a school board and its teachers. The Board of Reference consists of three members appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. The school trustees and the teachers are represented by one member each, and the third member, who must be independent of both parties, is chairman of the board. Disputes may be referred to the board on application by either party to the Minister of Education. On the request of both parties, the board may act as a Board of Arbitration with power to enforce the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents. The award in such cases is binding upon both parties.

LABOUR DEPARTMENT AND LABOUR STATISTICS

New Brunswick was added to the number of provinces which have committed the interests of labour to the charge of a minister, the Department of Health being enlarged to include Labour.

The Nova Scotia Statistics Act makes provision for the collection of statistics relating to agriculture, fishing, lumbering, milling, mining, quarrying, manufacturing and other interests, including the number of persons employed and the amount of wages paid.

WAGES AND HOURS OF LABOUR

The Factories Act of the province of Alberta was revised and amended and now contains a clause providing that, wherever a minimum wage has been fixed for female workers in any class of employment, no male worker may be employed in such class at a lower wage.

In Saskatchewan and Quebec the minimum wage laws for women were amended. The amendment to the Saskatchewan Act provides that a magistrate convicting an employer of paying wages at a lower rate than that fixed by the Minimum Wage Board shall order him to pay to the employee the difference between the amount actually paid her and that to which she is entitled. Formerly it was necessary for the employee to bring a civil action to recover the amount due her.

The amendment to the Quebec Minimum Wage Act increases the number of commissioners from three to four.

In Saskatchewan an Order in Council dated January 18, 1926, provided for the more effective carrying out of the Fair Wage Resolution passed by the legislature on January 7, 1913.

Other enactments touching the subject of wages included amendments to the mechanics' lien laws of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, to the Attachment of Debts Act of Manitoba and to the Manitoba Companies Act.

The only measure dealing with hours of labour is contained in the consolidated and amended Factories Act of the province of Alberta. The provisions relating to hours of employment and shifts were omitted and a new section inserted which provides for a nine-hour day and a fifty-four hour week in all establishments covered by the Act, which include, as formerly, all factories in the province and shops, bake-shops, offices and office buildings in cities and towns having a population exceeding 5,000. The provision regarding hours of labour does not, however, apply to repair shops, creameries, cheese factories, grain elevators or saw-mills unless they are situated in a city or town having a population of over 5,000. Employment for a longer period is also permitted for reasons of trade, occupation, accident or other necessity. It is further provided that a commission of three persons be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to consider the questions involved in the establishment of a forty-eight hour week, the commission to report at the next session of the legislature.

EMPLOYMENT OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN, MOTHERS' PENSIONS, ETC.

In addition to the amendments to minimum wage laws for women in the provinces of Quebec and Saskatchewan which were described above under the heading "Wages, and Hours of Labour," the report notes a number of measures relating to women. Several enactments affecting children are also recorded.

The Female Employment Act of Saskatchewan passed by the legislature at the session of 1918-19 was replaced by a new law bearing the same title and applying not only to restaurants and laundries, but also to public hotels, boarding, lodging and rooming houses, and cafes. No person may employ a woman or girl in any capacity requiring her to lodge, reside or work in such an establishment without first obtaining a special license from the municipality in which the establishment is situated. The license, for which the fee may not exceed one dollar, must be renewed annually. The report recalls the fact that the first legislation of this character in the province of Saskatchewan was enacted in 1912 and forbade the employment of white women or girls in businesses owned or managed by a Japanese, Chinaman, or other Oriental. The constitutionality of this Act was challenged in the courts and was upheld by the Supreme Court of Saskatchewan in a judgment rendered in the case of Rex vs. Quong Wing.

The revised and amended Factories Act of Alberta contains a new clause providing that, where the whole or a part of the work in which female employees are engaged can be efficiently performed while they are seated, the employer must provide chairs or seats. The Act omits the clause forbidding night employment of women, but the Minimum Wage Act of this province gives the Minimum Wage Board authority to determine periods of employment and shifts, such determination to supersede any provision of the Factories Act on this subject.

That section of the Child Welfare Act of Manitoba which makes it an offence to cause a child under 16 years of age to be in any circus, place of amusement or other public place for the purpose of performing for profit or offering anything for sale, was amended to provide that an offence is committed whether the profit accrues to the person committing it or to the child.

In Nova Scotia an Act respecting immigrant children was passed and minor amendments were made to the Children's Protection Act and the School Attendance Act.

The Alberta Mothers' Allowance Act was amended to permit the payment of an allowance to a mother whose husband is unable to support his family on account of total disability which may reasonably be expected to continue for at least one year. This amendment comes into force on proclamation.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

The Quebec Legislature enacted a new Workmen's Compensation law which was to have become effective on April 1, 1927, but which, by an amendment passed at the 1927 session, will not come into force before April 1, 1928. The new Act applies to the same classes of employees as the former one and, in addition, to persons employed in lumbering operations, on public roads, on docks, and in places where explosives are used or kept; to employees of the Provincial Government; and to persons in charge of elevators or other machinery in commercial establishments. The Act specifically excludes domestic servants and persons employed in agriculture and on sailing vessels. Employers to whom the law does not apply may place themselves under its provisions by written agreement with workmen individually. Workmen engaged in the province to work outside are not entitled to compensation if they can claim it under the law of the place where the accident occurred. The amount of compensation payable in case of death is an allowance to the surviving consort of 20 per cent of the wages of the deceased workman, and to each child under the age of 16 years to the number of four 10 per cent of wages. Orphan children would receive 20 per cent of wages each with a maximum total payment of 60 per cent. Funeral expenses up to \$100 are allowed. Permanent total disability entitles the worker to 66 $\frac{2}{3}$ per cent of wages, and partial disability to 50 per cent of the sum by which his earnings are reduced. The amount of wages upon which the rent is calculated may not be less than \$600, nor more than \$2,000 per annum. The workman is entitled for a period of six months to all medical, surgical, pharmaceutical and hospital charges and to the supplying and normal renewing of the necessary prosthetic and orthopedic appliances. He is also entitled to transportation to the nearest hospital. The law requires that, with the exception of the Crown, public corporations and railways under the control of the Parliament of Canada, all employers must insure their workmen against accidents in an approved insurance company or make a satisfactory deposit with the Minister of Public Works and Labour. Deductions from wages for purposes of insurance are forbidden. The Act simplifies procedure for the recovery of compensation and provides that advocates representing the workman are entitled to taxable costs only and may not receive any retainer, fee or commission whatever. Employers must send written reports of accidents within thirty days to the Minister of Public Works and Labour.

The Railway Employees' Compensation Act passed by the Legislature of Prince Edward Island applies, as its name indicates, to railway employees only. Subject to the consent of the Federal Government, an accident fund is to be created and maintained by moneys provided from the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada under the provisions of the workmen's compensation law passed by the Parliament of Canada in 1918. A board of one or more members is to be appointed to administer the Act. The benefits payable in case of death are an allowance to the widow or invalid widower of $30 per month, with an additional $7.50 for each child under the age of 16 years if a boy and 18 years if a girl. Funeral expenses of $100 are also payable. Compensation for total disability is provided, after a waiting period of seven days, at the rate of 55 per cent of the average earnings of the workman, and for partial disability at the rate of 55 per cent of the diminution of average earnings. Necessary medical, surgical, hospital and nursing aid is also provided.

An amendment to the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Act adds silicosis to the list of industrial diseases for which compensation is payable. In June, 1926, pneumoconiosis was made compensable by an amendment to regulation 94 of the Workmen's Compensation Board, and in September regulation 96 added compressed air illness.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

A number of enactments relating to technical education are noted in the report, including a new law in Quebec and amendments to existing laws in three other provinces.

The Quebec Technical or Professional Schools Act creates a Corporation of Technical or Professional Schools to administer technical education in the province. This body will consist of the Provincial Secretary, the Director General of Technical Education, the Principal of the Montreal School of Higher Commercial Studies, a representative of the School of Fine Arts of Quebec and Montreal, a representative of industry, and the Mayors of Quebec, Montreal and Hull. The members are appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council for a term of five years and receive no remuneration, but are entitled to travelling expenses. The corporation will have complete financial control of the School for Higher Commercial Studies of Montreal, the technical schools of Montreal, Quebec, and Hull, and the Schools of Fine Arts of Quebec and Montreal, and will receive annual grants from Montreal, Quebec, and Hull, for their technical schools. It is empowered to pass by-laws for the administration of the schools, these by-laws to have the force of law. The Act further provides for the organization of the Quebec, Montreal and Hull technical schools, each of which, in addition to the principal and necessary staff, will have an advisory body called the Council of Improvement, consisting of seven members appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council for a term of three years, serving without remuneration. Another section of the Act deals with the organization of the School of Higher Commercial Studies, which will also have a Council of Improvement.

The Vocational Education Act of New Brunswick was amended by substituting, for the provision which required farming, labour, manufacturing and commerce to have one member each on the Vocational Board, one which provides that consideration shall be given to these four interests and also to other industries and vocations in the selection of members of the board.

An amendment to the Ontario Vocational Education Act provides that, where a board of separate school trustees does not appoint a member to represent it on an advisory committee, the Board of Education may appoint one of its members to fill the vacancy.

The Saskatchewan Vocational Education Act was amended to require that applicants for admission to a day school in the commercial course shall hold Grade VIII diplomas or equivalent standing.

LABOUR ORGANIZATION

An amendment to the Quebec Professional Syndicates Act provides that syndicates forming part of a union or federation shall not be liable for the debts of such union or federation, and also that members of a syndicate who resign shall not be held personally liable for the debts of the syndicate.

PENSIONS

The Alberta Superannuation Act was amended to provide for the pensioning of members of the Workmen's Compensation Board and persons permanently employed by it, unless such persons are excluded by Order in Council. In this province also the Telephone and Telegraph Act was amended to authorize the Minister of Railways and Telephones to provide for a pension scheme for employees of the telephone system. The scheme must be approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council and administered by a board of three members. These members are to be elected by a popular ballot of all participating employees, one member being of sub-official or higher rank, one of a lower rank than sub-official, and the third member, who will be chairman of the board, to be chosen by the general manager. The pension fund will be made up of contributions from employees and from the revenues of the telephone system.

In the revision and amendment of the Saskatchewan City Act the provisions relating to superannuation and benefit funds were made applicable to the police.

The scope of the New Brunswick law providing for teachers' pensions was widened by an amendment passed during the year.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF

The report contains a note on the Order in Council (P.C. 315) dated March 2, 1926, setting forth the policy of the Government of Canada in regard to unemployment relief. The text of this Order in Council was given in the annual report of this department for 1925-26 at page 7.

IX. THE LIBRARY OF THE DEPARTMENT

The library of the Department of Labour was organized in 1900 when the department was created, and has steadily increased its collection of documents since that time. Through the exchange of publications with departments of other Governments carrying on work along similar lines, the department is kept in touch with labour matters in almost all countries of the world.

In addition to the official publications thus received, there is a valuable collection of publications of labour organizations and periodicals and newspapers published in the interests of organized labour. Included in this section are copies of the reports of the annual meetings of Canadian trade unions, the so-called "international unions," the American Federation of Labour, the Trades Union Congress of Great Britain and federated labour bodies in other countries. The department has made a special effort in recent years to obtain copies of early labour papers published in Canada and has met with some success. Among these recent additions is a file of The Trades Journal for 1880-90, published in the interests of the Provincial Workmen's Association of Nova Scotia, and copies of the minutes of proceedings of that organization for the years 1879-1917; The Labour Union, published in Hamilton in 1883, and The Palladium of Labour, published in the same city in 1883-6; The Labour Advocate, published in Toronto, 1890-1, and the Minutes of the Toronto Trades Assembly, 1871-8. Unfortunately, many of those into whose hands such documents fall are unaware of their value and they, accordingly, discard them.

A very complete collection of volumes dealing with labour problems, including labour legislation, is supplemented by books for reference and volumes on general economic subjects, history and law. The library receives annually about 600 periodicals, many of which are kept in bound form for permanent reference. A large number of these are British and foreign Government publications and are received free of charge in exchange for The Labour Gazette.

The primary purpose of the library is to serve as an information centre for the officers of the department and the library staff assumes the task of putting before the officers concerned the current information of interest to them. In addition, therefore, to sending daily to the various branches of the department the Government reports, pamphlets and periodicals received, according to their subject matter, a newspaper service is also maintained, about 160 newspapers being clipped, including Canadian papers, The London Times and Manchester Guardian, three New York dailies and one from Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. The compilation of information on special subjects has been greatly facilitated in recent years by the detailed indexing of the entire library collection with the exception of the publications of labour organizations. The library catalogue, containing some 90,000 typed cards, permits ready reference on a large variety of subjects to all sections of the library, including periodicals, Government reports, pamphlets and press clippings.

Subject to the requirements of the departmental officers, the material in the library is at the disposal of the general public. Volumes are loaned to students and others in different parts of the country, and bibliographies are prepared and special information compiled when required.

X. COMBINES INVESTIGATION ACT, 1923

The fourth annual report of proceedings under the Combines Investigation Act, 1923, covers the fiscal year ended March 31, 1927.

The Combines Investigation Act (chapter 9, 13-14 George V) was passed on June 23, 1923, and by Order in Council of August 14, 1923, the Minister of Labour was charged with the administration of the statute.

Section 2 of the Act defines a "combine" as follows:—

The expression "combine" in this Act shall be deemed to have reference to such combines immediately hereinafter defined as have operated or are likely to operate to the detriment of or against the interest of the public, whether consumers, producers or others; and limited as aforesaid, the expression as used in this Act shall be deemed to include

- (1) mergers, trusts and monopolies so called; and
- (2) the relation resulting from the purchase, lease or other acquisition by any person of any control over or interest in the whole or part of the business of any other person; and
- (3) any actual or tacit contract, agreement, arrangement or combination which has or is designed to have the effect of
 - (i) limiting facilities for transporting, producing, manufacturing, supplying, storing or dealing; or
 - (ii) preventing, limiting or lessening manufacture or production; or
 - (iii) fixing a common price or a resale price, or a common rental, or a common cost of storage or transportation; or
 - (iv) enhancing the price, rental or cost of article, rental storage or transportation; or
 - (v) preventing or lessening competition in, or substantially controlling within any particular area or district or generally, production, manufacture, purchase, barter, sale, storage, transportation, insurance or supply; or
 - (vi) otherwise restraining or injuring trade or commerce.

Section 26 provides that:—

(a) Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to a penalty not exceeding ten thousand dollars or to two years' imprisonment, or if a corporation to a penalty not exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars, who is a party or privy to or knowingly assists in the formation or operation of a combine as defined in this Act.

(b) No prosecution for any offence under this section shall be commenced, otherwise than at the instance of the Solicitor General of Canada or of the Attorney General of a province.

During the year Mr. Lewis Duncan completed the inquiry he was commissioned to make into an alleged combine in the distribution of fruit and vegetables produced in Ontario; steps were taken to prevent the recurrence of conditions such as were disclosed in the inquiry into the western fruit combine; an interim report was made by the registrar on the operations of the Proprietary Articles Trade Association, an organization of manufacturers and wholesale and retail druggists; and a more extensive investigation into the association was commenced under Commissioner L. V. O'Connor. In addition, other inquiries were conducted by the registrar following complaints affecting many different branches of industry and trade.

ALLEGED COMBINE IN THE DISTRIBUTION OF ONTARIO FRUIT AND VEGETABLES

Following the publication in February, 1925, of the report of the commissioner appointed to inquire into a combine alleged to exist in the distribution of fruit and vegetables in the western provinces, an application was received by the registrar for an investigation into the marketing of the Ontario fruit and vegetable crop, the applicants being of the opinion that a combine within the meaning of the statute existed. Owing to his experience in the inquiry into the marketing of fruit and vegetables in Western Canada, Mr. Lewis Duncan was commissioned to conduct the investigation. The report of the commissioner was submitted to the minister on July 31, 1926, and published immediately.

No evidence was found of any combine in Canada prejudicial to the interests of the public in the distribution of Ontario fruit and vegetables, with the exception of the operations of certain American brokerage firms owned by jobbing houses, which were regarded by the commissioner as detrimental to the interests of the grower, as similar combinations in Western Canada were found to injure the British Columbia fruit grower. In the marketing of that portion of the Ontario crop which is exported to the United States, this jobber-broker combine intervenes, but in the domestic trade and trade with Great Britain the commissioner found no evidence of a combine as defined by the Act.

The commissioner referred to the "widespread belief among the growers, which has also been found to be held by individuals among the consuming public, that there is an unwarranted disparity between the prices received by the growers for their fruits and vegetables and those paid by the consuming public, and that this disparity is due to some improper combination or practice among the commission men, wholesalers or retailers, who, it is supposed, have unfairly profited by those practices." "In the course of the inquiry, many matters were brought to the attention of your commissioner of great importance in the marketing of the crop. Whenever an allegation was made or evidence found of practices which might be injurious to producer or consumer, these were investigated. If the inquiry disclosed no evidence that such practices were the result of any combine within the broad definition given to that word in section 2 of the Combines Investigation Act, the matter was not pursued further, but your commissioner considers that the proper course is not to ignore such matters in his report, but to set out in reasonable detail the facts which have come to his attention, in order that the situation may be clarified and the grounds for the conclusions which are arrived at may be apparent." The inquiry covered Toronto, Hamilton, London, Montreal, Kingston, Peterborough, Brantford, Grimsby, Niagara, Beamsville, St. Catharines, Simcoe, Stratford, North Bay, Sault Ste. Marie, and other points.

Emphasis was laid on the value of adequate facilities for public marketing. "Where the municipal authorities have maintained adequate public markets, little complaint is found among producers or consumers as to prices or distribution. In addition to regulating prices and preventing any undue combination, a market prevents the growth of an excessive number of middlemen." "Speaking generally, the difference between the price paid by the consumer and the moneys received by the producer progressively increases as facilities for public marketing decrease. In places where adequate facilities for public marketing exist, prices on the farmers' market regulate prices in the retail stores; but where inadequate facilities for public marketing exist, prices on the market follow prices in the retail stores." Provision for public marketing in twelve Ontario cities varied from 33,000 square feet of space in Toronto available one day a week for a population of 522,000, to 300,000 square feet of space in Chatham open six days a week for a population of 13,000. For the week ending July 17, 1926, the number of inhabitants for every vendor on the public market varied as follows: Belleville 22, Kitchener 28, London 30, Chatham 44, St. Catharines 53, Brantford 58, Peterborough 69, Kingston 75, Ottawa 77, St. Thomas 106, Hamilton 156, Toronto 2,300.

"Surveys made in Toronto indicate that out of $100 paid by the consumer for domestic fruits and vegetables, the retailer gets approximately $36 and the producer $45, $9 goes to the commission dealer and $10 to the express or other transportation company." "The main reason for the abnormal 'spread' in Toronto and the correspondingly high prices paid by consumers is the absence of adequate facilities for public marketing in Toronto," which was the principal absorbing centre for fruits and vegetables produced in Ontario. It appeared that, of the five and one-half acres set apart for a market place for the town of York in 1803 and vested in the city of Toronto for the public use in 1834, only 33,000 square feet were available as a public market. Outside the city limits two markets had been established—a wholesale market on the Humber and a retail market north of the city.

The report stated that the "denial of adequate market facilities in Toronto has resulted in giving the commission houses occupying space on the Toronto Fruit Market a quasi-monopolistic control of the distribution of the domestic fruits and vegetables distributed in and through Toronto otherwise than by farmers or truckers direct to retailers; and that such control has been accompanied by irregular practices in making returns to the growers, the extent of which it is impossible to estimate in view of the fact that in many cases the existing records do not permit a complete accounting to be made; and that the records suggest that the irregularities are more pronounced in the case of some firms than others." The commissioner set out in his report the facts regarding such practices as might be injurious to the producer or consumer in so far as they had come to his attention.

The Toronto Fruit Market, which was a wholesale market, occupied an important place in the distribution of Ontario produce. The building, which was owned by the Canadian National Railways and leased by the Toronto Fruit Auction Company, "is the narrow funnel through which pass most of the domestic fruits and vegetables distributed to Toronto in a wholesale way." "This lease to all intents and purposes gave the Toronto Fruit Auction Company a monopoly of the only convenient public terminal facilities for the wholesale handling of fruits and vegetables in Toronto." Space in the building was sub-leased to dealers and "dealers who are outside this building complain that space on the market is of great value; that dealers who cannot obtain accommodation there are under serious handicaps; and that if any of the occupants of the building go out of business their space is usually divided between other occupants instead of being open for competitive bidding as (they allege) should be the case in public terminal facilities."

The commissioner found:—

"That, in the flush season of the Ontario crop, commission dealers on the Toronto Fruit Market are unable to dispose of all the fruit and vegetables consigned to them; that large quantities of fruits and vegetables spoil and are destroyed; and that the provision of facilities for disposing of such surpluses direct to the consumer on the public market would result in a saving both to the grower and to the consumer.

"That the building known as the Toronto Fruit Market contains the only convenient terminal facilities for handling wholesale quantities of fruit and vegetables in Toronto; that this building is inadequate and unfitted properly to perform its ostensible function in the distribution of the Ontario crop; and that adequate terminal and wholesale facilities at Toronto are a necessity.

"That in 1919 all the accommodation in the Toronto Fruit Market was leased to one company (which sublets to certain dealers), but that it would seem advisable that accommodation in public terminals should either be open to all dealers or else be leased on some competitive basis to the different dealers who desire to obtain space.

"That there is a tacit agreement among commission houses occupying space in the Toronto Fruit Market to charge 12½ per cent commission plus certain sums for cartage; that the cartage charge amounts to an extra commission of over 1 per cent on commission sales; that this charge is made whether the goods are delivered or not; but that the sums collected from the growers for cartage over the year approximately equal the actual cost of delivery of goods sold on commission in the year; and that the sums collected for commission and cartage give a gross percentage profit on commission sales which in some cases is double and in others is four times the gross percentage profit made by the same firm on merchandising transactions.

"That the establishment of a properly operated, grower-owned commission agency in Toronto should result in improved service and a reduction of charges."

The chief complaint of the growers was that returns made to them by different dealers on the Toronto Fruit Market were not true. The inquiry revealed that, in 49 per cent of the 1,300 shipments to commission dealers on the Toronto Fruit Market which were examined, no defined part of the shipment was fully accounted for, and in only 23 per cent of the cases did the records completely account for the disposition of the shipment. Occasional mistakes by salesmen in making up records and the absence of growers' names on the goods gave rise to some of these errors, but in the majority of cases records were not properly made or were altered or destroyed.

The following recommendations were made by the commissioner:—

"That legislation be enacted making the jobber-broker combine unlawful.

"That persons handling domestic fruits and vegetables on commission be required to make, and for a defined period to keep proper and complete records of the disposition of goods entrusted to them for sale; and that it be made an offence to render false or misleading account sales or other similar returns.

"That some proper official be given authority (a) to receive complaints from consignors of domestic fruits and vegetables; (b) to examine books and records of consignees; (c) to record fraudulent practices and bankruptcies of such persons; and (d) to take such action for the prosecution of offenders and the protection of the public as may be required.

"That consideration be given to the creation of a Market Department with wide powers for the purpose of co-ordinating co-operative and other shipping effort, disseminating reliable market information, and assisting the marketing of agricultural products on sound economic lines both in Canada and abroad."

In accordance with section 25 of the Combines Investigation Act, Mr. Duncan's report was referred to the Attorney General of Ontario for any action he might deem proper. As certain matters set out in the report or involved in the recommendations were outside the scope of the Combines Investigation Act, but of interest to the horticultural industry, the report was drawn to the attention, also, of the Ministers of Agriculture for the Dominion and the province of Ontario.

As a result of this inquiry the Minister of Agriculture introduced in the Ontario Legislature a Bill to regulate the sale of fruit and vegetables on consignment by requiring the keeping of records and the notifying of shippers regarding sales of their products. The Bill was passed and became known as the Fruit and Vegetables Consignment Act, 1927 (chap. 83).

COMBINE IN DISTRIBUTION OF FRUIT AND VEGETABLES IN WESTERN CANADA

The annual report for the fiscal year 1925-26 contained an account of the prosecution of certain individuals and firms connected with the Nash Shareholders Company of Minneapolis (Rex v. Simington) as a result of the investigation by Mr. Lewis Duncan as commissioner under the Combines Investigation Act. The judgment of the court was pronounced on March 13, 1926, when four individuals and four corporations were convicted and fined $25,000 each. Notice of appeal against judgment of the court was given on behalf of the defence, and a counter-appeal entered by the Crown. On May 26, the defence withdrew its appeal, and subsequently the Crown's appeal was also withdrawn. As stated in the last annual report, four counts of the original indictment under section 498 of the Criminal Code were traversed to the Fall Assizes, the defence having applied to have these tried by a judge without a jury. These charges were later dropped by the Crown.

The conditions revealed by Mr. Duncan's report, and the evidence brought out in the trial have led to certain remedial measures on behalf of the fruit growers of British Columbia. In his charge to the jury in the prosecution of the Nash companies, Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald stated that the jobber-broker combination maintained by these companies was the main issue in the trial, and the conviction of certain of the defendants was regarded as condemnation of this unnatural relationship. The attitude of the federal Government to the jobber-owned brokerage houses operating in the fruit and vegetable business was made clear by the Hon. J. C. Elliott, Minister of Labour, in a statement made in the House of Commons on June 7, 1926. This statement was published in the Labour Gazette of June, 1926. Mr. Elliott said, in part:—

In view of all these considerations, the Government has decided that it must treat the jobber-broker connection as against public policy; and this announcement is made so that all parties may be aware of these views. If the law as it stands is sufficient to deal with this question, resort will be had to it should there be any disregard of its provisions. If the law as it stands is not sufficient, such appropriate legislation within the legislative competence of the Dominion will be introduced as may be necessary to give effect to this decision.

Following the judgment in the Nash case Mr. Lewis Duncan was requested to draft a Bill to govern sales on consignment with a view to the prevention of certain of the evils exposed in his report, and particularly the operation of jobber-owned brokerage houses. After consultation with the Attorneys General of the four western provinces and with certain of the growers and jobbers, the Bill substantially as drafted was introduced in their respective legislatures by the Attorneys General of British Columbia, Alberta, and Saskatchewan. In British Columbia and Saskatchewan, the Sales on Consignment Bill, as it was called, was passed by the legislatures in March, 1926, the Act in the latter province to come into force on proclamation, but in British Columbia to become operative at once. In Alberta a similar Bill was withdrawn, but will be considered at a later session. In Manitoba it was decided to hold the Bill for further consideration.

PROPRIETARY ARTICLES TRADE ASSOCIATION

Reference was made in the last annual report to the formation by manufacturers and wholesale and retail druggists of the Proprietary Articles Trade Association, an organization designed to eliminate price-cutting on proprietary medicines and toilet articles.

The first step in the organization of this association was taken early in 1925 when Sir William S. Glyn-Jones, the founder and former Secretary of the Proprietary Articles Trade Association in Great Britain, made a tour of Canada at the request of certain wholesale and retail druggists to explain the operation of the British organization and encourage the formation of a similar body in Canada. Following Sir William Glyn-Jones' tour, an organizing committee was formed at Montreal in May, 1925. On March 15, 1926, the organization was completed, the constitution governing the association adopted and the officers were elected. Applicants for membership are required to sign an agreement not to sell any of the articles on the association's list at prices below those on the list. Manufacturers and wholesalers also agree not to supply any article on the list of the association to any person placed by the council of the association on its "stop-list" as selling any proprietary article protected by the association below the fixed price, or allowing a bonus or dividend on the sales, or supplying any one who sells at less than the fixed prices. Wholesalers and retailers agree further not to try to sell any other article in place of an article on the association's list. The management of the association was vested in a council consisting of all the members of the manufacturers' and wholesalers' sections, twelve representatives of the retailers' section (three from Ontario, two from Quebec, and one from each of the other provinces), and three additional members to be elected by these twelve.

The first price-list issued by the association became effective on August 28, 1926, and included minimum wholesale and retail prices of more than six hundred proprietary medicines and toilet articles. At that time the association was composed of 157 manufacturers, 28 wholesale druggists, and 2,732 retail druggists.

Four applications for investigation were received, and the registrar accordingly made an inquiry, the results of which were contained in an interim report on the Proprietary Articles Trade Association submitted to the Minister of Labour on September 6, 1926, and published shortly after that date.

The finding of the registrar was that, through the operations of the association, prices had been enhanced and were likely to be further enhanced to a substantial portion of the public, and that the effect of the adoption of fixed margins for all wholesalers and retailers was to stereotype the present distributive system and thus to discourage the development of new and more economical methods of merchandising which might make possible lower prices to the consumer. These results of the operations of the association, together with the means adopted to enforce the maintenance of prices, namely a "stop-list", or the cutting off of supplies through the joint action of the whole trade, were considered by the registrar as against the public interest, and therefore in contravention of the Combines Investigation Act. This opinion was based upon documents furnished by the association, including its constitution and rules, declared objects, the agreements entered into by its members, and published articles and statements of Sir William Glyn-Jones and other officers; upon information regarding prices of proprietary articles, before and after the association commenced operations, as obtained through replies to questionnaires addressed to the wholesale and retail trade, including different types of retailers; upon interviews with Sir William Glyn-Jones, other officers and members of the association, and other manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers; also upon information bearing on the subject of resale prices and methods adopted to maintain them, including economic studies and reports of governmental inquiries and legal decisions in Great Britain, the United States, and other countries, as well as in Canada.

Following the publication of the registrar's report, officers of the Proprietary Articles Trade Association requested an opportunity to present a statement regarding the operations of the association. Accordingly, the Minister of Labour agreed to defer action on the report pending the receipt of this statement.

The statement of the officers of the association was received on November 1 and emphasized the difference between proprietary or branded articles and general commodities, pointing out that the P.A.T.A. was concerned only with the former. They submitted that, as the owner's trade marks are valuable to him "and injury done to any of these brands by methods of selling is a real injury to the property rights of the manufacturer, he has a right, as an individual or in combination with other manufacturers having similar proprietary rights, to take the necessary steps to protect them." Reference also was made in the statement to the alleged "danger to the public which might ensue when the price-cutters, having wiped out all possible competitors, obtain the monopoly of the distributing business. It is that competition," the statement continued, "which is resorted to for the purpose of destroying competition and of eliminating a competitor and of introducing monopoly, which is the 'unfair competition' that this association is fighting."

Appeal was made by the association, in the same statement, for a new hearing (by a commissioner or commissioners appointed under the Combines Investigation Act) on the ground that, prior to the issuance of the registrar's interim report, they did not have the full opportunity which is contemplated by the Combines Investigation Act to present their side of the case. This request also was granted by the Minister of Labour, who announced that he would arrange for the appointment of a commissioner. In making this announcement, Mr. Heenan said: "I am satisfied that the report of the registrar was made only after full consideration of both sides of the case. The druggists' organization express doubt on this point. I hesitate to incur further delay, but, rather than take any course which could be considered as in any way unfair to the trade, I would give them the benefit of the doubt. Accordingly, in order to provide the P.A.T.A. with the fullest opportunity for the formal presentation of their case, I have decided to arrange for the appointment of a commissioner for this purpose and for the completion of the inquiry."

On December 20 the Minister of Labour announced the appointment of Mr. L. V. O'Connor, barrister, of Lindsay, Ont., as commissioner. Following Mr. O'Connor's appointment, Mr. A. R. McMaster, K.C., of Montreal, was appointed by the Minister of Justice to conduct the investigation before the commissioner. The first sitting of the commission was held in Montreal on January 7, 1927, and hearings continued throughout the balance of the fiscal year in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, and Lindsay. The inquiry was not concluded at the end of March. During the investigation, the Proprietary Articles Trade Association was represented by Sir William Glyn-Jones, Mr. J. C. McRuer, of Toronto, Mr. F. S. Mearns, of Toronto, and Mr. Alexander Cinq-Mars, K.C., of Montreal, barristers, and Mr. Harry Hereford, industrial engineer.

OTHER COMPLAINTS AND INQUIRIES

Other complaints and inquiries, relating to the basic industries as well as to manufacturing and the distributive trades, have been the subject of investigation during the fiscal year. Several complaints dealt with the refusal of manufacturers to supply dealers who were not carrying on business along lines generally accepted by the trade. Still other complaints involved the question of the effect upon the public of the fixing of resale prices by manufacturers, either individually or in combination with other manufacturers and dealers. The Proprietary Articles Trade Association, above referred to, has been the outstanding example of organizations of this type. Naturally the finding of the commissioner in the P.A.T.A. case will have an important bearing upon the attitude to be taken toward the general question of the fixing of resale prices and methods used to enforce them, but the necessity is recognized of dealing with each case, however closely related, on its own merits.

Improved facilities for transportation and communication, the increase of package goods, the development of national advertising and accompanying increases in the cost of selling goods have made possible an extension of department store and mail order business and the operation of chain stores on a cash-and-carry basis. The quantity buying of these organizations, with the partial elimination of credit and delivery services and with possibly improved business methods, has given them, for the time being at any rate, a decided advantage over their retail competitors in the matter of cost and enabled them to undersell the latter in many lines. Direct buying from the manufacturer has meant decreased business for the wholesale trade, and so for wholesalers as well as retailers these recent changes in merchandising agencies and methods have created new and difficult problems.

Two complaints involving the principle of exclusive dealing were dealt with. One of them, received in January, was not disposed of before the close of the fiscal year. In the other, complaint was made that a Canadian manufacturer was unable to market his goods because of certain clauses in the contracts which other manufacturers had entered into with retail merchants, whereby the latter were prevented from handling competitive products. In this case an adjustment was effected to the satisfaction of the applicants and in the interests of the public without recourse to publicity or litigation and without expense. It is not considered that the practice of requiring distributors to refrain from dealing in competing products is of itself a violation of the statute, but in this particular case the Minister of Labour was of opinion that the lessening of competition which resulted was against the public interest.

XI. GOVERNMENT ANNUITIES ACT

The Government Annuities Act, or, to give its full title, "An Act to authorize the issue of Government Annuities for Old Age," became law on July 20, 1908. The administration of the Act was first placed under the Minister of Trade and Commerce; in January, 1912, it was transferred to the Postmaster General, and in May, 1922, to the Minister of Labour.

The purpose of the statute is to encourage and aid the people of Canada in the formation of habits of thrift so that provision may be made for old age, and to afford facilities for the attainment of these objects. The Act enables persons in receipt of moderate wages or salary to purchase a fixed yearly income payable by the Government of Canada from a specified age. The Act provides that annuities may be purchased by individuals, or associations on behalf of their members, or by employers on behalf of their employees. The annuity usually begins when the purchaser attains the age of 50, 55, 60 or 65, the ages when a person's earning powers may be over. The minimum annuity purchasable on the life of one person, or on the lives of two persons jointly, is $10, and the maximum amount $5,000. The cost of an annuity varies with the age of the applicant, the time the first payment is made, the amount of annuity desired, the age at which the annuity is to begin, and the kind applied for. The Dominion Government bears the cost of administration, and there is, therefore, no charge on this account against the annuitant.

The most popular plan is the 10-year Guaranteed Plan, which provides that, if the annuitant should die before the annuity begins, all money paid in on account of purchase, with 4 per cent compound interest added, would be returned to his heirs. When the age is reached for the annuity to begin, the annuity is paid in quarterly or monthly instalments for the entire life of the annuitant, and for 10 years in any event, so that if the annuitant should die before payments for 10 full years had been received, the remaining payments would be continued to the heirs. This affords protection in case the annuitant should die a short time after the annuity had commenced and before he had received back more than had been paid in on account of purchase. Of course, if the annuitant lives longer than 10 years, the annuity is paid as long as he lives. There is absolutely no way loss can occur if purchase is made on the above plan. If payments are not made regularly, the annuitant receives, upon the maturity of the contract, an annuity based upon the payments he has made. This plan is suitable for a person depending upon his earnings to make provision for himself and family when his earning days are over. The earlier in life the purchase of a Government Annuity is commenced, the less it will cost.

The second class, Immediate Annuities, are of particular interest to older people who find it necessary to retire and to receive an income commencing at once. Immediate annuities are purchased by paying in a lump sum, and the annuity payments commence either three months or one month from the date purchase money is received. These annuities may be guaranteed for 10, 15, or 20 years, thus protecting the principal from loss in case the annuitant should die in the early years of the contract. If the annuitant lives beyond the guaranteed period, the annuity payments would be continued for his entire life.

The rate of interest allowed in the calculation of the value of annuities is 4 per cent, but, having regard to the greater longevity of the people of Canada over that of the people of Great Britain on whose mortality experience the tables were calculated, the benefits received are on approximately a compound interest rate of 5 per cent. There are no loadings in the rates and no deductions are made from the premiums paid for any purpose whatever, the annuitant receiving full benefit for every cent he pays in, the Government bearing all administration expenses.

It is believed there is no other plan of investment available to people resident or domiciled in Canada under which provision for old age can be made with such facility; and that there is no other plan which will give them the same return for the amount invested.

The main principles which underlie Government Annuities are as follows: (1) That they are guaranteed by the State; (2) that there is no forfeiture in case premiums are interrupted or should cease altogether, the only effect being that, if the arrears are not made up, the amount to be received will be proportionately less than if payments had been made in full; (3) that the annuity cannot be seized or levied upon by or under the process of any court; and (4) that it is not taxable by the Dominion Government.

A handbook of information respecting the Canadian Government Annuities system has been published which anyone may obtain free on application to the Department of Labour, Annuities Branch. In writing to the department for information the age last birthday should be given, the amount of annuity desired, and the age at which it is wished to have the annuity begin.

XII. OLD AGE PENSIONS ACT, 1927

The subject of old age pensions has received the attention of Parliament at various times in the course of the past twenty years. During the session of 1906-07 a resolution was introduced which declared that the subject of improving the conditions of the aged deserving poor and of providing for those of them who are helpless and infirm is worthy of and should receive the early and careful attention of the Government and Parliament. The motion was debated at some length and withdrawn. In 1908, 1912, and 1913 motions were introduced recommending the appointment of special committees to inquire into an old age pension system for Canada and these committees were duly appointed and reported. In 1908 a law was passed authorizing the sale of annuities for old age. In 1914 a resolution in favour of the adoption of an old age pension system for Canada was moved in the House of Commons but the debate was not concluded. In 1922 the House of Commons adopted a resolution declaring "That in the opinion of this House the Federal Government should consider the advisability of devising ways and means for the establishment of a system of old age pensions in Canada." In 1924 a special committee of the House was appointed, on motion of the Prime Minister, to make an inquiry into an old age pensions system for Canada and, in its report on July 1, 1924, made the following recommendations:

"1. That an old age pension system be established at the earliest possible date for deserving indigent persons of seventy years of age and upwards.

"2. That applicants for pensions must be British subjects of at least twenty years' residence in Canada, or naturalized subjects of at least fifteen years' naturalization and twenty-five years' residence.

"3. (a) That the maximum rate of pension be twenty dollars per month; which would be lessened by private income or partial ability to earn.

"(b) That one-half of the pension payable be borne by the Federal Government; the other half by the Provincial Government of such provinces as express by legislation their desire to adopt the system—the cost of administration to be borne by the Provincial Governments."

The committee estimated that under such system there would be approximately 98,841 eligible pensioners and that, if all of these were to receive the maximum pension of $20 per month, the Federal Government's portion of the total yearly expenditure would amount to $11,860,920. This amount would be reduced by private income and partial earnings. The committee further recommended that the Government communicate with the various Provincial Governments to ascertain if they would be disposed to adopt the above system and enact the necessary legislation. During the recess the Government accordingly communicated to the Provincial Governments the report of the committee to ascertain for the information of Parliament what action they were prepared to take with reference to those recommendations.

At the next session of Parliament it was agreed to reappoint the Special Committee on Old Age Pensions and to refer to it for examination and report the correspondence which had occurred since the last session with the several Provincial Governments. This committee, after having given careful consideration to the correspondence with the provincial premiers, presented a report on June 16, 1925. The committee also reported that, as the question of jurisdiction had been raised, the matter had been referred to the Department of Justice, which advised as follows:—

“The subject of old age pensions does not fall specifically within any of the enumerated subjects given to the Dominion under section ninety-one of the British North America Act, but does fall within the subject of ‘property and civil rights in the province’ committed to the provinces under section ninety-two.”

The Deputy Minister of Justice added:—

“I am of the opinion that the subject-matter of pensions has been entrusted to the provincial legislatures rather than to Parliament. I do not mean to suggest that Parliament has not the power to legislate upon the subject so as to assist the provinces or to establish an independent voluntary scheme, provided that in either case the legislation does not trench upon the subject-matter of property and civil rights in the province, as, for example, by obligating any provinces or person to contribute to the scheme. The enactment of such legislation would, however, involve the assumption by the Dominion of obligations involving heavy expenditures with regard to a matter which does not fall specifically within the Dominion field of legislation.”

After considerable discussion the House concurred in the report.

On March 26, 1926, Hon. Dr. J. H. King, Acting Minister of Labour, moved that the House go into committee to consider the following proposed resolution:

“Resolved, that it is expedient to bring in a measure respecting old age pensions, and to provide,—

“1. That the Governor in Council may make an agreement with the Lieutenant-Governor in Council of any province for the payment to such province quarterly of an amount equal to one-half of the net sum paid out during the preceding quarter by such province for pensions pursuant to a provincial statute authorizing and providing for the payment of such pensions to the persons and under the conditions hereinafter specified and regulations made under the proposed legislation.

“2. That every agreement so made shall continue in force so long as the provincial statute remains in operation or until after the expiration of ten years from the date upon which notice of an intention to determine the agreement is given by the Governor General to the Lieutenant-Governor of the province with which the same is made.

“3. That before any agreement so made comes into operation, the Governor in Council shall approve the scheme for the administration of pensions proposed to be adopted by the province, and no change in such scheme shall be made by the province without the consent of the Governor in Council.

“4. That all sums payable to any province in pursuance of any such agreement shall be payable from time to time on the certificate of the Treasury Board out of any moneys belonging to the consolidated revenue fund of Canada not otherwise appropriated and the Governor in Council may borrow from time to time such sums as may be required for the purpose of making such payments.

“5. That provision shall be made for the payment of a pension to every person who, at the date of the proposed commencement of the pension,—

“(a) is a British subject, or, being a widow, was such before her marriage;

“(b) has attained the age of seventy years;

“(c) has resided in Canada for the twenty years immediately preceding the date aforesaid;

“(d) has resided in the province in which the application for pension is made for the five years immediately preceding the said date;

“(e) is not an Indian as defined by the Indian Act;

“(f) has not made any voluntary assignment or transfer of property for the purpose of qualifying for a pension.

"6. That the receipt of a pension shall not by itself constitute a disqualification from voting at any provincial or municipal election.

"7. That the maximum pension payable shall be two hundred and forty dollars yearly, which shall be subject to reduction by the amount of the income of the pensioner in excess of one hundred and twenty-five dollars a year.

"8. That provisions be made as to the credit to the pension authority of the annual value of the pensioner's residence, and the recovery of pension payments out of deceased pensioner's estate, and for the distribution of pension burden among provinces by proportionate reimbursement or proportionate reduction where the pensioner resided in more than one province or transfers his permanent residence to another province, and for ceasing payments where he transfers his residence to some place out of Canada, and the revival of his rights upon again becoming a resident of Canada.

"9. That no pension shall be subject to alienation or transfer by the pensioner, or to seizure in satisfaction of any claim against him.

"10. That on or before the thirtieth day of April in each year, the Minister of Finance shall make a full report to Parliament of the operation of the agreements made pursuant to the proposed act, and of the moneys of Canada paid to the provinces under each of the several agreements entered into pursuant thereto.

"11. That the Governor in Council shall have power from time to time, on the recommendation of the Minister of Labour, and with the approval of the Treasury Board, to make regulations, not inconsistent with the provisions of the proposed act, with regard to the pensions herein provided for, and such regulations shall be published in the Canada Gazette, and be laid before Parliament."

After a prolonged debate the resolution was concurred in and the Bill based on the resolution was read the first time. The Bill was passed in the House of Commons on May 28 after much discussion, but was subsequently rejected by the Senate.

During the debate in Parliament it was argued in support of the Bill that the principle of old age pensions was recognized in all parts of the civilized world and that legislation providing for some form of pension had been enacted in most European countries and many parts of the British Empire. Investigation shows that the early system of voluntary insurance, subsidized in some cases by the State, was found in most countries to be inadequate and gave place to compulsory insurance to which the insured made a contribution, or to pensions paid from public funds. The former type is found in Belgium, France, Czecho-Slovakia, Bulgaria, Jugo-Slavia, Roumania, Germany, Sweden, Italy, Portugal, Luxemburg, Greece, the Swiss Canton of Glarus, and Austria. A similar system was in force in Argentina but has recently been suspended. Non-contributory systems are in operation in Australia, New Zealand, Uruguay, Denmark, Spain, Norway, and in some of the United States of America. The British Old Age Pensions Act, as amended in 1925, combines the contributory and non-contributory systems.

Of twenty-eight pension systems studied, seven provide pensions at seventy years of age, one at sixty-seven years, thirteen at sixty-five years, four at sixty years, and three do not specify the age at which benefits become payable. Under four of the systems the pension is reduced if the pensioner has an income or possesses property. Under twelve of the systems a certain period of residence is required.

The Parliamentary Committee on Old Age Pensions endeavoured to obtain information from the several provinces as to the sums which are being expended from municipal and provincial funds for the relief of aged persons who are without means of support but did not succeed in obtaining complete returns. The following is a summary of such information obtained in response to a circular letter to 135 mayors of cities and towns throughout Canada where measures of relief had been instituted for the aged poor:—

By reference to the 1925 Report of the Province of Ontario on Hospitals and Charitable Institutions, it appears that the total cost of maintaining forty-five city houses of refuge scattered throughout Ontario was $1,050,822, and that the average cost per diem per inmate was 88 cents. The report does not show any corresponding returns for county houses of refuge. The province of Ontario contributes 10 cents per head daily towards the cost of maintenance of aged poor persons in homes for the aged and other institutions of like nature. Inquiry made of the Social Service Department of Ottawa showed that at December 31,

1926, there were 641 aged persons in that city who are in receipt of assistance from the public funds. The following is a statement showing the number of inmates in the various institutions in Ottawa for aged persons; also showing the number of aged poor persons receiving assistance towards their maintenance in their own homes:—

On February 10, 1927, the Hon. Mr. Heenan, Minister of Labour, moved in the House of Commons that the House go into committee at the next sitting to consider the proposed resolution with respect to old age pensions, and, on the 15th of February, 1927, the resolution was introduced by the Honourable the Minister of Labour in identically the same terms as that introduced by the Hon. Mr. King during the previous session. After considerable debate the resolution was agreed to on February 18 and the Bill passed the House of Commons on March 4, 1927. It was introduced in the Senate by the Hon. Mr. Dandurand on March 9 and after much discussion was passed by that body on March 24, receiving the Royal assent on March 31, 1927.

On January 19, 1927, the Hon. John Oliver, Prime Minister of British Columbia, introduced a Bill in the legislature of that province to give authority to the Provincial Government to enter into an agreement with the federal authorities as to a joint scheme of old age pensions and for sharing equally between the Dominion and the province the expenses involved by the payment of old age pensions in British Columbia. The Act was duly passed by the Legislature of British Columbia and assented to on March 7, 1927. Under this Act the administration of pensions in that province is entrusted to the Workmen's Compensation Board.

CHAP. 35

An Act respecting Old Age Pensions

[Assented to 31st March, 1927.]

Short title. HIS MAJESTY, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate and House of Commons of Canada, enacts as follows:—

1. This Act may be cited as The Old Age Pensions Act, 1927.

Definitions.

2. In this Act the expression,—

- (a) "pension authority" means the officer or body charged by law with the consideration of applications for pension or with the payment of pensions;
- (b) "pension" means an old age pension payable in accordance with this Act and the regulations thereunder;
- (c) "pensioner" includes an applicant for a pension;
- (d) "province" includes the Yukon Territory, in respect to which "Gold Commissioner" shall be read for "Lieutenant-Governor in Council";
- (e) "statute" includes ordinance or order having the force of law.

Agreements with Provinces.

3. The Governor in Council may make an agreement with the Lieutenant-Governor in Council of any province for the payment to such province quarterly of an amount equal to one-half of the net sum paid out during the preceding quarter by such province for pensions pursuant to a provincial statute authorizing and providing for the payment of such pensions to the persons and under the conditions specified in this Act and the regulations made thereunder.

Term of Agreements.

4. Every agreement made pursuant to this Act shall continue in force so long as the provincial statute remains in operation or until after the expiration of ten years from the date upon which notice of an intention to determine the agreement is given by the Governor General to the Lieutenant-Governor of the province with which the same was made.

Approval of administration scheme necessary.

5. Before any agreement made pursuant to this Act comes into operation the Governor in Council shall approve the scheme for the administration of pensions proposed to be adopted by the province, and no change in such scheme shall be made by the province without the consent of the Governor in Council.

Application of Act in N.W.T.

6. As soon as agreements under this Act have been made with two of the provinces adjoining the Northwest Territories, the Commissioner of the said territories may submit to the Governor in Council for approval a scheme for the administration and payment of pensions therein, and upon the approval of such scheme, the same shall stand, in all respects other than its duration, in the same position as an agreement with a province.

When payments to provinces to be made.

7. All sums payable to any province in pursuance of any agreement made under this Act shall be payable from time to time on the certificate of the Minister of Finance out of any moneys belonging to the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada not otherwise appropriated.

What persons are pensionable.

8. (1) Provision shall be made for the payment of a pension to every person who, at the date of the proposed commencement of the pension:—

- (a) is a British subject, or, being a widow, who is not a British subject, was such before her marriage;

- (b) has attained the age of seventy years;
 - (c) has resided in Canada for the twenty years immediately preceding the date aforesaid;
 - (d) has resided in the province in which the application for pension is made for the five years immediately preceding the said date;
 - (e) is not an Indian as defined by the Indian Act;
 - (f) is not in receipt of an income of as much as three hundred and sixty-five dollars ($365) a year, and
 - (g) has not made any voluntary assignment or transfer of property for the purpose of qualifying for a pension.
- (2) The receipt of a pension shall not by itself constitute a disqualification from voting at any provincial or municipal election.

Pensioners not to be disqualified from voting
Maximum pension $240.

9. (1) The maximum pension payable shall be two hundred and forty dollars yearly, which shall be subject to reduction by the amount of the income of the pensioner in excess of one hundred and twenty-five dollars a year.

(2) Where a pensioner is the owner of an interest in a dwelling house in which he resides and the pension authority accepts a transfer to it of such interest, the pension payable to the pensioner shall not be subject to any reduction in respect of the annual value of such interest, but the pension authority shall, on the death of the pensioner or upon his ceasing to use such dwelling house as his place of residence, be entitled to sell the pensioner's interest therein and to retain out of the proceeds of such sale the amount of all payments made to the pensioner by way of pension in excess of the amount he would have received if such interest had not been transferred to the pension authority, together with interest on the said payments at the rate of five per cent per annum, compounded annually.

When annual value of pensioner's residence not to affect pension.

(3) A pension authority shall be entitled to recover out of the estate of any deceased pensioner, as a debt due by the pensioner to such authority, the sum of the pension payments made to such pensioner from time to time, together with interest at the rate of five per cent per annum compounded annually, but no claim shall be made by a pension authority for the recovery of such debt directly or indirectly out of any part of the pensioner's estate which passes by will or on an intestacy to any other pensioner or to any person who has, since the grant of such pension or for the last three years during which such pension has continued to be paid, regularly contributed to the support of the pensioner by the payment of money or otherwise to an extent which, having regard to the means of the person so having contributed, is considered by the pension authority to be reasonable.

Recovery of pension payments out of deceased pensioner's estate.

10. Where a pensioner has during part of the twenty years immediately preceding the date of the proposed commencement of pension resided in more than one province in which he would have become pensionable if he had continued to reside therein, the province in which the pension is granted shall be entitled to be reimbursed, by the other province or provinces in which the pensioner has resided as aforesaid, a proportion of the pension equal to the proportion which the duration of the pensioner's residence in such other province bears to twenty years.

Distribution of pension burden among provinces.

11. When a pensioner has during part of the twenty years immediately preceding the date of the proposed commencement of pension resided in a province in which he would not have become pensionable even if he had continued to reside therein, the amount of the pension which would otherwise be payable to such pensioner shall be reduced by the same proportion as the duration of the pensioner's residence in such other province bears to twenty years.

Reduction of pension in certain cases.

12. In any case in which, pursuant to either of the last two preceding sections, a pension is to be proportionately reimbursed or proportionately reduced, the following provisions shall have effect:—

Rules governing distribution and reduction of pension.

- (a) The proportionate reimbursement or proportionate reduction shall be calculated by reference to the nearest number, whether greater or less, of complete years during which the pensioner has been resident in any of the provinces in question;

- (b) Mere lapse of time shall not affect any such proportionate reimbursement or proportionate reduction;
- (c) If, after any reduced pension has been granted, an agreement under this Act is made with a province by reference to the pensioner's residence within which such reduction or any part thereof has been calculated, the pension may thereafter be proportionately increased and the amount of such increase shall be reimbursed in accordance with this Act, to the province by which such pension is paid.

Effect of change of pensioner's residence in Canada in certain cases.

13. When, after the grant of a pension in any province, the pensioner transfers his permanent residence to another province with which an agreement under this Act is in force, the pension shall thereafter be paid by the province to which the pensioner has removed, but such province shall be entitled to be reimbursed an amount equal to one-half of such pension by the province in which the pension was originally granted.

And in other cases.

14. Where the pensioner, after the grant of a pension, transfers his permanent residence to another province with which no agreement under this Act is in force, the pension shall continue to be paid by the province in which the pension was granted.

Effect of pensioner's leaving Canada.

15. Where a pensioner, after the grant of a pension, transfers his residence to some place out of Canada, his pension shall cease, but his right thereto shall revive upon his again becoming resident in Canada.

Pension not to be alienated or charged.

16. No pension shall be subject to alienation or transfer by the pensioner, or to seizure in satisfaction of any claim against him.

Report to Parliament.

17. On or before the thirtieth day of April in each year the Minister of Finance shall make a full report to Parliament of the operation of the agreements made pursuant to this Act and of the moneys of Canada paid to the provinces under each of the several agreements entered into pursuant hereto.

Obtaining evidence as to age of pensioner.

18. Any pension authority shall have the right for the purpose of ascertaining the age of any pensioner to obtain without charge:

- (a) from the registrar of vital statistics or other like officer of any province with which an agreement under this Act is in force a certificate of the date of the birth of such pensioner, or
- (b) subject to such conditions as may be specified in the regulations made under this Act, from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, any information on the subject of the age of such pensioner which may be contained in the returns of any census taken more than thirty years before the date of the application for such information.

Power to make regulations.

19. The Governor in Council shall have power from time to time, on the recommendation of the Minister of Labour and with the approval of the Treasury Board, to make regulations, not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, with regard to the pensions herein provided for, and, without limiting the generality of the foregoing provision, the Governor in Council shall have power to provide by regulation for:—

- (a) The time preceding the attainment of pensionable age at which applications for pension may be made;
- (b) The time at which, after application therefor, the payment of pension shall commence;
- (c) The definition of residence and of the intervals of absence from Canada or a province by which residence therein shall not be deemed to have been interrupted;
- (d) The evidence to be required or accepted by a pension authority in support of an application for pension;
- (e) The manner in which the income of a pensioner is to be determined for the purpose of this Act and in particular the mode of reckoning the income of either one or two spouses who live together;

- (f) The evidence from which the making of transfers of property for the purpose of qualifying for pension is to be inferred;
 - (g) The circumstances in which pensions may be paid for the benefit of persons supported or under treatment in public institutions;
 - (h) The mode in which pensions are to be payable;
 - (i) The time within which a pension voucher may be cashed;

 - (n) The recovery with or without interest of pension payments made by reason of the non-disclosure of facts or by reason of innocent or of false representations;
 - (o) The time within which and the circumstances under which applications or proposals may be entertained for the increase or reduction of a pension which has been granted;
 - (p) The method of accounting and of the settlement of balances due by Canada to any province or by one province to another;
 - (q) The penalties to be imposed for breaches of the regulations, such penalties not to exceed a fine of fifty dollars or imprisonment for three months, or both fine and imprisonment;
 - (r) The constitution and powers of an interprovincial board to interpret and recommend alterations in the regulations.
- (2) No regulation by reference to which any agreement with a province has been made shall be altered except with the consent of such province or in accordance with the provisions of the regulations to which it has agreed. Alteration by regulations.

20. All regulations made under this Act shall, from the date of their publication in the Canada Gazette, have the same force and effect as if they had been included herein. They shall be presented to Parliament forthwith after their publication if Parliament is then sitting or, if not, within fifteen days from the commencement of the session beginning next after such publication. XIII. EMPLOYMENT OFFICES CO-ORDINATION ACT

The present statement is the ninth annual report of the Employment Service Branch, being for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1927.

FUNCTIONS OF THE BRANCH

The primary function of the Employment Service Branch is administrative—that of administering the Employment Offices Co-ordination Act (8-9 George V, chapter 21). This Act empowers the Minister of Labour,—

- (a) to aid and encourage the organization and co-ordination of employment offices and to promote uniformity of methods among them;
- (b) to establish one or more clearing houses for the interchange of information between employment offices concerning the transfer of labour and other matters;
- (c) to compile and distribute information received from employment offices, and from other sources, regarding prevailing conditions of employment.

The employment offices whose co-ordination and uniformity of methods are sought are the employment offices of the various provincial governments. The desired co-operation of the provinces, one with the other and all with the Department of Labour, is obtained by the device of federal subventions for employment service work provided for in the Act. In view of the close co-ordination of effort which is attained, the employment offices of the several provinces and the federal clearing houses, though each unit retains its individual identity, are commonly considered as a single organization known as "The Employment Service of Canada."

Emanating from the administration of the Act is the supplementary function recited in (c) above—that of collecting, compiling and publishing information which sheds light on the currently prevailing trend of the volume of employment. To fulfil this mission two classes of statistics are regularly prepared: (1) administrative statistics—those showing the volume of work performed by the offices of the Employment Service of Canada; and (2) trade union statistics—those compiled on the basis of monthly returns forwarded voluntarily by over 1,500 local trade unions, showing the percentages of their memberships unemployed. These statistics are all published monthly in the Labour Gazette.

AGREEMENTS WITH THE PROVINCES

The Employment Offices Co-ordination Act, 1918, provides in section 6 (in part) that,—

The payments hereinbefore authorized shall, as to each province, be conditional upon agreement between the minister and the Government of the province as to the terms, conditions and purposes within the meaning of this Act upon and for which the payments are to be made and applied.

Accordingly, during the fiscal year 1926-27, uniform agreements were concluded with all the provincial governments except that of Prince Edward Island. The sum of money which was mentioned in the agreement as being available for payment by the Department of Labour to the provinces was $150,000, the sum provided by statute. The amount of $150,000, when distributed among the provinces in proportion to their expenditures on employment office administration and operation, enabled a repayment to them of 34.8 per centum of their gross expenditures. Due to a slight increase in their gross expenditures, the provinces benefited to the extent of 0.1 per cent less than in the preceding fiscal year. Table No. 1 on page 107 shows in detail the amounts paid to the various provinces, dividing the totals under the different items which are considered legitimate expenditures under the Act. Moreover, on its part the Department of Labour undertook to, and did, furnish the provinces with the different forms utilized in the employment offices. The terms and conditions under which the moneys were to be paid to the provincial governments, as set forth in the agreement, were virtually the same as during the previous fiscal year. That feature of the agreements of previous years, providing specifically for special employment work on behalf of veterans of the Great War who were partially disabled as a result of war services, was again preserved.

LOCATION OF EMPLOYMENT OFFICES

Every office of the Employment Service offers facilities for both men and women who are seeking work in any occupation, and for employers seeking any sort of help. Obviously, it is neither practicable nor advisable to segregate the various functions of the offices at all centres, but when the volume of work warrants it, and where the population to be served is of sufficient magnitude, such division of functions is made, and men's and women's, skilled and unskilled, farm, factory, and domestic, etc., divisions are separately operated. In Western Canada, where seasonal workers, such as farm labourers, are regularly hired in large numbers, it is common custom, particularly in Saskatchewan and British Columbia, to operate temporary offices. These are not included, however, in the list below.

During the year the number of centres at which offices are conducted was reduced from 65 to 64 by the closing out of the office previously maintained at Vernon, B.C.

The list of centres where offices were located at March 31, 1927, follows:—

Nova Scotia (three centres).—Halifax, New Glasgow, Sydney.

New Brunswick (three centres).—Chatham, Moncton, St. John.

Quebec (five centres).—Hull, Montreal, Quebec, Sherbrooke, Three Rivers.

Ontario (twenty-five centres).—Belleville, Brantford, Chatham, Cobalt, Fort William, Guelph, Hamilton, Kingston, Kitchener, London, Niagara Falls, North Bay, Oshawa, Ottawa, Pembroke, Peterborough, Port Arthur, Sarnia, Sault Ste. Marie, St. Catharines, St. Thomas, Sudbury, Timmins, Toronto, Windsor.

Manitoba (three centres).—Brandon, Dauphin, Winnipeg.

Saskatchewan (nine centres).—Estevan, Moose Jaw, North Battleford, Prince Albert, Regina, Saskatoon, Swift Current, Weyburn, Yorkton.

Alberta (five centres).—Calgary, Drumheller, Edmonton, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat.

British Columbia (eleven centres).—Cranbrook, Kamloops, Nanaimo, Nelson, New Westminster, Penticton, Prince George, Prince Rupert, Revelstoke, Vancouver, Victoria.

For the purpose of co-ordinating the efforts of the various local offices, and to enable the transfer of any kind of labour from districts over supplied to those where a dearth exists, eight clearing houses have been established throughout Canada. Those for provincial clearance, operated by the provincial governments as part of the Employment Service of Canada, are situated at Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Edmonton and Vancouver. Those for interprovincial clearance, operated by the Department of Labour, in the interests of the Employment Service of Canada, are: Eastern Clearing House, Ottawa; Western Clearing House, Winnipeg.

STAFF

On March 31, 1926, the personnel of the Employment Service totalled 269. This number was distributed among the various component authorities as follows:—

(a) Provincial Governments.—Nova Scotia, 6; New Brunswick, 7; Quebec, 29; Ontario, 100; Manitoba, 21; Saskatchewan, 27; Alberta, 20; and British Columbia, 28; and

(b) Federal Government.—Department of Labour, Ottawa, 17; Western Clearing House, Winnipeg, 3; local employment offices at Halifax, 1; at Ottawa, 1, at Toronto, 3; at Winnipeg, 2; at Vancouver, 3; and at Victoria, 1.

At the close of the fiscal year under review, the total number of employees stood at 268, 31 of whom were employed by the Federal Government and 237 of whom were provincial employees. The detailed distribution of staff was as follows:—

(a) Provincial Governments.—Nova Scotia, 6; New Brunswick, 7; Quebec, 29; Ontario, 103; Manitoba, 20; Saskatchewan, 26; Alberta, 20; British Columbia, 26; and

(b) Federal Government.—Department of Labour, Ottawa, 17; Western Clearing House, Winnipeg, 3; local employment offices, at Halifax, 1; at Ottawa, 1; at Toronto, 3; at Winnipeg, 2; at Vancouver, 3; and at Victoria, 1.

Thus, during the year fluctuations in the provincial staffs caused a net reduction of one, while the federal staff remained constant. It might be added that the federal employees described as being located in certain of the provincial local employment offices are the employees engaged in specialized employment activities on behalf of handicapped veterans of the war, so placed in pursuance of the agreements between the Federal and Provincial Governments.

SPECIALIZED EMPLOYMENT WORK ON BEHALF OF HANDICAPPED EX-SERVICE MEN

Previous annual reports of the department have carried detailed notice of the taking over by the Employment Service of Canada from the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment of the duty of endeavouring to place in suitable employment men having physical handicaps due to service in the late war. During the fiscal year 1926-27, the Department of Labour again enlisted the co-operation of the provinces with respect to this task, this being the third fiscal year in which a special clause of the annual agreements covered the matter.

The agreements continued the terms and conditions for the carrying on of this work on the same basis as in previous years. The provinces agreed to undertake in all their employment offices to register and to endeavour to place in employment employable handicapped ex-service men; the Department of Labour undertook to appoint and pay in full any additional employees who might be necessary for the providing of adequate facilities at the more important points. Such federal employees were maintained in the provincial employment offices as follows: Halifax, 1; Ottawa, 1; Toronto, 3; Winnipeg, 2; Vancouver, 3; and Victoria, 1.

This phase of the work of the Employment Service of Canada deserves attention for two reasons: first, the work accomplished reflects most favourably upon Canada in respect of her discharge of her obligations to those wounded in her service during the Great War; and second, federal-provincial co-operation, which is the watch-word of the Employment Service, in this branch of the work is most advantageously exemplified. The provincial authorities assisted the Department of Labour in every way to make this work most successful. In previous fiscal years, since the work was first taken over during 1923-1924. it might have been considered that it was somewhat in the nature of an experiment, but the steady progress which has been made would indicate that the experimental stage has passed and that this phase of the work of the Employment Service of Canada has now been placed upon a rather permanent footing.

The work is difficult of accomplishment. Certain war disabilities practically preclude the possibility of placing in employment some handicapped ex-service men by reason of the fact that positions which they might satisfactorily fill permanently are not sufficiently numerous for the applicants. This means that casual employment has to be relied upon to a considerable extent to meet the requirements of these workers. In connection with employment for partially disabled men the employers throughout the country have shown a commendable spirit of co-operation with the employment offices: the idea that to secure 100 per cent efficiency in any occupation a man must be 100 per cent physically fit, has largely been overcome, and employers, generally speaking, are willing to give a disabled man a chance to fit in, where the nature of his disability is not such that it interferes with his efficiency.

The location of the federal employees doing this specialized employment office work is not wholly due to the fact that the centres where they are located are among the largest centres in Canada, but it is also due to the fact that a certain few centres are the places of residence of a very large proportion of all handicapped ex-service men, for such reasons as greater opportunities in industry, more favourable climatic conditions, etc. While the Department has been petitioned on a couple of occasions to establish special handicap sections in other centres, in each case it has been found, on joint investigation with the provincial authorities, that the need was not sufficiently great to require such action.

During the fiscal year 1926-1927, the Employment Service made 7,775 placements of handicapped ex-service men.

EMPLOYMENT STATISTICS

As previously stated, certain statistical information covering the field of employment is regularly collected and compiled by the Employment Service Branch and published in the Labour Gazette. These statistics are of two classes: (a) administrative statistics, showing the work performed by the employment offices, based on daily reports received from the offices of the Employment Service; and (b) statistics based on monthly reports on unemployment, received from local trade unions. In addition, the Labour Gazette publishes each month index numbers of employment in industry and reports on building permits issued, which are collected by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in accordance with the Statistics Act, 1918. These statistics are all closely followed by large numbers of persons throughout Canada, and the numerous inquiries concerning them received in the department testify to their value.

STATISTICAL REPORT OF EMPLOYMENT OFFICES

The tables on pages 107 and 108 show (table No. 2) applications, (table No. 3) vacancies, and (table No. 4) placements in regular and casual employment as reported by the offices of the Employment Service of Canada in the various provinces during the fiscal year; an analysis of the vacancies and placements by industrial groups for the same period is also given (table No. 7) on pages 110 and 111.

As may be seen in the tables, during the year 1926-27 there were registered at the public employment offices a total of 540,749 applications for employment, 414,760 being from men and 125,989 from women. The total for the previous fiscal year was 548,487.

Opportunities for employment of which the offices were notified numbered 456,375, of which 344,614 were for men, and 111,761 for women. The corresponding total for the fiscal year 1925-26 was 443,810. Placements effected by the service show a total of 410,310, 319,246 having been men and 91,064 women. Considered on the basis of the duration of the prospective work, the figures are further subdivided into "casual," i.e., where the duration of employment does not exceed seven days, and "regular," i.e., where the duration of employment is in excess of seven days. From this angle the placements of men show 60,255 to have been casual and 258,991 to have been regular. Of the placements of women 49,648 were casual and 41,416 were regular. It might be added that the statistics for the preceding fiscal year recorded placements of 321,708 men and 86,779 women, or a total of 408,487.

STATISTICS OF UNEMPLOYMENT AMONG TRADE UNION MEMBERS

From reports received from local trade unions, a figure is compiled monthly, showing the percentage of the membership covered which is unemployed on the last day of the month. These statistics are worked out in considerable detail, being published in such form that each province as a whole, each industry as a whole, each main division of each industry, and each main division of each industry within each province are shown separately. When referring to trade union members as unemployed, the term "unemployment" has reference only to involuntary idleness due to economic causes. Members who are engaged at work in other than their own trades or who are idle because of illness or as a direct result of strikes or lockouts are not considered for statistical purposes as unemployed. While the greater number of the reporting unions report regularly each month, slight fluctuations are inevitable, but ordinarily over 1,500 local unions, having a total membership of about 156,000 persons, co-operate with the branch by reporting.

Table No. 6 on page 109 gives the percentages of unemployment among the membership of reporting trade unions from June, 1916, to March, 1927. Up to January, 1919, the figures are given for the last day of each quarter, but subsequent to that date, due to their more frequent collection, the percentage at the close of each month is given. The figure in each case is that for all Canada, for all industries.

LABOUR MOBILITY

While the offices of the service are located at the points of chief industrial activity, the facilities afforded are not only utilized locally, but each office supplies a considerable number of workers to the contiguous districts. Out of the total of 410,310 placements effected, 207,123 were made outside of the centres in which offices are situated.

Since 1919, the railways have accorded to bona fide applicants at the Employment Service who may desire to travel to distant employment for which no workers are available locally, a concession involving a reduced fare. This privilege is effective on the following railroads: Canadian National, Canadian Pacific, Dominion Atlantic, Kettle Valley, Michigan Central, Pacific Great Eastern, Quebec Central, Temiskaming and Northern Ontario, and the Wabash. The reduced rate is for a second-class fare at a rate of 2.70 cents per mile, obtainable on the surrender of a certificate secured at the employment office. A minimum fare of four dollars is stipulated, so that a person travelling to employment at a distance where the reduced rate does not amount to the minimum is not able to derive the benefit therefrom. In table No. 5 on page 108, which gives details regarding the use of this certificate, it will be seen that 29,778 persons were by this means aided in securing employment.

Workers wishing to proceed from British Columbia to the Prairie Provinces to engage in harvest work were also accorded a substantially reduced fare by the railway companies. This excursion rate, which obtained during the month of August, was only available to persons whose services were necessary for harvesting operations at their proposed destination. It was good as far east as Regina and Saskatoon in Saskatchewan and granted on the surrender of special certificates secured at the employment offices. Of these certificates the Employment Service in British Columbia issued 7,347.

EMPLOYMENT SERVICE COUNCIL OF CANADA

Under Orders in Council, P.C. 3111 and P.C. 2262, passed in pursuance of the Employment Offices' Co-ordination Act, 1918, there has been established a body advisory to the Minister of Labour in respect of the administration of the Act, known as the Employment Service Council of Canada. This council is composed of representatives of the various parties to the agreements, as well as representatives of the railways, organized labour, employers, returned soldiers, and the agricultural community. While it has been the custom for the council to meet about once a year, seven meetings having been held since its inception in 1919, it so happened that the council did not meet during the fiscal year under review.

CONFERENCE

At Montreal, P.Q., on September 16, 17 and 18, 1926, was held the fourteenth annual meeting of the International Association of Public Employment Services. This association is composed of a great many of the officials of the employment service branches of the Canadian Provincial Departments of Labour, of the State Departments of Labour of the United States, and of the Federal Departments of Labour of Canada and the United States. Among the Canadian members attending the convention at Montreal were representatives of the Department of Labour, as well as some of the members of the Employment Service Council of Canada. Papers were presented to the conference on many of the phases of employment office work, the paper in each case being followed by discussion. Owing to the international character of the body a very broad field of experience is covered, so that the discussions were of a very practical and informative nature. After the meeting the Department of Labour published and distributed the proceedings, which constitute a volume of considerable value in the field of public employment office work. It might be mentioned that this was the third occasion since its formation in 1913 upon which this organization has held its meeting in a Canadian city.

XIV. TECHNICAL EDUCATION ACT

Technical or vocational education in Canada continues to grow and develop in an encouraging manner. Present developments are inadequate to meet the need of industry for trained, intelligent workers, but there is good reason for believing that the grants expended under the Technical Education Act have been justified and that the work being promoted is worth while. Many perplexing problems remain unsolved and a considerable part of the work in each province is purely experimental. Nevertheless, steady progress is being made and vocational training has become a recognized part of the education system in every large industrial centre in Canada.

COURSES OF STUDY AND ENROLMENTS

Commercial, home economics, technical, and general industrial courses have become fairly well established in the secondary day schools of 78 municipalities, and over 100 different courses have been organized in connection with evening schools which are being operated in 170 municipalities throughout the Dominion. The total enrolment in day vocational classes has increased from 8,512 in 1919-20 to 34,703, for the school year ended June 30, 1927. In evening classes, which were established before the Act came into operation, the enrolment has increased during the past seven years from 51,827 to 60,313. The total enrolment in all vocational classes receiving grants under the Technical Education Act was 96,682 for the past year, an increase of 7,721 over the previous year.

GRANTS TO PROVINCES BY DOMINION GOVERNMENT

The grants paid to the provinces for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1927, amounted to $1,047,535.80, an increase of $103,199.71 over the previous year. The provinces of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, and Alberta are now earning more than their annual appropriations under the Act. The money allotted to Ontario has not been sufficient to meet provincial government expenditures since 1921, but the amounts available for all other provinces, due to accumulated reserves, have been more than sufficient to meet the provincial expenditures on a fifty-fifty basis. The Act provides that not more than 25 per cent of the annual appropriation to any province may be carried forward without the consent of the Minister of Labour and last year the provinces of Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward Island lost a total of $123,573.52 because their expenditures were not sufficient to earn 75 per cent of the annual appropriations. Particulars regarding grants, expenditures, attendance, etc., are given in tables I, II, and III, appended hereto.

PURPOSE OF GRANTS

The main purpose of the grants provided under the Technical Education Act is to promote industry and the mechanical trades by assisting the provinces to provide suitable education and training for industrial workers. Education is a matter of provincial responsibility and control, but the training of industrial workers and the promotion of industrial development are matters of national importance, of direct interest to the Federal Government.

ADMINISTRATION OF GRANTS BY DEPARTMENT OF LABOUR

In carrying out the provisions of the Technical Education Act the federal director has endeavoured to avoid interference with provincial authority while retaining control of the manner in which the grants are expended. Money is not given to the provinces to expend, but each Provincial Government is reimbursed to the extent of one-half of approved expenditures on work which comes within the scope of the Act and the annual agreements. In this way the provinces retain control of their education systems and the Federal Government is assured that the grants are expended in harmony with the purpose of the Act. The different educational, financial, and economic conditions in the various provinces make it impossible and undesirable to secure uniformity in the nature and scope of the work being promoted, but, by spreading information and encouraging co-operation, the Department of Labour is assisting each province to develop its own system along lines which best meet the requirements of local conditions.

SECOND NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON TECHNICAL EDUCATION

An important activity of the Technical Education Branch during the past year was the convening of the Second National Conference on Technical Education, held in Ottawa from February 9 to 11 inclusive. At this conference, representatives from every province met to discuss problems of mutual interest. The items on the agenda included such topics as the inclusion of agricultural education under the provisions of the Technical Education Act, the aims and objectives of vocational education, national and provincial conferences, co-operation in connection with courses and textbooks, apprenticeship, and statistics. The conference adopted two resolutions, one urging the continuance of federal grants on technical education for a further period of ten years, and the other recommending the inclusion of agricultural instruction under the provisions of the Technical Education Act in those provinces which are not earning their full annual appropriations. A motion was passed requesting the Department of Labour to convene similar conferences at least once each year. A complete report of the proceedings was sent to each province and an abbreviated report was printed as a bulletin of the Technical Education Branch, for distribution to interested persons throughout the Dominion.

BULLETINS

Four other bulletins were issued during the year. Three deal with courses of study and textbooks in commercial education, home economics, and general industrial education, and the fourth outlines the work of Canadian schools in connection with woodworking and building construction. It is the first of a series on courses of study and textbooks in the different branches of industrial education. Material for this series has been collected from teachers in various parts of the Dominion whose names were suggested by the provincial directors.

CO-OPERATION BETWEEN SCHOOLS AND INDUSTRY

While visiting the various provinces, the federal director has been impressed by the rapid development in communities where the schools and industry are working together, and by the unsatisfactory condition of the work in several places where the schools have attempted to carry the whole load. As a result of these observations the director is convinced that greater efforts should be made by each province to develop types of work which are directly connected with the industrial activities of the communities in which the schools are located. A good foundation of general industrial education has been laid in full-time day schools, but there is need for the extension and development of part-time training, co-operative classes, more highly organized evening courses, and correspondence instruction for persons employed in industrial, commercial, and agricultural occupations. The program of vocational education cannot be complete without close co-operation between schools and industry.

Lack of appreciation on the part of employers and employees regarding the purpose and value of vocational education and the difficulty of persuading educators that industry should have a voice in determining the aims and methods of the schools are perhaps the greatest obstacles to be overcome in developing adequate, effective training and education for all industrial workers. The schools too frequently regard themselves as self-sufficient agencies; labour organizations, in many instances, look upon the schools as misguided institutions turning out half-trained workers without regard to existing conditions or the best interests of the pupils; employers, on the other hand, expect the schools to relieve them of their obligation to train workers and, with few exceptions, fail to realize that industry must supplement and complete the education and training received in the classroom and school shops.

The nature and value of vocational training in any school depends almost wholly upon where the emphasis is placed in determining the immediate aims and ultimate objectives of the work to be undertaken. In several schools there is a tendency to over-emphasize the cultural or general educational values and to minimize the immediate practical value of the school training. There is no doubt regarding the added cultural and educational values secured by introducing such subjects as mechanical drawing, printing, woodworking, and machine shop practice into the curriculum of the academic high school. It is doubtful, however, that these added values justify the expense of installing machinery and equipment such as used in vocational schools. If, on the other hand, the practical value of the training is emphasized, it becomes necessary to train pupils on equipment and under conditions similar to those in industry and the school must either provide fully equipped shops or co-operate with local industrial plants so that pupils may receive a part of their training in employment.

Co-operation with industry in no way weakens the purely educational value of the school work and it greatly enhances the practical value of the training. Examples illustrating the value of such co-operation are to be found in connection with the schools at Montreal, Shawinigan Falls, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Windsor, Saskatoon, Calgary and Vancouver. A splendid start has been made, particularly at Hamilton and Montreal, but the success of these schools emphasizes the need for co-operative action in all parts of the Dominion.

Perhaps the chief reason for the lack of intimate contact and co-operation between schools and industry is the fact that very few persons possess the industrial knowledge and experience which gives them a sympathetic understanding of industrial conditions and requirements and who, at the same time, possess the educational qualifications and experience which qualify them for positions of responsibility in connection with the schools. There is urgent need for such individuals to act as co-ordinating officers who will bring the schools and industrial organizations closer together in their efforts to provide skilled, intelligent workers for Canadian industry.

The city of Toronto engages a full-time officer to do such work for the central technical school and its branches, but in most municipalities the principal and teachers are expected to do this work during their spare time. In London, three members of the staff are assigned to such work during a certain number of hours each week. In a few other municipalities officials of the school board or vocational committee undertake to establish and maintain friendly relations between the school and local employers. Nevertheless, it is evident that the large majority of employers in the various municipalities are not familiar with the work of the schools and do not appreciate the possibilities and value of co-operative action.

Notwithstanding this lack of information and appreciation on the part of many employers and the tendency in a number of schools to over-emphasize the cultural values of vocational training, the schools in Canada are doing good work and the prospects of future developments are bright. The following brief summaries of developments during the past year give some idea of the nature and extent of vocational education in each province. More detailed descriptions of the work are given in the appended reports of the provincial directors.

SUMMARY OF DEVELOPMENTS

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

At the last session of Parliament effect was given to the following recommendation of the Royal Commission on Maritime Claims:—

“In Prince Edward Island there are no large industries which would justify the establishment of an institution for technical education. As agriculture is their principal interest, the Provincial Government suggested that the technical education legislation should be given a broad application in their case, and that agricultural education should be deemed to be covered by the term ‘technical education’. We recommend this suggestion to the favourable notice of the department.”

The recognition of agricultural instruction in Prince Edward Island did not affect the work during the past year, but preparations were made to extend the agricultural program and teachers were sent to New Brunswick and the United States for special training. Evening school work was started in six new centres during the past winter but classes were discontinued in three places. The total enrolment in evening classes decreased from 423 for the preceding year to 390 for the year ended in June, 1927. There was a decrease in day classes from 234 to 191.

NOVA SCOTIA

Nova Scotia reports a decrease in the total enrolment in evening classes from 2,789 to 2,387, but in day classes there was an increase from 213 to 260. The number of active pupils in the correspondence department increased from 725 to 888, but there were fewer new pupils than for the preceding year. New developments in Nova Scotia were a summer school for teachers conducted in the technical college at Halifax, and a summer course in home economics for rural teachers at the Truro Normal College. An interesting feature of the Halifax summer school was the course in vocational guidance taught by Dr. F. H. Sexton and Mr. A. T. Jewitt.

NEW BRUNSWICK

Mr. W. K. Tibert was appointed in October, 1926, to succeed Mr. F. Peacock as Director of Vocational Education. Mr. Peacock resigned to become principal of the new vocational school at St. John, which was opened in September with an initial enrolment of over 500 pupils. The building and equipment are modern in every respect and it is expected that very effective work will be done in this school.

Very satisfactory progress is being made in New Brunswick which now has six academic-vocational or composite high schools at Campbellton, Edmundston, Fredericton, Newcastle, St. John, and Woodstock. Enrolments in day classes more than doubled last year, increasing from 561 to 1,226, while the number of pupils in evening classes increased from 1,433 to 1,792. The number of teachers in training increased from 48 to 72.

QUEBEC

Vocational education in Quebec is undergoing rapid changes and developments which tend to bring about closer co-operation between the different branches of the work. Under the Technical or Professional Schools Act, which came into force on November 1, 1926, the three provincial technical schools, the two provincial schools of fine arts, and the school of higher commercial studies in Montreal are grouped together under the title of technical or professional schools. A provincial board or corporation has taken over the administration and ownership of the above-mentioned schools, and staff appointments are made through this corporation by the Provincial Secretary or Lieutenant-Governor in Council. Provision is made for the appointment of a "Council of Improvement" and a "Board of Patrons" for each technical school, but the control of the schools is centralized in the corporation.

An important development in connection with the technical schools is the organization of trade school courses in wood and metal working trades. These courses cover two years and are designed to assist boys in selecting a suitable trade and to prepare them for remunerative employment in the chosen occupation. The school for printing apprentices in Montreal has been very successful and considerable progress has been made in establishing a similar school for the building trades. Arrangements have been made with the Annuities Branch of the Department of Labour, Ottawa, to establish a pension fund for technical teachers, the contributions to which will be shared equally by the teachers and the Provincial Government.

The total enrolment in all vocational classes on which federal grants are paid increased from 9,732 to 11,796, and progress in all branches of the work was very satisfactory. Last year Quebec spent more than any other province and expenditures in this province are rapidly increasing.

ONTARIO

The work in Ontario continues to grow in a steady and encouraging manner. The increase in day class enrolment over that of the previous year was 2,158, and for evening classes 2,751. The total enrolment in all vocational classes was 59,661, over one-half of the total enrolment for the whole Dominion.

The provincial Department of Education conducts three agricultural schools at Ridgetown, Renfrew, and Beamsville. These are included in the report for statistical purposes only. The province earns more than its total appropriation on other branches of the work, so that the agricultural work is not considered when calculating the grants under the Technical Education Act.

Building operations were planned or under way during the year at Port Arthur, Belleville, Timmins, Peterborough, Toronto, and London. The plans at London are for the third addition to this thriving school.

Considerable attention has been given during the past year to the needs of smaller cities and towns in Ontario and it is hoped that suitable programs and organizations for such places may be worked out in the near future.

Arrangements have been made with the University of Toronto for a special matriculation course for technical school pupils which substitutes arithmetic, mechanical drawing, and shopwork for Latin, etc. The employment records of graduates, mentioned in the provincial director's report, indicate that the schools are co-operating with industry and that the value of industrial education is being appreciated in Ontario.

MANITOBA

There have been no new developments in Manitoba during the past year, but Mr. S. T. Newton was appointed Director of Technical Education at the beginning of the current school year, and the outlook for the future is promising. The number of pupils enrolled in day vocational classes was 2,155, and in evening classes 1,200. These figures show a slight decrease in evening classes and an increase in day classes.

SASKATCHEWAN

Commercial classes in Saskatchewan continue to thrive in three cities, but the other branches of vocational education have not yet been developed except in evening classes in Regina and Saskatoon. The total enrolments for day and evening vocational classes were 755 and 939 respectively, a decrease in day classes but an increase of nearly 45 per cent in evening classes.

ALBERTA

Progress in Alberta during the past year was very satisfactory. There were no new developments of importance, the growth of the provincial Institute of Technology and Art in Calgary being the outstanding feature of the year's work. The total enrolment in all classes at this institution shows an increase of 395 over the preceding year. New shop accommodation has been added and the work of the institute is expanding very rapidly. Students come from all parts of the province and the school is unable to accommodate all applicants for instruction. The total enrolment for last year was 1,273, divided as follows: day classes, 538; evening, 523; and correspondence, 212.

The total enrolment in day classes throughout the province was 2,034 and in evening classes 2,107, a small increase in day classes and a decrease of 20 in evening classes.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

The work in British Columbia is being extended and considerable progress was made during the past year. There was an increase in the enrolments in both day and evening classes, the totals for the year being 3,272 and 5,176 respectively. For the first time, the British Columbia report gives the number of individuals enrolled in evening classes (5,176) as well as the total enrolment in all classes, which amounted to 6,366. The difference between the two figures is accounted for by the fact that a number of pupils enroll in more than one class.

Commercial classes predominate in British Columbia, and the instruction provided in these classes appears to be meeting the needs of the pupils who enter business occupations. The establishment of the new technical institute for Greater Vancouver, plans of which are being prepared, will have a very strong influence on the development of industrial courses and will assist in the development of industries throughout the province.

The contemplated extension of correspondence instruction will help to solve the problem of providing suitable instruction for small scattered communities where day classes are not feasible and where trained instructors are not available.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

W. Boulter, Deputy Minister of Agriculture

During the year ending June 30, 1927, the following courses were offered in connection with the Technical Education Act:—

1. Short term courses in home economics, including millinery, dressmaking, laundry, home nursing, household administration, accounts and English reading.
2. Short term courses in motor mechanics, woodworking, blacksmithing, civics, commercial arithmetic, English reading and drawing.
3. Special short course for cheese and butter makers, followed by visits of instructors to factories for inspection, observation and demonstration.
4. Commercial course of two years open to students having completed two years of high school work.
5. Night school courses for day workers, to fit them for advancement.

ENROLMENT

The total enrolment for the school year was 581, and the numbers registered by courses were as follows:—

Course 1, 14; Course 2, 128; Course 3, 34; (individual instruction at factories) Course 4, 15; Course 5, 390.

The year under review has been very satisfactory from the standpoint of vocational education. The work carried on has not differed materially from that of previous years. It had been planned to commence the evening classes earlier in the autumn, but owing to the extremely busy season during the harvesting and shipping of potatoes this was not carried into effect.

It will be noted that the number of night schools throughout the rural communities has increased considerably.

Both in the short course and the school course the woodworking program has been made intensely practical, the young men planning and making articles of furniture in a very creditable manner. At the close of the short course a very fine exhibit of handiwork was held in the assembly hall of Prince of Wales College.

The commercial course carried on in connection with Prince of Wales College is being well maintained. At the annual closing exercises of the institution held on May 27 a number of students received certificates, having completed satisfactorily the two years' course.

In view of the recognition now given to agriculture as a technical subject it is expected that the night classes will be considerably increased and special attention devoted to this phase of technical work. Several of our teachers and inspectors have taken summer courses at Cornell and Mt. Allison Universities with a view to assisting in carrying on this line of endeavour.

NOVA SCOTIA

REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR OF TECHNICAL EDUCATION

Dr. F. H. Sexton

Unfortunately a decrease in registration and attendance must be recorded in the vocational schools for the current year. In the evening technical classes the number diminished from 2,198 in 1925-26 to 1,907 in the present year. For the corresponding periods the registration in the evening coal mining schools dropped from 542 to 480. The change in the total enrolment was from 2,789 to 2,387.

The reason for the decrease is probably due to the continued industrial depression in the province. The strike which had prevailed in the coal mines was settled and the mines operated briskly on a good demand for coal. However, so much time had been lost and so many obligations had been incurred that a good deal of time was necessary before normal conditions were restored. The whole credit structure of business in the province had been badly strained and it was months after the resumption of work by the miners before affairs were proceeding on an ordinary basis again. During this period young men and women were leaving the province in large numbers to seek employment in other Canadian provinces or in the United States. The mass of people in the province seemed apathetic to means of improving their education, technical or otherwise, when there seemed no special openings for trained workers, and hence did not register in the evening schools in as large numbers. There were other contributory reasons for decreased attendance, but the main factor was the mass psychology of industrial and commercial depression. During the last few months of the year there seemed to be a continually growing hope and confidence in the future based on the report of the Duncan Commission and the ready action of the Dominion Parliament in putting the recommendations of the commission into immediate effect. The people in the province are becoming more confident and buoyant and the immediate future seems more promising. These conditions will no doubt react more favourably for education as well as for business and the evening technical classes be attended as fully as they were five years ago.

NOVA SCOTIA COLLEGE OF ART

The total enrolment for the current year was slightly less than in the previous year, but the number of full-time pupils increased.

More attention was paid to applied design and the students carried out many practical projects, such as batik, mufflers, posters, menu cards, Christmas greeting cards, score cards, etc. Many of the pupils were able to execute special orders satisfactorily and help pay college expenses. Black and white work for the local newspapers and for the Nova Scotia Tourist Association was executed and offered valuable practical experience. The college avidly searched for and carried out any worthy projects which would enhance their power.

Drawing from life was much enlarged this year because of more ample provisions for models. The craft section of the college has expanded its activities and now covers basketry, weaving, leather work of all sorts, bookbinding, linocuts, and woodwork in colour. The work that the college has done during the past few years in giving special afternoon classes to the public school teachers is bearing good fruit. The teachers are now able to deal with this subject much more effectively and a growing appreciation of art is in evidence among the present school population.

The graduates are finding employment and are showing the thoroughness of their training by their achievements in many lines of work. Students from the college who go to other institutions for further training take high places in their classes. The work of the college is highly commendable and deserves far better accommodation and equipment. The staff and the spirit of the pupils could scarcely be improved.

CORRESPONDENCE STUDY DIVISION

The enrolment numbered by the new courses was 362, as against 410 for last year. The number of individuals enrolled was correspondingly 235 and 273. The total number of active students increased from 725 to 888. This branch showed a decrease as well as others. Probably the same reasons are behind this falling off as in the case of the evening technical classes.

No new courses have been added during the year but the efforts of the staff have been concentrated upon the improvement of the instruction with gratifying results.

TEACHER TRAINING

A class was formed in home economics for teachers in the rural schools. These school teachers take a short summer course at the Normal College in Truro to make them better fitted to fill their positions in the rural communities.

The home economics course had to be abbreviated because it had to be compressed into a period of three weeks. The instruction covered the following range:—

- (1) Food selection for health maintenance,
- (2) Value of the school lunch,
- (3) Preparation of school lunch in rural schools,
- (4) Cooking of common foods,
- (5) Canning and preserving,
- (6) Judging foods for school fairs.

The course consisted of a series of lectures, supplemented by adequate practical work in the kitchen. Seventy-three teachers enrolled in the subject. All of them had had one or more years of experience in teaching a rural school and were returning to the same work. It is felt that this course will do a great deal of good in the added knowledge and proficiency of these teachers in their country schools.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS

During the summer, the Department of Education conducted its first summer school for teachers in Halifax. There was a wide and generous program of courses, and over 200 teachers from all parts of the province registered for work. Practically all of the instruction was carried out in the technical college. The Technical Education Branch was asked to give a course of thirty lectures on vocational guidance. These were carried out by Dr. F. H. Sexton and Mr. A. T. Jewitt. The students in this course consisted of principals and supervisors of schools who felt that some measures should be taken even in smaller towns for the guidance of youth towards their proper life work.

The following subjects were included in the course:—

Definition of vocational guidance; need of guidance in modern life; modern conceptions of the purpose and aims of education; how to educate the public to the importance of guidance; how to find out interests, aptitudes, and abilities of school pupils; educational guidance; agencies of assistance in vocational guidance; survey of vocational interests of pupils in schools; school attendance and elimination; survey of occupational opportunities of community; organization of vocational guidance bureau; preparation, equipment, and duties of vocational counsellor; elements of a satisfactory vocation; remuneration, preparation required; mental and physical demands, temperamental demands; opportunities for employment and advancement.

How to study and record personal aptitudes and abilities; school records; intelligence and achievement records; special tests for aptitudes and abilities; try-out courses in industry; value of phrenology, physiognomy, graphology, and astrology.

General and special intelligence tests, directed self-analysis, principles and methods for individual vocational choice.

Placement and supervision in employment; entrance to first job; advisability of changing jobs; avenues through which jobs may be secured; steps in placement and subsequent supervision in work; rating scales in industry; education and training of worker in industry.

Some of the men who attended the course declared their intention of trying to organize some form of vocational guidance in the communities in which they worked. It is most desirable that the school shall be organically linked with industry and that each individual should be helped to find and be placed in the occupation for which he is best fitted.

DOMINION GRANTS

The end of the period is approaching during which the Dominion is enabled by the Technical Education Act of 1919 to give grants to the provinces to assist in carrying on secondary vocational education. These subsidies have been of paramount importance in promoting and maintaining this branch of education in Nova Scotia. There is no doubt but that the provincial program would have had to be seriously curtailed in the last few years on account of financial stringency if the federal assistance had not been forthcoming. At the present time the whole education system of the province is being investigated and overhauled in preparation for radical development and extension. Secondary vocational education should be extensively enlarged because there are no technical high schools in the province at present. If financial aid from the Dominion is made possible by the re-enactment of the Technical Education Act of 1919 or some other substantial assistance of this kind for another period of years or as a continuous policy as in the United States and Great Britain, vocational education in the province will forge ahead accordingly. If such federal grants are discontinued in 1929, it is certain that even the present activities in evening technical classes, correspondence study, and short courses will have to be seriously curtailed. The increase of Dominion subsidy to Nova Scotia recently granted on the basis of a recommendation by the Duncan commission will yield nothing for education because it is only adequate to balance the present modest provincial budget. The federal aid is, therefore, necessary to Nova Scotia in trying to provide for its young people some of the facilities in technical training that now exist in the larger and wealthier provinces.

NEW BRUNSWICK

REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR OF VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

W. K. Tibert

The year 1926-27 witnessed considerable expansion along vocational education lines in New Brunswick. Enrolments in day classes more than doubled. Eight day schools were in operation with a total enrolment of 1,226, an increase of 168 per cent over the previous year. Full time day teachers now number 58, an increase of 93 per cent. The evening school enrolment reached 2,259, an increase of 28 per cent. Seventy-two teachers and prospective teachers received training during the year, forty-seven in the provincial summer school and twenty-five in institutions outside of the province.

DEVELOPMENT

The St. John Vocational School was completed during the early part of the year and was opened during the month of September with an enrolment of over five hundred. The Campbellton Composite High School was also opened in September. The enrolment in the vocational departments was far in excess of what was expected. Excellent work has been done in these schools during the year and an increasing interest has been manifest. In fact, the same can be said of all communities in which vocational education is being taught.

SHORT COURSES

The only short courses attempted during the year were in automotive electricity and oxy-acetylene welding. These courses were held in the St. John Vocational School building during the months of January, February, and March. The work done was very satisfactory and it is hoped that during the coming year this work may be expanded to meet the ever increasing need.

TEACHER TRAINING

The New Brunswick Vocational Education Board held a summer school at St. John during July, 1926, for the professional improvement of teachers of home economics and commercial subjects. The former was conducted along the same lines as in previous years and was under the supervision of Miss Sarah M. Barnett, B.Sc., Provincial Supervisor of Home Making Departments. The commercial teachers of the province conducted their institute over a period of three weeks.

Through the kind co-operation of Mr. Pointing, of the Sir Isaac Pitman Company of Toronto, a very interesting lecture was given by Mr. Nathan Behrin, the world's champion shorthand writer. Mr. Renshaw, of the Gregg Publishing Company, gave two days' demonstration of the Gregg system which was much appreciated.

Through the co-operation of the United Typewriter Company, a series of conferences and demonstrations on the best method of typewriting was given by Mr. Fred Jarrett, formerly the champion typist of Canada. Mr. A. F. Sprott, of the Commercial Text Book Company of Toronto, and the author of the book-keeping text that is being used throughout the province, spent four days at the school giving excellent courses in book-keeping, penmanship, and office practice. Two interesting lectures on elementary economics were delivered by Mr. C. K. Ganong, of the University of Wisconsin. Demonstrations of the latest office appliances were presented by Mr. A. C. L. Tapley and others. Daily committee meetings on course construction were held under the chairmanship of Mr. W. G. Jones, of Newcastle. This committee worked out a complete commercial course for the high schools which will help the work very much throughout the whole province.

The policy of assisting teachers to attend institutions outside the province was continued and most of the industrial teachers studied abroad. Because we have no normal school in New Brunswick for preparing vocational teachers, it seems very practical to have them attend standard institutions outside. Each teacher who is assisted to do this is placed under a definite contract to serve in his native province when called upon to do so. It is interesting to note that practically all those who have received government aid in this connection are working within the province and bringing to our schools the benefit of their special training.

PERSONNEL

Mr. W. K. Tibert was appointed in October to succeed Mr. Fletcher Peacock, who resigned as Director of Vocational Education.

Miss Marion Sterling was appointed as Clerk Accountant, succeeding Miss Marguerite L. Taylor, resigned.

Up to the time of this report no successor to Miss Sarah M. Barnett, B.Sc., who resigned from the position of Supervisor of Home Economics, has been appointed.

QUEBEC

REPORT OF THE GENERAL DIRECTOR OF TECHNICAL EDUCATION

Dr. A. Frigon

The coming into force of a new law governing the technical schools of the province on November 1, 1926, which superseded the law passed in 1907, has modified the situation as regards the control of our schools. At present, the technical schools in Quebec, Montreal and Hull, the fine-arts schools in Quebec and Montreal, and the Ecole des Hautes Etudes Commerciales are all grouped together under the name of technical or professional schools. The directors of the fine-arts schools and the Ecole des Hautes Etudes Commerciales are responsible directly to the Honourable the Secretary of the Province. The General Director of Technical Education is also responsible to the Honourable the Secretary of the Province for the operation of the three technical schools above mentioned, and for the supervision of all schools and courses giving instruction in industrial subjects, and which are subsidized by the province. This means, in effect, that the financial and administrative control of the three technical schools in Quebec, Montreal and Hull has been centralized with the General Director of Technical Education. By thus establishing a central authority, a better co-ordination in the administration of the principal technical schools in the province will be obtained. The effectiveness of this new system has already been proved in many ways. Until last fall, the three technical schools were controlled by local corporations which were, according to law, absolutely free to act as they pleased, except in a few special instances, although most of the money spent came from the Provincial Government and bond issues covering the cost of buildings and equipment were also guaranteed by the province. The situation was not entirely satisfactory in spite of the good-will and interest shown by the different individuals and bodies concerned. At present the control is entirely within the Provincial Secretary's Department and a very close contact is maintained with industry by appointing committees which act in an advisory capacity, not only by helping in the direction and administration of the schools, but also by making suggestions in connection with the various courses or group of courses.

One of the most important innovations which has been adopted for many years is the organization in the Montreal Technical School of a new course which, for the lack of a better expression, is called "The Trade's School Course." This new course will supplement the "Technical" course whose aim is to prepare "technicians," i.e., those who are qualified to occupy in industry an intermediate position between the mechanic and the engineer. The technical course, we believe, answers a definite purpose and is supplying the province with a number of well qualified men who are able to look after the production end of manufacturing and industrial organizations. The rather high standard of this course, however, prevented a large number of boys from benefiting from our schools. These young men belong to that class of boys who leave the ordinary school, possibly a little too soon, but who are anxious to learn something about a trade in a day school. The program of the new trade's school course covers a period of about two years, of which about four-fifths is devoted to shop work, the balance of the time being spent in the class-room where the elementary mathematics and drawing relating to the trade chosen are taught. The following trade's school courses have been established: toolmaking, patternmaking, carpentry, cabinetmaking, machine shop, foundry, and blacksmithing. At the beginning of the first year each student spends two weeks in each of the four basic shops: machine shop, woodworking, foundry, and smithy, and he then selects the particular shop in which he stays until the end of the course. When a boy finishes this course, he will have the fundamentals of his trade and will have acquired a certain dexterity which will qualify him for a good paying job. These not being apprenticeship courses, he will then have to settle with the local organizations the question of his admission as a journeyman; but, whatever the situation may be in this respect, the knowledge and experience he has already acquired at school will give him a great advantage over his fellow men. The programs of the trade's school and technical courses have been so arranged that it is possible for a student to shift from one to the other during the first term of the first year. These trade school courses were started in Montreal last fall, and similar courses will be inaugurated in Quebec and Hull in the fall of 1927. We have had very good results during the first year, and we expect that many more students will choose the new course rather than the technical course, which is longer and more difficult.

The apprenticeship course for the printing trade in Montreal has been well attended, the number of students being about what was expected. We feel that this course is giving full satisfaction. We have added an evening class for pressmen with very good results. The success we have had with the scheme adopted for this course has justified us in applying the same principle to the organization of the building trade courses. This is now under way and we hope to start, sometime next year, part-time courses for apprentice bricklayers, masons, plasterers, carpenters and tile setters. The situation in this case, however, is much more complicated as we have to secure the co-operation of some fourteen or fifteen different labour organizations, some of which are more or less antagonistic to each other. However, meetings which have already been held show that representatives of all the groups interested are very much in favour of some sort of trade courses. They have been assured that the aim of the technical schools is merely to provide special instruction for those apprentices who are worth while looking after and not to put on the market a large number of new workers; in other words, the intention is to provide quality rather than quantity.

An industrial course, similar to that which was organized in Grand'Mere some years ago, was inaugurated last fall at the College of La Tuque. This course provides instruction along industrial lines for the students of the regular commercial course who receive a certain number of hours' practice in the machine shop during the last four years of their course, after which they have an option to follow either a three years' advanced commercial course, or a three years' technical course. If we may judge by the results already obtained in Grand'Mere, this new school should produce very interesting results.

We are at present adding considerably to the shop equipment of the Montreal and Quebec schools. Additional floor space is being provided in Montreal, and a quantity of machinery, which will enable the boys of the trade's school course to work on a production basis, has been secured. The Montreal school is especially well equipped and has shops of which we may very well be proud.

Instead of organizing normal courses for technical teachers, we have continued the policy of sending young men abroad, to enable them, not only to acquire an efficient knowledge of their particular trade, but also to get familiar with the methods practiced in other schools. We find this system satisfactory for the present, and it offers us an opportunity to give certain advantages to our most brilliant graduates.

The technical magazine Technique is now appearing every month except in July and August. We have been successful in securing a certain number of interesting articles, and we hope that this publication will help us to sell, so to speak, the idea of technical education in this province.

We have been encouraged throughout the year by a good many industrial firms, but I would like to mention, in particular, the Shawinigan Water and Power Company, which has offered numerous cash prizes, to be distributed every year to the students of the Quebec, Three-Rivers, Grand'Mere and Shawinigan Technical schools. It is hoped that other big industrial organizations will follow this fine example.

The results obtained by the fine-arts schools in Quebec and Montreal continue to be remarkable. Every year a great number of candidates are refused admission and those admitted are selected from more than double their number after a competitive examination. Some of the graduates and even the students of these schools have won great success in competitions open to all comers, and organized by different American and Canadian bodies. The graduates of the industrial art section secure positions with very little difficulty and there is no doubt but that these two schools will do a great deal towards creating a demand for better artistic treatment of whatever may be offered to the public in the province.

The correspondence course, established by the Ecole des Hautes Etudes Commerciales two years ago, is doing very nicely, with a steadily increasing enrolment. Evening classes in commercial and similar subjects given by the school are always very popular and are attended by a very good class of students. The same is true of the three-year day course, which is being continually improved by the appointment of new teachers and an increase in teaching facilities. A new building has been purchased and the library located there, thus making room for the correspondence course.

A pension fund will be created and negotiations are now under way with the Department of Labour in Ottawa, in order that the annuity system of the Federal Government may be utilized. The main principles upon which this fund will be based are as follows:—

Every member of the staff who is appointed in the future will be obliged to participate in the pension fund, and shall authorize that 5 per cent be retained from his salary towards payment of the premium. The Government will pay an additional 5 per cent and will deposit the total premium in accordance with a signed contract as between each individual, the Honourable the Provincial Secretary and the proper authorities of the Annuity Branch of the Department of Labour. One of the clauses of the agreement stipulates that the teacher must retire as soon as he has reached the age of sixty-five except in a few special cases. All the present members of the various staffs will be asked to join the system, and we have every reason to believe that all of them will be glad to do so.

Generally speaking, we are still in a period of reorganization, but we are rapidly finding our bearings, and feel that we are making good progress.

REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR OF TECHNICAL EDUCATION

D. A. Campbell

PROGRESS DURING THE YEAR

DAY SCHOOLS

Judged by the increase in the number of full-time teachers employed, or by the number of pupils enrolled, the day vocational schools of the province have shown a healthy growth during the school year 1926-27. During the past six years the number of full-time teachers employed in day vocational work has grown from 191 to 607, and during the same period the number of pupils has grown from 2,600 to 17,359, which represents an increase of 568 per cent. The increase during the year was 2,158 pupils, or 14 per cent more than that of the previous year. This expansion in one year would be sufficient to fill four schools, each holding 500 pupils. This has resulted in making the total enrolment in vocational day schools approximately 25 per cent of the pupils enrolled in other secondary schools of the province; and it may be predicted that, for some years to come, the growth in vocational enrolment will be rapid.

The total number of full-time day schools open throughout the year was thirty-eight, including three agricultural schools, one at Renfrew, one at Beamsville, and one at Ridgetown. In addition, three full-time day schools in navigation and marine engineering were in operation at Kingston, Midland and Collingwood during the months of January, February and March.

The total number of part-time pupils attending day schools decreased from 2,743 in the previous year to 2,729 in 1926-27. This represents a decrease of .51 per cent.

EVENING SCHOOLS

Evening schools were carried on in sixty-two places. The total enrolment was 37,977, an increase of 2,751 over that of 1925-26.

A steady enrolment of 35,000 during each of the last four years is a clear indication of a demand for such adult education which is province wide.

Evening schools are operating at Niagara Falls in the south, and at Timmins and Iroquois Falls, 600 miles away, in the north; at Brockville and Ottawa in the east; and at Windsor and at Fort William, 900 miles away, in the west, with well-developed schools at intermediate points. The evening school program is of a varied nature adapted to meet local needs.

It is not the intention to describe the nature of the courses offered in the evening schools nor to mention the places where classes are in operation. Improvement is shown everywhere in courses offered and in teaching. A greater emphasis is being given to the selection of courses of vocational value, and in filling the classes with students who will find most direct benefit from attendance. The following classes are indicative:—

The woodworking classes at Owen Sound deal with furniture design and factory accounting. Four foremen and seven journeymen from the woodworking factories of the city are attending the classes. At Barrie, North Bay and Sudbury, effective work is done in telegraphy in the evening classes to prepare students for work as station agents on the railway lines. These are cited as instances of good evening school programs.

NEW SCHOOLS

Though no extensive building program was undertaken during the year, satisfactory progress was made in the erection of new buildings and additions.

Port Arthur, Belleville, Timmins and Peterborough have taken definite steps to provide day vocational education. The proposal at Belleville is to build a composite school with academic, commercial, technical, and home-making departments. The site and plans have been approved by the minister. The proposal at Port Arthur is to put up a building for commercial, technical, and home-making education, separate from the present collegiate institute. The site and scheme of organization have also been approved. Timmins has grown to such a size that the board is planning an addition to the present high school building, with provision for instruction in mining, machine shop practice, woodworking, commercial work, and home economics. The minister has approved the plans and specifications. The plans and specifications submitted by Peterborough provide for an addition to the present collegiate institute building with woodworking, machine, and electric shops, and accommodation for the teaching of household science, mechanical drawing, and commercial work. These plans have the minister's approval.

Proposals have been made by the advisory committees of the Board of Education of Toronto to erect in the west end of the city a large building to be used for instruction in technical and in commercial education. This portion of the city is at present without either type.

A new school at Ridgetown to provide agriculture and homemaking instruction was completed in September, 1926, with Mr. Norman Davies, B.A., as principal. A satisfactory beginning has been made. A first year course in agriculture was given to a class of boys in the day school. A three months' course in agriculture was in operation for a class of young men from the farming districts, and a full-time day course was started for girls in home-making.

A third addition to the London Technical and Commercial High School is planned to provide an auditorium and gymnasium.

TECHNICAL SCHOOLS IN SMALLER TOWNS

The problem of providing technical education in the smaller cities and towns has been receiving the attention of officers of the department. The question has been brought to their attention by school boards which are faced with the problem of enlarging their high school accommodation.

Several such places were visited during the year by officers of the technical branch, and the whole question was fully discussed with the boards concerned. The provisions of the Vocational Education Act were explained. The expenditures involved and the requirements and conditions which are necessary to ensure the establishment of a successful vocational school were gone into. This new field of work in the smaller places will receive the careful consideration of officers of this branch.

Experience shows that care needs to be exercised so that local boards may not undertake an ambitious program which ultimately imposes too great a financial burden upon somewhat limited resources. An undertaking to organize such work may seem possible under given conditions of energetic promotion by certain members of the local board and teaching staff. By a swift change in the personnel of one or two of these promoting bodies, the future success of the scheme may be seriously jeopardized. It has been considered wise, therefore, to make sure that the demand for technical work is soundly based upon the need and demand of the community.

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENTS

Many centres throughout the province, including Woodstock, Kingston, Scarborough and Stratford, have made application to have their commercial departments brought under the Technical Education Branch. Of these, several have made serious attempts to conform with the Vocational Regulations, and, when these have been complied with, the departments will be accepted. During the year, Stratford was accepted.

IMPROVEMENT IN TEACHING

A significant advance in shop instruction has been noted recently in many technical schools of the province. This is due, in part, to the fact that the teachers are gaining experience in the professional side of their work, but in greater part the advance is due to the training they received in the art and practice of teaching at the Ontario Training College for Technical Teachers at Hamilton. The improvement is shown in the general attitude of the teacher towards his work, in his organization of the subject matter into units and sequences, in the adaptation of the course to the level of the pupil's understanding, and in adjustment of the work to the rate of progress of the pupils. Attention is given to class instruction in addition to the individual instruction which is always prominent in shop work. Improvement is therefore noted in time-saving devices, in organization of work, in class management, in procedure and in the mechanics of teaching generally.

MATRICULATION COURSES FOR TECHNICAL SCHOOLS

The University of Toronto has established a matriculation course for students in technical schools who are candidates for admission to the first year in the Faculty of Applied Science. It is stated in the Calendar for 1927-28 that one of the options may be arithmetic (special paper on a prescribed course). Certificates from the principal of the school in mechanical drawing and shop work, accompanied by an approving certificate from the Provincial Director of Technical Education, are required.

A similar option in home economics is under consideration by the university for students from technical schools who wish to enter the household economics courses at the university.

No approval for provincial grants is given to other matriculation courses in the technical schools.

EDUCATION FOR OCCUPATIONS

The undoubted purpose of the vocational schools is to prepare young people to enter into employment with sufficient initial training to fit them for success and increase their "earning capacity, efficiency and productive power", as is stated in the federal Technical Education Act.

On account of their quite recent establishment, some schools are unable as yet to furnish much concrete evidence that the purpose mentioned above is being attained. Many of the schools are in the process of turning out their first graduates. These are being accepted readily into business and industry, and as beginners are to be depended upon to prove the worth of the type of vocational education they received. In various ways employers acknowledge the value and soundness of the training given in the vocational schools. In Hamilton the apprentices in certain industries are required to attend the Hamilton Technical Institute for part-time instruction. In Windsor the Ford Motor Company accepts in its tool-making department only graduates from the Windsor-Walkerville Technical School. In Ottawa printing apprentices are in attendance at the technical school. In Kitchener one firm requires its apprentices to attend the evening classes of the technical school.

In addition to this evidence of appreciation, there are also numerous individual successes. The most prominent architect in one of the smaller cities of the province received all his early training at the Central Technical School at Toronto. The schools which have been graduating students for some years are able to supply many similar instances. The type of training given prepares young people to take their places at a lathe or bench in a machine shop, at a switchboard in a power plant, in a repair department of a garage, in an alteration or sales department of a dressmaking shop, in office work with financial companies, and in many fields where vocational training and skill are required.

Some interesting figures have been compiled from information supplied by Mr. W. H. Tuke, principal of the Mining School at Haileybury, and Mr. James Hill, the mining instructor at that school. At my request they endeavoured to determine the present occupation of as many of their graduates as possible. The total number of graduates from the mining school in any one year has been small, but the proportion which entered upon mining work has been large. The information obtained has entailed considerable labour upon the part of Mr. Tuke and Mr. Hill. Its value is undoubted, and the department's appreciation is hereby expressed.

MANITOBA

REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR OF TECHNICAL EDUCATION

S. T. Newton

During the year ended June 30, 1927, technical education has held its own, despite the insistent demand for rigid economy in public expenditure.

No new developments have taken place owing to uncertainty in regard to the continuation of the federal Technical Education Act, since it has seemed inadvisable to start new work which might have to be dropped on account of finances.

Manitoba appears to be on the eve of great development in the mining and pulp and paper industries; local manufacturing concerns are beginning to expand and should be able in a year or so to absorb a considerable number of vocationally trained boys and girls.

Winnipeg being essentially a commercial city, the business courses continue to attract a great number of pupils, and the commercial classes at the St. John's, Kelvin and Daniel McIntyre High Schools, the Earl Grey, Machray, Isaac Newton, Lord Selkirk and Lord Roberts Junior High Schools, were well filled. The practical arts or home-making course for girls was also very popular, while many of the senior pupils in the technical classes have expressed a strong desire to enter the industries, and it is hoped, by developing a placement service, to get a number of the industries to co-operate with the high schools on a part-time basis.

Outside of Winnipeg the commercial classes in St. Vital, St. Boniface and Norwood, and the home-making classes at Teulon, have been very successful.

Practically all of the teachers in the day schools were on a part-time basis, that is, in addition to teaching the vocational classes they had several classes from the junior high schools, which are taking work in the various shops with the idea of finding their aptitudes. They also had pupils from the senior high schools who were taking shop work because of the general educational value it offered in broadening their viewpoint concerning industries and giving them some experience in operating machines and in the processes of production so necessary since young persons reared under modern urban conditions have little opportunity to obtain contact with the economic processes in the productive industries.

The evening schools continue along strictly vocational lines and a number of industries now insist on a definite portion of time being spent in the evening schools by apprentices before a journeyman's license is granted.

The evening courses offered at the Kelvin Technical High School were as follows:—

Dressmaking, millinery, cookery, drawing and design, practical electricity, first and second and third years, radio and auto mechanics, shop work, wood-turning and pattern-working, carpentry, cabinetmaking, book-keeping, stenography and typewriting.

The same courses were given at the St. John's High School, except that sign writing was given instead of drawing and design.

The work at the Daniel McIntyre High School was confined to the commercial courses and matriculation.

English for adult Canadians of foreign birth was provided at the Strathcona, Norquay and Maple Leaf Schools in Winnipeg. The attendance at these schools was very regular, the interest keen and the progress of the pupils in mastering our language was very gratifying.

Below is given in tabulated form a synopsis of the work done:—

Number of day schools in which vocational instruction is given.....	12
Number of teachers in day schools giving instruction in either academic or technical subjects with vocational classes.....	267
Number of pupils enrolled in day school vocational classes.....	1,944
Number of evening schools in which vocational instruction is given.....	3
Number of teachers in evening schools, technical.....	39
Number of pupils enrolled in evening schools, technical.....	1,074
Number of schools in which English for non-English is given.....	3
Number of teachers for English in non-English classes.....	21
Number of pupils in non-English classes.....	630

In the correspondence courses in steam engineering, keen interest has been maintained and less than 5 per cent of the thirty-five pupils enrolled have dropped out during the three years that these courses have been in operation and fully one-third of the students taking them have been promoted because of their increased skill and knowledge. A good deal of the success is due to the hearty co-operation of the Bureau of Labour and to the careful suggestive correction of papers by the Engineering Department of the University of Manitoba.

Correspondence work in commercial art has been arranged for and plans are under way whereby correspondence courses will be offered in all lines of electrical work, auto mechanics and the various building trades as well as in mechanical drawing, dressmaking, millinery and cookery.

SASKATCHEWAN

REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION

D. P. McColl

In the province of Saskatchewan vocational classes are conducted in accordance with the provisions of the Vocational Education Act passed by the legislature in 1920. Under this Act boards of trustees of town districts or of high school districts may provide for the instruction of pupils in day schools which shall have an independent organization or be constituted as a department of an existing educational institution; or evening schools in which adolescents and adults may receive theoretical and practical instruction in such occupations as they are engaged in during the day.

Provision is made for the appointment of a vocational education committee composed of ten members, four of whom are nominated by the board from its own members, three to be employers of labour and nominated by the council, three to be employes and nominated by the local organizations.

By reason of special conditions prevailing in Saskatchewan and the fact that the university through its short courses meets a need in the province, vocational training in day classes is undertaken in only a few of the larger centres, and is mainly confined to instruction in commercial work in the collegiate institutes in Regina, Saskatoon, and Moose Jaw. In Regina, however, considerable attention is also being given to classes in motor mechanics and home economics.

The commercial department of the Scott Collegiate Institute, Regina, has become quite a factor in the educational activities of the city. There is a large and increasing enrolment, and many students upon completion of their courses are taking up important positions with business firms both in the city and elsewhere.

In the Bedford Road Collegiate Institute, Saskatoon, the commercial department continues to develop, and there is a large enrolment at the present time.

While classes in commercial subjects are being held in the Moose Jaw Collegiate Institute, the enrolment is smaller than that in the other two centres, but good work is being done.

The facilities afforded by instruction in evening classes in Regina and Saskatoon are meeting a real need in the community. In Saskatoon courses are given in millinery, dressmaking, book-keeping, stenography, typewriting, English for the non-English, business arithmetic, draughting, and dietetics. In Regina the following courses are offered: dressmaking, stenography, typewriting, book-keeping, machine shop practice, draughting, motor mechanics, English, chemistry, practical science (for nurses).

The vocational committees for the evening classes in these centres are fortunate in having secured the services of teachers with special qualifications for the several phases of work. The classes are well attended and good progress is being made. Those in attendance benefit by the fact that the teachers have been chosen from those who are actively interested in the subjects in which they give instruction.

ALBERTA

REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR OF TECHNICAL EDUCATION

Dr. W. G. Carpenter.

The year 1926-27 has been an interesting one from the viewpoint of vocational education in Alberta. A spirit of optimism has prevailed throughout the province and there has been a revival of industrial activity. The coal mining is more stabilized since the major labour disputes have been settled. The proving of the oil field south of Calgary has been reassuring. People have been coming into the province in large numbers, which has brought about a demand for homes and has stimulated the building trades. The farmers have had a good year. One of the outstanding features of the year has been the increase in the sale of farm tractors and the large combination harvesting machinery. The extension of electric services to the country and the smaller centres has been a feature of the year which has brought much work to those skilled in electrical installations. In several towns a complete renewal of all the services has been made necessary through farmers petitioning electric distributing companies for service. It is a matter of a very short time before electric current for power and lighting purposes will be as common as rural telephones.

Because of these changes in outlook and development, an increased demand has been created for training services and all branches of technical instruction given in the Institute of Technology in Calgary, and in the technical school in Edmonton, have been in demand. These are the only two centres giving such service in day classes. The evening school programs in the four cities of Calgary, Edmonton, Lethbridge, and Medicine Hat were adapted to the demands made by their respective constituencies and good work was done. Drumheller centre fell away, largely due to the removal from the town of three of the instructors who had carried on for several winters. Unfortunately no classes were conducted in the Crowsnest pass centres. This is fertile territory and should have work to do, although the mining industry is not yet thoroughly stable. The chief obstacle lies in the difficulty in getting competent instructors willing to take charge of the work. Three new centres were added to the list of districts giving courses, namely Rosedale Village, Mercoal, and Taber, and in all centres well attended classes were conducted.

In Edmonton the Technical High School has shown an interesting tendency in the falling away of students desiring academic training only, and in the increase of those taking training leading to trades and industries. An overlapping between this school and the regular high schools is in this way being eliminated. Because of an insistent demand on the part of the public, a new electric department has been instituted and placed in charge of a practical electrician. The evening program in Edmonton was well sustained with good attendance and good service.

The prevocational school in Calgary has had a splendid year. There was a marked increase in its enrolment and a higher appreciation on the part of the public of its usefulness. In this school there has been a larger attention given the individuality of the child and a successful effort made to cater to him according to his abilities. An increasing number of students from this school are coming to the Institute of Technology. A vast improvement has been made in the accommodation for commercial work in this city. The unsuitable quarters in which this work has been carried on in the past have been abandoned and the classes are housed in a superior building centrally located. This has resulted in an extension of the services of the Commercial High School to an increased enrolment. A special vocational class is being conducted for high school graduates which will enable them to attain proficiency in secretarial duties in a much shorter period of time than they would if they had enrolled in a regular class under the old regulations. Two additional instructors have been added to the staff.

Evening classes in Calgary were popular during the winter. Instruction was given in high school subjects to employed persons improving their status, to younger persons in public school subjects making good lost opportunities, to the non-English, and to the women in cooking, sewing, and millinery. The attendance at these classes was larger than in the preceding season, while the attendance at the Institute of Technology evening classes was nearly three times that of the preceding season.

The growth of interest in the work of the Institute of Technology and Art has been the feature of the year. The following table indicates the development of the service rendered through the day classes:—

School Year	Student Hours Attendance	Increase
1920-21.....	40,685
1921-22.....	58,766	18,081
1922-23.....	110,770	52,004

1924-25.....	185,658	30,382
1925-26.....	213,678	28,020
1926-27.....	247,615	33,937

Since 1920-21 the instructional service of the institute in day classes alone has been increased 608 per cent, and graduates may be found employed in all the mechanical industries of the province.

The electrical department maintains its leadership in popularity. The shops offer accommodation for about sixty beginners in a two-year course. For the present year it looks as though the demand for places in this department will double the accommodation facilities and scores will be disappointed. All departments have had their accommodation quarters increased because of the new wing 150 feet by 70 feet, which was occupied in October, 1926. The motor department now has a shop 100 feet by 30 feet for its work, in addition to an automotive electric shop and a welding and vulcanizing room each 50 feet by 30 feet. Ninety students were accommodated in the motor department and 26 in the automotive electric, in day classes.

The following table is the record of enrolment of the year 1926-27:—

This is an increase of 395 over the enrolment of the preceding year.

An interesting development in the evening class work in Calgary is the co-operation of the Heating and Sanitary Engineers and the Plumbers' Union with the institute under which a three-winter program has been organized for plumbers' apprentices. Attendance at these classes is made compulsory under agreement made with the apprentice at the time of engagement. A similar arrangement is being worked out in Edmonton. It is hoped that other building trades will organize similarly in the near future and take advantage of the opportunities the institute may offer.

As a result of the interprovincial conferences held in previous years, Alberta is preparing a series of lesson outlines for evening class instruction in mathematics for engineers, English for engineers, and dressmaking for women. It is expected that these will be available and ready for use in November.

The correspondence lessons in mining have been given a thorough revision and brought up to date to meet conditions as they actually exist in the province. The requirements of the examinations board for passing the examinations set for mine officials have been stiffening, which has meant that the courses of instruction have had to be modified and made more comprehensive. Several lectures, particularly in the first class course, have been completely rewritten. Because of a general weakness in mathematics on the part of many candidates the course in this subject as prepared by the Mines Department in British Columbia has been adopted and is being issued to serve Alberta miners.

The steam engineering courses have never been in such demand as they are at the present time and an excellent service is being rendered steam engineers. Because of a demand for a course of lesser difficulty than that for third class engineers, a new course has been prepared and is being offered those who desire the theoretical details that lie behind the maintenance and operation of the steam tractor or for those writing examinations for provisional certificates in steam engineering. This course is also designed to serve firemen of steam-pressure boilers.

There is a persistent demand for instruction in other subjects through the mail that it is desirable to fill in making an adequate program in vocational subjects suitable for the scattered population which is characteristic of this province.

During the summer holiday period an opportunity was offered the young people of Alberta to make use of the equipment of the institute in shop courses covering five weeks. During the summer session of 1927 there were fifty-nine persons enrolled for courses in electricity, motor mechanics, woodworking, drafting, art, cooking, sewing, and special commercial subjects. The commercial course was particularly interesting, the content being an intensive course in Gregg stenography with methods in teaching typewriting. Enrolment was restricted to teachers in commercial schools, of whom thirteen were enrolled. The course was organized with the co-operation of the Gregg Publishing Company of Canada, which supplied the instructor in the person of Mr. T. Byron, of the Metropolitan School of Commerce, New York City.

The prospects for a progressive year to come were never better. Technical education has an important contribution to make in the educational services of this province.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

REPORT OF THE PROVINCIAL ORGANIZER OF TECHNICAL EDUCATION

John Kyle

The figures for the past year show a very encouraging increase in day school enrolments over that of the previous year and a slight increase in evening schools. Day classes are now conducted in fifteen municipalities and evening classes were operated last winter in thirty-nine centres throughout the province.

TECHNICAL INSTITUTE FOR GREATER VANCOUVER

A great addition to the enrolment of industrial students will undoubtedly be made when a technical school for Greater Vancouver is built, because in this school the finishing vocational courses will be provided. This new technical school will form a link between the high schools and industrial occupations. The Vancouver Board of School Trustees has purchased twenty-five acres of land in Hastings townsite and plans are rapidly being completed for a building to house classes whereat preparation and training may be received for some of the most important industries of British Columbia. When this proposed technical school enjoys public confidence and it becomes understood that a thorough training for industrial life is emphasized, a steadily increasing stream of students will result. Care should be taken, however, to guard the technical school for Greater Vancouver from becoming merely a technical high school and to preserve its identity as a pre-eminently technical or vocational school. The high school of the future will undoubtedly include a technical course as well as courses in academic, commercial, home economics, and in some cases agricultural subjects; moreover such a composite high school with its parallel courses will do a great deal to prove the foolishness of the idea that one course is inferior to another. The technical or vocational school for Greater Vancouver, however, will deal mainly with students after they leave the technical high schools or after they have found themselves through the medium of exploratory courses at the junior high schools and have an intelligent idea of the occupation in which they desire to engage. Two junior high schools are established in Vancouver and it is safe to predict that a good proportion of the pupils will prove themselves more capable in the line of craftsmanship than in an academic course. If these pupils do not intend to proceed to university, the technical or vocational school will be the desirable place to attend. On the other hand, if the students desire to attend the science course at the university, a technical course at a composite high school should be their avenue.

COMPOSITE HIGH SCHOOLS

It would seem to be reasonable to expect the university authorities to acknowledge such an educational development as a composite high school, and to increase elective subjects at the matriculation examination so as not to work an injustice on those students who elect to take the technical or home economics courses at the composite high school. The great amount of shop work in technical courses, which, by the way, develops most effectively the initiative, ingenuity, industry, taste, skill, and self-expression of a student, should surely count for something in admission to the university. It surely cannot be claimed that all education, refinement, and culture comes to the race from books alone.

The overcoming of this matriculation difficulty will probably come simultaneously with a decision to transform some of the larger high schools into composite high schools, for one may easily imagine the day when high schools in South Vancouver, Burnaby, and North Vancouver will be impelled to enrich and increase their courses of study, while the technical or vocational school of Greater Vancouver will continue to work in close co-operation with industry and the apprenticeship council of Vancouver.

Point Grey already possesses a junior and composite high school at Magee, inasmuch as pupils after they pass through the junior high exploratory courses may take any of the four high school courses—academic, technical, commercial, or home economics. The technical department has an excellent equipment and the energetic and capable staff understand thoroughly what is required to prepare a boy to become a manly, self-supporting citizen.

In the Vancouver Technical School it was found to be a mistake to divide attention between the examination for matriculation to university and direct preparation for industrial life, consequently it was decided to dispense with matriculation subjects. This decision made no appreciable difference to the total student enrolment in the school. Nevertheless the bright ambitious young men in the technical or vocational school should be encouraged to go to university and be assisted by a committee of the staff organized for the special purpose of giving vocational guidance. Such a group of students could carry the additional load of a foreign language, together with history, and find their way to the university at the end of the fourth year, if not at the end of the third. Their technical training, moreover, would equip them well to earn their living and pay their way through university and would prepare them particularly well for the work of the applied science course in the university.

SCHOOL OF APPLIED DESIGN

The Vancouver School of Applied Design which was opened last year has been an unqualified success. The enrolment far exceeded all expectations and there is no doubt that the good work done will be found helpful to the crafts and industries of Greater Vancouver. Due attention is being paid to architecture and the kindred studies of interior decoration and furniture design, metal work in its various branches from wrought iron to the precious metals, clay products and cement, typography and lithography, dressmaking and costume design, and millinery.

The city of Victoria might well follow the example of Vancouver in this respect, for the public appreciation of both art and music in the capital city is very pronounced and a serious effort to establish a school of applied art would meet with an eager response. Victoria has made no educational progress during the past year in a technical way. It has not yet been possible to give more than a two years' high school technical course and none but those who have passed the entrance to high school are admitted to the course. Considering the overwhelming advantages which are given to those pupils who wish to sit the matriculation examination in order to attend university, it is unfortunate that more is not attempted for those pupils who are compelled to participate in industrial occupations without completing a high school course. Victoria High School, with its commodious grounds, is one of those high schools which is particularly well suited for the requirements of a composite high school. A technical course in such a school and the inauguration of a school of applied art would provide the necessary education facilities for many students from all parts of Vancouver Island.

COMMERCIAL COURSES

Good work is being accomplished in the commercial courses throughout the province and we have been dependent entirely upon the commercial teachers trained in British Columbia for supplying vacant positions. This makes the commercial condition doubly satisfactory. The following statement of awards shows how the high school commercial students measure up with those from private commercial schools.

At the Canadian Typewriting Contest held during the spring of 1927 in Vancouver there were three classes into which contestants were grouped:—

- (a) The novice class, the contestants of which must not have begun the study of typewriting earlier than August 1 of the preceding year.
- (b) The intermediate class, the contestants of which must not have begun the study of typewriting earlier than August 1, two years previous to the contest.
- (c) The senior class, open to any typist living in Canada.

The contestants of the novice class came from students attending the local business colleges and from the high schools. Since most of the business college students remain in such schools less than one year, their representatives were near the graduating stage. The high school students were only the beginning classes. Yet, in this contest, the high school students demonstrated their superiority most emphatically. Pupils from the Vancouver High School of Commerce ranked first, second, fourth, and fifth.

In the senior or open class the victory was equally as great. In this division the five cups were won by high school or ex-high school students.

That accuracy is of more importance than speed in typewriter operation is the unanimous opinion of all who employ stenographers, and it is a remarkable testimony of the thoroughness of the high school training to point out that in this contest the only two perfect papers were handed in by high school students. In the senior division a pupil of the High School of Commerce staff wrote 1,994 words in 30 minutes without a single error. This pupil received her only training in typewriting during the school year 1924-25, at the High School of Commerce, Vancouver. She won, in this contest, the senior accuracy championship of Canada, beating every contestant from all Canadian schools and colleges. In the intermediate division another pupil in the second year at Britannia High School, Vancouver, wrote 832 words in 15 minutes without a single error, winning the intermediate accuracy championship for all of Canada. This pupil received her only training in typewriting at Britannia High School.

Vancouver Exhibition Typing Contest, August, 1927: 1st prize, Britannia High School; 2nd prize, Britannia High School.

During the school year, 1926-27, the High School of Commerce, Vancouver, won many special awards, among which are:—

1. Typewriting Awards

Over 450 medals, certificates, gold pins, etc., from the Remington, Underwood, Royal and L. C. Smith Companies, for proficiency and speed in typewriting. One Remington typewriter for accuracy at 60 words per minute for fifteen minutes. Senior accuracy championship for all of Canada, the student having written for 30 minutes at 66 words per minute without a single error.

2. Shorthand Certificates

Over 150 shorthand certificates issued by the Isaac Pitman Company for speeds up to 150 words per minute. In these tests, the examiners are outside people acceptable to the Isaac Pitman Company, and the papers are set by Pitman examiners.

3. Dominion Civil Service Certificates

Twenty students passed the Dominion Civil Service stenographers' examinations, one winning third place in all Canada. Most of these young people are now employed in Dominion Government offices.

4. Provincial Civil Service Examinations

Fifteen students passed the provincial civil service stenographers' examinations, one winning second place in British Columbia. In both the Dominion and provincial examinations the age limit prevents many of our best students from writing.

5. First-class Certificates for Wireless Operators

Eight young men passed the federal wireless examinations, many of whom are now employed in that work. One young man, after eight months of study, passed the highest in Canada.

6. Where the students are employed

During the past eight years over 2,000 graduates have gone directly from the class-rooms into local business offices as accountants, secretaries, stenographers, etc. Many of these are now holding highly paid positions with the firms with which they are employed.

In the 1927 typing competition conducted by the United Typewriter Company in Victoria thirty-three high school typists entered for the senior and intermediate classes, but there were no entries for the novice class.

In the final official report from Toronto ten of these contestants received standing in the senior and one obtained the accuracy prize by writing 68.8 words per minute for half an hour with only eight errors. In the intermediate class six contestants received standing and one was the runner-up for the speed prize and wrote 55.9 words per minute for fifteen minutes with twelve errors.

When one considers that there were sixty-nine Victoria entrants in all three classes one must admit that the standard of typewriting in Victoria High School must be highly satisfactory and it merits public confidence. In fact the high school commercial work in British Columbia conducted under the direction of the Department of Education is excellent in character. The teachers are well trained for their positions and the results are meeting the demands of those who require office assistants.

Even the smaller high schools have their list of honours. Magee High School, Point Grey, for instance, obtained certificates, bronze, silver and gold awards from the various typewriter companies. Nine students passed directly from school into the provincial and Dominion Civil Service and in the Dominion examination a pupil of this school secured fifth place in all Canada.

While the high school commercial course is of three years' duration it might be advisable to provide a one year's intensive course for those who must, through economic reasons, become wage earners as soon as possible. From such a number there would be a proportion encouraged by success to carry on for a second year. At all events the only way a one year's course can be obtained at present is at private business schools set up to supply a pronounced demand from the people, and those who cannot afford to attend more than one year at high school are the very people who most require educational assistance.

Commercial courses are an important part of the technical education program because of the extensive nature of the work of warehousing and merchandizing. More people are at present engaged in this line of activity than in manufacturing, and, with the awakening of the Orient and the settlement of Russia, distributing warehouses will increase rapidly on the Pacific coast. We must guard, however, against the claim that has been made by some teachers that the French language should become obligatory in the commercial course. In South Vancouver the board have taken this step and all commercial students are compelled to include French in their course, notwithstanding the fact that there is no business need for it in British Columbia. The same cannot be said of Chinese, Japanese, Russian, or Spanish, and the commercial importance of these languages is recognized on the Pacific coast. The need for them will become greater with the years and their commercial importance will increase with the growth of trading facilities.

NIGHT SCHOOLS

Night schools were conducted in thirty-nine cities, municipalities and rural districts in the province, with an attendance of 5,176 individual students and a total enrolment of 6,366.

It is becoming more and more important that courses of work be drawn up for night school instructors, not that such courses should be adhered to in their entirety, but in order that instructors may have a guide in arranging their subject matter for effective teaching. This step was unanimously agreed to at a recent conference, held at Calgary, of representatives of the four western provinces of the Dominion. Each provincial representative agreed to compile four courses and Manitoba has already forwarded one course in electricity and one in forge-shop practice. British Columbia has almost completed courses in building construction, furniture design for cabinetmakers, sheetmetal work, and machine-shop practice. The desire to provide complete courses for the junior high schools at the commencement of the school year prevented the completion of the night school courses in this province, but during the coming year we hope to keep up the pressure and have on hand as fine a supply of technical material for night schools as can be obtained anywhere.

It has been gratifying to be of service to the members of Women's Institutes through assisting them to conduct educational work at night schools. The teaching courses referred to would be invaluable to Women's Institutes, for they are often compelled to engage instructors who have little teaching experience and no teaching devices or equipment ready for the work they undertake.

APPRENTICESHIP

The splendid foundational work of the Apprenticeship Council of the Building Trades Association should not be overlooked. Although expansion has been retarded owing to labour trouble, yet in the near future there will be considerable expansion. The carpenters were the first group to work with the council, but the sheetmetal workers, painters, plumbers, and plasterers will soon take the final step. When the technical or vocational school in Vancouver is erected and the workshops are being operated, then the Building Trades Association will have an educational centre in which to place their indentured apprentices for that technical training which is necessary to supplement the work in which they are engaged during the day.

The enrolment in the mining courses was 209, but the actual number who send in lessons fluctuates with trade conditions.

We should do well to extend the correspondence courses which we so happily began and which are well established. We now have the courses and machinery for taking students in commercial subjects such as book-keeping, typewriting and stenography. We are almost prepared to give electricity, carpentry and joinery, sheetmetal work, drawing and design. In fact an opportunity might well be given students to prepare for all examinations demanded by the Provincial Government for stationary engineers, electricians, etc., etc.

The establishment of these correspondence or home-study courses would give the Department of Education the teaching material and equipment necessary to give education of a high school character to pupils living in sparsely populated districts where it is impossible to expect superior schools. Moreover it will make possible the introduction of the "Benton Harbor" scheme whereby the scope of work in small high schools may be broadened and an almost unlimited range of studies may be taken by correspondence. The lessons, however, would be supervised during school hours by the high school teacher, thus eliminating the most objectionable feature of correspondence work. Any high school can introduce the system, regardless of size. The following list of subjects are given at Benton Harbor, Michigan:—

It will be noted that twenty-two different courses are offered, in some of which only one student is enrolled. In only two courses is the enrolment sufficient to justify hiring teachers for such work. It seems obvious from this that the correspondence plan is not designed to take the place of or to conflict with the regular high school work, but rather to supplement it with such material and subjects as cannot profitably be offered because of the small number electing them. One of the most interesting features of the plan is its range of influence. Out of the 91 listed in the table given above, 70 were regular high school students, while the remainder were drawn from various walks of life.

TEACHER TRAINING, ETC.

Teacher training for technical school work is proceeding satisfactorily and the thirty members of the class are almost entirely practical craftsmen who either are engaged at present as manual instructors or have passed through the manual training instructors' class and thus have caught the educational view-point.

With the growth of technical education positions will be forthcoming for the men who have taken this training, and the success of technical education will be entirely in their hands. Certificates for technical teachers are of two kinds—interim and permanent. After two years' successful teaching experience the interim certificate may be made permanent. The course of study is more specific than that drawn up for the manual training teachers' high school certificate. Part I consists of a study of trade analysis and a study of teaching methods and principles, during which they chart out a course of work. Part II consists of practice teaching. It is improbable that craftsmen would give up remunerative work to attend the Ontario Training College for technical teachers. Salaries are not sufficiently high to warrant a man running into great expense in order to attend college.

The training of first-class certificated school teachers as teachers of commercial subjects is undertaken at summer schools and these are linked up by correspondence lessons during the winter months. Students are enrolled in shorthand, typewriting, book-keeping, and teaching methods. The commercial certificates are of two kinds; interim and permanent. After two years' successful teaching experience the interim certificate may be made permanent.

XV. LEAGUE OF NATIONS INTERNATIONAL LABOUR ORGANIZATION

The International Labour Organization of the League of Nations was formed under the authority of Part XIII of the Treaty of Peace with Germany and the corresponding part of the other peace treaties, to promote the improvement of industrial conditions by legislative action and international agreement. It comprises the International Labour Office in Geneva and the International Labour Conference, which meets annually. The latter is composed of four delegates of each member state, two of whom are government delegates and two representative of employers and employed, respectively. Fifty-five countries are members of the International Labour Organization, including all of the industrial countries of the world excepting the United States.

The International Labour Office is under the control of a Governing Body consisting of twenty-four persons chosen by the International Labour Conference, twelve representing governments, six representing employers and six representing workers. The Governing Body is also charged with the preparation of the agenda of the annual conference.

The International Labour Conference, in its successive sessions since its inception in 1919, has adopted twenty-three draft conventions and twenty-eight recommendations which have been communicated to the member states of the organization. The latter are under obligation to bring these draft conventions and recommendations of the International Labour Conference before the authority or authorities within whose competence the matter lies for the enactment of legislative or other action. Most of the proposals which have emanated from the Conference to date have dealt with subjects which fall within provincial legislative jurisdiction in Canada, and have accordingly been brought to the attention of the respective provincial governments. The draft conventions and recommendations have also been brought before the Federal Parliament.

The Department of Labour is entrusted with the duties arising out of the relations of Canada with the International Labour Organization. These have entailed much correspondence, not only with the International Labour Office, but also with other departments of the Dominion Government, with the provinces and with employers' and workers' organizations. Replies have also been prepared in the Department of Labour to various questionnaires which were circulated on behalf of the International Labour Office. The performance of these duties has necessarily entailed a close study on the part of officers of the department of the various technical questions which have figured on the various Conference agenda and meetings of the Governing Body and of questionnaires received from the International Labour Office.

A bulletin entitled "Canada and the International Labour Conference" was issued by the Department of Labour in February, 1922, for the purpose of furnishing information in reference to the International Labour Organization and the subjects which have received attention at the hands of this body.

In the month of December, 1924, in order to secure closer touch with the work of the League of Nations and of the International Labour Organization, the appointment was made by the Government of Canada of an Advisory Officer resident in Geneva. It was felt that this appointment would ensure greater permanency and continuity of representation at the meetings of the Governing Body of the International Labour Office and that such an officer, acting as a substitute for and under the direction of the Minister of Labour, would improve the present plan of Canada's representation. Dr. W. A. Riddell, former Deputy Minister of Labour of Ontario, who had held an important position on the staff of the International Labour Office since 1920, was entrusted with the duties of Dominion of Canada Advisory Officer, League of Nations, in Geneva.

VISIT TO CANADA OF THE DEPUTY DIRECTOR OF THE INTERNATIONAL LABOUR OFFICE

Mr. H. B. Butler, the Deputy Director of the International Labour Office, Geneva, visited Canada and the United States during the latter part of the year and was in Ottawa from October 29 to November 2, afterwards making brief visits also to Montreal, Hamilton and Toronto. The purpose of his coming to Canada was to discuss the work of the International Labour Organization with the Dominion Government and with leading employers and labour representatives.

During his stay in Ottawa, Mr. Butler conferred with the Minister and staff of the Department of Labour in regard to questions which have arisen concerning various conventions and recommendations which have been adopted at successive sessions of the International Labour Conference. He also delivered addresses regarding the various phases of the work of the International Labour Organization before the Men's and Women's Canadian Clubs of Ottawa, the McGill University Club of Montreal, the Men's and Women's Canadian Clubs of Hamilton and Toronto, and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in Montreal and in Toronto. His visit served to emphasize the importance of this work in the minds of the many persons who had an opportunity of meeting him and of listening to his addresses.

RATIFICATION OF DRAFT CONVENTIONS

Reference was made in the last Annual Report to certain amendments which were made to the Canada Shipping Act in order to permit of the ratification of four draft conventions relating to the employment of seamen. These four draft conventions were later ratified on behalf of Canada and the ratifications were duly registered with the League of Nations. They relate to the following subjects: minimum age for the admission of children to employment at sea; unemployment indemnity in case of loss or foundering of the ship; minimum age for the admission of young persons to employment as trimmers or stokers; and compulsory medical examination of children and young persons employed at sea.

DRAFT CONVENTIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS ADOPTED AT THE SEVENTH SESSION OF THE INTERNATIONAL LABOUR CONFERENCE

An Order in Council was adopted on March 9, 1927, and was subsequently laid on the table of the House of Commons by the Minister of Labour, dealing with the extent to which the draft conventions and recommendations adopted at the seventh session of the International Labour Conference were within the competence of the Dominion Parliament or of the Provincial Legislatures respectively. Copies of this Order in Council, together with the texts of the draft conventions and recommendations, were also communicated to the respective Provincial Governments. The Order in Council, which was adopted on report of the Minister of Justice, indicated that the subject matters in question were primarily within the legislative authority of the provinces.

PROPOSED DOMINION-PROVINCIAL CONFERENCE

The House of Commons of Canada, on June 30, 1926, adopted a report of the Select Standing Committee on Industrial and International Relations, in which it was proposed that a conference of provincial and Dominion representatives intimately in touch with labour conditions throughout Canada should be held in the near future to consult as to the best means to be employed in giving effect to the labour conditions of the Treaties of Peace. It is expected that this subject will be included in the agenda of a proposed conference between the Dominion Government and the various Provincial Governments which is to be held in the fall of 1927.

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR CONFERENCE, 1926

The eighth and ninth sessions of the International Labour Conference (League of Nations), constituted under the provisions of the Treaties of Peace, were held at Geneva, Switzerland, from May 26 to June 6, and from June 7 to June 24, respectively.

Only one session of the Conference has been held annually until the present year. In this connection the Treaty of Peace required that "the meetings of the general conference of representatives of the members shall be held from time to time as occasion may require, and at least once a year." It was desired this year to deal with certain questions relating to the employment of seamen and also to consider the adoption of a convention relative to the simplification of the inspection of emigrants on board ship. This latter question was referred to the eighth session and was the principal item on the agenda of this gathering, while the agenda of the ninth session was confined to certain questions affecting seamen.

LIST OF CONVENTIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS ADOPTED

The following draft convention and recommendation were adopted at the eighth session:—

Draft convention concerning the simplification of the inspection of emigrants on board ship.

Recommendation concerning the protection of emigrant women and girls on board ship.

At the ninth session the following draft conventions and recommendations were adopted:—

Draft convention concerning the repatriation of seamen.

Draft convention concerning seamen's articles of agreement.

Recommendation concerning the repatriation of masters and apprentices.

Recommendation concerning the general principles for the inspection of the conditions of work of seamen.

COUNTRIES REPRESENTED

Of the fifty-seven countries which are members of the International Labour Organization, thirty-eight countries sent delegations to the eighth and ninth sessions, namely: Argentina, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Brazil, British Empire, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, China, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Esthonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, India, Irish Free State, Italy, Japan, Latvia, Norway, Netherlands, Peru, Poland, Portugal, Roumania, Serb-Croat-Slovene Kingdom, Siam, South Africa, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Uruguay and Venezuela.

CANADIAN DELEGATION

The Canadian delegation in attendance at the eighth session of the conference was as follows:—

Government Delegates.—Dr. W. A. Riddell, Canadian Advisory Officer, League of Nations, Geneva, Switzerland.

Mr. Lucien Pacaud, Secretary, Office of the High Commissioner for Canada, London, England.

Adviser to Government Delegates.—Mr. Thomas Poulin, of the Federation of Catholic Workers of Canada, Quebec, Que.

Employers' Delegate.—Mr. Thomas Robb, Manager and Secretary, Shipping Federation of Canada, Montreal, Que.

Adviser to Employers' Delegate.—Mr. R. W. Gould, Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Montreal, Que.

Workers' Delegate.—Mr. Tom Moore, President, Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, Ottawa, Ont.

Adviser to Workers' Delegate.—Mr. Bertram Merson, President, Toronto Division 113, Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees of America, and Vice-President, Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, Toronto, Ont.

At the ninth session, the technical adviser to the workers' delegate was Mr. Eugene Hamelin, Grand President, National Association of Marine Engineers of Canada, Montreal, P.Q.; otherwise the delegation was the same as at the eighth session.

Canada was represented on the various committees appointed by the Conference at the eighth session as follows:—

Dr. W. A. Riddell was chosen as one of the members of the government group on the selection committee.

Mr. Tom Moore was appointed a member of workers' group on the committee on standing orders.

Canada was represented on all three groups of the committee on the simplification of the inspection of emigrants on board ship. Dr. W. A. Riddell was elected as a member of the government group, Major Thomas Robb as a member of the employers' group, and Mr. Bertram Merson as a member of the workers' group.

Mr. Lucien Pacaud and Mr. R. W. Gould acted as substitutes for Dr. Riddell and Major Robb, respectively, at some of the meetings of the committee on the simplification of the inspection of emigrants on board ship.

Mr. Thomas Poulin acted as a substitute for Mr. Pacaud at one of the meetings of the Conference:

At the ninth session of the Conference Canada was represented on the various committees as follows:—

Dr. W. A. Riddell was chosen as a member of the government group on the selection committee.
